For the barrenness of the session the Democratic minority of the House bears no responsibility. On the contrary, it is chiefly due to their vigilance under their able leader that the Republican majority in congress precipitately closed the session with their schemes suspended in the air. There were all the old bills, and some new ones, for steamship subsidies, restraint of immigration, modification of the land laws, transportation of the Philipines, and kindred objects. Some have passed the House and some the Senate, to hang up till the short session of congress, when the Republican majority will be relieved in large degree of the dread of public opinion. Such but partially describes the condition in which the two parties enter the presidential campaign. From a mere party point of view the Democrats surely have no cause to complain of the situation presented by the Republican majority at the close of the session of congress.

I learn from the Eastern Press Bureau of the St. Louis World's Fair that there need be no alarm about hotel accomidations at St. Louis during any part of the Exposition. A large number of the hotels in course of construction have practically been completed and the remainder will be finished at an early date. The proprietors of the various first class hotels have made the statement that rates would absolutely not be advanced. CHAS. A. EDWARDS.

A Sure Thing.

It is said that nothing is sure except death and taxes, but that is not altogether true. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption is a sure cure for all lung and throat troubles. Thousands can testify to that. Mrs. C. B. VanMetre of Shepherdstown, W. Va., says "I had a severe case of Bronchitis and for a year tried everything I heard of, but got no relief. One bottle of Dr. King's New Discovery then cured me absolutely." It's infallible for Croup, Whooping Cough, Grip, Pneumonia and Consumption. Try it. Everything is getting pretty dry in this neck of the woods, we are needing rain bad but the farmers are going ahead and working all the same.

Well, our Sunday school is progressing nicely; on Sunday there was forty five answered to their names; and in the evening there was a singing at Freeman's schoolhouse and there was some good singing; the class was led by Messrs. E. J. Scott, C. W. Langston and E. G. Cofer, and they also organized a Sabbath school with twenty-seven scholars; may the good work of the Sabbath school go on and be pushed forward by the leaders.

There was a good game of ball at the ball ground Saturday evening between Jemison and Scotland, and the score stood 9 to 14 in favor of Jemison. Well, boys, come again and we will give you another rap. Goo Goo Eyes had not played a game of ball this year, we will interest you more next time.

Our alliance is progressing nicely, had a good meeting Saturday night. Well, no more for this time and I will come again.

Mr. John M. Robinson and daughter, Miss Drucilla, and Miss Anna Lue Hornsby of Clanton were welcome visitors among us Sunday.

Quite a large crowd visited the sick and invalid father of Mr. T. G. Wyatt Sunday afternoon; we mourn with them in their great afflictions, but we can only say Thy will be done. MAY FLOWER.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhœa and so severe were the pains that we called a physician who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy on hand gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, editor. A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "NEED OF A REVIVAL."

The Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom Says That We Require a Fresh Conviction of the Reality of Salvation—Too Much Absorption in the Pursuit of Riches.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—In Plymouth Church the Rev. Philip S. Moxom, of Springfield, Mass., preached Sunday morning. Dr. Moxom's subject was "The Need of a Revival." [illegible]

[illegible]

The [illegible] was called [illegible] series of meetings of preaching and prayer and exhortation and [illegible]. The preacher wrought upon the [illegible] of men by setting forth [illegible] upon them and their neglect [illegible]. He wrought upon the fears [illegible] punishment [illegible] travail [illegible] of God [illegible] of man [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible]

The results [illegible] efforts often was the awakening of a community; the meeting [illegible] ers, many [illegible] of their [illegible] with compunction [illegible] their neglected [illegible] and convicted and brought to a state of deep contrition [illegible] conversions, and [illegible] verts increased the religious fervor of believers and produced conviction of sin and desire of salvation in other unbelievers. Considerable numbers were added to the church, and for a time the whole community was raised to a higher level of religious life, and in many instances to a higher morality.

Usually, after a time, the revival was followed by a gradual relapse into formality of religious service, coldness of religious temper, and indifference to the higher claims of the church. Fever was followed by chill, until, after months or years, a new demand arose for "a season of refreshing from the Lord." This intermittency of religious life was a characteristic feature of Protestant church life for many generations—a period covering quite 200 years. This period, extending from the seventeenth to the nineteenth centuries, was marked by great crises of religious awakening. Notable among them were those signalized by the names of Edwards, Wesley, Whitefield, Summerfield and, later, Finney and Moody.

That "revivals of religion," in what may now be called the historic sense, did great good cannot successfully be disputed; nor can it be denied that they also did much harm. On the whole, the good was in excess of the harm. "Revivals" were in accord with the religious ideas prevalent at the time, and were a natural product of those ideas. During their hectic existence many individual men and women were transformed from lives of wickedness or vanity to lives of virtue and unselfish service to their fellow men. Reverence for God was deepened and faith in God was stimulated and nourished.

The evils were incident to the mistaken theology that held supreme place in the churches and largely supplanted the simplicity of the gospel of Christ. These evils were very great, and the effect of them still remains, though in diminishing degree. Among them may be noted a false, or at least, mistaken and inadequate, motive for Christian propaganda, a mischievous separation between religion and morality, an unnatural and feverish piety that, on the one hand, became a morbid sentimentalism, or, on the other, degenerated into a formalism no less real because often it was not ritualistic.

Wrong ideas of God and Christ and sin and salvation and righteousness and the hereafter were rooted so deep that they could be destroyed only by a criticism so drastic that it has seemed to tear up fundamental truth of the spiritual life. A kind of orthodoxy was established that perpetuated, if it did not create, opposition between nature and providence, science and faith, the business of life and the interests of the immortal soul. It produced an artificiality of life which stimulated self-deception and hypocrisy, and gave great opportunity and scope to the bigot. Much of the irreligion of to-day, or what is rather undiscriminately called irreligion, is simply reaction, though often unconscious, from the unreality of yesterday.

At the present time an attempt is being made to restore the revival methods of last century. Organizations have been formed the more efficiently to prosecute this attempt. In the nature of the case, the attempt will fail. It will fail because it is not in accord with prevailing ideas of religion—of God and man and their mutual relations and of human development and destiny. The principle of evolution has overthrown, not the truths, but the structural principles and the elaborate theory of the old theology. The new biology has made necessary a new theology, and a new theology is already diffused in the atmosphere of the common thought.

But I speak of this attempt now not to criticise it; I would rather welcome it if it contained any promise of real good. I speak of it particularly because it indicates and emphasizes a growing feeling that all is not right with the church and society to-day, and the deepening surmise, if it is not yet generally a conviction, that we are in great need of a true revival of religion.

No one can justly criticise the present life of our country without recognizing and confessing that it presents to the view very many features which awaken feelings of gratitude and hope. Charity was never so abundant and wise. The morals of the average business man were never better. Laws were never more humane and just. Politics were never less corrupt. The beneficent enterprises of the Christian church in all the world were never so intelligent and sympathetic and efficient. Whatever abatements we must make, because of certain obvious and perplexing facts, these propositions are, in the main, true.

On the other hand there is an absorbing devotion to the pursuit of riches. The haste to be rich is like an epidemic fever. There is an exaggerated appreciation of mere materiality. This widely affects commercial and industrial enterprise. Many corporations strive, by attempted monopoly, to increase profits already large, or, by combination and the promotion of vast schemes for further consolidation, seek to turn paper securities into money. Many of these schemes, in effect, if not in intention, are fraudulent. Labor unions, overstepping their legitimate purpose of protecting laboring men from oppression and securing for them a just share of the products of labor, are seeking to create a labor oligarchy and to extort money from employers in excess of what many industries can bear, and limiting the opportunities of the unskilled for entering the ranks of skilled artisans. Fraud, bribery, extortion, and even blackmailing become startlingly common. [illegible]

[illegible]

I do not think that I have overstated the present conditions. [illegible]

[illegible]

We need a renewed sense of the reality of God in the world. Avowed atheism, the absolute denial of God, is rare, practical atheism is common. Many men have not God "in all their thoughts." They have a widened vision of law in the universe, but it is vague and impersonal. They need to recognize the integrity of the divine government. There is a divine government of the world, a government that makes for good and against evil, that is the foundation and source of all just human law, that is the ground of individual and social responsibility, and that rewards righteousness and punishes wickedness.

This sense of God as a sovereign must be vitalized by the sense of God as the Infinite Person. If I seem to limit the divine Being by using terms that are properly applicable only to finite being and human modes of thought, it is to be said that the term personality does not necessarily imply any limitation. We must think of God under forms of our own rational and moral being, and our very nature demands the answer of a divine person to the persistent and illimitable needs of the human person.

For a time many have lost the personal God in impersonal law and impersonal force. The divine immanence is grasped in a way that excludes the complementary idea of transcendence. There cannot be real transcendence without personality. The being who thinks and wills and loves, even in finite limits, is greater than an impersonal universe. Man is greater than God, if God be only law. But he craves a deity whom he can revere and trust and love with all the force of personal being. As the mind needs and demands the fundamental conception of unity in order to a rational interpretation of the world; as the conscience needs and demands the sense of universal and inviolable law, so the heart needs and demands the consciousness of a perfect and responsive goodness, the Almighty Father manifesting and exercising compassion, love and providence and revealing Himself in communion with His child. These expressions must have vivid meaning as expressions of reality. The rule of God is in and over the soul, as well as in and over the material world, and this rule is the manifestation of God as the Holy Spirit.

We need a renewed sense of the reality of revelation as a past and present communication of the divine will to man. A mere historic God is remote and ineffective. He must be contemporary. If He spoke once He must still speak, not in ways of theophany and miracle, but in ways that are authentic and authoritative to conscientiousness. This does not invalidate historic revelation, but it clears it of error and confusion. Jesus represents and embodies both. He knew the historic revelation as it was expressed in the life and literature of the Hebrew people, and in some measure formed His thought on its disclosures of the divine nature and will. But He knew also its defects and limitations, and He knew God immediately, as man may legitimately and naturally know Him, because He is God's child. So there is need of a new sense of Jesus as man in full communion with God.

Finally, we need a new sense of the reality of the soul. Once men ignored the body, save as they indulged or abused it. We have come to appreciate its importance and to care for it in countless ways, but it bulks too large on our view. It is not an end, but an instrument. The soul is in an organism, but is not it nor a mere affluence from it. The soul is the man. Personality is the crowning fact. It means knowledge, power, character, immortality. If man is only a cunning organism he needs and asks no immortality. But, because he is a person—a spiritual being, with power to think and will and love, with memory and forecast, with unmeasured capacity for joy and sorrow, with a sense for truth and righteousness and God—in his best moments he requires immortality that he may have scope adequate to his consciousness of power, actual or attainable; and he takes his hunger for it as God's assurance that the promise of present experience will have fulfillment in the future. In his baser moments, having exhausted his body by labor or by dissipation, he longs only for rest from weariness of nerves or the tyranny of appetite. Then immortality has no charm, and belief in it sinks into a doubt and often into a denial. It is not science, but subjection to sensation till it rules us, that breeds the doubt of immortality. When we live on the higher planes of our being we feel the real significance of life, and catch glimpses of its far stretching horizon.

The reality of God as sovereign and father, the reality of revelation as a past and present experience of divine communication, the reality of salvation as a fulfillment of life, and the reality of the soul as the imperishable person—these, freshly seen and felt as the great and permanent elements of human experience, will new create the august and commanding sense of duty, dissolve and dissipate the materialism which degrades our nature, ennoble life by giving it a new value, revive the spirit of prayer and worship and put new energy into all our moral enterprise. It is our shallowness, or utter want, of spiritual life that robs us of power and joy as children of God.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 22

Subject: Jesus Teaches Humility, Mark x., 35-45—Golden Text, Mark x., 45—Memory Verses, 43-45—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. An ambitious request (vs. 35-37). 35. "James and John." According to Matt. 20: 20 they made this request through their mother Salome. She was one of the constant attendants of our Lord, and [illegible] on her knees made her request. Nothing could have been more ill timed than this selfish petition when He was going forth to His death. "Sons of Zebedee." The father, though named, never appears in gospel history after the [illegible] from which it is inferred that he was either dead or of an insignificant character. "Saying." However taught [illegible] Salome appears in the [illegible] was [illegible] attracted to Him [illegible] to His [illegible] She stood by Him to the last at the cross, and was among the earliest who came to embalm Him at the grave. "Master." Matthew says that Salome came worshiping Him. She recognized Him as the divine King, the Messiah. Her reverence was none the less real from the fact that she came desiring a favor at His hand.

36. "What would ye?" He could not promise in a general way to grant their requests; they must state definitely what it is they desire. Here is an argument in favor of special prayer. 37. "Grant unto us." This request: 1. Disclosed their ignorance of Christ's plans. They were looking for a kingdom of this world and a temporal Messiah. 2. Was caused by forwardness and presumption. 3. Was characterized by worldliness. [illegible]

II. Christ's reply (vs. 38-40). 38. "Ye know not." Ye do not know the nature of your request or what it would involve. You suppose that if granted it would be attended only with honor and happiness, whereas it would require much suffering and trial. How often is it that our desires and perhaps even our prayers, would ruin us if granted! Hence Christians are generally, with much justice, careful how they specify before God in prayer the particular blessing they desire, lest they may in their ignorance ask things that God sees not best. "The cup." To drink of a cup often, in the Scriptures, signifies to be afflicted, or sometimes to be punished (Isa. 51: 17, 22; Psa. 75: 8). The figure is taken from a feast, where the master of the household distributes to his children and servants their allowance. The "cup" is used to represent the dispensation of providence, the Almighty as our common Father appointing to each of us our share of joy or suffering.

39. "We can." This was the decision of the two brothers. The half unconscious, yet presumptuous reply was no doubt uttered under the impression that the struggle was to take place at Jerusalem, in which, perhaps, they were to fight by His side, and they declared themselves ready for the trial. Their reply was simply the language of human firmness. "Ye shall, indeed, etc." You shall undergo sufferings patterned after Mine. They had yet to learn how serious their words were; afterwards they were enabled to drink of that cup and to be baptized with that baptism. To St. James was given strength to be steadfast unto death and to be the first martyr of the apostolic band (Acts 12: 2). Although John survived all of the apostles and died a natural death, yet all antiquity ascribes to him the glory of living in the spirit of martyrdom (Rev. 1: 9).

40. "Not mine to give." As a special favor. This must not be understood to mean that Christ does not reward His followers, for such a statement would be at variance with the uniform testimony of the Scriptures (Matt. 25: 31-40; John 5: 22-30). Rewards and punishments will be given in accordance with certain fixed rules and principles. In the distribution of heavenly honors no favor or partiality is shown. "For whom prepared." The true meaning is that such distinction could not be given except to those "for whom it is prepared." And for whom is heavenly honor prepared? Not to every one who saith Lord, Lord; but to the holy in heart, to the "Israelite indeed," to the true circumcision (Rom. 2: 29; Phil. 3: 3), to the one who enters in at the "strait gate" (Matt. 7: 13, 14) and who presses "toward the mark" (Phil. 3: 14).

III. "A lesson in humility (vs. 41-45). 41. "The ten." The other ten apostles. "Heard it." Heard of this bold request made by Salome and her sons. "Much displeased." Moved with indignation. "The sons of Zebedee had been in a better social position than most of their brethren, and this attempt to secure a pre-eminence of honor kindled a storm of jealousy. 42. "Saith unto them." Our Lord soothed their jealousy by assuring them that in His kingdom there were no lordships. "Accounted to rule, etc." That is, those who are in a position to exercise authority and dominion, such as princes and governors, use their power to gratify their worldly ambitions and their love of ruling. 43. "Not so among you" (R. V.). The principles of My kingdom are entirely different and are peculiar to themselves. There are to be no ranks and no high sounding titles. All are to be on a level—the rich, the poor, the bond, the free, the learned and the unlearned. He will be the most distinguished who shows the greatest humility. Our Lord does not here mean that there shall be no orders in the Christian Church, or even in heaven. But these church orders are founded on the principle of service rather than lordship. The officer of the church is truly the servant of the church, and if he exercise authority from any other motive he is guilty of worldly ambition. He is repeating the misdoings of James and John. "Will be great." There is a holy ambition which every true Christian should possess, an ambition not for place, but for ability to serve.

44. "The chiefest." The only superiority here to be sought is a superiority in labors and suffering for the common good. If any would be great let him be the greatest servant. 45. "Came, to minister." Jesus points to Himself as an example for them to follow. He was not a self-seeker and came not to be ministered unto; but He came to minister—to serve. This was the character of His life. The Son of Man ministers to the sons of men. "To give His life." The Son of Man showed Himself the greatest of all by enduring the greatest sufferings and making the greatest sacrifice of all. "A ransom." The literal meaning is a price paid for the redemption of captives. Christ died in the place of sinners. "For many." This does not always mean many. All the great poets of the world are not many. But the persons for whom Christ died are many—incalculably numerous; not one has been left out.

Vassili Verestchagin, the celebrated painter, who was among those lost by the sinking of the Petropavlovsk at Port Arthur, was a man in many ways remarkable. Few modern painters have been more discussed. His name is connected with scenes of war, and he spent a considerable part of his life following the route of armies or studying the localities where great battles were fought. The painter's mission, as he conceived it, was to depict the horrors of war, in their grim truth, in order that the world might learn how cruel and wicked a thing it is for armed men to be sent to do battle against one another.

Scientific investigation has discovered that that troublesome disease dyspepsia can be cured by short intervals of exposure to intense cold, followed by hearty eating. A Swiss gentleman produced an artificial temperature in a pit which caused the thermometer to sink to 110 degrees below zero. Among other experiments he exposed himself for a brief interval to this temperature. On emerging he found himself intensely hungry and ate freely. The process was repeated several times and he found himself cured of chronic indigestion, from which he had suffered for years.

A correspondent writing from Constantinople gives details of the collection of jewels in the sultan's treasury. "The turbans of all the sultans since Mahomet II," says he, "are there, all glittering with rare and large gems of the purest water. There are also the royal throne of Persia, carried off by the Turks in 1514, and covered with more than 20,000 rubies, emeralds and fine pearls, and also the throne of Suleiman I, from the dome of which there hangs over the head of the caliph an emerald six inches long and four deep. These two thrones are the chief objects in the collection."

Forty-four hundred and forty-nine injuries resulted from the celebrations of July 4, 1903, in the country at large. There were 406 deaths due to lockjaw for which the toy pistol was responsible. Other forms of mortal injury took sixty victims. There were ten persons who were made blind, seventy-five who lost one eye, fifty-four who lost hands, arms or legs, 174 who lost fingers and 3,670 who received other injuries.

At a recent meeting of French cotton manufacturers in Paris one of their number admitted that he had tested cotton grown in the Soudan and that it was unfit for manufacturing purposes—that it never could compete with American cotton. He went on to say that nowhere else in the world could cotton be grown equal to that grown in the United States.

Miss Agnes Miller, of Chicago, speaks to young women about dangers of the Menstrual Period — how to avoid pain and suffering and remove the cause by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"To Young Women:—I suffered for six years with dysmenorrhea (painful periods), so much so that I dreaded every month, as I knew it meant three or four days of intense pain. The doctor said this was due to an inflamed condition of the uterine appendages caused by repeated and neglected colds.

"If young girls only realized how dangerous it is to take cold at this critical time, much suffering would be spared them. Thank God for Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that was the only medicine which helped me any. Within three weeks after I started to take it, I noticed a marked improvement in my general health, and at the time of my next monthly period the pain had diminished considerably. I kept up the treatment, and was cured a month later. I am like another person since. I am in perfect health, my eyes are brighter, I have added 12 pounds to my weight, my color is good, and I feel light and happy."—Miss Agnes Miller, 25 Potomac Ave., Chicago, Ill.

The monthly sickness reflects the condition of a woman's health. Anything unusual at that time should have prompt and proper attention. Fifty thousand letters from women prove that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound regulates menstruation and makes those periods painless.

READ WHAT MISS LINDBECK SAYS:

"Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has greatly benefitted me. I will tell you how I suffered. My trouble was painful menstruation. I felt as each month went by that I was getting worse. I had severe bearing-down pains in my back and abdomen.

"A friend advised me to try Mrs. Pinkham's medicine. I did so and am now free from all pain during my periods."—Jessie C. Lindbeck, 1201 6th Street, Rockford, Ill.

Some of them have paid cash and others have preferred to take advantage of our part cash and long time payment. We have sold pianos in every part of Alabama and in a good many instances in Georgia, Florida, Mississippi, South Carolina and Louisiana and even Texas. The advantage of this sale, besides the one of saving money, is that the prices are marked plainly on every piano and the same price is made every one so that a person may buy a piano by mail just as cheap and just as satisfactorily as a person who lives in Birmingham—and then, too, they run no risk as every piano in this sale is guaranteed as represented or money refunded. People from a distance have been able to save from $75 to $100 even after paying the freight. Besides the new pianos, there is a large stock of second-hand pianos and organs which may be bought on a basis of $10 cash and $2.50 per month. The pianos and organs that range from $5 to $50 each. Not only that, but many of these pianos or organs will be taken back within five years and exchanged for an upright piano if the purchaser prefers. No matter in what part of the state or in what part of the south you live, if you want to own a piano you should buy one in this sale, for people from every part and every section of the south are availing themselves of this opportunity.

A man from Mobile bought a $350 piano in Mahogany case and paid but $223.50 for it, there saving more than a hundred dollars in addition to the freight.

A man from Montgomery bought a $260 piano in Walnut case and paid $147.50 for it and only part of it in cash. The rest we agreed to take in easy time payments.

A man from Texas bought a pianola for $155 which is slightly shop worn, but in every essential was as good as new and yet saved $50 after paying the freight.

SOCIETY WRECKED HER LIFE.

In Society.

A woman in society is obliged to keep late hours. She must attend receptions and balls. She seldom allows herself a quiet evening at home. Her whole time is taken up in keeping engagements or entertaining in her own home.

Her system becomes completely run down as a consequence. She soon finds herself in a condition known as systemic catarrh. This has also been called catarrhal nervousness.

If every society woman could know the value of Peruna at such a time, if they could realize the invigorating, strengthening effect that Peruna would have, how much misery could be avoided.

Letters from society women all over the United States testify to the fact that Peruna is the tonic for a run down, depleted nervous system.

Gentlemen:—"A few years ago I had to give up social life entirely, as my health was completely broken down. The doctor advised a complete rest for a year. As this was out of the question for a time, I began to look for some other means of restoring my health.

"I had often heard of Peruna as an excellent tonic, so I bought a bottle to see what it would do for me, and it certainly took hold of my system and rejuvenated me and in less than two months I was in perfect health, and now when I feel worn out or tired a dose or two of Peruna is all that I need."—Mrs. J. E. Finn.

Mrs. J. W. Reynolds, Elkton, Ohio, writes:

"I owe my health and life to Peruna. We have had in a physician, in fact, it has been years since I have taken any other medicine than yours. I am afraid of drugs, and although I have been sick many times I have taken only you medicines. They are wonderful, indeed. We have a very large house and entertain a great deal, and I do all my own work, thanks to Peruna."—Mrs. J. W. Reynolds.

Railroad on Cyprus.

The Island of Cyprus in the Mediterranean, will soon have a railroad from coast to coast. The amount of 8,000,000 francs has been appropriated for its construction. Engineers with their staffs have already arrived on the ground.

There seems, indeed, to be no doubt that Russia was brought to a crisis of her fate, when, without adequate provocation or preparation, she was plunged by her bureaucracy into a war with a highly trained and well equipped antagonist at the further end of Asia.

French economists are asserting that when a monopoly becomes injurious it should be bought by the State and managed in the interest of the public. This question has gone so far beyond the theory that M. Rouvier, the Minister of Finance, has seriously thought of taking in hand the refining of oil.

The wages of a common soldier in the regular army of Russia do not amount to more than one cent a day, though his food, clothing and equipment are provided by the government. His regular allowances for spending money for all purposes is just a little more than a ruble a year, but extras of various kinds bring the grand total up to a little less than $4. This sum is supposed to cover all his expenditures for tobacco, spirits and luxuries of every kind. The enlisted men in the United States army are paid more than three times that amount per month.

"As things are nowadays in the theater we never see a really good dramatic performance," declared Minnie Fiske, the actress. "I mean that there are always one or two or more players who are not thoroughly fitted to their parts; they are out of tune. No good conductor would think of leading an orchestra in which there was a single instrument out of tune. He must have and does have trained musicians capable of giving the precise value of every note in the score. But in our casts of today, be they never so small, there is always at least one actor out of tune."

After the overcoming of disheartening difficulties and the expenditure of six million dollars, the "Lucin cut-off" across the Great Salt Lake has been opened to regular railroad traffic. The cut-off shortens the distance between Ogden and Reno forty-three miles, but more important than the saving of distance is the abolishment of steep grades. The first through freight between the two cities mentioned was able to save seven hours on the old running time. The cost, therefore, was only a little over eight hundred and fifty thousand dollars an hour.

A modern navy is not one of the cheap luxuries. Senator Hale has stated that the Navy Department proposes to retire the battleships "Oregon," "Indiana," "Massachusetts" and "Texas" to the purposes of coast defence in 1908. The "Oregon" was launched only in 1896, so that her life as a first-class fighting ship will be only twelve years. The "Oregon" cost $5,000,000, but the battleships are now costing $8,000,000. Any war ship now becomes virtually obsolete in a dozen or fifteen years, and we must figure on practically a new navy at the end of that period. A merchant steamer lasts on the average twenty years. It is well known that the big naval guns are also very short lived. The biggest are worthless after a hundred shots. The metal becomes crystallized by the shock of the explosions and loses its tensile strength, thus making it dangerous.

The United States now leads the world in the production of salt, furnishing 23 per cent. of the entire supply. Great Britain is second, Germany third and France fourth. The world's total production is 12,000,000 short tons. Recent figures show that the production of salt in this country exceeds 20,000,000 barrels, which is nearly four times as much as it was twenty years ago. Of this total more than 2,000,000 barrels is table and dairy salt, and more than 7,000,000 barrels common salt. The States producing the greatest amount of salt are Michigan and New York, each with more than 7,000,000 barrels annually and Kansas and Ohio with about 2,000,000 and 1,000,000 barrels respectively, followed by California, Utah and West Virginia. The output in other States is comparatively small. In point of purity as well as the amount of production of salt the United States leads.

A certain condescension with which military critics have been congratulating Japan upon her sucessful application of our teachings is changing to an uncomfortable sense that we Occidentals are every day learning hard lessons from Japan. The demonstration of the efficacy of unarmored vessels, the successful operation of contact mines as a means of offence, all new chapters to naval theory and we may not lightly flatter ourselves that these formidable inventions are merely the obvious application of our teachings. No; this remarkable mastery of the machinery framed by the Western mind denotes not simply that the Japanese have caught up with us and surpassed us in a single generation of conscious imitation; it means rather that in feudal Japan there were qualities of mind stable enough to bear the impact of new facts and accurate enough to master them. The successes of Japan to-day in scientific warfare are due to that immemorial discipline of hand, heart, and head which has made the Japanese mind.

SEALING FRUIT CANS.

When canning fruits, the juice should be allowed to overflow the top after the rubber has been put on. Seal the can without wiping this juice off, as it thickens when cool and helps the make the can air-tight.

WHEN BOILING VEGETABLES

When boiling vegetables be sure the water is not at boiling point before putting in the vegetables to be cooked. If it is cold or lukewarm the freshness and flavor will soak into the water. Place the saucepan over the hottest part of the stove, so that it will boil as quickly as possible, and be careful that the boiling does not cease until the contents are thoroughly cooked and ready to be dished.—Chicago Daily News.

YOUR EVERYDAY CLOTHES

Do you ever think of airing your clothes? No? You think that when you wear them they get aired. So they do, but not thoroughly and properly as they ought to.

To keep your clothes in really good condition you should brush and shake and air them every little while.

The dress or suit you wear every day should have a daily shaking and brushing and thorough going over once a week. You will be rewarded for your pains as your clothes will last much longer and look much better.

If it is wool or silk material the dust gets ground in and very soon the whole dress has a look of grayness that with a little pains and care you might have avoided.

Pressing is a great renovator and skirts particularly need it often, for in a while, as they get hard wear and dirt, are apt to be pulled out of shape and set knee bones will certainly appear pretty.

There is another advantage about airing your clothes that is most important. It keeps them fresh and clean. Nothing is more advantage than an odor of cooking or stale perfume on any ones clothes.

To be fresh and clean and neat is the way to be always attractive, and every girl can be and should be all three.—New York Journal.

CLEAN HOUSE TOO SOON.

Most housewives commence to clean house too soon. When it is too early to dump the furnace or put away the stoves, for fear of "colds" for the family, it is too soon to think of housecleaning. Housecleaning before the furnace is out means a house that must be cleaned again before the summer is over, declares Mary Taylor-Rott in the April Housekeeper. Then too, if it is too cold to be without a fire, it is too cold to have the house open, and the things out of doors airing. So try, first of all, postponing the date of cleaning house until much later than usual. Wait until it is sufficiently warm to have the stoves taken down, or the furnace dumped, until all the windows can be thrown wide to let in the air and sunlight that are worth more than all the scrubbings to make the home a healthful place in which to live.

What would we think of a dressmaker who could not tell what she had done with our goods, our trimmings, or our linings? What would we think of the lawyer who said, "Oh, yes, I remember seeing such a paper somewhere, but I can't just remember where; I'll hunt it up in a few days"? This in reply to our request for a certain paper we had entrusted to his keeping. We would at once say that it was a very poor sort of a lawyer, and a worse kind of dressmaker who didn't keep track of their client's belongings in a more businesslike way! And yet—remember the things you put away last year when you cleaned house, that you have not been able to find since! Think of the numbers of things you find every time you clean house; articles you had forgotten that you possessed! This speaks for itself, and no home can be run without friction until business methods are applied to the machinery of that home. Then will there be no more "white slaves," no more "Americanitis," among housewives.

ALL ABOUT THE HOUSE.

Curtains of Arabian and Cluny lace retain the prestige which they have enjoyed for some time past.

In curtains the leader is the filet Italienne, a handsome drapery, the cost of which puts it beyond the reach of any but the most wealthy householders.

A pretty fancy in the form of a bonbon dish is a Japanese design in bisque or porcelain representing a young girl carrying a basket in either hand. Each of the receptables is filled with bonbons.

A new kind of orange knife has made its appearance this spring. It has a book of barb at the end of the back blade which prevents its penetrating beyond a certain depth of the rind, which is more easily removed than with the ordinary knife. The reverse side of this knife is a regular blade.

ROLL CALL IN COREA.

Slowly died the last red sunbeam, slowly came the hush of night
Where the moon-illumined stronghold of the bearded Muscovite
Broke the landscape's rolling contour in a fair Corean vale
Many a warrior's heart was heavy, many a warrior's cheek was pale
For the bloody fight was o'er
Silenced was the cannon's roar.
All was quiet as a form without a soul
And, before the call of taps,
Several non-commissioned chaps
Volunteered half-heartedly to call the roll.

Major Hitthebigsoaky—Present.
Major Fourthushfisky—Here.
Brave old Spikethegunsky absent.
Bugler Blowsky standing near.
Punkeroff is here and Snifsky
Pretpetitch and Michael Stiffsky
Upspake Quartermaster Riffsky
Can't use me, I've never fear—

Present, too were Bobtail Straightsky,
Averojsky Ringtroff
Cushion-armed Slingerjongsky,
Vladimir Onelungers
Buttermilksky, Malteseatsky
Lageroff and Antifatsky
Ivan Caseyattlebatsky
And the selfish Pretzelsky.

Not to mention many more with appellations much the same
Who retorted Here and Present when the time to answer came.

Slowly spread the crimson sunrise and the birdies in the trees
Sang a song that sounded lowly to the Muscovite main squeeze
"By my beardsky," muttered he,
"I was a glorious victoree
Valiant Spikethegunsky had to go, poor soul"
But the only other chap
Was the non-commissioned sap
Who succumbed to lockjaw when he called the roll.

Prisoner—I struck him, but he struck me first. Magistrate—What did he strike you for? Prisoner—For five dollars.

"Yes, they were made one," she told the youngster who had been puzzled by the term "Which one?" he asked. "Oh, they haven't had time to find that out yet," she explained.—Chicago Post.

Mr. Grumpps—What idiotic things they do print on the women's page of this newspaper! Mrs. Grumpps—Yes; I wish they would discharge the fellow, and put a woman in charge of it."—New York Weekly.

Amateur—This is my latest attempt at a landscape. May I ask what you think of the perspective? Artist—The perspective is its strong point. The farther away you stand the better it looks.—Chicago Tribune.

The Trouble with a Tutor—Do you go to school, Willie? queried the visitor. No, said Willie, who has a tutor. School comes to me. I wish it didn't, too. Some days are too wet for me to go out, but there ain't any too wet for Mr. Diggins.—Harper's Young People.

"I wonder," dubiously cogitated Mr. Walker Farr, the eminent ten-twenty-and-thirty-cents-admission tragedian, "whether———" (he paused, as the clamor of the audience rose higher and higher) "they are applauding my efforts or daring me to come out?"—Smart Set.

He—You say there are no flowers for the dinner table. Where are the chrysanthemums I sent home? She—Oh, George, don't speak so loud. You might hurt Bridget's feelings. She didn't understand what they were, and has cooked them in milk."—Glasgow Evening Times.

A little girl went into a neighbor's house one day, and some apple-parings lay on a plate on the table. After sitting awhile, she said, "I smell apples." "Yes," the lady replied, "I guess you smell thes applee parings on the plate." "No, no," said she, "'tain't them I smell. I smell whole apples."

Mending Fire Bricks.

There are few things more unsatisfactory than modern fire linings. The fire bricks are easily cracked and sometimes last only a few months, when they ought to last for years. It is a great mistake to allow the fire bricks to get into bad condition. There is an iron plate back of the fire bricks in every stove, but this is easily burned through, and it costs a large sum to replace it; therefore, cracks in the fire bed of the stove should be mended at once and badly broken bricks should be replaced.

A durable cement for cracked fire bricks can be made at home, and will hold the cracked bricks together for several years. Mix equal quantities of powdered soapstone, which may be purchased from any druggist, and common salt together, and add enough water to make a paste. The mixture hardens very rapidly after it is put on, and as the soapstone is fireproof it makes a lasting cement. Pumice stone is sometimes substituted for the soapstone, but does not last as well. In case of an emergency, equal parts of salt and finely sifted ashes mixed to a stiff paste will make a suitable temporary cement, and will last until something more durable can be obtained.

A JOLLY FISHING PARTY

Wilto , May 12, 1904

A jolly fishing party left this place Tuesday morning at 5:30 and arrived at Cahaba river at 6:30, when preparations were made for a hearty breakfast, which was handled with ease and great care by the famous Colonel Bill Ayers, ably assisted by Captain Owens Medford, while the good cooking was looked after by the expert at cooking, Miss Leila McDonough, who fulfilled her best on this occasion, which surpassed any cooking that she has ever done. Well, kind readers of this worthy paper, you can imagine what this hungry crowd did for bream and trout, I will not say, but I leave it to you to judge. Of course, I know you will be right in your judgment. Well, after a good hearty breakfast the party got aboard the famous boat of the Cahaba and took a turn around the river and lake. After rowing for three hours, we returned to the old banks of the Cahaba when preparations were made for the second meal. You know it was enjoyed very much. After resting our weary bones we were greatly surprised with a kind invitation from Mr. and Mrs. Parr, which of course was accepted. We got in and the famous old Cahaba boat and headed away for a short run up the river, where we landed near the beautiful residence of Mr. and Mrs. Parr. The party alighted and climbed the hill, where Mr. and Mrs. Parr were waiting to receive us, and having a beautiful spread of light drinks and cakes for the party, which was ever so much enjoyed. After serving and helping ourselves to eatables, we were then entertained with a very interesting game of finch, which was warmly contested between Mrs. Parr and Colonel Bill Ayers, the latter finally winning a close and exciting game, as they all said, Old Bill was hard to beat.

Well, kind readers, I must close as I am afraid too much space will be taken up in this valuable paper. But you can rest assured that this fishing party will never forget the kind treatment accorded them by Mr. and Mrs. Parr, also to Trainmaster Newman for his kindness; that he may live long in railroad circles and to the highest point that we all may live to see him reach.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Cured His Mother of Rheumatism

"My mother had been a sufferer for many years with rheumatism," says W. H. Howard of Pa. "At times she was unable to move at all, while at a time walking was painful. I purchased her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she would not be without it now and is at all times able to walk. An occasional application of Pain Balm keeps away the pain that she was formerly troubled with." For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

MAN ON THE CORNER

of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not

Not so many years ago the white man roamed through the forests of this section, monarch of all he surveyed, but the march of civilization forced him from these domains, the forests have fallen before the axe of the lumberman, and the lands now smile in cultivated fields. The wigwam of the red man has disappeared, and in its place the country is dotted with substantial farm houses; towns and villages thrive and flourish where once the red man had his happy hunting grounds. Pale faces (sunk God with rosy tints) have taken the place of the red man, and the children going to and from school are to be seen where once the tawny colored children hunted through the woods for berries and game.

One day we have in Clanton the descendants of the original inhabitants of this section, and it may [illegible] be that the parents and grandparents of some of our visitors may have had their homes close by. The visitors are a ball team of Creek Indians from Eufaula, I. T., and [illegible] here, under the management of [illegible] Latham, a former resident of Clanton, to play a game of ball with the Clanton boys. In olden days when the red man and the white men met there was apt to be trouble, but in these good times the two races meet in amicable contest and may the best team win. [illegible] have been arranged for this (Thursday) afternoon and to morrow and a right interesting time is anticipated.

The difference between a newspaper printed at home and a make-up from elsewhere was well shown in last week's issue of The Banner. Whether it is political news or local happenings it takes a home paper to give it to the public before it gets too ancient to be worth the telling. Judge [illegible] has tendered his resignation on Tuesday evening, and next week The Banner carried the news to all parts of Chilton county. Tuesday evening there was a ball in Clanton, and the people of Clanton are made acquainted with the item of news right away. So with all other matters of interest throughout the county, which is worth telling should be told at once, and if it is worth telling you will find it in The Banner while it is news.

The all-day singing season (with dinner on the ground) is now fairly on, and in divers places the notes of harmony may be heard in the woods. What more enchanting [illegible] of worship of the Great Creator can be imagined than that presented by a devout congregation gathering together at some embowered church, and singing praises to the Lord of Life? And then for the social intercourse, the noon-day recess, when the baskets are opened and the good things displayed, when neighbor vies with neighbor in hospitable invitations to partake, and the feast goes merrily on, while the aromatic pine trees give a zest to the appetite; the social intercourse makes better citizens of all. Then, as the shades begin to darken, the happy throng return to their homes, feeling that the day has been well

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

The red man and white man will play ball together,
And (this is between me and you)
Whichever side may win, another color comes in,
For the losers are sure to feel blue.

The crowd will squall and shout and bawl,
And gaily they'll cheer on each crew,
Cheers to them all for a good game of ball,
Though for the red, white and blue.

Not so many years ago the noble red man roamed through the forests of this section, monarch of all he surveyed, but the march of civilization forced him from these do mains, the forests have fallen beneath the axe of the lumberman, and the lands now smile in cultivated fields. Texas Crops.

Hooks, Tex., May 17, 1904

I will write a small piece on Texas and its new crops of 1904. Crops are fine for time of year in this part of the country. We have 90 acres in a crop. The farmers are very well up with their work. Texas is the best farming country I have ever seen. I was raised in Alabama up to 13 years old and have traveled over a good portion of six states and Texas is the best farming country I have found yet. I will write my travels over those six states in the next letter. I will close by thanking the Editor for his kindness in publishing this letter for me. Yours truly,

M. E. Culp.

A Card From Hon. S. M. Adams

Clanton, May 22, 1904

Editor Banner—I want to say a few words to the people of Chilton county, and first of all I desire to again thank them for past favors and friendship, and while I do this I wish to say that it is a source of gratification to me for so many people to express to me their entire satisfaction with me in the management of the office, and at the same time expressing their disapproval of my political course. In answer to that I wish to repeat what I have already said, to wit: That I did not sell to the people my political freedom or barter it for their votes. It is well known that I always did take the position that the platform and principles of the Populist party were in the main the principles of true Democracy, and I do not now, nor never have, admitted that I made any change in my principles when I realigned myself with the Democratic party. But, on the other hand, Populists who go to the Republican party must of necessity change their views. I do not charge them with dishonesty if they have changed, for but few men live that do not change their views. Fifty years ago our fathers would not have believed that the people would sit in Clanton and talk with people in New York and not only understand the words but recognize their voice. So time and progress have changed the views of thousands and it will continue thus so long as men think. But enough on that.

I want to say further that I change my views on the subject of making the race for Judge of Probate for the following reasons: First, I could continually hear threats coming from men who had professed to be Democrats that they would not vote for me. But I never could learn of one reason, but I am of the opinion that the secret opposition to me in Clanton had its origin in the fact that I have since I lived in Clanton opposed the establishing of a dispensary in Clanton, and I have also opposed the men for officers in the town who were the champions of the dispensary cause, but I did hope that these men would have interest enough in the Democratic party to stand by the nominee, but on hearing so much whispering opposition to me I felt impressed that it was my duty to withdraw, and if it was possible allow the party to unite on some other man. At the same time I might have been willing to have withstood this opposition, as it is that character of opposition that was void of courage and the very quintescense of cowardice, so much so that it was unwilling to come out in the open. But in the midst of this state of things I have sickness of a very serious nature in my family. I have a daughter that has been as loving and obedient as it is possible for a child to be that in all probability will never be well again, and this condition took from me all the spirit that I felt was necessary in a contest such as is now before the people of Chilton county. I did regret exceedingly to withdraw but I felt that under all the circumstances it was best, and I wish to ask those who are inclined to censure me, please put yourself in my shoes and weigh the matter well before you do, and after you have done this then I am willing to bear the blame I justly deserve.

One other thing, it has been whispered around that I would go back to the Populist party. I will say in answer to that that I do not consider we have any Populist party and therefore I cannot go to it. I stayed with it so long as there was a party, and there is not a candidate announced in Chilton county subject to the action of the People's Party, therefore they all declare to the public the views of myself on that subject, and with best wishes, I am now, as ever,

S. M. Adams.

Maplesville.

Our popular teacher, Miss Florence Adair, made good her promise to her pupils last Friday, the 20th, to a day's outing. They are all remarkably good and bright children and deserved this rare treat. Several wagons and carriages were sent to the school house, where all were dressed in "their best Sunday clothes," with bright faces, accompanied with merry peals of laughter secured seats for a jolly ride to the beautiful picnic grounds a few miles from town, on one of Mr. T. U. Crumpton's plantations, who did everything for the enjoyment of all. He and Mr. B. O. Glover made delightful swings, which were enjoyed by all.

Mr. W. Y. Atchison, or "Uncle Billy," as many call him, asked a most appropriate blessing. The dinner spread reminded one of that of the loaves and fishes. Like the circus, it took several grown up people to very pleasantly look after these children. They took great pleasure in decorating the vehicles with ferns, etc. The egg race was hugely enjoyed by all.

Little Miss Sallie Walker gained the royal prize as the most skillful runner and Master Leighton Parnell, with his sweet and cunning little ways, gained the "booby." At the close of day the children, on returning home, sang most merrily "We love in our childhood our dear pleasant school." Thus ended this very pleasant day. Shakspearingly speaking "All's well that ends well." Hoping the Editor and all of his cubs have had so enjoyable a day as this. One of Banner's best wishers and

It is still dry yet, but we are looking for a good rain in due time. The farmers are getting along alright with their crops; some are done chopping cotton.

We have a good Sabbath school at Mars Hill, there was fifty answered to their names when the roll was called, and in the evening there was a good singing and a large crowd.

There was another game of ball last Saturday evening between Scotland and Providence, resulting in a victory for Scotland.

Concord.

Quite a number of our Sabbath school visited the annual singing Sunday at Salem, near Rushton.

Sabbath school still a success, we cordially invite one and all to assist in this noble work.

While at his work Wednesday afternoon, Mr. T. G. Wyatt's dogs found something in a log pile near a small branch and he went down and had the pleasure of killing four minks, and the minks had killed and taken to their den three 'possums, full grown and the next evening he killed one 'possum. How is that for minks and 'possums.

All the news for this, the last time, as the writer thinks, with a sad heart to part with friends so dear.

A man dwelling in New York state is suing a young lady for $2,000 damages on the plea that she hugged him so hard she broke one of his ribs.

The Boston Transcript says: "It was an interesting, if not an over welcome, statement made by Editor Bliss Perry, of the Atlantic Monthly, the other day to the effect that he could discern in the articles submitted to him a tendency toward the reincarnation of brute force."

The latest thing in automobile insurance is issuing a policy which protects the automobilist if he runs down another person. The company undertakes to pay the damages up to a certain sum and to fight the case, if necessary, so all the automobilist has to do is to select his victim.

People who take only one or two meals each day—and there are many of them—and the devotees of the exclusive consumption of vegetable food feel a certain sentiment of compassion for the devourers of big repasts three times a day, and are not greatly worried over the high prices of fleshly luxuries.

Since immigration to the United States was first recorded officially 22,000,000 of souls have come to increase the population of this republic. Five millions have crossed the sea from Germany and 4,000,000 from Ireland. How large a part in our national life they have taken, and how much they have done for the development of American prosperity! exclaims the New York Tribune.

The old common law principle that a wife may not testify against her husband in criminal proceedings is now reversed in Massachusetts by the Supreme Court's interpretation of the statute. Hereafter a wife may testify against her husband if she wishes to, and she need not if she doesn't wish to, regardless of her husband's objection or his consent. Is this another victory for "woman's rights?"

A gentleman who recently advertised the birth of a daughter tells London Truth that he has received in consequence almost enough stuff to stock a general shop. The outcome of his advertisement includes samples of a dozen or more different foods and preparations of milk, several consignments of different soaps, samples of well-known brands of tea and other well-advertised goods, not to mention specimen photograps from sundry firms desirous of depicting the features of the little stranger. He mentions that the only article that would be really useful in his household under the circumstances not received up to the present date is a baby carriage.

Remarks the Philadelphia Public Ledger: "Meteorologists are agreed that forest areas exercise a potent influence as a soil cover, protecting it against evaporation and obstructing the passage of the winds. It has been shown that the quantity of water lost by evaporation, the greatest source of dissipation, may be more than six times as great in the open as in the forest, and the effect of the trees in retarding the melting of the snows and in the prevention of freshets is well established. Wherever floods and droughts alternate the disturbance of the natural physical conditions of the country is clearly indicated. Moreover, the forests retard the rapid 'run-off' of the water, thereby facilitating that underground drainage and the formation of springs which are most beneficial to vegetation. There is no influence of the forests so important as this."

One of the signs of the season is the instruction the editor gives his readers regarding teaching the calf to take his nourishment out of a pan. The Vermillion (South Dakota) Republican muses thus: "When you get to the calf remember patience. He doesn't understand your deal—whether you want to veal him, torpedo him or nurture him. Have a prayer—learned at the maternal knee—on your lips as you proceed. Tickle his slimy, avaricious nose with the tips of your fingers. As you become more deeply absorbed and things are doin' don't forget the prayer. Hypnotically your calm state of mind will lead bossy to the light, and humping his limber spine he will go in for his mess like a Jap after a Russ cruiser, rising at intervals to blow the the tokes of his happy dip on the rim of your bib overalls. But remember he's a calf—the same as you used to be."

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR MAY 29.

Subject: The Passover, Matt. xxvi., 17-30—Golden Text, 1 Cor. v., 7—Memory Verses, 26-30—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. The preparation for the meal (vs. 17-19). 17. "First day of the feast." The 14th of Nisan was the day of preparation and hence called the first day of the feast, although the feast properly did not begin until the 15th of Nisan, which, according to the Jewish reckoning, commenced immediately after sunset of the 14th, and was the day on which the Passover was eaten. The celebration continued until the 21st (Exod. 12: 18-20). "Of unleavened bread." So called because at this feast only unleavened bread was allowed. It symbolized three things: 1. The haste with which they fled from Egypt, not having time to wait for bread to rise (Exod. 12: 34, 39). 2. Their sufferings in Egypt, hence called the bread of affliction (Deut. 16: 3). 3. Their purity as a consecrated nation, since fermentation was the beginning of putrefaction, and leaven was thus a symbol of impurity. "Where wilt Thou." Jesus had no home of His own and the disciples knew that some place must be chosen at once. "That we prepare." That which was required consisted of a room furnished with table and couches; and for food, unleavened bread, bitter herbs and a paschal lamb, which must be slain in the temple between 3 and 5 o'clock, and cooked in a private house.

18. "Go into the city." Luke says that Peter and John were sent. They were now at Bethany and Jesus sends them to Jerusalem. "To such a man." It is probable that this meant some person with whom Christ was well acquainted, and who was known to the disciples. Mark and Luke state that they would meet a man bearing a pitcher of water, whom they were to follow. "Say unto him." Say unto the master of the house, who was probably a disciple, but secretly, like many others, for fear of the Jews (John 12: 42); and this may explain the suppression of his name. "The Master saith." The teacher saith.

19. "Did as Jesus had appointed them." They obeyed in every particular, and found everything to happen as Jesus had foretold. Those who would have Christ's presence with them must strictly observe His instructions.

II. Events during the eating of the Passover (vs. 20-25). 20. "The even was come." It was probably while the sun was beginning to decline in the horizon that Jesus and the disciples descended once more over the Mount of Olives into the holy city. "Sat down." Or reclined, according to the custom of that time. Their feet were extended away from the table and not under it.

It was at this time that the disciples strove among themselves as to which should be accounted the greatest (Luke 22: 24). The strife probably began when they were taking their positions at the table. It is suggested that this contention is the probable reason for some of the exhortations in John 13: 1-20, and for the washing of the disciples' feet. Possibly those sought the places of honor at the table who had been especially honored on other occasions.

21. "As they did eat." The Passover, not the memorial supper. He tasted first the unleavened bread and the bitter herbs before the lamb was served. "One of you." How sad! One who is pledged to be faithful and true. Jesus was troubled in spirit (John 13: 21). "Shall betray Me." Judas had already agreed to betray Him. This announcement would give him an opportunity to repent, but this he did not do.

22. "Exceeding sorrowful." Because He was to be betrayed, and because one of their number was about to perform the dastardly act. "Is it I?" They also asked themselves the questions (Luke 22: 23). 23. "He that dippeth." The thought of verse 21 is repeated. It was at this point that Peter beckoned to John, who was leaning on Jesus' bosom, to ask Jesus who it should be (John 13: 22-27;) and Jesus probably gave them a sign by which they knew. Knives and forks and plates for each guest were unknown. The food was piled in a great circular dish, over it was pored the broth, and the guests with their fingers dipped a piece of meat or of barley cake into the broth, and thus ate it.

24. "Goeth." To the cross and to death. "As it is written." In such scriptures as Isaiah 53. "Woe unto that man." A sad statement of a terrible fact. Jesus had previously told of His betrayal and death, but it must be remembered that the betrayer acted voluntarily; the prophecy did not compel him to sin, but merely told that in the natural course of events he would sin. "Had not been born." This proves conclusively that for the lost soul there is no redemption. 25. "Is it I?" Judas tried to cover his hypocrisy and wickedness by asking this question. He knew that he was even then seeking an opportunity to do this very thing, and if he had not been spiritually blind he would have known that Jesus knew all about it, too.

III. The memorial supper (vs. 26-30). 26. "Took bread." Took the loaf or thin cake of unleavened bread, which was before Him. "Blessed it." Invoked the blessing of God upon it. "Brake it." The act was designed to shadow forth the wounding, piercing and breaking of Christ's body on the cross. "This is My body." This bread represents My body. 27. "The cup." The word "wine" is not used, but "cup," "the fruit of the vine" (v. 29), so that "unfermented grape juice was all that was used." "Gave thanks." It was like giving thanks over the shedding of His own blood. "Drink ye all." They were all to drink of this. Mark says, "They all drank of it."

28. "Is My blood." Represents My blood. "Of the covenant" (R. V.) It was an old covenant renewed, and thus a new promise to men that God would provide a great salvation. "For many." For all mankind. "Remission of sins." "For the taking away of sins." But although the atonement is made, yet no man's sins are taken away only as he repents and turns to God.

29. "Not drink henceforth." He would not eat and drink with them again; this was their last meal together. "When I drink it new." When I drink new wine—"wine of a different nature from this"—in the kingdom of God. Here is a pledge to them that they would again assemble, in the kingdom of glory, to commemorate the triumph of Christ and His kingdom. 30. "Sung an hymn." Which was always sung at the close of the paschal feast; it consisted of six psalms, from Psa. 113 to 118. "Into the Mount of Olives." Where Jesus suffered in the garden of Gethsemane and was betrayed.

SOCIAL FEUD IN CHICAGO

Woman Discovers Rival's Husband to Be an Ex-Convict.

Mrs. Springer, Rejected by the D. A. R., Blackmailed It on the Lawyer's Wife and Set Out to Get Even.

Chicago.—A feud between two ambitious women has exposed a skeleton long hidden in the family of Julius A. Coleman, a successful attorney and author of the Mechanics' Lien law of Illinois.

Mrs. Coleman, his wife, is the State Regent of the Daughters of the American Revolution. She is a brilliant woman with an interesting family. She has written a history of the American Constitution, which is published this week in St. Louis.

Mrs. Warren Springer applied for admission to the D. A. R. and was rejected. Then she began war on the Colemans.

Now disbarment proceedings have been taken against Mr. Coleman before the Supreme Court of this State. It is alleged that in 1881 Coleman was found guilty of an insurance swindle in Indiana and sentenced to the penitentiary. The Grievance Committee of the Chicago Bar Association brought the proceedings. The charge against him is "evasive omission" in not mentioning the Indiana trouble when he signed an affidavit of good moral character which obtained him license to practise law here. Charges of extortion also have been made in the disbarment proceedings.

Mrs. Springer is the wife of a prominent real estate operator. She has taken a leading part in women's club affairs for ten years, and is at present President of the Illinois Chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution, an organization distinct from the Daughters of the American Revolution.

Mrs. Springer had a double interest in finding out all she could about Coleman, because a suit which the attorney brought against her husband was over property that she had decided to present to the local chapter of the Daughters of the Revolution. After this suit had been won by Mr. Springer Attorney Coleman had him indicted for perjury, and it was then that Mrs. Springer assumed, in self-defense, as she avers, the role of detective.

Charles C. Gilbert, who has undertaken to defend Coleman, says: "It is true that Mr. Coleman was convicted of crime in Evansville in 1881, but he was sick and could not defend himself. He was brought into court on a stretcher. He never went to the penitentiary, for he fled to foreign lands, and later returned and obtained a pardon. There has been no effort to conceal the conviction."

Coleman was accused of inducing a man named Richardson to insure his life for $20,000 and disappear. Coleman escaped from the prison hospital. Mrs. Coleman nursed her husband through his trial, and when he escaped she supported her young family by her own endeavors.

Mrs. Springer collected all the evidence and obtained certified copies of the court records. Then began the movement to expose and disbar Coleman. He is now a man of middle age.

Mrs. Springer says: "This trouble grew out of my gift to the Daughters of the Revolution of the ground at Nos. 175-180 West Polk street for use as a playground and workshop for poor children. We knew nothing whatever of Coleman's past until a woman, a prominent member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, of which Mrs. Coleman is Regent, came to my house and informed me that Mr. Coleman was an ex-convict. She said that other facts could be had at Evansville. We collected the facts."

FOR A MENTAL SHOCK—$40,000.

Bay State Supreme Court Sustains Verdict Against New Haven Road.

Boston, Mass.—A verdict of $40,000 against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, given to Frank J. Cashin, of Springfield, by a lower court for mental injury resulting from an accident, was sustained by the full bench of the Supreme Court.

The plaintiff was the victim of a collision at Avon, Mass., in which six persons were killed and about forty injured. It was contended that Mr. Cashin sustained a serious mental shock which has resulted in melancholia.

LIFE SENTENCE FOR $3 THEFT.

Mason, Mich.—Lewis Oliver, who with Frederick Lesarge, stole $3 and two hats from a butcher shop, has been sent to the Marquette prison for life by Judge Wist. It was Oliver's third offence for burglary.

Judge Wist says that the statute provides that where a prisoner has been twice sentenced for felony and is again arrested he may be sentenced for life. He says a life sentence is not made mandatory, but he believes that in this case it is justified.

Knockout Blow to Poolrooms.

The most powerful blow ever dealt to the poolrooms of New York City was struck when the police in several precincts descended simultaneously on twenty-two suspected pool-rooms in Manhattan, arresting seventy prisoners and seizing 752 telephones, fifteen telegraph instruments and a large collection of racing charts and other gambling paraphernalia.

Wisconsin For Wall.

The Wisconsin Democratic convention, at Milwaukee, instructed for Edward C. Wall for President after a bitter fight by the Hearst men. Hearst's followers from two districts bolted, but the adoption of the unit rule nullified their action.

Stanley Interred.

The body of Sir Henry M. Stanley was buried in the churchyard of Pirbright, Surrey, England, after a funeral service in Westminster Abbey.

SOUGHT THE CZAR'S LIFE

When Arrested Girl Had Bomb in Her Possession.

Breslau, Prussia.—The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Breslau Zeitung reports that the authorities detected and thwarted a plot to attack the Emperor with a bomb during the spring parade in St. Petersburg.

The Emperor always reviews the parade on horseback, taking a position before and slightly to one side of the pavilion from which the Empress and Grand Duchesses view the pageant. The municipality erects a grand stand, tickets to which are sold publicly, the names and addresses of the buyers being noted.

As persons in the loges or front rows could easily throw an object to the place where the Emperor stands, the authorities naturally reserve the right of cancelling the sales of tickets, if the buyers are not known to be absolutely trustworthy, and they subject the occupants of the grand stand to the closest scrutiny.

Just before the Emperor arrived on the parade ground, it was noticed that Miss Merezhevsky, daughter of Prof. Merezhevsky, a leading Russian psychiatriast and Privy Councilor, who occupied one of the loges nearest the pavilion, was nervous and excited. Risking a scandal should their suspicions prove to be unfounded, the authorities ordered her arrest, which was effected unobtrusively.

A search disclosed a skillfully constructed bomb concealed in her clothing. The girl did not deny her intention of hurling the missile at the Emperor, but refused to give any other information.

Miss Merezhevsky has been an attendant at the courses in the women's university. It is rumored that she has been hanged, and her aged father is completely prostrated.

DYING HE SHIELDS MURDERER.

Florist, Stabbed With Knife, Says He Was Injured by Falling On Glass.

Philadelphia, Pa.—George F. Kreger, a florist of Narbeth, is dead at his home, having been murdered, although in his dying breath he declared that he had been injured by falling on glass in the greenhouse.

He told this story, it is believed, either to protect his old mother from the notoriety that would follow were he to have told of the murder, or else he protected some one who stabbed him.

Kreuger went to one of his greenhouses to attend to some flowers. A short while later he returned to the house fatally stabbed and dying. An examination of his wounds showed that they had been made by a sharp knife.

A DESTRUCTIVE STORM.

New Orleans.—The steamer Anselm, from Puerto Cortez, brings the news of destructive storms on the Central American coast, particularly the coast of Honduras, entailing the destruction of 500,000 banana trees and a loss of over $250,000. The worst sufferers were American fruit growers who recently purchased lands in Honduras. Probaly 500,000 full grown trees, with fruit hanging on them, were destroyed. British Honduras has also suffered in all branches of agriculture from the storms and unprecedented cold weather and heavy rains.

Fate of Five Men Who Visited South Sea Islands.

Vancouver, B. C.—Mail advices on the Australian steamer Miowera stated that five men were killed and eaten by cannibals of the Admiralty Islands in the South Sea. The British warship Condor was sent to the scene and set fire to the village where the cannibals lived. The Condor threatened to annihilate the village if it did not hand over the cannibals. This was done and they were shot.

Ends All Poolroom Service.

The Western Union Telegraph Company, New York City, through its executive committee, ordered the discontinuance of the collection and distribution over its wires throughout the United States of racetrack reports. This action was understood to have followed a consultation of Morris K. Jesup, Jacob H. Schiff, Senator Depew and other Western Union directors with George J. Gould, whose views were in harmony with theirs.

Her husband, Moses Henschel, also sued the city, claiming damages for the loss of his wife's services and for physician's bills. He was awarded a verdict of $1500.

VALUE OF FARM PRODUCTS.

Department of Agriculture Issues a Statement—Cotton Export.

The department of agriculture has issued a report on the nation's farm surplus. It gives $4,500,000,000 as a conservative estimate of the value of the farm products in this country not fed to live stock in 1903 on the basis of the census valuation. The value of the exported farm products in this country in 1903 was $678,471,451, and the highest value reached during the last eleven years was $951,628,231 in 1901, due chiefly to cotton.

The value of the exported farm products of this country is concentrated mostly in a few principal products. Of R, in 1903, cotton constituted 36 per cent, grain and grain products 25 per cent, meat and meat products and live animals 24 per cent. Adding to bacco, the exports of which were valued at more than $35,000,000, oil cake and oil cake meal $19,839,279, fruits and nuts more than $18,000,000 and vegetable oils more than $16,000,000 gives a total of eight classes of products each with export value of more than $10,000,000 that comprise almost 96 per cent of the entire farm exports of 1903.

Within recent years, ending with 1903, the cotton exports have been between three and four billion pounds and the exported fraction of the crop has been between 63 and 11 per cent for a long series of years. The fraction of the wheat crop exported in the last dozen years has been about 31 to 41 per cent and the exported wheat and wheat flour have yearly averaged somewhat more than 200,000,000 bushels since 1897, before which period for many years the quantity was usually 50,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels less.

Only a small portion of the corn or maize crop is exported as corn.

WARSHIPS TO MOROCCO

To Enforce Claim Against the Bandits.

A very brief cablegram came to the state deparement from Consul Gummere at Tangier, Morocco, which confirmed the press reports that Ion Perdicaris, the American citizen who, with his stepson, Cromwell Varley, a British subject, was kidnaped by bandits, were being well treated by the Moorish brigands by whom they were kidnaped. The authorities, according to the dispatch, are in communication with the bandits regarding the two men, and it is expected that terms of ransom are the subject of negotiations.

Naval officials are awaiting news of the arrival of Admiral Chadwick at Fayal with the South Atlantic squadron and that of the European squadron under Admiral Jewell at the Azores. PIG IRON PRODUCTION

To Be Curtailed Nearly One-Third.

Within the next thirty days the production of pig iron will, it is stated, be greatly curtailed at the furnaces in all parts of the United States. The proposed reduction is not by united action which is variously estimated from 20 to 30 per cent of the present output. The furnaces to be most quickly affected are those which have been in operation the longest, the new furnaces have more modern machinery and equipment and can turn out iron at a less price than their competitors. The production of pig iron during 1903 was 19,000,000 tons. Experts assert that unless there is improvement in the near future the total for the current year will not exceed 14,000,000.

CIGAR MAKING

In Alabama Reaches Highest Figure in Its History.

The report of the revenue offices at Birmingham regarding the cigar industry in Alabama for the twelve months ending January 1, 1904, shows that the manufacture of cigars in the state experienced a great increase over the preceding year. During 1903 there were manufactured in Alabama 6,787,349 cigars, for which 116,969 pounds of tobacco were used. During the year 1902 there were manufactured 6,322,534 cigars, for which 107,423 pounds of tobacco were used.

Throughout the state there were last year fifty-six factories in operation as against thirty-six for the year before. Last year six factories were closed, compared with nine for the preceding twelve months.

Mobile furnishes a great part of the revenue on cigars, there being twenty-two factories in that city.

New Industry Planned to be Located in Huntsville.

A stock company with a capital of $150,000 has been organized by J. M. Keyser, manager of the Huntsville plant of the Alabama Cotton Oil company, and J. E. The enterprise will be located in Huntsville and its principal owners are residents of the Tennessee valley.

The mill will be operated in the interests of the farmer. The company will ask for free water and exemption from taxation for a term of years. Mr. Keyser resigned as manager for the American company and expects to have the new industries in operation for the approaching season's business.

Selmian Jumps Into Alabama River While on a Spree.

Rauchfuss, better known as Skeets, left the city in a skiff with John Whitaker, a painter. They were bound for Sand Bar, several miles down the river on a fishing trip of several days and others were to join them. Whitaker returned to Selma alone and said that "Skeets" without warning stood up in the boat, a lighted cigar between his teeth and said: "Goodby, John," and jumped overboard. Whitaker says his companion never came to the surface again.

JUDGE ADAMS' RESIGNATION.

WHILE the news of Judge Adams' resignation, made known to the people of Chilton in the last issue of THE BANNER, came as a surprise to most of the voters in the county, it was well known to some of the Judge's intimate friends that he had been seriously considering withdrawing from politics even before he received the nomination.

For a long time past Judge Adams has felt that the cares of public office was a strain he was not desirous of continuing, and it will be remembered that some months ago he announced his withdrawal from political life. But several of his enthusiastic friends insisted upon his becoming a candidate for re-election, and against his better judgment he consented, and was duly nominated

No man knows better than Judge Adams that from now until the election in November it is the duty of the standard bearers of the Democratic party to wage an active campaign, and with serious illness in his family, together with the duties of his office, the Judge could not well see how to find the time that would be necessary for him to be away from home. Under all the circumstances he considered it would best serve the interests of the Democratic party that he should make way for some other man, hence his resignation.

The Democrats of Chilton will have no difficulty in nominating another good man for Judge of Probate, and none will more willingly and cheerfully assist in his election than Judge Adams.

SATURDAY, June 11, will be a big day with the Democrats of Chilton county. A grand rally will be held at Clanton, with music and good speakers, and a county convention at the same time to nominate a candidate for Judge of Probate. Up to the present E. B. Deason is the only name prominently mentioned as a candidate, although it is probable there will be others.

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE MEETING.

The Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton county met in called session at the court house, Clanton, on Tuesday.

Chairman Tipton Mullins called the committee to order, and stated that the committee was called together to consider the resignation of Hon. S. M. Adams, nominee for Judge of Probate, and to take such action as was deemed desirable.

The Secretary read the letter from Judge Adams tendering his resignation, and the Judge made a short and feeling speech explaining his reasons for the step he had taken. After discussing the matter, J. A. Mitchell made a motion that the resignation be accepted, and the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, by this Committee, that, after hearing the reasons of Hon. S. M. Adams for resigning the nomination for Judge of Probate, we accept his decision in the matter as based upon sincere conviction of what he believes to be right, and we sympathize with him in the continued ill health of some of the members of his family.

On motion of J. M. Keitt, the committee ordered that a county convention be held at Clanton on Saturday, June 11, 1904, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Judge of Probate of Chilton county. That Beat meetings be held at the several voting places in the county on Saturday, June 4, at 2 p.m., to select delegates to the county convention, and that the representation be as follows:

Beat 1—Mineral Springs	4
Beat 2—Jemison	5
Beat 2—Providence	5
Beat 3—Benson	3
Beat 3—Macedonia	2
Beat 4—Clanton	12
Beat 5—Verbena	6

Beat 8—Stanton	5
Beat 8—Pletcher	3
Best 9—Thorsby	6
Beat 10—Cooper	6
Beat 11—Flint Hill	3
Total	71

Each voting place may send as many delegates as they see proper, the vote to which the box is entitled to be divided among the delegates present.

All qualified white voters who will support the nominees of the party are invited to participate in the Beat meetings.

The following resolution was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that this Committee is highly gratified and cheered by the reports from all over the county indicating success in the November election.

The committee adjourned to meet at Clanton on Saturday morning, June 11, 1904, at 10 o'clock.

WHO IS THE MOST POPULAR YOUNG LADY IN CLANTON?

"Tis the last chance to vote, so let's all agree
To cast one more vote for sweet Miss Allen,
And cast for Miss Stanley, so smart and so fine,
Then to the two Ennis, each a vote we will give,
What laggard will dare to keep his vote back?
So here's one for the charming Miss Essie C.
And one for the pretty Miss Essie Mc.

To Miss Ellen, the angel of record, here's one,
And one for Miss Nellie, full of laughter and fun,
To delightful Miss Lottie, one vote we'll put down,
And one for Miss Dovie, the pride of the town.
And now all remember the last day of May,
While the sun is a shining's the time to make hay,
While the polls they are open, let every gallant man

And now the momentous period is at hand. Next Tuesday at three o'clock in the afternoon the voting will close, the result ascertained and a waiting people will be made acquainted with the fact that of all the charming young ladies of Clanton, Miss——is declared by public vote to be the most popular, and none will dare gainsay the verdict.

The voting has been fast and furious the past week and some of the fair candidates have advanced by leaps and bounds, but then there is no telling what reserve forces are yet to come forward in behalf of the other candidates. The last few days of the campaign are likely to prove the most exciting, and may hold some surprises in store.

Votes will be received up to 3 p.m. next Tuesday, May 31, by Miss Ellen Stanley, who is making an indefatigable recorder. Ten cents pays for a vote and you can vote as often as you wish, the proceeds being for the benefit of the Methodist church.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, May 25, 1904

The Democratic congressional campaign committee has been organized, with the exception of the appointment of the executive and finance committees, and probably will begin to get busy within a few days. The Democrats will enter this campaign for the next House of representatives with every encouragement in the belief that they will be successful. Several things are working together that make Democrats more hopeful of victory than they have been since 1892. In the first place the Democrats have been singulary fortunate in their choice of a chairman of the committee this year. As soon as it became known that the Hon. James M. Griggs, of Georgia, chairman of the committee two years ago and than whom there never was a better one, would not again serve his party on account of sickness in his family, the name of only one man in the House was discussed in connection with the position and that was the Hon. William S. Cowherd, of Missouri. Mr. Cowherd was elected unanimously and a better choice could not have been made Mr. Cowherd is a young man, forty-three years old, and has served in four successive congresses, the Fifty fifth, Fifty-sixth, Fifty-seventh and Fifty eighth. He is a modest man, but on the occasion of his very first speech on the floor of the House he was marked by all the old timers as one of the coming young men of the House. His speeches are not marked by flights of flowery rhetoric, but they abound in lucidity of expression, simple language, cogent reasoning, and unanswerable argument based on the facts and stated so clearly that a child can understand them. It is not his eloquence that makes him a remarkable figure on the floor of the House, but his clear insight into things and the motives of men and his ability to explain them. He is one of the best debaters in the House and many a Republican opponent has gone away limping when they crossed swords with him in debate. He is a member of two of the most important committees in the House, those of Post offices and Post Roads and the District of Columbia. He is an indefatigable worker and his speech in the last session on the frauds in the Post Office Department was one of the finest things listened to during the session. It will be used as a campaign document. Mr. Cowherd is a splendid organizer. He organized victory for himself in a district that had been in the habit of going Republican and his majorities have been growing larger ever since he first came to congress. Mr. Cowherd, therefore, understands the needs of a Democratic candidate in the northern districts and his advice and suggestions to them will be invaluable during the campaign. Look out for Mr. Cowherd as one of the coming young Democrats of the country.

One of the interesting things concerning the great World's Fair at St. Louis, learned from the Eastern Press Bureau here in Washington, is that with nearly two miles of attractions and forty-four distinct shows, it will cost less than $20 to go down the World's Fair Pike.

The general admission to any show on the Pike will not be more than 50 cents, while the vast majority of them will cost only 25 cents to enter the main gates.

A few will charge only a general admission of 10 cents, while reduced rates in every instance are made for children.

The Pike attractions at the World's Fair outnumber those of the Chicago Exposition by a ratio of two to one, while the area covered is three times greater.

No exposition given in the world has offered the number and variety of attractions in a similar department as are offered by the Louisiana Purchase Exposition. While a World's Fair visitor can begin at the first Pike show and see every attraction along the line, he must not spend any money for wares that he will be offered if he desires to remain within the limit of $20.

Thousands of articles are to be offered for sale in the Pike concessions, and if the visitor tries to buy everything he sees, his Pike expenditures will run up into the hundreds. Some of the Pike concessionaires have not yet decided upon the price of admission to be charged, but by estimating the price for those concessions, which have not yet fixed their entrance fee, and combining the estimates with the prices that have been fixed, it has been found that a tour of the World's Fair side show will be much less expensive than was first contemplated.

National politics was on the wane in the national capital for the past few days, inasmuch as nearly all the members of congress, who had lingered here after adjournment, had returned to their homes.

I presented her with a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm and after a few applications she decided it was the most wonderful pain reliever she had ever tried, in fact, she is never without it now and is at all times able to walk. BASE BALL.

VERBENA 12, CLANTON 12.

Verbena, May 23, 1904

The game here Thursday evening between Verbena and Clanton was one sided up until the 8th inning, when the boys jumped on Aldridge and pounded him for six scores tieing the score in that inning, and either side was unable to get a man across the plate afterwards. In the ninth with two out things got exciting, two men on bases, Mauk, the big catcher, up, who latched on to one of Traywick's benders that looked good for a home run, which meant a victory for Clanton, but Pyron in left, after a long chase, captured it just in time to prevent a defeat. The game was fast and snappy at all times, although Umpire Dennis made some rank decisions at times. Traywick who went in for Verbena was very effective indeed, allowing only two hits and benched four men, Burkhalter pitched a good game, so did Aldridge, especially in the ninth with two on bases and one out, Boswell out to right, Burkhalter up, fans get wild, but big Pate made him fan the atmosphere three times, which is something unusual. Umpire was compelled to call the game to allow the boys to catch the train. The lineup is as follows:

Verbena—Boswell ss; O. Headley 1b; M. Colley 2b; Harris rf; E. Headley 3b; Traywick cf; Pyron lf; E. Burkhalter p; J. Burkhalter c.

Clanton—Collier ss; Pinckard 1b; Johnson 2b; Jones rf; Simpson 3b; Robinson cf; Bruce lf; Aldridge p; Mauk c.

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN

FOR WEEK ENDING MONDAY, MAY 23

The week as a whole was cool and unfavorable, though beneficial rains fell in southwestern and nearly all middle counties on the night of 16th-17th, and the last two days were warm and favorable; the morning of the 19th was quite cool for the season. The aboved mentioned rains would have been more beneficial, had they not been followed by several days of cool, windy weather. In southeastern counties the drought continues practically unbroken. Cotton has improved slightly, though the stands are irregular, being good in some western and northern counties, but generally poor over the State, as a whole; much of it is not yet up; the continued cool weather has killed some cotton, and lice are injurious in some localities; chopping is completed in some counties, but much of this work remains to be done.

An Open Letter.

From the Chapin, S. C., News: Early in the spring my wife and I were taken with diarrhœa and so severe were the pains that we called a physician who prescribed for us, but his medicines failed to give any relief. A friend who had a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy on hand gave each of us a dose and we at once felt the effects. I procured a bottle and before using the entire contents we were entirely cured. It is a wonderful remedy and should be found in every household. H. C. Bailey, editor. This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton; A. Horn, Thorsby.

COMING FOR MONEY

Panama Sends Her Commissioners for the Balance of $9,000,000 Due Her.

FRANCE ALSO SENDS IN A BILL.

Claim for Work Done at Panama Since the Appraisement of the Property.

The commission appointed by the Panama congress which has just adjourned at the capital of the new republic has started for the United States.

The object of the commission is to receive the remaining $9,000,000 from the United States government for land ceded under treaty and to confer with our experts over the project to place the monetary system of their country on a gold basis, practically identical with our own. If that is accomplished the coins and notes of the two countries will be interchangeable in the canal zone.

President Roosevelt has been informed that the Panama Canal Company is preparing to present a bill for something over $1,000,000 for work done by that corporation on the ditch since the appraisement by our commission a year or so ago.

RAIDS ON NEW YORK POOL ROOMS.

Western Union Will Not Lease Wire to Them Hereafter.

Simultaneous raids on twenty-two alleged New York pool rooms and pool room exchanges were made by the police. At many places the police had to batter down specially constructed iron and steel doors and to gain entrance through barred windows. Seventy persons were taken and many telephones and telegraph instruments were confiscated, besides a number of books and racing charts that were found in the rooms.

President Clowry, of the Western Union Telegraph company, said that the abolition of the company's racing department announced by him on Thursday is to be permanent. He also said that the company will not lease wires to pool rooms. The company's branch offices at the race tracks will be maintained for the transmission of such messages as may be offered in the ordinary course of business.

"We have stopped our racing news service absolutely all over the United States, and we are doing no business in that line. We can not refuse messages that are filed with us in the regular course of business, because they contain racing news. We have to accept them and transmit them as common carriers.

ALABAMA COTTON.

Continued Drought and Cold Weather Have Retarded Growth.

In a statement Commissioner of Agriculture Poole te s -- crop conditions in a number of southern states, especially dwelling on cotton conditions. The report says:

"There has been an increase of 6 per cent in the acreage of cotton. While this increase has been set aside for cotton the acreage actually planted has not reached an average crop, owing to the protracted drought during the entire spring. The stands are generally the poorest for many years.

"Rains have fallen in middle and northeastern Alabama, but not sufficient for the needs of the crop. Southeast Alabama has received little, if any rain, and the crops are suffering. Bugs, of some description, a new and unnamed species, have attacked the crop in southeast Alabama, and are doing some damage."

Fatally Injured.

Edward Foust was killed in the Louisville and Nashville railroad shops at Decatur. He was struck by a flying timber and lingered several hours before he died. His home was in Cullman county. He was a young man of exemplary character.

SHOT HIMSELF.

Tuscaloosa County Man Kills Himself Over a Love Affair.

News has been received from Taylorville of the suicide of Orlando Hinton. It is said that young Hinton had just returned from the home of a young lady, with whom he is said to have been in love since childhood, and that today the young couple had planned to elope.

His father heard a pistol shot and thought that the son was shooting at a dog, but soon heard groans, when he hurried to where he found his son dead upon the floor with a bullet through his heart.

The commander of the Alabama division of the United Confederate Veterans, General George P. Harrison, has issued a circular in behalf of the movement to secure a monument to the late General John B. Gordon.

The state election board canvassed the returns from the special election held in the fifth congressional district May 9th, and declared that Hon. J. Thomas Heflin, of Lafayette, was elected. Mr. Heflin received 4,065 votes to 13 against him.

TWO JAPANESE VESSELS SUNK.

And Russia Repulses Her Antagonists Near Feng Wang Cheng.

The loss of life incurred by the sinking of the cruiser Yoshino included Captain Sayeki and Commander Hirowateri. Of the crew the number of those lost is unknown.

Those who went down with the battleship Hatsuse when she foundered were Commander Tsukamoto, Commander Viscount Nicco and Commander Arimori. The Hatsuse was surely sunk by coming in contact with a submerged mine, and not by the attack of a submarine boat.

The report that the battleship Shikishima was damaged and the battleship Fuji sunk is denied.

The Japanese, numbering 20,000 men, came upon 32,000 Russians in a strong position on Monday, sixty miles west of Feng Wang Cheng. It being unwise to risk a battle, the Japanese retreated in good order and with great rapidity.

An unofficial Russian authority says a pitched battle was not fought, but rumor says there was considerable loss on both sides during the clashes with the Cossacks harassing the flanks of the Japanese. This division presumably was executing a reconnoissance. The pursuit was checked when the main body of the Japanese was rejoined.

This news apparently accounts for the withdrawal to an unknown destination of warships and transports from Tower Hill, ten miles north of Kai Chou, Liao Tung peninsula.

Admiral Togo reports that the battleship Hatsuse sank off Port Arthur as a result of having struck mechanical mines. Naval men believe the battleship was sunk by a Whitehead torpedo fired from one of the Russian destroyers. The fact that a flotilla of sixteen torpedo boat destroyers approached the Japanese vessel showed, they say, that the entrance of the harbor of Port Arthur is again open and what is left of the Russian fleet there is intact.

Advices received at the Japanese legation from Tokio confirming the Associated Press account of the sinking of the cruiser Loshino and the battleship Hatsuse state that after the Hatsuse had been struck by Russian mechanical mines, a Russian flotilla of sixteen torpedo boats and destroyers appeared, but were repulsed by the Japanese cruisers which saved 300 of the Hatsuse's crew, including Admiral Mashiba and Captain Nakao.

ALABAMA IS HONORED

By the Selection of Major Screws as President of the National Editorial Association.

On the world's fair grounds, St. Louis, the National Editorial Association held its annual sessions Thursday. Colonel Watterson and Homer Davenport were the speakers.

The following officers were elected:

President, Major W. W. Screws, of Alabama; first vice president, W. W. Folsom, of Arkansas; second vice president, W. J. Kline, of New York; third vice president, H. B. Varner, of North Carolina; corresponding secretary, W. A. Ashbrook, of Ohio; recording secretary, J. W. Cochrum, of Indiana; treasurer, J. Irving Steele, of Pennsylvania.

After the delegates had presented the names of their respective executive committeemen for the ensuing year the convention adjourned to meet next year at Guthrie, Okla.

Sale Ratified.

A decree was handed down by Judge Clark in the United States court ratifying the sale of the Lenoir City, Tenn., plant of the Southern Car and Foundry Company to Moore & Schley, of New York city, for the sum of $60,000.

Harrison J. Barrett, on trial for conspiracy with General Tyner in the postoffice cases, said the greater part of the $40,000 he made the first two years after he left the government service came from publishers who contested the order of the postoffice department in excluding certain publications from the mails as second-class matter.

It is reported that seventy thousand Russians are marching to the relief of Port Arthur, and the Japanese are consequently hastening offensive preparations. Forty-five thousand troops have already been landed at Kin Chau, and Talien Wan, thus entirely investing Port Arthur. The Japanese advance lines are seven miles from the Russian batteries.

GARDEN CITY BURNED

And the Loss, $16,000, is a Total One. Town Will not Be Rebuilt.

CHILDREN PLAY WITH MATCHES

Supposed to be the Cause of the Conflagration—One Store Will Rebuild.

The business section of Garden City was destroyed by fire Monday morning, entailing a loss of $16,000.

Among the buildings that were lost are the Sandlin hotel, station of the Louisville and Nashville railway, Shaver's saloon and the residence and store of T. W. Cooke.

No one carried any insurance. Shaver and the railroad will rebuild at once, but the others will not.

A quantity of lumber was also burned. The fire is believed to have been started by children playing in a woodshed with matches.

CRUSHED BY ROLLING LOG.

Slipped, Fell and Log Passed Entirely Over Him—Died Almost Instantly.

Near Randolph a serious accident occurred at the saw mill of Mr. Jonce Gardner, in which a Mr. Nelson lost his life, while his brother was seriously wounded. While rolling logs down an incline near the mill the hook with which Mr. Nelson was working slipped from its fastenings on the log, causing him to fall. Before he could rise the heavy log rolled over him and crushed him so badly that he died almost instantly. Immediately after the log had passed over him Mr. Nelson rose to his feet, exclaimed "O Lord," and fell back upon the ground dead. His neck was completely broken, and it is very remarkable that he ever got upon his feet after the accident.

A brother of the dead man was also caught in some manner by the log and seriously injured, though his injuries are not thought to be necessarily fatal.

BIRMINGHAM SURVEY

Fifteen years ago the geological survey made a contour map of the district, but the surveys now being made are much more detailed, and the new map will be of greater importance and usefulness. It will show all the hills and valleys, railroads, dirt roads, towns and the locations of all the mines and manufacturing plants in the district, together with other topographical details. An effort is being made to induce the chief of the geological survey to issue a special sheet for the Birmingham district. This special sheet is a distinction granted only to cities of the first class.

A Railroad for Ashland.

The Alabama Northern Railway Company has signed a contract with Wagnon Bros., of Anniston, Ala., to grade a railroad from Pyriton to Ashland.

The road will be seven miles in length and will connect with the Eastern Railway of Alabama at Pyriton, which is operated by the L. and N. The work on the grade will begin at once and will be completed by December 1, 1904.

The Hattiesburg, Miss., Progress, a daily, has been sold by its owner, Mr. Mr. J. B. Haynie, to Messrs. A. C. Aylesworth, of Memphis, and C. W. Moffett, Jr., of Lebanon, Tenn. Mr. Aylesworth was formerly managing editor of the Memphis Scimitar, while Mr. Moffett was formerly city editor of the Chattanooga Times.

Gun Club League.

There is a probability of a shooters' league being organized in north Alabama and as an inducement for such an organization the Peters Cartridge company has offered a silver cup to be contested for by the clubs composing the league. The clubs of Huntsville, Madison, Decatur, Courtland, Tuscumbia, Town Creek and Sheffield will enter the organization.

On June 1 six new free delivery routes will be put in operation in Cullman county, one from Walter, two from Joppa, two from Baileyton and one from Logan. There are now thirteen routes in the county.

Two Students Drowned.

Two members of the senior class of the Columbus, Miss., Industrial institute and college were drowned at their annual picnic at Waverly Saturday. They are Miss Lena Clark Walton, of Okolona, Miss., and Miss Lena Love Hillard. The girls were in wading a short distance from the bank and stepped off a hidden rock into fully twenty feet of water.

COTTON CROP OF 1903.

Census bulletin No. 10 covers the work of the gins in the present cotton year—the crop grown in 1903 and ginned in the fall of that year and in the winter of 1903-04.

The Alabama crop grown in 1903 was 1,078,519 bales of five hundred pounds each. No larger crop was ever grown in this state except in 1901, when the state crop was 1,101,227 bales. The crop of 1903 was turned out of 3,876 active gins, the average product of the Alabama gins being 264 bales.

The value of the Alabama lint is put by the census bureau at $57,392,655, or about 12 1-2 cents a pound. The number of pounds was 471,979,076. The cotton seed of the crop amounted to 471,979 tons, worth $7,509,185. The total crop of 1903 in this state stands at $64,901,840. The crops of Texas, Mississippi and Georgia only brought more money. The cotton seed oil mills of the state, fifty-eight in number, gathered 13,615 bales of linters, worth $306,337, and they handled about 68 per cent of the seed crop.

BANK CASHIER MISSING.

Last Seen in Alabama—Two Theories.

W. T. Bispham, cashier of the Randolph County bank, at Pocahontas, Ark., has mysteriously disappeared. Bispham was last seen in Anniston on May 12th. He had come from Piedmont ostensibly for the purpose of making some purchases. He married Miss Eula Dailey at Piedmont some six months ago and a few weeks ago he and his wife came to Piedmont on a visit to the latter's relatives. Failing to return from Anniston in a reasonable time his wife notified the bank of his departure and his relatives sent a detective to solve the mystery and if possible get some trace of him.

Two theories have been advanced. One is that he has been kidnaped and is being held for the purpose of extorting money from his relatives who are rich; another is that he is in a hospital. It is said that he is of a nervous temperament and when sick does not talk or act as a rational man.

AN ARREST MADE

For the Theft of the Atlanta Baseball Team Money.

George S. Gullette, a young white man well known in Birmingham, was arrested by the chief of police of New Orleans on a charge of grand larceny in connection with the recent robbery of the safe in the Florence hotel.

Gullette was clerk of the hotel at the time that $580, the property of Ab Powell, of the Atlanta baseball team, was stolen from the safe. Since the theft about May 1st detectives have been at work on the case, and decided they had evidence enough to warrant having Gullette arrested.

The young man lost his position at the hotel last week and after staying around Birmingham for two or three days went to New Orleans, where he was stopping at the Commercial hotel.

ALABAMA MINE OWNERS

It is learned that the company that is to establish the coal tipple at the mouth of the Lake Borgne canal has been organized and is composed of men who are interested in a coal mine of Alabmaa. The coal tipple will be constructed at a cost of $100,000.

THE SECOND DEATH

From the Bite of the Dog Which Killed Mr. Looney.

Another case of death by hydrophobia has been reported and several persons have been bitten. The second death reported is of a Mr. Waters, who lived about fifteen miles west of Hartselle. His death is the result of the bite of a rabid dog.

W. H. Bogue has just put in operation a new industry in Cullman, the Cullman bottling works. He has installed new machinery and is finding a market for his goods.

She is Destroyed.

The report that Rear Admiral Jessen, finding it impossible to save the protected cruiser Bogatyr, which went ashore recently in a fog on the rocks at Vladivostok, caused her to be blown up, is confirmed.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad is considering the transfer of its shops of the Atlanta, Knoxville and Northern from Blue Ridge, Ga., to Chambria, Tenn.

FIREWORKS EXPLODE

Seven Persons Meet a Violent Death While Many Others Are Fatally Injured.

THERE WAS A RUSH OF ORDERS

And Employes Were Working on Sunday to Facilitate the Filling of Fourth of July Orders.

As the result of an explosion of two drying rooms at the Lake Shore Novelty Company's plant at Findlay, O., Sunday, seven persons are known to be dead, five are so seriously hurt that recovery is believed to be impossible and twelve or fifteen are badly injured. From reports of the physicians ten of the less seriously injured may die as a result of blood poisoning from the potash that was driven into their bodies.

The plant covered nearly ten acres of ground and employed nearly 200 men, women and children. Railroad torpedoes and Fourth of July explosives were manufactured.

Owing to a rush of orders the officials of the plant requested the employes to report for duty Sunday. About thirty complied.

Two explosions shattered windows throughout the city. Two magazines in separate rooms at the novelty works exploded simultaneously. The exact cause of the explosion is not definitely known. It is surmised that one of the Sherwood brothers who was the only person in the drying room, dropped a box of torpedoes, but this theory can not be confirmed.

The explosion occurred shortly before the employes assembled for duty.

At Camden, N. J., one man and two boys were killed and six men and two girls seriously injured by an explosion which occurred Monday in the fireworks factory of Jose Sclone.

Skrydloff in Command.

The chaplain sprinkled and blessed the admiral's flag before it was run up to the masthead, where it was greeted with a salute from all the cruisers in the harbor.

The day happened to be the eighth anniversary of the launching of the Rossia, and also Vice Admiral Skrydloff's saint's day. The admiral addressed the officers and crew of the Rossia, saying:

"The emperor orders me to convey his greeting and loyal thanks for your gallant services, in consideration of which he reduces your tour of sea duty to three years."

Shot if Call is Repeated.

Threats of bodily harm to a police captain who took part in the general pool raids in New York in the event of continued surveillance in the manner in which it has been conducted, were made by an attorney in open court, when some of the raid prisoners were arraigned. Lawyer Stephen O'Hara, who represented three men arrested in the raid on an alleged pool on east Thirty-third street, bitterly attacked Police Captain Shire when his clients were arraigned in the Yorkville police court. He claimed that the captain had unlawfully raided the place at various times. "I warn the captain now," said O'Hara, "that if he ever goes there again he will be shot."

The Katsuki Struck.

During the reconnoissance of Port Arthur made by Admiral Togo on Friday of last week a shell hit the torpedo boat destroyer Katsuki, killing one officer and twenty-four men.

Stole Note for $100,000.

David Rothschild, former president of the defunct Federal bank, New York, who was convicted of grand larceny, was sentenced to serve nine years in the state prison. Rothschild was found guilty of the theft of a note of $100,000 belonging to a man named Nessler while the former was president of the bank.

A JAPANESE VICTORY.

Russian Cossack Regiment Almost Annihilated.

The regiment of Cossacks was almost annihilated by the Japanese infantry which surrounded and completely routed the enemy.

All the Russian officers were killed, wounded or captured. Natives report that some of the Cossacks escaped on foot, abandoning their equipment. Many killed and wounded were found on the battlefield.

The Mississippi Woman's Home Missionary society is in session in Meridian.

Fifty-five Engines.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works is rushing work on an order from the Japanese government for fifteen locomotives. They are intended for the Kobe railroad, and will be used in the transportation of troops and supplies for the war. This last order makes a total of fifty-five locomotives, built at the Baldwin works for the Japanese government, and they have been supplied in less time than any similar orders ever given the company.

BANKER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Robert H. Plant, the Macon Financier, Ends His Career.

Robert H. Plant, president of First National bank and owner of I. C. Plant's Son bank, of Macon, both recently placed in the hands of receivers, committed suicide. He had been ill for two months, but the collapse of the financial institutions, the oldest in the city, came in the same time.

He had told his nurse that he wished to be down and asked to be assisted to the bathroom. Then a pistol shot was heard and the capitalist was found with a 38-caliber pistol in his hand, speechless. Death was practically instantaneous. The bullet passed through the right temple and out of the left, flattening itself against the wall.

The Plant banking institutions were closed last Monday. The receiver of the private institution has reported a deficit of over $444,000.

The national bank examiner has yet made no report as to the First National's affairs.

Mr. Plant leaves a wife and children.

Mr. Plant had an insurance of $1,000,000, of which about $... was for the benefit of his creditors. Letters written within the last three days indicated that he despaired of being able to leave his bed to repair his fortunes.

CONDEMNED TO DEATH.

Russian Officers Sold Powder to the Chinese.

Lieutenant Colonel Kortinski and Staff Captain Ignotowich, are in Harbin prison awaiting the carrying out of sentence of death imposed on them for selling large supplies of gun powder to the Chinese from army depots. The officers charged the Chinese $25 per thirty-six pounds. Their supplies running low, they filled the boxes partly with sand and put a layer of gunpowder on top. At the same time they raised the price to $50.

The Chinese merchants, incensed at the swindle, caused the matter to be made known to higher quarters and a watch was set, resulting in the detection of the officers in the act of selling powder to Russian intermediaries.

Eight New Bishops.

The complete list of bishops chosen by the Methodist conference in the order elected, follows:

Joseph F. Berry, Chicago; H. F. Spellmeyer, Newark, N. J.; William F. McDowell, New York; J. W. Bashford, Delaware, O.; W. Burt, Rome, Italy; Luther B. Wilson, Baltimore; Thomas B. Neely, Philadelphia; J. R. Day, Syracuse, N. Y.

With the exception of Bishops Berry, Burt and Neely, the newly elected members of the Episcopal board are young men, ranging between the ages of 42 and 48 years.

Bishop J. D. Day has since resigned. The conference voted to indefinitely postpone the election of a successor to Mr. Day on the Episcopal board, this action was taken to mean the board will remain as at present constituted.

Alexieff Has Resigned.

It is reported on good authority that Viceroy Alexieff tendered his resignation to the emperor, giving ill health as the reason for his desire to be relieved, but that the emperor persuaded him in a gracious telegram to remain at his post.

300 Escaped.

The Sterling Colliery operated by the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, was set on fire by a dynamite blast. The alarm was spread throughout the workings and three hundred miners escaped to the surface before the black damp reached.

Japanese Loan.

After conference between the bankers, the ministers and elder statesmen of Japan, the bankers have accepted the terms of the new loan, $50,000,000. It will be issued at 92, bear 5 per cent interest and run for seven years. The former loan was issued at 95 and is to run for years.

To Investigate Subsidy.

The validity of the one million dollar subsidy voted by the city of Nashville to the Tennessee Central railroad will be investigated in accordance with a decision handed down by Judge Clark, of the United States district court.

The election is contested by some taxpayers, and their original bill demurrer was entered and overruled. The original bill was subsequently overruled. The bill charged that the election was carried by fraudulent votes.

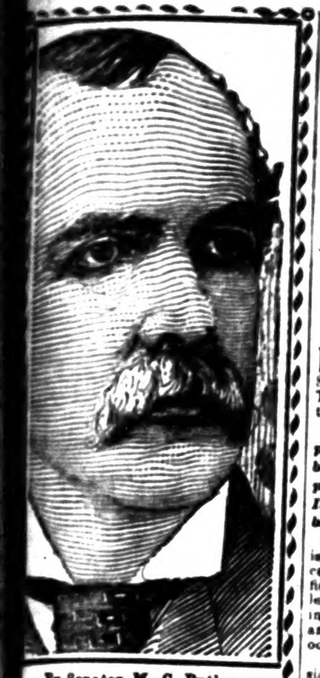
U. S. SENATOR FROM SOUTH CAROLINA
Recommends Pe-ru-na
For Dyspepsia and Stomach Trouble.



Ex-Senator M. C. Butler.

Catarrh of the Stomach is Generally Called Dyspepsia—Something to Produce Artificial Digestion is Generally Taken.

Hence, Pepsin, Pancreatin and a Host of Other Digestive Remedies Has Been Invented.

These Remedies Do Not Reach the Seat of the Difficulty, Which is Really Catarrh.

EX. U. S. Senator M. C. Butler from South Carolina was Senator from that State for two terms. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., from Washington, D. C., says:

"I can recommend Peruna for dyspepsia and stomach trouble. I have been using your medicine for a short period and I feel very much relieved. It is indeed a wonderful medicine besides a good tonic."—M. C. Butler.

The only rational way to cure dyspepsia is to remove the catarrh. Peruna cures catarrh. Peruna does not produce artificial digestion. It cures catarrh and leaves the stomach to perform digestion in a natural way. This is vastly better and safer than resorting to artificial methods or narcotics.

Peruna has cured more cases of dyspepsia than all other remedies combined, simply because it cures catarrh wherever located. If catarrh is located in the head, Peruna cures it. If catarrh has fastened itself in the throat or bronchial tubes, Peruna cures it. When catarrh becomes settled in the stomach, Peruna cures it, as well in this location as in any other.

Peruna is not simply a remedy for dyspepsia. Peruna is a catarrh remedy. Peruna cures dyspepsia because it is generally dependent upon catarrh.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

PATHETIC INDIAN TALES

RELATED BY ONE WHO HAS LIVED AMONG THEM.

The Burial of Beautiful Blossom—
The Name Indian is a Misnomer—
The Red Man Hates a Half-breed—
The Aristocratic Cheyennes.

Tears came to the eyes of many members of the New York Indian Association as Mrs. Ida Vose Woodbury, New England field secretary of the American Missionary association, told of the burial of Beautiful Blossom, the youngest child of the Rev. Mr. Wachacwastiwm, an ordained clergyman; of the healing of Eagle Feather, deserted, with her three children, by her husband, Swallow; of the burning of an aged Indian mother at the stake by her son, because he said she was too old any longer to spear the salmon or snare the rabbit, and of the erection, less than three years later, of a church on the spot where her little heap of gray ashes had fallen.

"There is a difference between knowing about Indians and knowing Indians," said Mrs. Woodbury. "I don't suppose I know very much about Indians, but I think I may say I know Indians. I can almost claim to belong to them, for I have been among them all my life, and have been invited to membership in one of the tribes. In my girlhood there were usually from one to half a dozen Indians rolled in buffalo robes sleeping around my father's open fire of a night, and I used to go into their wigwams freely, making them little presents and sometimes buying their baskets and bead work. I recall one day going to one of their tepees where two of the young braves looked curiously at me.

"'H'm; that Vose girl!' said one, 'make good squaw.'

A Cause of Reproach.

"The name 'Indian' is a misnomer. They are not Indians. They are native Americans, the only native Americans. Nor are they red men. They may be brown, copper, or practically white. They have no pigment under the skin, as a negro has, and with civilization they whiten. For an Indian to have a fair skin is a cause of reproach among the fiercer tribes. The North American Indian is the native aristocrat of this country, and he is proud of his birth.

"I once asked the daughter of an old chief, who had become converted and taken a new name, 'How many Indians go back to the blanket?' 'Almost none of the second generation,' she replied; 'of course, of the first generation some go back, but I have heard of white people who backslide. However civilized an Indian family may be, it has a tepee, and in summer for a little while it likes to go off and pitch the tepee far away from man and play heathen for a few weeks. The Indian wants to brown himself in the smoke of his fire, go around in the blistering sun hatless, and have a vacation from civilization. I have known white men who liked to play heathen a little while.

"The new name of this girl's father was Kitto, after the author of the history of the Bible. He was one of a band of hostile Indians who were imprisoned as a consequence of some warlike raids. Father Ridge went among them and converted them, and when President Lincoln pardoned them they marched out, 200 strong, singing the fifty-first Psalm to the tune of 'Old Hundred.' When an Indian becomes a Christian and is baptized, they give him a new name to indicate something that he is to struggle to attain to. This is simply an adaptation of the Indian system of nomenclature. An Indian father who calls his son Shoot-in-the-Ear thereby expresses his hope that when the boy grows up he will be able to shoot his foe or his quarry straight and clean in the ear. I know one Indian who christened himself Eli Abraham. I suppose he admired both characters and annexed them to his Indian name, in the hope of attaining to their virtues.

They Are Very Religious.

"Indians hate half breeds. Once I had this same young girl with me at a meeting in Tremont Temple, Boston, when a young negro preacher who was almost white, thinking to show his friendliness, said to her, 'I have a little Indian blood in me.' The girl drew herself up, and, looking at him in scorn, said: 'You have a little Indian blood in you. Then I thank God that I am not like you.'"

Indians, according to Mrs. Woodbury, are pre-eminently religious. "If it were not for their religious wants, they would ask very little odds of the missionary and Indian associations of the country," she said.

"You may recall how about 15 years ago the Messiah craze swept over the Sioux, who number about one-third of all the Indians. The advent of the Messiah, they believed, was to be heralded by an immense tidal wave, which would land on the prairies all the buffalo the Indian could ever want to hunt or eat, and would bury all the white men three feet deep. Messiah would bring for every Indian a shirt, a ghost shirt, which would render him invulnerable to the white man. They thought that the Messiah was coming to make a temporal kingdom, so they destroyed all their totems and became a godless nation. Some burned up their totems. Others, more prudent, hids theirs in the ground, thinking that if the Messiah did not come, they might prove useful again. Poor Wolf hid his totem in a haystack set in a field, and the lightning struck the haystack and burned up the totem.

"But the Messiah did not come, nor the buffalo, nor the ghost shirts. Instead, the government intervened. My point, however, is that the Sioux were left a literally godless people, and that in consequence they came crowding into the schools to learn 'the shining Jesus way.'

The Aristocrats.

"I was in Oklahoma at one of the distributions of the government semi-annual dividend. For acres the land was dotted with Indian tepees, but between the tepees of the Cheyennes and the Arapahoes there was a broad avenue, for the Cheyenne is the aristocrat of the Indians. Any Arapahoe would feel himself flattered to be asked, 'Are you a Cheyenne?' and every Cheyenne would feel himself insulted to be asked, 'Are you an Arapahoe?' Over the plain a thousand Indians came driving, each with two or four of their ponies, their blankets flying, and followed by packs of Indian dogs, half dog and half coyote.

"Here was Black Wolf, with 70 gashes received in the willow dance and the ghost dance ,and there was old Left Hand, whose wife was doctoring his rheumatism.

"I visited the tepee of Lowing Buffalo, who is 103 years old, if son, who is a Christian, is to be believed. On the other side of the fire was his aged wife, paralyzed from the waist down and nearly blind. Opposite sat Eagle Feather, their daughter, very sorrowful because her husband, Swallow, had left her. The poor thing was sitting, her hands clasped over her heart, and all she would say was 'Heap sick about Swallow.' I got out my Testament and read part of the eleventh chapter of Matthew, 'Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest.' I saw her face begin to soften. Then we sang, 'Rock of Ages' and 'Safe in the Arms of Jesus,' and the missionary who was with me offered prayer.

"One day, years before, that same missionary came upon a little pile of gray ashes in the grass. 'That is where I burned my mother day before yesterday,' a young brave told him.

"'What was the disease?'

"'She had none, but she was old—she could no longer spear salmon or snare rabbits.'

"That day he showed me a church which had been built where the old Indian woman had been burned to death, and as I looked at it three young Indian men came slowly up the path. Two of them had their arms interlaced to form an armchair, in which they carried their old mother, while the third followed, carrying a blanket to put around her. There were no backs to the seats, so one of the boys sat beside his mother, and she leaned against him and rested her head on his shoulder, as they all listened to the Gospel. So much had Christianity accomplished in three years!

"And then there was the time when Beautiful Blossom died. They laid her in a little white coffin, but, as there were no flowers at that season, they took some yellow tissue paper they found in a missionary box, and twisting it into a cross and some little flowers, placed them in the coffin. All the old chiefs—warriors who had slain their men and knew what it was to dabble in human blood—came to the funeral.

THE OCEAN'S DERELICTS.

Timber-Laden Craft That Menace the Safety of the Seas.

After going over the impressive list of marine accidents caused in past years by collision with floating derelicts, the reader naturally wonders how many of the recorded catastrophes could have been prevented by systematic methods of dealing with these dangers to navigation. In the ten-year period from 1893 to 1902 there were 51 collisions with derelicts. In three of these—one somewhat doubtful—the vessel striking was a total loss; in 37 it was seriously damaged, and in 11 slightly damaged. A great many Norwegian lumber vessels plying from southern ports on the United States coast become derelicts. This is explained paradoxically as the indirect result of the Norwegian's expert seamanship and his confidence as a sailor, which makes him willing to trust in old weather-logged craft, foredoomed to wreck, but continued in use by him till they give way under the stress of actual trial.

Dynamite is the agency usually suggested to destroy these vessels, but dynamite will not accomplish everything. A ship, even an unseaworthy one, is a substantially built structure, and the explosion that will rend it into fragments too small to endanger another vessel striking them must be tremendous. If the ship floats upside down the task is still harder and the wrecking crew must cut into the hull in order to place the charges.

The case of the lumber schooner Drisko is typical. She was sighted by the San Francisco a few years ago, waterlogged and deeply sunk in the water. It was found impossible to tow her to port, and the officers of the San Francisco determined on the torpedo treatment. Three torpedoes, containing 34 pounds of guncotton apiece, were accordingly attached to the keel of the derelict and exploded. They did a great deal of damage, of course, but the obstinate craft remained afloat. Five more torpedoes were then exploded under the keel, and this time back and frames were broken. The San Franfisco then rammed the derelict amidships, and thus cut it in two. The cargo began to slip out and the two parts to sink. As they went down the cruiser fired shells into the stern by way of finishing touches.—London Daily News.

The Jesuits are to be permitted to settle again in Germany, after an exclusion of thirty-two years.

Much has been heard of the efficacy of the Japanese explosive projectiles. The powder used is the invention of a Japanese. He claims that with regard to explosive forces, the powder stands next to blasting gelatin and on a much higher level than dynamite or guncotton. A handful exploded on an iron plate one and one-half inches thick forces a hole through the plate. At a special test made two years ago, a six-inch shell loaded with guncotton made a hole a little larger than its own diameter in the target and burst with trifling effect in the backing of coal. A shell charged with Shimose powder tore an aperture taree feet in diameter. The composition is handled with the greatest safety, and it costs only about one half of guncotton.

The Baldwin Locomotive Works recently completed its shipment of twenty-four locomotives ordered by the Japanese government. The engines were taken apart and placed in boxes and framework and then placed in box cars so they could not be seen from the outside, the Japanese government and the Baldwins being anxious to keep the matter a secret. The engines are intended for use in Korea on the Seoul-Kobe railroad. American mechanics will set up the engines.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

TIRED, SUFFERING WOMEN.

Women run down and endure daily tortures through neglecting the kidneys. Kidney backache makes housework a burden; rest is impossible; sleep fitful; appetite gives out and you are tired all the time. Can't be well until the kidneys are well. Use Doan's Kidney Pills, which have restored thousands of suffering women to health and vigor.

Mrs. William Wallace, of 18 Capitol street, Concord, N. H., says: "I was in the early stages of Bright's Disease and were it not for Doan's Kidney Pills I would not be living to-day. Pain in the back was so intense that at night I had to get out of bed until the paroxysm of pain passed away. I was languid and tired and hadn't the strength to lift a kettle of water. I could not work, but a few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills relieved me, and two boxes absolutely cured me."

A FREE TRIAL of this great kidney medicine which cured Mrs. Wallace will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Foster Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers, price 50 cents per box.

One of the important news centers of London is the inner lobby of the house of commons. No newspaper man has access to that place unless he is entitled to a seat in the press gallery—a rare privilege. Not all London journals have representatives in the reporters' gallery. Alfred Harmsworth had to buy a Scotch newspaper, with a time-honored title to a gallery seat, to get a representative of his widely circulated Daily Mail in the gallery and inner lobby.

BLACK WEED, the great vegetable remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, and Kidney and Bladder complaints, has met with almost instantaneous success because it has made some noteworthy cures of very severe cases.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

The Nashville Reunion.

The Reunion Committee sends the Southern Press the good news that all arrangements are perfected for entertaining the United Confederate Veterans at Nashville, June 14-16.

The Camps of Veterans, the Sons of Veterans, and the three chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy are working in harmony with the business organizations of Nashville to furnish an entertainment as nearly faultless as possible.

The fact that these conventions had become so expensive to cities entertaining as deterred action that it was left for Nashville to become host again sooner than was expected. But the capital of the Volunteer State, aided by adjacent communities, is ready. All of the people are in hearty accord, and arrangements are such that this invitation, to Confederate Veterans everywhere, is extended without misgiving in any particular. Arrangements are far better than ever before for Veterans to meet in their old commands—on the campus of the Vanderbilt University.

CLEAN. PLEASANT AND RELIABLE

Dragging Pains

2825 Keeley St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct., 2, 1902.

I suffered with falling and congestion of the womb, with severe pains through the groins. I suffered terribly at the time of menstruation, had blinding headaches and rushing of blood to the brain. What to try I knew not, for it seemed that I had tried all and failed, but I had never tried Wine of Cardui, that blessed remedy for sick women. I found it pleasant to take and soon knew that I had the right medicine. New blood seemed to course through my veins and after using eleven bottles I was a well woman.

Mrs. Bush is now in perfect health because she took Wine of Cardui for menstrual disorders, bearing down pains and blinding headaches when all other remedies failed to bring her relief. Any sufferer may secure health by taking Wine of Cardui in her home. The first bottle convinces the patient she is on the road to health.

A couple of weeks ago, when the business houses of Clanton were enumerated in this column, by an oversight the "Publishers" were omitted. It is true that that list included only such businesses as were of benefit to the town and contributed to its wealth, and it cannot truthfully be said that these Clanton "Publishers" do either one or the other in that line of business.

First, we have the Clanton Courier, "published" at Clanton, printed in the State of Iowa, and shipped down here to the "publishers," the Upchurch Drug Co., who will cheerfully give you a copy, and it is to be hoped it will do you good. There's no county interest in it, but then it is "published" at Clanton, and that seems to be all that is necessary for a few of the good people of Chilton.

Then we have the Clanton Druggist, "published" at Clanton, printed at Chicago, and shipped to the "publishers," the Clanton Drug Co., and they will gladly give you a copy—that is what they are "publishing" it for, County news conspicuous by its absence, but the Druggist is "published" at Clanton, and what more can you [illegible]?

There is other trash comes here, printed at Birmingham, and "published" at Clanton in the same way as the two "newspapers" mentioned above, but so long as it bears the name of the Clanton Courier or the Clanton Druggist, or Clanton something or other, it is good enough for some folks. A notice through the Courier and the Druggist fails to disclose the announcement of any ambitious office seeker asking the support of patriotic Chiltonians to any county office, although why "newspapers" printed in Iowa and Chicago should answer as well as some printed in Birmingham it is hard to say. None of these "newpapers" pro- one cent of revenue to the county, or put any money in circulation in the county; on the contrary some of them, notably the Birmingham one, takes a good deal of money out of Chilton, which is over-burdened with a surplus cash. One paper printed and published at Clanton, paying out [illegible] every week, and bearing its share of the taxation of the county, is more real value to the county than a thousand of the sort named above, and all men, who use their brains to do their own thinking, favor it.

Another evidence of the prosperity of Clanton merchants is shown in the fact that Jim Jones is going to enlarge his storehouse, so that he can better accomodate his ever increasing number of customers. The improvements will take in the space used by Mr. Tipton Mullins in his law practice, and who has moved upstairs in the same building. This will make a double entrance to Mr. Jones' storehouse and considerably improve the appearance of the place as well as give him more room. Thus Clanton grows, if we are not building all the time, other improvements are going on, as fast as increased business demands them.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

She is young, she is sweet, she is fair,
She's as beautiful as any dream,
And my heart it is sair, my pocket is bare,
For she loves nothing else but ice-cream.

O what a sad fate is mine,
As lonely I float down life's stream,
I haven't the cost, my love I have lost,
And I scream ice-cream.

A couple of weeks ago, when the business houses of Clanton were enumerated in this column, by an oversight the "Publishers" were omitted. It is true that that list included only such businesses as were of benefit to the town and contributed to its wealth, and it cannot truthfully be said that these Clanton "Publishers" do either one or the other in that line of business.

First, we have the Clanton Courier, "published" at Clanton, printed in the State of Iowa, and shipped down here to the "publishers," the Upchurch Drug Co., who will cheerfully give you a copy, and it is to be hoped it will do you good. There's nothing of county interest in it, but then it is "published" at Clanton, and that seems to be all that is necessary for many few of the good people of Chilton.

Then we have the Clanton Drug..., "published" at Clanton, printed at Chicago, and shipped to the "publishers," the Clanton Drug ..., and they will gladly give you a copy—that is what they are "publishing" it for. County news conspicuous by its absence, but the Druggist is "published" at Clanton, and what more can you ask?

There is other trash comes here, printed at Birmingham, and "published" at Clanton in the same way as the two "newspapers" mentioned above, but so long as it bears the name of the Clanton Courier, or the Clanton Druggist, or the Clanton something or other, it is good enough for some folks. A glance through the Courier and the Druggist fails to disclose the announcement of any ambitious office-seeker asking the support of patriotic Chiltonians to any county office, although why "newspapers" printed in Iowa and Chicago should answer as well as some printed in Birmingham it is hard to say. None of these "newpapers" pro... one cent of revenue to the county, or put any money in circulation in the county; on the contrary some of them, notably the Birmingham one, takes a good deal of money out of Chilton, which is over-burdened with a surplus of cash. One paper printed and published at Clanton, paying out wages every week, and bearing its part of the taxation of the county, is of more real value to the county than a thousand of the sort named above, and all men, who use their brains to do their own thinking, know it.

Another evidence of the prosperity of Clanton merchants is shown by the fact that Jim Jones is going to enlarge his storehouse, so that he can better accomodate his ever increasing number of customers. The improvements will take in the rooms used by Mr. Tipton Mullins in his law practice, and who has occupied upstairs in the same building. This will make a double entrance to Mr. Jones' storehouse and considerably improve the appearance of the place as well as give him more room. Thus Clanton grows, if we are not building all the time, other improvements are going on, as fast as increased business demands them.

Kosciusko, Miss., May 28, '04

Editor Banner—Please give me a little space for a few words. Since we left Chilton we are always so glad to receive the Banner, we get to hear from home. We are tired of cotton mills and are farming; have a fine prospect. The weather is rather cool for cotton. I and the boys lit into an eleven acre cut and chopped it out in less than two days. This is a good farming country and every one has planted all the cotton they could. This is a country of landlords and tenants and stock laws. The landlords give their tenants access to their pastures free of charge. A large creek runs through our farm and the boys have a good time fishing every time it rains. Success to the Banner.

J. M. SCOTT.

From Our Sailor Correspondent.

U. S. S. Baltimore, May 24, '04

This second class armored cruiser has been in commission since May 5, 1903, and from that time to this we have been hoping and trying to leave the States. On the 5th inst. we made an effort to leave, got up anchor at 9:30 a.m. and while the Baltimore met with an unexpected accident we sailed just the same.

One of the gaskets in the manhead of a boiler blew out, which filled the fireroom with hot water and steam, scalding three men very badly. The boiler was immediately disconnected and the fires taken out. I am glad to say that the men who were scalded are improving, and we hope there will be no more accidents hereafter.

We ran down from Pensacola to Guantanomo on the southwest coast of Cuba, having fine weather and smooth seas all the way. It is nice and warm here, and it is fine sport to go out swimming, or walk along the beach gathering shells and flowers, which we do enjoy. Oranges and bananas are plentiful here and cheap enough; oranges 40 cents per bushel, and bananas 25 cents a stalk. I think that is reasonable enough for anyone to have plenty to eat all the time.

I paid a visit to Clanton not long ago and was glad to meet with my people and so many old friends, and well pleased to see the improvements of our town. I am a subscriber to The Banner, and whatever part of the world I may travel to, will always be glad to read the letters from home contained in its columns. Yours truly,

W. J. WILLOUGHBY.

Maplesville, May 28, 1904

Editor Banner—What is the matter with Fitz Claughton of Verbena? They call him W. F. Claughton sometimes; we think the time is opportune to honor our old heroes of the "Grey." Uncle Dick ought to have a partner, and Fitz, for Probate Judge, would make a good running mate for him. A man pure in life, constraint and true in politics, and honest in all things. Always found in the same mood and mind, competent, kind and capable. What is the matter with Fitz? Say, Verbena, where is Fitz?

Clanton, May 30, 1904

Editor Banner—Immediately upon the resignation of Judge S. M. Adams, I was earnestly solicited to enter the race again for the nomination for Probate Judge. Feeling it best to consider well and confer with others on the subject, I have hesitated to announce in your paper up to this time, but after seeing and hearing from many of my friends from different parts of the county, I have decided to and do ask for the nomination in the convention to be held on June the 11th next. When defeated in the April primary I entered into the fight for the nominated ticket, and I say again that I am ready to do everything in my power for the success of the Democratic party in November next. Respectfully, Editor Banner—As I am a reader of your paper I want to say a few words. Our crops are fine for the dry weather, though I think the drouth is broken; it is raining now and the thunderbolts are heard in the southwest at which our hearts are made glad; may God have the glory and honor for this and all other temporal and spiritual blessings. I am a lover of God and the doctrines of Jesus Christ.

Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coacella, Cal. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy he used, as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say under oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

I hereby announce myself a candidate for the office of Judge of Probate of Chilton county, subject to the action of the Democratic convention, June 11, 1904.

DIAMOND IN THE ROUGH.

Oak Grove.

Well, we ought to be glad this morning for the grand showers which fell upon our little crops and made them look so promising.

The singing at this place was enjoyed by many, and we felt thankful to the singers from other places, and especially to Mr. Langston, and hope he will come again, We are going to have another singing at this place on the third Sunday in June, commencing at two o'clock in the evening, singing conducted by Mr. J. B. Northcutt, and we invite everybody to come and join us in the singing.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOY.

LECTURE.

Hon. T. U. Crumpton will be at Maple Spring church the First Sunday in June to give a lecture on the Holy Land. Everybody is invited to come and hear him, as I feel it will be a treat to all.

Monday's Rain Storm.

Reports of Weather Bureau show that the heavy rains on Monday evening were quite general in the South, though not as heavy over southeast Alabama as desired, after the long drought in that region. However, they gave what the farmers term a "good season" over nearly all of the cotton belt, and was worth a vast amount to the cotton planters of Alabama and Georgia.

Driven to Desperation.

Living at an out of the way place, remote from civilization, a family is often driven to desperation in case of accident, resulting in Burns, Cuts, Wounds, Ulcers, etc. Lay in a supply of Bucklen's Arnica Salve. It's the best on earth. 25c, at Upchurch Drug store.

In memory of our deceased friend, Mr. Z. C. Norrell one of the leading young men of Loring, La. He was born in Coosa county Alabama, August 28th, 1875, and on Wednesday night, May 18th., he peaceably and calmly passed away. His remains were interred in the Zwolle cemetery the 19th. There were a host of friends to witness the sad occasion. He was living with his brother Mr. A. M. Norrell at the time of his death, and every attention was given him and nothing was left undone that would attend to his relief. He leaves a host of friends and relatives here and in Alabama to mourn his loss. Doc, as we know him, was a genial gentleman and devoted friend.

A Chicago woman is suing her husband for a divorce because he kisses her with "a peculiar kiss." The most peculiar thing about it is that he should kiss her at all.

The latest strike is that of children in a Rhode Island public school. They struck against two sessions of school a day, and they were right. One is as much as any boy can stand when swimming time comes on.

It is said that a new fashion decrees that women shall gesticulate when they talk. This is all right, if the fashion provides that they do not hold an umbrella or a broom or a kettle of hot water in their hands while gesticulating.

The census for 1890 having shown in round numbers 1,034,000 surviving soldiers of the Civil War, and the applications for pensions having been 1,068,000, the Buffalo Commercial rises to be shown "where were those 50,000 others hiding when the census was taken."

The wonderful progress made in scientific agriculture is shown by the erection of a hospital for diseased wheat at Port Arthur, Canada, observes the New York Herald. This hospital can treat 30,000 bushels of wheat in one day, and already the hospital has saved the Canadian farmers thousands of dollars. Last year over 2,000,000 bushels were taken in and put in good condition.

There are now in Belgium four schools for the instruction of fishermen. The pupils are taught how to read weather charts, how to make the best use of currents, what the bottom of the sea is like, how to make their own nets, how to manage a boat in a storm, how to use the latest inventions in the line of fishing apparatus, etc. There are about two hundred and fifty pupils now in these schools.

The Virginia which was launched at Newport News, possesses peculiar interest for those who are watching the development of the American navy. She is the first of five battleships constituting a new class and making a distinct advance upon all predecessors. One of her most admirable characteristics is the speed she is expected to make. She and her four sister ships are designed to attain nineteen knots. How exceptional this is for a battleship belonging to the United States will be appreciated when it is remembered that the Illinois is good only for seventeen and a half knots, and the Missouri for 18. These are not only the latest accessions to the navy, but the fastest battleships this country has. Another group of five vessels, displacing 16,000 tons—or 1000 tons more than the Virginia class—is now under construction, but they are all designed to make only eighteen knots.

In the first two months of the year, exports from France amounted to $135,853,800, a decrease of $642,000 from last year. Imports during that period were $155,963,000, an increase of $901,400 over 1903.

JAPANESE VICTORIOUS

Win a Land Battle Capturing Kin Chou and Are Twelve Miles from Port Arthur

CLOSING IN ON PORT ARTHUR

Recent Victory of Japs Gives Them Absolute Control of the Liao Tung Peninsula.

After five hours of desperate fighting the Japanese captured Kin Chou, Nan Quan Ling, a stronghold of the enemy, was taken after a hot fight. The fighting, which culminated in the Japanese occupation of Kin Chou, was practically confined to an artillery duel, which, beginning at dawn of May 26, continued without intermission for five hours. Three Japanese warships and a Russian gunboat also joined in the fight.

Reports indicate that the storming of Nanshen hill was a bloody affair. The Russians had constructed a series of trenches around the hill on a terrace protected by wire entanglements and other such devices.

The Japanese pursued the Russians for some distance. Russia's loss was over 4,000 men; the Japanese something like 3500. The number of Russian guns captured exceed seventy.

Japanese troops have swept all the Russians from their defenses west of Pallenwan bay. It is now improbable that the latter will be capable of offering any further serious resistance in the territory south of Port Arthur.

The Japanese are within twelve miles of Port Arthur.

Vice Admiral Togo has established a complete blockade around the southern end of the Liao Tung peninsula. This completely envelopes Port Arthur from the seaward and marks the opening of the final investment of the town and its fortifications.

RUSSIA'S BALTIC SEA FLEET

Cannot Get Away Before September. Will be Fully Equipped.

Although work is pushed night and day to prepare the Baltic fleet for service, it is feared now that it can not be ready to sail for the far east before September. The delay is regarded as especially unfortunate, in view of the situation at Port Arthur, where the arrival of the fleet before the fall of the fortress would compel the raising of the siege.

It has been found necessary to put the battleship Oral, which recently sank at Cronstadt, owing to her sea valves being left open, and was subsequently floated, and on which an explosion killing ten stokers was alleged to have afterwards occurred in dry dock, and possibly she may not accompany the Baltic fleet to the far east. There is no intention of purchasing any South American warships owned by private firms. Neither has Russia any intention of purchasing any foreign merchantmen for transport purposes. Twenty transports will accompany the Baltic fleet, carrying coal, ammunition and stores. There also will be repair, water condensing and hospital ships.

Purchasing Vessels.

A dispatch from Brussels says that the Russian and Japanese governments are competing sharply for the purchase of transports in Holland and Belgium.

Russia has bought most of the large ones and Japan a number of the small which will be converted into protected cruisers.

According to the latest reports, the Japanese camps are infected with cholera and there is an average of 100 deaths daily.

The Russians are so convinced of the efficacy of submarine boats that many of the wealthiest and most influential people have formed an association to promote the construction of vessels of that class as being "ideal defensive craft, and such as are required by a pacific power like Russia."

Insane Juror Drawn Twice.

The trial of Shug Huffman for the murder of Deputy Marshal Nolsoubeck, was abrutly ended by one of the jurors developing symptoms of insanity.

Juror Caine during the trial requested an audience with the judge and told Judge Jones that two of the jurors had conspired to kill him. Caine was immediately examined, pronounced incompetent and a mistrial was entered. Huffman's former trial was interrupted eighteen months ago in the same manner.

It is again reported that the Acre territory dispute between Brazil and Peru has been settled.

A Tokin correspondent says that the second line of defense on the Liao Tung peninsula has been occupied by the Japanese without resistance. The authorities expect, the correspondent adds, that the Port Arthur fortress will fall during the second fortnight in June.

The Russians, who recently purchased 1,500 junk anchors, have shipped them to Tung Ching Tsu, where they will block the river to prevent the produce of that section leaving. Fodder is especially scarce.

ANOTHER RAILROAD CONNECTION

Can Be Had by Meridian by Building Five Miles of Track.

Meridian has a splendid opportunity in a proposition now before the board of trade. The proposition is that of securing another railroad outlet. There is a short line railway extending from Meehan Junction to Moore's Mill in Newton county called the Meehan and Rounds railroad, which is fifteen miles long, standard gauge, and trains can run on this road at the rate of thirty or forty miles per hour, as the rails are heavy and the track in good condition.

The stockholders of this road will entertain a proposition for the lease or purchase of the road for the purpose of connecting Meridian with the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City if a right of way can be secured over the Alabama and Vicksburg from Meehan Junction to Meridian, only about fourteen miles.

From Moore's Mill to Union, Newton county, is about fifteen miles, so about one-third of the road is already in shape for a connecting line, and another third ready for trains if trackage can be secured, leaving only one-third of the route to be built.

DISCOVERED THE MINE.

Japanese Found the Key of Russian Defense at Nanshan Hill.

The Japanese assault on Nanshan Hill was one of the fiercest and bloodiest affairs in modern warfare. In the earlier rushes of the engagement every man participating was shot down before he reached the first line of Russian trenches. It was found necessary to stop these infantry charges and renew the artillery fire from the rear before the final and successful assault on the Russian position could be made.

A stroke of good fortune for the Japanese was the discovery and destruction of electric wires leading to the mines at the eastern foot of Nanshan Hill. This prevented the Russians from exploding these mines the Japanese infantry crossed the ground where they had been placed. It is possible the fortune of the day hinged upon these mines. If the Russians had been able to explode them at the right time the loss among the Japanese troops would have been tremendous, and it is possible also that the Russians would have been able to hold the hill.

MAY AUCTION WHOLE TOWN.

Little Arkansas City in Jeopardy by Order of Court.

A special from Carlisle, Ark., says: Unless the courts intervene the entire town of Carlisle and about 3400 acres of land surrounding the town will be sold at public sale June 9 on an order granted by the court to the heirs of the original owner of the land.

The order was secured by the guardian of three minor heirs of a Frenchman named Somio, who years ago owned all the land on which the town of Carlisle now stands, as well as much of the surrounding country. The original owner sold most of the land years ago, but in 1879, presumably to make title clear, he secured a patent from the state for the whole tract. He failed, it is said, to make new deeds, however, for the land which he had sold, and as a result the heirs now claim the property.

The citizens of Carlisle held a mass meeting and decided to raise a fund to carry on a fight against the claimants.

In accordance with a verbal report made by a special committee appointed by the secretary of the treasury, all star route carriers, contractors and mail messengers carrying mail between postoffice and railroad stations and steamboat wharves will be paid monthly instead of quarterly, beginning July 1st.

D. J. Sully & Co. have made a demand upon the receivers now in charge of the firm's business that they buy 190,000 bales of spot cotton for the firm's account. D. J. Sully & Co. claim that they were not notified by any of the brokers that their cotton had been sold out, and they therefore wish the receivers to buy in 190,000 bales of actual cotton.

BURNED TO DEATH,

But There are Suspicious Circumstances Attendant.

A special from Paines, Miss., says: "Jerome Bufford, a merchant, was burned to death in a fire which destroyed his place of business. A peculiar feature of the case, and one which has aroused suspicion of foul play, was the finding of a bag of silver coin and some valuable papers of Bufford's near the site of the store."

Railway earnings thus far reported for May, fall 3.7 short of the same time last year.

Family Heard Him Sentenced.

After being out thirty minutes the jury in the murder case of John Thomas Patrick, who killed John D. Irvin last Christmas, brought in a verdict of guilty, with a recommendation to mercy. Judge Butt sentenced Patrick to the penitentiary for the rest of his life.

The prisoner's wife, little child and two sisters saw him sentenced.

Cardinal Satolli is en route to America.

SENATOR QUAY DEAD

The End Came Saturday After a Year of Continually Failing Health.

HAD NO HOPE OF RECOVERY

And Had Made All Preparations for Death—Funeral Will be Held Tuesday.

Matthew Stanley Quay, senior senator from Pennsylvania, died Saturday afternoon of chronic gastritis.

The funeral service will be held on Tuesday and the body will be buried in Beaver cemetery.

Senator Quay's indisposition began about a year ago. He prided himself on his endurance and held firmly that outdoor life would restore him to health. It was this thought that took him to the Maine woods for several successive summers.

Colonel Quay in health was a great eater and his trouble of later years dated, it is said, from overdraughts on his system due to heavy eating, smoking and the great nervous strain which he underwent. He celebrated his seventieth birthday at Beaver last fall, and at the time seemed in excellent health. He dropped in weight so persistently that he forsook his duties in the senate and betook himself to Florida. Florida failed to restore vitality.

Senator Quay constantly expected death and told his friends so. The last time he called at the white house he told President Roosevelt that he expected never to recover and would hardly see him again. Ten days ago he began the arrangement of his personal affairs looking toward the end. The last papers were not signed until Friday morning, but the arrangements were all made. Thursday last he asked to be taken to his famous library, remarking to his attendants: "I want to see my books once more before I die."

Two of the greatest politicians in the republican party in recent years were Hanna and Quay, both now dead. Each had won in the capacity of national chairman great victories for his party. Strange to say, they were bitter enemies, recognizing each other only in the most formal way. The split occurred between them in the first McKinley administration, when Quay had a contest over his seat, Hanna opposing him.

NAMED THE BIRMINGHAM.

City Will be Represented in the Navy by a Scout Cruiser.

The scout cruiser is a comparatively new class of vessel in the American navy. Two of them were provided for in the last naval bill passed by congress.

It is a type of vessel that is to be used almost exclusively by the navy in scouting or reconnoitreing and they are properly termed "the eyes of the navy." They are practically the same size as the regular cruiser, the difference in construction being that the armament is largely sacrificed for speed and coal capacity. The vessels will have light armor and will have fighting guns which will make them formidable implements of warfare.

But their great advantage will lie in the fact that they can run with great speed and the unusually large coal capacity will enable them to remain at sea for a much longer time than any other class of vessel without landing to take on more fuel.

After two days' discussion of the matter, the Episcopal disocesan convention of Missouri voted against the use of the revised version of the Bible in the prescribed service of the church. The clergy vote was 12 for the revised version and 19 against, and that of the laity 9 for and 26 against.

An unprecedented athletic event will take place when more than 2,000 French soldiers will compete in an army walking match. The total distance is about 28 miles. One hundred and seventy-five infantry regiments and twenty-eight regiments of cavalry and batteries of artillery will compete, each sending about ten men.

At Rising Sun, Ind., after deliberating forty-two hours without coming to an agreement, Judge Downey discharged the jury in the case of James Gillespie, charged with assassinating his sister Elizabeth. An effort will be made to have the prisoner released.

The Methodist general conference adjourned Saturday night.

The Pearl River Lumber Company, of Mississippi has provided a movable Y. M. C. A. building which can be lifted, like the other camp buildings, by great cranes onto flat cars and transported to the different points where the men are cutting.

In a report issued by the department of agriculture the physiologist in charge of the plant-breeding laboratory estimates that the production of long staple upland cotton in the United States in 1903 reached nearly 105,000 bales.

BOB WHITE

Declared a Valuable Bird by the Department of Agriculture.

Ornithologists of the department of agriculture have been making an investigation of the economic value of the Bob White, as a result of which it is now announced that that bird is probably the most useful and abundant of species on the farm. Field observations, experiments and examinations show that it consumes large quantities of weed seeds and destroys many of the worst insect pests with which farmers contend, and it does not injure grain, fruit or any other crop.

It is figured that from September 1 to April 30 annually in Virginia alone the total consumption of weed seed by Bob White amounts to 573 tons. Some of the pests which it habitually destroys, the report says, are the Mexican cotton boll weevil, the Chinese bug and the Rocky mountain locust.

CLAIMS AGAINST PANAMA.

Country Has Money to Pay Them and Many Are Filed.

All the claims which for one thing or another have been piling up in the state department for the last twenty years against the governments of Colombia and Panama promise to be brought out at an early date and presented for payment, the Panama treasury now being full.

A representative of L. Schepp & Co., the millionaire cocoanut dealers of New York, called at the department and presented a claim for $200,000. One of their vessels containing a cargo of cocoanuts was seized by the Colombian government in 1896 and detained so long that the fruit was spoiled. Captain J. L. Pearcy, of Nashville, Tenn., who was consul at Panama at that time, has filed with the department a statement bearing out the complaint of the claimants.

WALKER ON PANAMA.

Favors Nicaragua—Another Panama Treaty Necessary.

"I still believe," said Captain Walker, "that the Nicaragua route for an interocean canal is the only feasible one, that it can be built in less time and operated at less expense than a canal at Panama; if, in fact, a Panama canal can be built. In order to build this canal," continued Captain Walker, "it will be necessary for a new or additional treaty with Panama to be made in order that there may be included in the zone of operations the entire watershed of the Chagres river, and in all probability of all other rivers which have their source outside of the ten mile zone. The diversion of the waters of the Chagres is necessary in order that it may be ascertained whether a safe, impermeable foundation may be built for the dam at Bohlo.

SHIMOSE POWDER.

t is a Terrific Explosive and the Japanese Possess the Secret.

Reports received from the far east dwell at length on the terrific power of the Japanese Shimose powder, the nature of which is an absolute secret. It is not used to propel the shot, but for bursting the charge of the army and navy shell. The result of the explosion has astounded the United States army observers. The heaviest armor-piercing shell with its small cavity is rent into countless thousands of sharp fragments which are hurled through the air with such force that they tear through the sides of an iron ship as would a projectile from a mechine gun. The Russian warships Variag and Korietz were found to be riddled deck and sides by fragments of these shells.

Col. Christopher C. Sheets Dead.

Colonel C. C. Sheets was found dead in bed at Decatur Friday morning. He had been in bad health for some time and had been unable to walk for several months. Colonel Sheats was a noted character of Alabama.

He was one of the members of the secession convention who voted against Alabama going out of the union. He was raised in Winston county and at one time was United States minister to Denmark. He was shortly after the war, elected governor of the state, but was counted out.

Formerly he owned valuable property, but died a pauper. One of the handsomest residences in Decatur was his, but he willed it to his wife, who recently died and who obtained a divorce from him some time ago.

At Nashville, Tenn, a $100,000 chewing gum factory is to be built. At other points in the state new enterprises are proposed as follows: Chattanooga, $10,000 medicine factory; Knoxville, distillery, $30,000 coal company; Cornersville, $10,000 phosphate mining company; Lebanon, planing mill; Pulaski, hub factory; Glenraven, flour mill.

Has Not Advanced.

Dun's Review says of trade conditions: Reports of increased trade are received from a few favored points, but the Nation, as a whole, has not improved its commercial position during the past week, in so far as current distribution of merchandise or manufacturing activities are concerned.

Business Prospects Improve.

Prospects for the future have improved somewhat, however, on account of the progress made in agriculture.

THE SUNDAY SCHO

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMM FOR JUNE 5.

Subject: Christ's Trial Before Pilate, [illegible] xv., 1-15—Golden Text, Luke [illegible] —Memory Verses, 14, 15—Commit [illegible] on the Day's Lesson.

I. Jesus before the Jewish Council (1) 1. "In the morning." Jesus had [illegible] trials. The first was before the [illegible] authorities, who brought [illegible] against Him, the punishment [illegible] was death. The second trial was [illegible] the Roman procurator, Pilate, who [illegible] power to inflict the death penalty [illegible] private. The house of the [illegible] the ex-high priests, Annas [illegible] from among the most influential [illegible] Scribes. Teachers of the law [illegible] were educated in the literature of [illegible] church. The whole council [illegible] bodies, the highest Jewish court [illegible] posed of seventy-one members [illegible] condemn to death, but the execution [illegible] the sentence rested with the Roman [illegible] curator.

II. Pilate questioning Jesus (1-5) 2. And Pilate. Jesus was [illegible] the regular meeting of the Sanhedrin [illegible] the judgment hall of Pilate [illegible] Luke 23:1, which was "prob[illegible] tower of Antonia just outside [illegible] west corner of the temple area [illegible] 2-4 and Matt. 27:11-14 are [illegible] the first trial before the Roman [illegible] tor. Art thou, etc. This ques[illegible] supposes that Jesus had [illegible] claimed to be a king. The Jews [illegible] three principal charges against Jesus: [illegible] Seditiously perverting the people. [illegible] bidding to pay tribute to Caesar. [illegible] Claiming to be a king. John shows [illegible] 18:33-38) how Jesus so explained His [illegible] ality and His kingdom as to cause [illegible] to say, "I find in Him no fault [illegible] "Thou sayest it." An affirmative [illegible] which means, "It is as thou sayest." [illegible]

3. The Jews refused to enter the [illegible] ment hall "because their Jewish [illegible] that the law of God) declared them [illegible] morally unclean if they entered the [illegible] of a Gentile during or just before the [illegible] over feast." Pilate, therefore, went [illegible] and had a conference with them (Luke [illegible] 23:2; John 18:28-32). Pilate then [illegible] the judgment hall and held a private [illegible] ference with Jesus (Luke 23:3; John [illegible] 33-38), after which he again went out [illegible] the Jews and publicly declared to [illegible] his belief that Jesus was innocent. [illegible] was then brought out to the Jews to [illegible] their accusations. "Many things" [illegible] were mere technicalities and quibbles [illegible] they either wholly falsified or perverted [illegible] His statements so as to make it appear [illegible] that He was a confessed criminal. [illegible] swered nothing." He was conscious [illegible] His innocence. He knew that they could [illegible] not prove their charges. They offered [illegible] testimony and therefore He was silent [illegible] there was no need of His replying. [illegible] "Asked Him again." Pilate was convinced [illegible] that Jesus was innocent, and yet he was [illegible] not ready to face the Jews and give [illegible] prisoner His liberty. 5. "Marvelled." [illegible] Pilate was probably more surprised [illegible] He bore this so meekly and did not resent [illegible] raising for railing, than that He did not [illegible] set up a defense.

III. The Jews choose Barabbas (6-11). In verses 6-15 we have an account [illegible] the second trial before Pilate. This [illegible] the third act in the proceedings against [illegible] Christ. 6. "Released," etc. This custom [illegible] was in harmony with the nature of the [illegible] feast and, however it originated, was [illegible] completely established that Pilate [illegible] obliged to attend to it. See verse 8. [illegible] "Barabbas." An insurrectionist, a robber [illegible] and a murderer. He was actually guilty [illegible] much worse crimes than they had charged [illegible] against Jesus. He had a short time before [illegible] this evidently been a ringleader in an [illegible] break in Jerusalem against the Roman [illegible] Government. "With them." The associates of Barabbas were also, like him, [illegible] under arrest and in prison. 9. "Willing," [illegible] etc. Pilate is laboring hard to release [illegible] Jesus, and yet he does not assert his authority, but constantly yields to the [illegible] coring of the wicked Jews.

10. "He knew—for envy." He could [illegible] doubt who were the ringleaders in the [illegible] multitous scene now being enacted, or what [illegible] was the motive that had prompted them [illegible] to bring the accused before his tribunal. [illegible] nothing more or less than envy of the [illegible] fluence he had gained and the favor he had [illegible] won throughout the land. He hoped, [illegible] therefore, by appealing directly to the people, to procure our Lord's release. [illegible] "Moved the people." The word translated moved only occurs here and in the [illegible] parallel, Luke 23:5. It denotes (1) to [illegible] shake to and fro, to brandish; (2) to use [illegible] threatening gestures; (3) to stir up, instigate. Their efforts were successful [illegible] when Pilate put the question they cried [illegible] up, Away with this man—the holy one [illegible] defiled whom they had lately welcomed [illegible] with hosannas into their city—and cried [illegible] unto us Barabbas. This was the depth [illegible] human degradation—to have the vilest [illegible] mankind preferred to Him!

IV. Jesus delivered up to death (12-15). 12. "Pilate answered." It was plain [illegible] at this time, while the people were clamoring for His death so loudly, that the messenger came from Pilate's wife (Matt. 27:19), urging the release of Jesus, and telling that she had just suffered many things [illegible] in a dream because of Him. How true [illegible] and what various persons bear testimony [illegible] to the innocence of the Holy One—Judas, [illegible] Herod, Pilate's wife, Judas Iscariot, the [illegible] thief on the cross and the centurion at the [illegible] crucifixion. "What will ye," etc. According [illegible] to Matthew Pilate asked what he [illegible] should do with Jesus, who was called [illegible] Christ? This is a question every one [illegible] must answer. 1. Every one must receive [illegible] or reject Him. 2. Rejecting Christ is the [illegible] great sin of the world. 3. If we reject [illegible] Him here we will be rejected by Him hereafter. 13. "Crucify Him." Let Him suffer [illegible] the most ignominious death possible. [illegible]

14. "Why." Pilate makes another [illegible] reel appeal. "Cried out the more." There [illegible] were no questions to be considered with [illegible] them; they were resolved to have Jesus die. [illegible] Nothing else would satisfy them.

15. "Wishing to content" (R. V.). Pilate [illegible] a weak man Pilate was; a slave to the [illegible] opinions of the people. Before Pilate pronounced the sentence he took water and [illegible] washed his hands publicly, thus expressing [illegible] in acts what he uttered in words, "I am [illegible] innocent of the blood of this just person; [illegible] see ye to it" (Matt. 27:24). Then answered [illegible] all the people and said: "His blood be on [illegible] us and on our children."

In less than forty years from this time [illegible] mation the Romans came. They crucified [illegible] such numbers of Jews that, according to [illegible] Josephus, there was no more room for [illegible] the crosses. No doubt some of these [illegible] persons, and certainly their children, died [illegible] by this very death. "Scourged." [illegible] The scourge of leather thongs studded [illegible] with lead, or armed with spikes and [illegible] which lacerated the back, chest and limbs. [illegible] Pilate hoped the scourging would satisfy [illegible] the Jews.

Only Water in Canal Zone.

Various temperance organizations [illegible] have begun a campaign to make the [illegible] Panama Canal zone prohibition [illegible] ritory. President Roosevelt is [illegible] receiving letters to this end and [illegible] ferring them to the Canal Commission.

Railway to Spend Millions.

The New York Central will [illegible] $22,000,000 next year on [illegible] equipment. It is planned to [illegible] urban trains at seventy-five [illegible] hour.

It has 90-pound capacity, 48 inches high, 22 inches deep and 33 inches wide. The provision chamber is good size, being 18¾ inches high, 16¼ inches deep and 25½ inches wide. It is listed at $35.95. We will prepay the freight to any part of Alabama for $18.50.

The "National" has the removable ice chamber and drip pan. The ice chamber is made of heavy galvanized iron. It is easy to clean the "National;" simply remove the ice chamber and drip pan and take out the shelves and waste pipe. This leaves the inside of the Refrigerator clear of all obstructions, it can then be scoured with warm water and soda, leaving it absolutely sweet and clean. Every "National" is made of weather-dried matched lumber, lined with zinc. Between the outside and inside case is mineral felt and dead air space, thus insuring perfect insulation.

A great many different ideas exist as to what constitutes the best insulation for refrigerators. We have given the matter a very thorough study and after many investigations and experiments with fillings, have found nothing so reliable and satisfactory as mineral felt, glued on each side of a dead air space.

Mineral felt is a combination of mineral wool, asbestos and hair felt. By using this the National is enabled not only to insulate the walls of the refrigerator, but the door and lid as well, which cannot be said of fillings in the lump or powdered form. This is a very important feature, as a door or front of a refrigerator, being always exposed, requires equal, if not better insulation than the walls.

This filling possesses great advantage over other fillings from the fact that it cannot settle in the walls, leaving the ice chamber unprotected, nor can it sift through the joints, soiling the refrigerator, as in the case of powdered charcoal.

Dead air is absolutely the best insulation that can be used in refrigerators, as is clearly shown from the following list of tests made of non-conductors of heat for insulation. The figures below shows the number of heat units transmitted per square foot per hour through same thickness of material, one inch being the basis used, and are taken from a list of tests made by John M. Ordway, Professor or Chemistry in Tulane University of Louisiana.

Dead air	43
Ground cork	45
Solid cork	49
Mineral wool	50
Hair felt	56
Asbestos	56
Charcoal	58

The National has mineral wool felt on each side of an air space and so obtains an absolutely dead air space.

These practical and essential points taken together with the fact that in a test made with our leading competitors we produced a lower temperature with an equal amount of ice, proves conclusively that we have the best insulation of any refrigerator on the market. We make no exceptions.

The hardware used in the "National" Refrigerators is the best solid brass roman gold finish, and is handsome as well as practical. The lock is one that can be shut with a slant, and will at once draw the door into an air-tight point.

BULL FIGHTS IN MEXICO.

BARBARIC SPORT STILL HAS MANY FOLLOWERS THERE.

The Arena Days Are Made a Period of Festivity—The Spectacle Witnessed by All Classes—How Contests Are Fought.

The bull ring and bull fights in Spain and Mexico are survivals of the Flavian amphitheatre, the ancient Roman circus maximus and the gladiatorial games. Still the people who boil living lobsters, skin eels alive, encourage prize fighting and with hounds and horses chase a poor fox to death cannot afford to throw stones at the Mexicans.

The Romita Plaza, at which all the fights now take place, is a new ring, built in 1899. It is reached by electric cars, marked "Toros" (bulls), and an immense amphitheatre of wood, and seats 18,000, the benches rising in tiers from the ring walls. The arena or ring proper is 150 feet in diameter. There is no roof or awning to the building, and in the afternoon, when all fights are "pulled off," the sun throws a shadow over one half the interior of the structure. There is quite a difference in the price of seats in the sun and shadow. The general admission for the sunny side is $1.50, and the shady side $4.

An hour before the performance the great building begins to fill up. First, two companies of soldiers, with fixed bayonets and a businesslike appearance, enter and take up positions. They are there to keep the hoodlum element in order.

The fight commences promptly at the hour advertised, and continues from two to three hours, when from five to seven bulls are killed. They are fierce animals of the old Andalusian stock, raised especially for the ring.

A few minutes before the performance begins the director of the sport arrives, and with his friends takes his seat in the box exclusively reserved for his use. He is generally one of the city aldermen, and his duty is to see that the municipal regulations governing bull fighting are observed. When the director is seated a bugle is sounded, the gate barring the entrance to the fighters' quarters flies open and a gayly dressed horseman rides in. He is the alguazil or master of the arena. Superbly mounted, he rides straight for the director's box, removes his plumed hat and with a graceful bow asks permission for the performance to open. The key of the corral where the bulls are housed is tossed to him, and horse and rider back out of the arena. Then the band strikes up the "Bull Fighters' March," from "Carmen," and the actors file into the ring.

The alguazil on his richly caparisoned horse, leads the parade, followed by the stars of the company, the matadors, resplendent in their costumes of silk and satin, gold and velvet, wearing flowing capes of Lyonnaise silk, costing anywhere from $200 to $500. These are the real bull fighters, the stars of the aggregation, and are all Spaniards or of Spanish descent. Behind them, in brilliant costumes, proudly march the banderilleros or arrow men, followed by the capadores and picadores, astride of poor, mangy, broken down hacks. The gaudily harnessed mules, three abreast, which drag out the dead bulls, and gored horses close the cavalcade.

When the procession has made the circuit of the arena, the actors in a body salute the director, then take their positions. Suddenly, high over the shouts of the multitude is heard the blast of a bugle, the gate of the bull pen is raised and the proud beast springs into the ring.

Suddenly one of the capadores advances boldly to meet him, tauntingly waving a purple cape, the bull with lowered head and horns, leaps for the flag, and the fight is on. The capadore retires, and the picadore or man on horseback, advances. He rides straight for the bull and invites his charge. He is armed with a long lance-pointed staff to protect himself and his mount from the bull's horns, but often the poor horse is disemboweled and rider and horse roll in the sand.

The next act is a most graceful and daring spectacle. A banderillero advances to the bull, holding in each hand a tinsel-wrapped stick less than a yard long, and steel barbed. When the bull charges the man side steps and plunges into the rushing animal the barbed stick.

The barbs are not thrown; they are driven in just above the shoulder blades, and if only one barb is misplaced the actor is hissed and jeered by the gallery. When the performer plunges his darts he retires, and another repeats the act, and again another until six gaily-decorated barbs are fastened in the flesh.

By this time the bull is worked up to the highest pitch of excitement and madness. He paws the earth and bellows in his anger, and his rage is fearful to look upon. At this stage the matador or star fighter leaves his position, and, alone, walks straight up to him. He carries a crimson flag, and is armed with a two-edged sword, keen as a razor. The silence is intense, for this act is the most dangerous and dramatic of the whole performance. Man and bull eye to eye stand motionless. The man, wary, watchful, and with every nerve and muscle strung to concert pitch, the bull wild with rage, but slow to move, instinctively conscious that the fight is now to the death.

The matador moves forward, the beast breaks ground, and the fighter tauntingly waves the red flag in his face. Then the bull rushes upon him, but the man, with marvelous agility, steps aside, out of harm's way. This act the matador repeats four or five times, and when the beast makes his final charge, the man springs into the air and buries his sword to the hilt between the shoulder blades. If the stroke is driven true the bull drops to his knees, blood pours from mouth and nostrils; he rises, falls again, struggles once more to stand, rolls over on his side and is dead.

Half the spectators rise to their feet, cheer, and with hurrahs greet the matador and for the moment he is a greater hero than President Diaz. Cigars, money, bottles of tequilla, hats and canes are flung into the ring. The bull is drawn out by the mules, the ring raked, and blood pools dusted with sand, and the first act of the tragic play is over.

At this "gran corrida extraordinaria" there were fully 10,000 spectators, and among them one-fourth were foreigners. People at home denounce the bull fights but I regret to say that when in Mexico they are among the first to secure reserved seats. I am satisfied the bull suffers little real pain, he is too excited and enraged to feel his wounds. The church has for centuries denounced these bull fights, but while the state tolerates them the churches can influence only those who listen to her voice. —W. P. H. in Toronto Mail and Empire.

ROSES OF OLD CHIOS.

Queen of Flowers Had a Unique Distinction in Ancient Greece.

Although the rose is so popular throughout all the world now that great fortunes are being earned by growers everywhere, the queen of the flowers does not enjoy the unique position that she held in ancient Greece.

The love of the old Greeks, and particularly the Athenians, for the rose was almost akin to worship, and many a high liver in those days has gone down in history as having spent his whole patrimony in roses for feasts.

The Greeks knew nearly all the general varieties of roses that are known to us, both single and double blossoms, and big tracts of land were taken out of the grain and food producing area in order to grow roses.

The old island of Chios was almost entirely an island of roses, and to those who approached it from the sea it presented the appearance of a gigantic bouquet of red and white and yellow blooms, with the shining white pillars of temples and villas gleaming from the splendor of the flowers.

Shiploads of roses were sent to Athens every day from Chios. That was probably the most beautiful freight that ever went by sea since the world began, and it must have been a glorious sight to see the galleys, all decked with flowers, steering over the blue Aegean sea.

Roses were used for emblems of joy and sorrow, for triumph and defeat. A wreath of roses ornamented the bride, and wreaths of roses decked those who were going to their graves. The victor entered cities over a path of roses, and wherever he trod during his triumphal march; the blossoms formed a carpet for his feet.

In old Rome, too, the rose was considered the most precious of flowers. On May 28 a great rose feast used to begin in Rome in memory of the dead, and for a week or more the cemeteries were literally overwhelmed with the flowers. In the great item of the imperial Rome the guests at big feasts sat on rose petals that were piled high around them. The floor was carpeted with them and men vied with each other to find new and extravagant uses for the beloved flowers.

THE Circuit Court, Judge T. Scott Sayre presiding, convened on last Monday in special session, and was adjourned for the term. At the spring term an order was made by Judge Richardson calling this extra term, but in the opinion of Judge Sayre there did not exist a necessity for the session, hence the order of adjournment.

DEMOCRATS of Chilton County will hold Beat meetings next Saturday, June 4, at 2 p.m., to elect delegates to the County Convention to be held at Clanton, June 11, to nominate a candidate for Judge of Probate. Each beat should send as many representatives as possible, as a grand rally will be held on that day.

E. B. DEASON.

WITH pleasure we call attention to the announcement of Mr. E. B. Deason as a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Judge of Probate. The events of the last few weeks having rendered it necessary for the Democrats of Chilton to nominate a candidate for this office, it is peculiarly fitting that Mr. Deason should be one of the first to be considered in this connection. He is so well and favorably known to our people that it not worth while to speak of his capabilities for filling the office to which he aspires, but the circumstances under which he now becomes a candidate are well worthy of consideration.

In the recent primary Mr. Deason was one of the three candidates before the people, and the vote was so close between the three that each might well have claimed a victory. Of those three, the nominee, Judge Adams, has for private reasons, declined the nomination; the Hon. A. C. Smith does not wish at this time to again enter the race, and to Mr. Deason was left the alternative of either leaving the nomination of a candidate entirely in the hands of the forthcoming convention or of publicly stating that he would be proud to serve the people if they would give him the nomination, which, there is good reason to believe this year is equivalent to election in November.

Had the matter been left to Mr. Deason himself, we feel assured he would have preferred not to have made any public announcement of his candidacy, but the manly way in which he had accepted the result of the late primary caused a large number of Democrats to insist upon his becoming a candidate and telling the people of Chilton county that he was willing to serve them to the utmost of his ability, and that success or defeat at primary or nominating convention does not affect his regard for Democratic rule which the good of the party demands.

GOLD IN CHILTON.

WHEN, a few weeks ago, the statement was made in The Banner that gold might yet be found in paying quantities in Chilton county, it was hardly to be expected that that statement would so quickly be verified. Our information was that Martin Franklin, who had been prospecting for many months, had made some important discoveries, and from the interview, published in the Advertiser, which will be found below, it appears that the find is of considerable value, and a company will be formed to thoroughly work the property.

Several years back, Judge Honeycutt told the writer that he had good reason to believe there was gold on his lands, and we hope that he and Mr. Franklin will benefit pecuniarily from this latest development.

From the Montgomery Advertiser.

Col. M. B. Hillyard of New Orleans, an experienced promoter and journalist, is in Montgomery en route to the Crescent City from Chilton county, where he has been making investigations of gold deposits discovered four miles from Jemison.

Colonel Hillyard went to Chilton county as the representative of Hon. H. W. Coleman, an official of the New Orleans mint, who has secured an option on the gold lands.

Speaking of his observations in Chilton county, Colonel Hillyard said it was very probable rich gold veins would be developed there. Former Probate Judge Honeycutt, he said, owns the mine on which Mr. Coleman has an option, and the New Orleans man expects to put up an assay and chlorination mill on the property.

"I believe," said Colonel Hillyard, "that the rock in this mine will assay about $100 to the ton, and will undoubtedly be found richer as they dig deeper. This is a law of minerals. Gold was first discovered there by Martin Franklin, a farmer. He has worked diligently to locate a mine and his efforts are to be crowned with success. No stock is to be sold in the company. The mine is to be operated independently by Mr. Coleman and his friends."

DEMOCRATIC RALLY.

JUNE 11, 1904

Arrangements are being made for the greatest turnout of the Democrats of Chilton county at Clanton on June 11. A band of music will be on hand, all the Democratic nominees will be there, and several speakers of note.

Hon. Sydney J. Bowie will make an address to the people on that day.

WEEKLY CROP BULLETIN

FOR WEEK ENDING MAY 30, 1904

The week, as a whole, was warm, with ample sunshine; beneficial rains fell in some western, west-central, and northern counties, with scattered showers in some middle and southern counties; the long drought continues practically unbroken in southeastern counties, and a general rain over the entire State would be beneficial. The warm weather has germinated much late planted cotton, and caused a slight, but general improvement in the crop, as a whole, though the plants continue small, with stands generally below the average, particularly in southeastern counties, where stands are poor; lice are not as prevalent as at the close of last week, and the crop, as a whole, is clean and well cultivated; chopping is nearing completion. Upland corn is small, but generally well stalked and healthy; most of it has been plowed a second time, some has been "laid by," and a little of the early planted is tasseling prematurely in southern and middle counties. Lowland corn is practically all planted; it is coming up slowly, with improved stands, though worms continue damaging in some fields. Wheat and oats have improved slightly; both are being cut, with generally light yields. Cane and peanuts are doing fairly well; field peas are being planted quite extensively. Irish potatoes are a failure in some patches, but continue to make a generally good yield; sweet potatoes, are being transplanted, where showers have fallen. Gardens are doing fairly well, except in some southeastern and eastern counties, where they are almost a failure. Early peaches continue to yield well, pastures are poor to fair, and a first cutting of hay has been made in some localities.

WHO IS THE MOST POPULAR YOUNG LADY IN CLANTON?

The great contest is over, and by popular vote Miss Annie Davis is adjudged to be the most popular young lady of Clanton. It is an enviable position of which any young lady may well be proud, and we congratulate Miss Annie, and hope in our next issue to present to the people of Chilton county the portrait of this charming young lady.

From start to finish the contest has been a most pleasing one, and while for the last week it has been apparent that the prize was going to be awarded to either Miss Annie Davis or Miss Allee Stewart, it was not until the last moment by any means certain which one would carry the day, and there was always a possibility that some other candidate might come to the front.

Such a contest as this is productive of much good. It has given great pleasure for several weeks to old and young, who have watched with interest the course of the contest. The fair candidates have had an enjoyable time, each one making many new friends to such an extent that another contest would be of possibly greater interest than the one just closed. Doubtless most of the lovely contestants could have easily secured many more votes, but naturally the race had to narrow down to two, and now, with one accord, all acclaim "Hail to Miss Annie Davis, the most popular young lady of Clanton!"

Miss Annie Davis	802
Miss Alee Stewart	683
Miss Emma Potts	63
Miss Essie McDaniel	45
Miss Essie C. Stewart	38
Miss Ellen H. Stanley	32
Miss Nellie Mullins	19
Miss Lotta Bell	7
Miss Dovie Roper	3

RULES FOR TEACHERS.

Secretary W. B. Feagin of the State Board of Examiners announced yesterday that holders of third grade teacher's certificates would be relieved of examination in the branches covered by the third grade certificates when they applied for examination for a second grade certificate.

The ruling of the Board of Examiners as announced by Secretary Feagin provides that applicants who successfully stand the examination in geography, grammer, arithmetic, United States history and Alabama history shall be granted a third grade certificate, if they already hold second grade certificates. The State law provides that applicants for a third grade certificate shall be examined in orthography, penmanship, reading, grammer, practical arithmetic through fractions, primary geography and the elementary principles of hygiene.

Under the new ruling of the Board of Examiners the applicants for third grade certificates who already hold second grade certificates, will not be examined in the foregoing branches, the possession of their second grade certificate standing for their proficiency in those studies. By sending their third grade certificate along with their examination papers they will be granted a second grade certificate if they successfully pass the additional branches.

The ruling is of great importance to thousands of Alabama teachers. A vast majority of the teachers of the State are those who hold second and third grade certificates.—Advertiser.

Training and Requirements of the Cossack Service.

Every Cossack is required to serve the Little Father twenty-four years,—three years in the Preparatory Class, twelve years in the Field Class, five years in the Reserve, and four years in the Opoltchenie. His training begins in his infancy. When forty days old, his mother takes him to the church, for the prayer of purification. When she returns, the father meets her on the threshold, takes the child, buckles a sword about his waist, and hands him back, congratulating the mother on having given birth to a Cossack. The cradle-songs by which the child is lulled to sleep are recitals of feats of arms of border warfare. At the age of three, he is taught to sit astride a horse; at five, he appears on street on horseback, and joins with his young comrades in the mounted games. As he evelops, the tribal traditions are ingrafted in his mind. They form the chief part of his education,—beyond his plow, he knows of nothing but service in the army and war.

At the age of eighteen, he is enrolled and enters the Preparatory Class. The first year he renders no service, merely providing himself with a horse and all of his equipment, except his rifle, which is furnished by the government. In the autumn of the second year, his training begins, and is continued during the third, the man remaining in his own village. In the January following the third year, he enters the Field Class. The Field Class is divided into three periods, of four years each. While in the first period, he serves in one of the regiments or batteries that are maintained in peace. During the second period, he is considered on furlough, and must keep his equipment and horse in readiness for service. During the third, he merely keeps his equipment in order, the horse not being required. During each of the last two periods he is called out for nine weeks' training a year, and is liable to be sent where his services are needed. After completing this service in the Field Class, he passes into the Reserve. In this class he is required to maintain his equipment, and may be called out for three weeks' training per year.

After his service in the Reserve, he passes into the Opoltchenie, where he would be called out only under exceptional circumstances. Here he completes his twenty-four years' service, and is then free from all military liability. If he is called out in time of war, or is in service at the outbreak of hostilities, he must serve as long as he is wanted. This service is universal, the few who are exempt being the sole supporters of families, members of families reduced to extreme poverty, or members of the Guild of Merchants, who must pay a fine of three hundred rubles. The Cossack receives pay only when on active service with his regiment, and then the princely sum of three rubles forty-five kopecks per year, which in the war service is increased to six rubles, sixty kopecks.—From "The Cossacks: Russia's Unique Troopers," by Joseph A. Baer, in the American Monthly Review of Reviews for June.

Good Words to Young People

Though I am not worthy to give advice, I wish to say a few words to the boys and girls. The first thing to be established in life is a good character, an intense love for the right. A well rounded character is the result of a steady growth, the result of years of well doing. If we always do right we will be the possessors of a good, clear conscience. An aged gentleman, full of honors, having held many positions of trust and responsibility, said to a young man: "At your age, both position and wealth appear enduring things; but at mine a man sees that nothing lasts but character." Some men work for riches only, and while building their fortunes do not take time to build for themselves character and an honorable name. We must learn to say "no" to those who try to lead us into places of temptation and sin. To keep character we must ever be watching for the evils of life and shun them to the greatest extent. "No" is a little word, but what wrecks of character do we sometimes see for want of courage to utter that decisive syllable, which may have such power in shaping the conduct of life. One of the most important subjects on which to stand "just right" is the matter of drinking, for of all the curses that destroy humanity intemperance is the most fearful. Boys, just imagine yourselves bound by drink's strong chain, until no human power can set you free, refuse the first glass and save yourself. Drink fills the eyes with fire, extinguishes reason and murders conscience.

CLANTON 9-12; INDIANS 15-11

The game of ball last Thursday between Clanton and the Indians resulted in a victory for the red men, the score being 15 to 2. From the start it was evident that the Clanton boys were clearly outclassed. Batteries—Clanton, Aldridge and Mauk; Indians, Day and Gaino.

The second game was played Friday evening, and was the fastest and most exciting game that was ever played on the Clanton diamond. Clanton showed up to better advantage than the previous game and won by a close score of 12 to 11. The fielding on both sides was brilliant. The features were the pitching of Taylor, he striking out 12 men, the fielding of Shaw and Carnard, and the swift base running of the Indians. Batteries—Clanton, Taylor and Mauk; Indians, McIntosh, Drew and Gaino.

ON TO PORT ARTHUR

The Japanese Propose to Make a Combined Military and Naval Attack upon It.

JAPS CAPTURE RUSSIAN SCOUTS.

There Have Been Small Engagements Japan Accused of Using Floating Mines.

The main object of the Japanese campaign has been Port Arthur and once that fortress is in their hands, unless an exceedingly favorable opportunity offers to attack Kuropatkin, the Japanese plan is simply to make their tenure secure and force the Russian commander to assume the offense. Moreover, there is information to the effect that the Japanese propose to storm Port Arthur with the briefest possible delay, after having first closed the harbor to render the egress of the Russian ships impossible at the last moment, thus forcing the Russians to destroy them without subjecting the Japanese to the inevitable losses which must occur if the Russian squadron gets out for a last fight before going to the bottom. The previous repeated efforts of the Japanese to "cork" the harbor have been as much with the view of this ultimate situation as for protecting landings.

The admiralty denies the report of the loss of two Russian torpedo destroyers, while laying mines which destroyed the battleship Hatsuse.

A naval attache of Russia declares that the Japanese used "driving mines" bunching them to drift below the surface and thus causing the loss of the Russian battleship Petropavolovsk.

A typhoon prevails, which hinders the Japanese from landing operations and heavy rains are spoiling the roads.

The Russians, it is reported, have captured 6 Japanese convoy.

The Russians have abandoned Chen-Ko-Chen-Pau, Huang-Shan and Liu-sent east of Chen-shrdluetaoinshrdlu Shu-Tun. No Russians have been sent east of Chen-Ko-Chen-Pau.

DISPATCHES INTERCEPTED

Show Heavy Russian Losses Never Before Known.

Correspondence intercepted by the Japanese at the blockade of Port Arthur give the information that some Russian torpedo boat destroyers have been sunk by mines outside of Port Arthur, as well as details of the placing by the Russians of the mines which effected the destruction of the Japanese battleship Hatsuse on May 15th.

Commander Honda, who commanded the fireship Totomi in the successful sealing of Port Arthur, and the entire crew of the Totomi were deafened by their experience. The explosions and awful cannonade ruptured the tymphanums of their ears.

Kansas River Up.

At Topeka, Kans., the Kaw river is eighteen feet above low water mark. The run of driftwood has been very heavy and the Rock Island railroad people were busy dislodging the accumulation at their bridge with dynamite. Notwithstanding these efforts, the greater portion of the false work of this bridge, which is being reconstructed, went out making the bridge unsafe for traffic. The street railway bridge also was knocked out of alignment, making the passage of cars impossible.

Crazed by rheumatic pains, Gustav Rolburg, of Chicago, 72 years old, endeavored to amputate his foot to relieve himself of pain. As the old man sat on the floor in his home and began his operation, his wife, helpless from paralysis, looked on from her chair within a few feet of him. Her screams attracted two policemen, who took the knife from Rolburg.

IROQUOIS THEATER

Denied a Permit to Rebuild by Commissioner Williams.

City Building Commissioner Williams Friday formally refused to grant a permit for reconstruction of the Iroquois theater in Chicago, in which hundreds of people perished by fire. Attorney Levy Mayer, counsel for the owners of the theatrical building, declared that the city will be forced by legal steps to issue the permit.

In Bessemer a number of robberies have taken place recently and in no case so far has any clew been left as to the identity of the thieves.

Fasted 57 Days.

Mrs. Rutherford, the woman who fasted fifty-seven days at her home near Getup, Ala., has recovered consciousness and is eating with an excellent appetite. Her condition had attracted great attention and as she was unconscious and nothing could be done for her, her death was expected soon. Mrs. Rutherford quietly awakened, her jaws relaxed and the first thing she called for was something to eat.

IS IT UNCONSTITUTIONAL?

The Lusk School Redistricting Bill is So Declared.

It is stated that the Lusk redistricting bill is unconstitutional because the house passed one bill and the senate another.

The bill was passed by the house and went to the senate. The judiciary committee of the senate made a number of amendments and in addition to this amendments were added upon the floor. The amended bill was then passed by the senate and went back to the house. The bill was referred by the house to a conference committee and on the last night of the session this conference committee reported, recommending that the senate recede from two of its amendments. These amendments referred to the eighteenth circuit and the change of Morgan county from one circuit to another. This was the only report made and it was passed by the house. Thus the bill passed by the house and the bill passed by the senate were different.

Another source of information, says the conference report—or rather the report signed by a majority of the conference committee—also passed the senate. This majority report was signed by one member of the conference committee on the part of the senate and all three of the conferees on the part of the house. Two of the senate conferees submitted a minority report, which was voted down.

If the constitutionality of the bill is attacked as indicated, it is said that the question will be raised whether this majority report was a conference in the parliamentary acceptation of the term.

4600 COTTON BALES BURNED.

Fire in Montgomery Causes Loss of $380,000.

Fire in the Alabama Cotton and Storage Company, known as the Atlanta Compress Company, at Montgomery Sunday destroyed the building and 4600 bales of cotton. The loss on the cotton is $280,000 and the loss on the building $100,000. Insurance on the building was $65,600 and the cotton is practically covered.

It is not known how the fire started. Two weeks ago there were twice as many bales in the warehouse.

The blaze originated in the cordage department and spread rapidly. Between the plant proper and the warehouse, where was stored 4600 bales of cotton, was a parapet wall twenty feet high, built for fire protection. The flames leaped this wall and the warehouse was ignited. A strong wind was blowing at the time.

FIVE TO SEVEN PER CENT INCREASE

In Cotton Acreage Reported From Tennessee Valley.

A review of the condition of cotton in the Tennessee valley shows that the crop is two or three weeks late and that the season so far has been the most unfavorable in years. To begin with the weather at planting time and for two or three weeks thereafter was too cold. After warm weather set in there was no rain and the whole section is suffering from the drouth.

It is estimated that the increase in cotton acreage is from 5 to 7 per cent, as compared with last year. Cultivation is complete and the labor at hand is sufficient for the purpose.

Parsonage and Church Burned.

Fire at New Decatur Sunday night destroyed the parsonage of the Westminster Presbyterian church, causing a loss of $1,500. The church was also damaged to fully the same amount. The loss is partially covered by insurance. A negro servant turned a coal oil lamp over, which caused the blaze.

Accidental Shot Proved Fatal.

L. D. DeShazo, a grocer of Irondale, died from the effects of a rifle shot which he received Saturday afternoon. The man was shot in the stomach. Saturday afternoon DeShazo was moving his rifle and it was accidentally discharged, the bullet entering the stomach and ranging upward.

Killed His Wife While Drunk.

T. W. Walton, a prominent farmer living seven miles north of Jackson, Miss., shot and killed his wife. No motive is known, but the murderer was badly intoxicated. He is in jail.

Impaled on a Picket.

Joseph J. Valden, seven years of age, met death in a horrible maner at Montgomery. He fell while attempting to walk a fence, striking his right temple on one of the steel pickets and driving it to the base of his brain.

There are still 40 per cent of the exhibits intended for the St. Louis exposition not yet in place.

Lost Both Feet.

It is reported that Otis Webb, a white boy 16 years old, while attempting to catch a Frisco freight train passing through Cordova, had both of his feet cut off and one leg broken. The accident may prove fatal.

New School at Huntsville.

Professor A. B. Warwick, of Luray Va., is coming to Huntsville this week to establish a female academy. Efforts will be made to organize a company and build up this class school.

A WEEVIL DESTROYER

Quest by the Department of Agriculture Seems to Have Met with Success

FEEDS ON THE COTTON PEST.

The department of agriculture announces that an ant has been found in Guatemala that is an effective enemy of the boll weevil. It will be immediately introduced into the cotton states. The greatest significance is attached to the discovery, which was made by O. F. Cook, the botanist in charge of tropical agricultural investigations of the bureau of plant industry. Cabled instructions have been sent to him to report immediately to the department what assistance he needs in the way of men or money. During a trip through Central Asia last year Mr. Cook discovered a cotton grown by Indians which gave indications of being immune from the boll weevil, and on orders from the department he later began an investigation in certain points in Guatemala and Mexico.

Mr. Cook's investigations have been in more or less accessible regions in the province of Alta Vera Paz, Guatemala. The weevils are present there but the investigations show they are unquestionably kept in check by the presence of an active enemy in the shape of a large reddish brown ant, which is attracted to the cotton by the food which it secures from sets of floral nectaries. Mr. Cook's investigations show that these ants spread themselves over a field of cotton, four or five to a plant, and that they are constantly engaged in the destruction of the boll weevils. Mr. Cook reports that the adroit and business-like way in which the weevil is disposed of seems to prove beyond a question that the ant is by structure and instinct especially equipped for the work of destruction, and is, in short, the true explanation of the fact that the cotton is successfully cultivated by the Indians of Alta Vera Paz in spite of the presence of the boll weevil.

The ant is able to protect itself against frost, since it excavates a nest three or more feet into the ground. Several have survived confinement for twelve days without food. Although cotton seems to be especially adapted to attract the ant by means of its numerous necessaries, the insect is not, like some of the members of its class, confined to a single plant or to a single kind of prey. It attacks and destroys insects of every order, even centipedes. On the other hand, it does not do the least injury to the cotton, or to any other plant, so far as has been ascertained, and it can be handled with impunity.

TOW BOAT EXPLODED

And Thirteen Persons Were Torn to Pieces—Others Fatally Injured.

The tow boat Fred Wilson, belonging to the Monongahela Coal and Coke Company, of Pittsburg, blew up at 3:30 o'clock near Louisville, Ky., and thirteen persons were killed, among them being Captain Price and Mate Sykes. One passenger, who is said to be a Pittsburg millionaire, is reported among the dead.

The cause of the accident is not known. The boat had just put about to back a tow into a landing place when the explosion occurred.

There were thirty-three persons on the vessel at the time and only seven were uninjured.

Of the injured one has since died. The force of the explosion was so great that it shattered windows and awakened the occupants of houses in Louisville, four miles from the scene.

HALF A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE

Visited the Wholesale District of New Orleans Sunday.

At New Orleans Sunday fire caused by electric light wires did about half a million dollars damage. The Louis P. Rice saddle factory, Comon and Mazarine streets; the Simonds Manufacturing Company and the Meig, Brady and Lincoln woodenware establishments were destroyed and others damaged.

The fire was in the heart of the wholesale district and was stopped short of two oil companies and several big drug establishments. Insurance $350,000.

Tharp Given Twenty Years.

At Hamilton Charley Tharp, who was charged with the murder of Bob Perry last Christmas night, was found guilty of murder in the second degree and sentenced to twenty years at hard labor. The jury had been on the case seventy hours. A motion for a new trial by him was overruled by the judge. An appeal to the supreme court was taken.

BREVITIES BY WIRE.

Vulcan stands 56 feet in his sandals, and is the largest cast statue in the world. The one next in size is the cast bronze statue of Buddha in Tokio, Japan, which is 52 feet high and was built about one thousand years ago. The record shows that ten years were consumed in the building of the great Buddha, while it required only seven months to achieve the Birmingham colossus from the time the artist began his work to the completion of the statue in the mines building at St. Louis.

The annual meeting of the lot owners of the public cemetery of Cullman will be held at Kullman's hall on May 20th for the purpose of electing trustees. It is claimed that the present trustees received something like $900 from their predecessors; about $300 has been added to the treasury since. It is claimed that all this has been spent and an indebtedness of $100 incurred. All this has created dissatisfaction and the reckoning will be demanded.

The catalogue of the Alabama Polytechnic institute for 1903 has been issued. The total enrollment for the year is 480, which is considerably the largest in the history of the college. Ten states and three foreign countries, Cuba, Nicaragua, British Honduras, and fifty-six counties in Alabama are represented. The total number of volumes in the library is over 18,000. Twelve scholarships averaging $150 apiece have been established by the alumni society.

Carload shipments of building paper have begun from Ensley, which mark another epoch in the industrial development of the city. A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "LIFE'S ASSETS."

The Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Goodenough Talks Instructively on the Infinite Possibilities That Are in Man—What We Need to Know.

Bristol, Conn.—The Rev. Dr. Arthur H. Goodenough preached Sunday morning on "Life's Assets." The text was from I Corinthians iii 21, 22, 23: For all things are yours; whether Paul or Apollos, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or things present, or things to come; all are yours, and ye are Christ's and Christ is God's." Dr. Goodenough said:

Man aspires. His eye is on the sky. Man was made to walk erect. His impulse is to climb. This fact indicates his destiny. The earth beneath us and the world about us contribute to our flight, but they offer us no home. The world, so near to us and so essential to our present life, has its limitations and fetters. Man is impatient of limitations, he aspires to the infinite and the infinite is always above us. The nobler man's nature the more restless and determined is he to ascend. No philosophy of life is true that fails to recognize this instinct of the soul. Man desires more room, more room is above, and above is something that attracts and draws. That fact is man's salvation.

It is generally believed that man had his origin in God. God is the root from which all men have sprung. It is equally true that God is the complement of man and his goal. How noble is man. What infinite possibilities are in him. Man is not a waif, aimlessly wandering through a trackless wilderness, nor an orphan minus a parent's guiding hand and tender voice. Man's origin and destiny are one. It is God. If your five year old boy is in need he instinctively cries, "My father." If he is in trouble he as naturally cries, "My mother." Instantly the complement of his needy nature is at hand. Father and mother are to him all that he needs. We are only larger children, with larger and more imperative needs. Is there any help for us? We have outgrown the ability of our earthly parents to help us. What shall we do? As the thirsty ox turns to the babbling brook, we turn our eyes to the heavens and say, "My Father—God, help me." And quicker than thought the help comes. Here we have the philosophy of happiness and the secret of success. As witnesses to this fact we call to the stand Augustine, Bernard, John Howe, Isaac Watts and Charles Wesley. The upward look wins. The man who aspires to God, and holiness, and immortality is the one to whom this text is spoken. "All things are yours; for ye are Christ's and Christ is God's."

The thing that wise men are thinking about is life. Bread and acres and dollars are only incidental. God made the acres. God's sunshine and showers grew the grain from which the bread is made. God furnished the material to make the dollar. Therefore, acres and bread and dollars are good because God had something to do with producing them. These are valuable contributions to life, some of our life values. Life itself is worth more than all of them put together. The man who cultivates your farm is worth more than the farm. The man who builds your home is worth more than the house. We are not paupers. No man, woman or child in this world need be poor. There are other values beside dollars. We are heirs to untold riches. Our heavenly Father, the unseen capitalist, has invested largely in us, and He is no spendthrift. He has put the value where it may multiply. Life is a feeble thing at the beginning; so is the acorn, but in the acorn is the massive oak; so is the bulb, but the bulb contains the tint and perfume of the lily. So life as we see it in the babe, it contains a Kepler, a Newton, a Gladstone, a McKinley.

Character is a result, a product. Character tells the story of our conduct and industry. Character is the fruitage of our thinking, our willing, our loving, our doing. And character is the man. Character determines one's value to himself and to society. This is what makes biography the popular literature of our day. People interest people. Biography is death to pessimism. Thousands of men and women have succeeded in life. They have feasted on the universe and enjoyed the infinite, and the books tell us how they did it. My young friends, the one thing in this world for you to do, is to follow their example. You may. Character is no ready made thing; it is made to order. It means plan and purpose and persistence. You do not have to make the machinery nor the material; these are furnished. The selection of the web, the feeding of the loom, the weaving of the cloth is ours. The result is character, and character is destiny. This is the work of life. Human chances are not equal. Circumstances favor some more than others. No doubt of it. But then every man has a chance, aye, more, every man has a probability of success. There are possibilities of failure, and many seem to fail, but there is no excuse for failure. Oh, horrible, heartbreaking word failure. May none of you ever know what it means. There is a way of escape from it. Make a right, not to say, best, use of what is in you, wisely appropriate what is about you, give reason the rein. Enthrone conscience. Be religious. And every step will be an ascent, every act the advance of the soul, and the enrichment of being. All things are yours to do with.

It was never easier to be good than now. Perhaps it is never easy to be good. What makes it easier to be good to-day than it was yesterday? The multiplicity of helps at hand. To read some newspapers and to hear some speakers, one would suppose that nobody was good. The fact is, the world is full of good people. What is goodness? Not the muttering of a creed nor the repeating of a prayer; not the reading of the Bible nor going to church. Good people do these things, but these things are not essentially goodness. Bad people may do them, too. Goodness is consideration for the other fellow, sweetness of temper, gentleness of conduct, nobleness of purpose, love to God and man. It is to live kindly and truly and well. It is like the Christ doing good every day and everywhere. This is the goodness that counts in our day. And we rejoice to believe that it is constantly on the increase. Goodness is true religion, and true religion is goodness. The two are inseparable. It is a culturing, refining, elevating process. It is ever making for the best that life is capable of. What God wants for His children is the best. The desire of God is human happiness. To this end He is patient and indulgent. He is prodigal in gifts. He is ever lavishing His love upon us. God is neither mean nor little. He is the great Father, giving Himself for the salvation, the enrichment, the perfect happiness of His children. God is not the author of pain. He takes no delight in tears. The blessed Saviour ceases not in His age-long effort to make the sons of earth happy. The law of the universe, the design of everything is happiness. Happiness is everywhere. Wander in the woods, walk in the meadow, meander by the stream, rest in the valley and climb to the hilltop, and in everything and everywhere you will find happiness. It springs up like a well of life, filling the air with its music, flooding the earth with its joys. How much more does our heavenly Father desire you, His children, to be happy. The only condition of happiness is to be good. "Blessed are the poor in heart, for they shall see God." Holiness of life maketh rich and tendeth not to poverty.

To the untutored, this looks like an impossible thing, and many ask: "How can I do this?" Easy enough, if [illegible] needed is the disposition, and [illegible] First of all, look at your [illegible] Did you know you had a [illegible] Well, you have. See, please, [illegible] to your credit, the gift of [illegible] assets are more because we [illegible] twentieth century, and [illegible] Anglo-Saxons. "All things [illegible] Whether Paul or Apollos, or [illegible] the world, or things present, or [illegible] come; all are yours, and ye [illegible] and Christ is God's." That [illegible] ful statement. It places [illegible] dous obligation. What [illegible] attempt something, what [illegible] noble achievement. The great [illegible] of history Paul, Cæsar, Apollos, [illegible] present, future. The world, [illegible] Christ, all yours to enjoy [illegible] win. Then there can be no [illegible] failure.

A practical question which [illegible] How may I utilize these [illegible] God for my own advancement [illegible] merit? The answer is: Be [illegible] great on." Just as the [illegible] drinks in the gentle rain that [illegible] grass to grow, just so we [illegible] honey from the fragrant flower, [illegible] learn to appropriate the good [illegible] thing to our own growing and [illegible] life every where is sustained by [illegible] ing the outward to itself. The [illegible] objects which teach and [illegible] to-day are great and expand [illegible] appropriation of knowledge. [illegible] belongs the best of two worlds. [illegible] once thought that the Christian [illegible] was exceedingly limited. [illegible] hymnal, a long sermon and a [illegible] meeting were all that the Church [illegible] any right to. Anything else [illegible] his fervor and narrow his [illegible] tarnish his soul. Thank God, [illegible] so far behind us. To-day we [illegible] everything within reach and [illegible] within sight is ours, if we will [illegible] used in the advancement [illegible] of our lives.

Look at it a moment. Take [illegible] Try to itemize the blessings [illegible] God. Explore the world of [illegible] of the centuries, it is ours, [illegible] the beautiful. What a store [illegible] sons and inspirations and [illegible] the art galleries of the world [illegible] dows in cathedrals and [illegible] ages been telling the story of [illegible] Nativity," by Burne-Jones, [illegible] England; "The Transfiguration," [illegible] ael, the glory of Italy. These [illegible] pies of the beautiful in art, [illegible] for the delight and culture [illegible] All sciences and literatures [illegible] for God is the Author of all [illegible] peare and Booth and De [illegible] and the host of others have [illegible] to charm away our cares and [illegible] The marketplace crowded with [illegible] the field, the wealth of the [illegible] uct of the factory, is ours, [illegible] nent in nature and industry [illegible] skill. The advance in surgery, [illegible] cine, the limitless pleasures [illegible] this is ours, available and [illegible] to make life rich and happy. [illegible] All this is the product of [illegible] gift of the good God. Its [illegible] shame badness out of existence [illegible] people be bad when they [illegible] goodness of God? What are [illegible] life's assets? They are the [illegible] out of which we may weave [illegible] aphic robe; they are the [illegible] we ascend to the home of [illegible] They are to our spirits what [illegible] and sunlight are to the [illegible] grow by appropriating things [illegible] their use; souls grow by [illegible] way. The business of life [illegible] all these forces and gifts [illegible] character. The soul must [illegible] full of God and rise to the [illegible] the endless day beyond the [illegible]

What we need to know [illegible] proper use of things. That [illegible] the exercise of the mind, [illegible] studied and thought for us [illegible] the locomotive, carrying us [illegible] hour; the electric wire, by [illegible] to a friend 1000 miles away [illegible] is to benefit the owner of [illegible] it and use it wisely. So, [illegible] the stimulus and reap the [illegible] accumulations of the ages, [illegible] if these are to answer their [illegible] making of a man—we must [illegible] think and pray. In the [illegible] is the making of a holy character.

All that has been said [illegible] true. But it is not the whole [illegible] must go a step further. [illegible] conditions and soul needs, [illegible] nature, nor science, nor [illegible] meet. Man needs a God. [illegible] where. God is in the [illegible] bathes us every day with [illegible] glory. He is in the heart [illegible] He is in the music which [illegible] through the air, making [illegible] for joy. But this God is [illegible] vast, too impersonal. Can [illegible] personalized? It is God's [illegible] to adapt Himself to the [illegible] needs of His children. [illegible] of God merely as Power, [illegible] Holiness. God is Love. [illegible] ning thing. Love conquers [illegible] on drawing home to the [illegible] His wayward and lost [illegible] heart cries for God. What [illegible] Not the God of the atheist, [illegible] the Deist, not the God of [illegible] theologian, but the [illegible] Jesus Christ has revealed [illegible] world. This Jesus Christ [illegible] are ours. This complete [illegible] is nothing more that can [illegible] ers, pictures, music, [illegible] phones, philosophy, [illegible] man fellowships, friendships, [illegible] God and Christ. All [illegible] complain of poverty or [illegible] afraid of failure; never [illegible]

Goodness does not mean [illegible] the common ills of life, [illegible] burdens, every heart [illegible] sorrow. We would not [illegible] which are inevitable, [illegible] ous, but grievous. Many [illegible] the private chamber. [illegible] ing lonely paths. And [illegible] heavenly Father knows [illegible] the Saviour of Men, [illegible] feelings of our infirmities, [illegible] the Deity, all the power [illegible] all the compassion of [illegible] is for us. Look up, [illegible] cheer. 'Tis better [illegible] pany with the Saviour [illegible] us. The path of the [illegible] light, shining more [illegible] perfect day.

DOCTOR ADVOCATED OPERATION— PE-RU-NA MADE KNIFE UNNECESSARY.

MRS. EVA BARTHO.

MRS. EVA BARTHO, 123 East 12th St., New York City, N. Y., writes: "I suffered for three years with leucorrhœa and ulceration of the womb. The doctor advocated an operation which I dreaded very much, and strongly objected to go under it. Now I am a changed woman. Peruna cured me; it took nine bottles, but I felt so much improved I kept taking it, as I dreaded an operation so much. I am to-day in perfect health and have not felt so well for fifteen years."—Mrs. Eva Bartho.

Mrs. Senator Roach, of Larimore, N. Dak.; Mrs. Senator Warren, of Cheyenne, Wyo.; Reba Lockwood and Mrs. General Longstreet, of Washington, D. C., are among the prominent ladies who indorse Peruna.

Miss Helen Rolof, Kaukauna, Wis., writes:

"Several times during the past two years o rmore my system has been greatly in need of a tonic, and et those times Peruna has been of great help in building up the system, restoring my appetite and securing restful sleep."—Helen Rolof.

"I suffered for five years with uterine irregularities, which brought on hysteria and made me a physical wreck. I tried doctors from the different schools of medicine, but without any perceptible change in my condition. In my despair I called on an old nurse, who advised me to try Peruna, and promised good results if I would persist and take it regularly. I kept this up for six months, and steadily gained strength and health, and when I had used fifteen bottles I considered myself entirely cured. I am a grateful, happy woman to-day."—Miss Muriel Armitage.

Miss Lucy M. Riley, 33 Davenport St., Cleveland, Ohio, writes:

"I wish to add my indorsement to thousands of other women who have been cured through the use of Peruna. I suffered for five years with severe backache, and when wearied or worried in the least I had prolonged headache. I am now in perfect health, enjoy life and have neither an ache or pain, thanks to Peruna."—Lucy M. Riley.

It is no longer a question as to whether Peruna can be relied on to cure all such cases. During the many years in which Peruna has been put to test in all forms and stages of acute and chronic catarrh no one year has put this remedy to greater test than the last year.

The marvelous growth of Seattle, Wash. is credited mainly to newspaper publicity. The business men of that community raised a considerable sum to be expended for space in Eastern newspapers, and the returns were prompt and generous.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven Catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. People Must Be Told.

A writer on advertising says it is the aim of nearly every business concern to have a special and original feature. "But when such a specialty shall be found it must be advertised. No article can sell itself without the aid of advertising."

Chao Chu, son of Wu Ting Fang, former Chinese minister to the United States, has graduated at the head of his class in the Atlantic City high school. There were thirty-one in the class. The young Oriental will begin the study of medicine in Philadelphia next fall.

Philadelphia has the largest negro population of any city in the United States, except New Orleans, and the latter city has only twelve thousand more negroes than Philadelphia. Philadelphia has 75,000 negroes and the state of Pennsylvania 187,000.

One of the strangest churches is at Taramski, Australia. Each of its four walls bears a large advertisement. The church was built by the firms whose goods are advertised, and they claim that their investment will be a paying one.

There is an island in Puget sound, not more than half a mile across, which is populated with cats. The cats number thousands, and the strangest thing is that they are all black. Every evening a boat-load of fishermen land on the island and lay out a seine a quarter of a mile long. They pull it in with never less than a ton of fish, but next morning these fish are gone. The cats devour them all. These cats have been placed here by men who are supplying the market with women's muffs. Once a year there is a great round-up, and several thousand pussies lose their lives.

Travelers in the Orient say that if a Chinaman undertakes a contract he will carry out its terms though it impoverish him. There is no trick he will not play to win his case where his word is not involved, but once let him give that word and you can bank on it that he will die rather than betray it. The Japanese are crafty business men. So long as they see profits in sight they will hold to a contract, but if there is a chance of losing Mr. Jap, in the majority of cases, will find some means to get under cover before the crash comes.

The tallest and largest human being in the world is a Russian, discovered recently in Kustjak, Russia, where he has been living with his parents. Feodor Machow, for such is the giant's name, is not only the largest man alive, but his measurements are greater than those of any known giant of the past two generations. Though but twenty-two years of age, he is 7 feet 9 inches high and well proportioned. Over a hundred doctors and scientists have examined him and his limbs have been photographed in every conceivable position.

French soldiers survivors of the Chinese expedition of 1856 are responsible for the statement that General Kuroki, who is leading the Japanese forces in Manchuria, is half French. His name, they say, is properly spelled Curique. According to the story of the soldiers, the French officer, Captain Curique, while serving in China in 1856, married a Japanese girl and a son was born to them, who was given the Japanese name Kuroki, corresponding to the French Curique. This son is General Kuroki.

Some Japanese tradesmen have a curious way of advertising their business. On their right forearms they tattoo figures—the shoemaker a shoe, the wood cutter an ax, the butcher a cleaver. Underneath these emblems are such inscriptions as "I do my work modestly and cheaply," or "I am as good at my trade as most of my fellows." When they are hunting work they bare their arms and walk about the streets.

Mrs. Emmons Blaine holds that the dramatic instinct is strong in children and that by careful training it may be made "a power to construct in them stronger and better men and women, with the clearer images and finer thoughts." She suggests that the theaters set aside Saturday afternoons for plays to be given for the school children.

The government has decided that marriages contracted in the Philippines between United States soldiers and native women are not to be made a joke. An enlisted man who deserts his Filipino wife and children will be dishonorably discharged from the army. Some of the United States soldiers have already returned to this country, bringing their native wives with them.

At Wading River, Long Island, a double wedding, believed to be without precedent, will take place. FREE MEDICAL ADVICE TO YOUNG GIRLS.

All young girls at this period of life are earnestly invited to write Mrs. Pinkham for advice; she has guided in a motherly way hundreds of young women; her advice is freely and cheerfully given, and her address is Lynn, Mass.

Judging from the letters she is receiving from so many young girls Mrs. Pinkham believes that our girls are often pushed altogether too near the limit of their endurance nowadays in our public schools and seminaries.

Nothing is allowed to interfere with studies, the girl must be pushed to the front and graduated with honor; often physical collapse follows, and it takes years to recover the lost vitality,—often it is never recovered.

A Young Chicago Girl Saved from Despair.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I wish to thank you for the help and benefit I have received through the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. When I was about seventeen years old I suddenly seemed to lose my usual good health and vitality. Father said I studied too hard, but the doctor thought different and prescribed tonics, which I took by the quart without relief. Reading one day in the paper of Mrs. Pinkham's great cures, and finding the symptoms described answered mine, I decided I would give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial. I did not say a word to the doctor; I bought it myself, and took it according to directions regularly for two months, and I found that I gradually improved, and that all pains left me, and I was my old self once more.—LILLIE E. SINCLAIR, 17 E. 22d St., Chicago Ill."

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the one sure remedy to be relied upon at this important period in a young girl's life; with it she can go through with courage and safety the work she must accomplish, and fortify her physical well being so that her future life may be insured against sickness and suffering.

Annual May Singing.

The fifth annual session met at Salem at 9 a.m. and re elected Bro. T. L. Robinson chairman and D. S. Robinson secretary, and Bros. H. A. J. Harris, Riley Robinson and E. Jones, arranging committee. Bros. N. J. Jones, T. L. Robinson and Riley Robinson conducted first lesson; a recess of fifteen minutes was given, and Bro. J. D. Hughes, followed by Bro. W. W. Robinson, preached a se mon on song of praise, which was very much strengthening to the many singers present, knowing that the Bible was the foundation of music, both vocal and instrumental.

A refreshment recess was given until 1:30 p.m. and everybody was invited to take part in the dinner, while there was an estimate of not less than 600 nor over 1000 people on the ground. There was plenty of rations to feed them and a lot of baskets carried home with a lot of victuals in them. The music of the evening was conducted by Bros. W. H. Robinson, John Hurst, O. Z. Robinson and R. M. Robinson, Organists for the day, to wit: Miss Fannie Robinson, Miss Lena Pyron, Lee and Lum Robinson.

Adjourned to meet the fourth Sunday in May at 9 a.m., 1905.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins, antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflamation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. BLACK WEED, the great vegetable remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, and Kidney and Bladder complaints, has met with almost instantaneous success because it has made some noteworthy cures of very severe cases.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

The Nashville Reunion.

The Reunion Committee sends the Southern Press the good news that all arrangements are perfected for entertaining the United Confederate Veterans at Nashville, June 14-16.

The Camps of Veterans, the Sons of Veterans, and the three chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy are working in harmony with the business organizations of Nashville to furnish an entertainment as nearly faultless as possible.

The fact that these conventions had become so expensive to cities entertaining so deterred action that it was left for Nashville to become host again sooner than was expected. But the capital of the Volunteer State, aided by adjacent communities, is ready. All of the people are in hearty accord, and arrangements are such that this invitation to Confederate Veterans everywhere, is extended without misgiving in any particular. Arrangements are far better than ever before for Veterans to meet in their old commands—on the campus of the Vanderbilt University.

CORN FODDER.

Shred It and Make Beef—The Day of Cheap Cattle Has Passed.

Shredded corn fodder is the most economical material that can be used in the manufacture of beef. The demand for beef at the present time seems almost unlimited, so that we can save this great wasted crop and feed it into beef without any fear of overloading the market. The census reports show that the population of our cities, the market for beef, increased 36.8 per cent from 1890 to 1900, but the number of cattle killed for beef increased only 2 per cent. The export demand for dressed beef gained enough in the ten years to take the entire increase in our production, so that we had the same supply in 1900 as in 1890, although the beef eating population had grown 36.8 per cent. Receipts for this year to date have shown a considerable falling off as compared with 1901, so that we have today about the same supply as in 1890 to feed 40 per cent more people, counting the gain in city population to date.

In 1910, only eight years off, we shall have 85 per cent more people in our cities than in 1890 if the growth of the last ten years continues. Twelve years have passed since 1890, and made no progress toward supplying this gain of 85 per cent in the demand which should be met within eight years in 1910. We cannot meet it with the methods of farming that have been followed heretofore. The good farm lands of the west have all been settled, and the ranges have been running down in the scale of beef production because of the destruction of grasses by overpasturing. We have reached a permanent level of high prices of beef—so high, in fact, at the present time that perhaps a million people or more who would like to eat beef are compelled to go without it or to content themselves with a nibble instead of a full plate.

A good corn crop this fall will relieve the situation somewhat from the standpoint of the consumer, but the day of cheap cattle has passed forever. With high prices and a practically unlimited demand good business policy demands that the farmer should bend every effort to increase his output of beef. There is little danger of overdoing it. The only way in which a really considerable increase can now be made in the supply of cattle is by saving the enormous corn fodder crop of the west and shredding it.—Farm.

Two cars of the extra crew of L. & N. Railroad were burned on the siding on last Saturday. Two men that were sleeping in them came very near being burned up. They did not awake until the cars were half burned and they lost everything they had.

Miss Callie Patterson, one of Magic City's most lovely young ladies, has been the guest of Miss Wheelock on Shades mountain.

Mr. Henry Murphy, who has been in business in Birmingham returned to Oxmoor to live.

They are improving the furnaces at Oxmoor, they are building foundations to put up two large smoke stacks, each one to be about one hundred and fifty feet in height.

Mr. C. G. Northington came again from Mobile and spent the day with relatives on Shades mountain.

The top of one of the gas stacks at the furnaces blew off recently and scattered bricks in every direction. Mr. John Thomas, a citizen of Chilton county, who was visiting to them, was slightly hurt.

Quite a number of young people from Oxmoor attended the religious services at Sulpher Springs last Sunday. Some of those who attended were Messrs Pratt, Henry Murphy, H. B. Northington and Percy and Ben Goodwin.

The Age Herald and the Banner are always welcome visitors at our house, but I always read the Banner first.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Stanton, June 4, 1904

Editor Banner—Please publish in your paper, after the many rumors which were circulated around old Dixie and abroad generally, that I had had both legs amputated, having been shot through on the night of the 8th day of March, 1904, by some desperate characters, and that I had left the State, and resigned the office of J. P. I will now state to the good people and my friends that I am again myself, W. J. A. Melton, who landed at my beautiful home after a long period of about three months at the infirmary at Selma, to remain and to carry out the duties of the J. P. as required by law until my term of office expires.

W. J. A. MELTON.

Macedonia.

The bees are swarming and I will have to stop and make a gum and hive them. Well, I saw nothing in last week's paper concerning our all day singing the fifth Sunday in May. I must say we had a glorious time, our church ground was crowded, and dinner plenty for all, and some left, we are proud to say. A majority of the Pleasant Grove and Mulberry singers were present. Mr. Elbert Littlejohn of Liberty was one of our welcome visitors, and Miss Lena Williams of Mulberry was another and did her part well at the organ. The song service was opened and closed by prayer, and the class was led by our friend and teacher, J. C. Veazey, and others, and the music was fine.

The candidates for tax collector are numerous in this section, but are all behaving nicely, though we think that after the 26th, of July the number will be greatly reduced.

With good luck to the Banner and its readers I remain yours truly.

Thorsby.

The past two weeks has contained an unusual number of incidents for our town.

Commencing Sunday, 29th inst., with the Sunday school convention, which was well attended, and the grounds presented a scene of convivialitly in the interval between sessions in the hall. On Monday came the welcome rain.

Rev. Sampley preached at college hall on the afternoon of the 30th inst.

The industrial pursuits here make our town a more and more desirable place for many homeseekers. The whistles of three factories "keeping time" for us at three periods daily.

Thorsby fruit raising this season is resulting in general satisfaction and the best of the fruit is yet to come.

Swedish Ladies Society met May 25th with Mrs. Turnquist.

Mr. I S. Gerald is sojourning in the North.

Miss Annie Olson made a brief visit to the capitol last week.

The Little Girls' Society met June 1st with Miss Hazel Simonton.

Rev. Engh and Mr. Paulson and daughter, left for Minnesota, June 3. Mr. Paulson purchased land in Thorsby and the young friends of Miss Hannah are glad to hear of her probable return for the winter.

The band concert for the afternoon of June 3d, has been indefiinately postponed. Still, "music hath power to charm the savage ear."

The Norwegian ladies served ice cream and cake on the afternoon of June 4th, at Miss Fors' millinery parlors.

Mr. Ira Sarber spent a few days at Riverview last week.

Thorsby people are glad to welcome Misses Franzen, Foss and Hedberg, who have been attending college at Rock Island, Iowa.

Services at college hall, June 5th, conducted by Rev. Davis, whose audience listened with both profit and pleasure. Sunday evening, at the same place, a congregation composed of Methodist Protestants and Methodist Episcopals, had another excellent sermon from Rev. Ellison, of Clanton.

The Young Ladies Society met June the 8th, with the Misses Malmgren.

JAY.

Jemison.

Mr. F. O. Dudley of Clanton visited relatives here Sunday.

The picnic and fish fry at Mahan's mill pond was largely attended and the general report is that they caught about 150 pounds of fine fish.

Jmison and Verbena will cross bat at this place Friday, both teams are in fiine condition and a great game is expected.

Misses Julia and Anna Lowery are visiting relatives and friends in Jmison.

Mrs. Shelby, after a weeks visit, returned to her home in Oxmoor Sunday.

The way F. O. Dudley talks we think that he will be in Jemison again soon to compare post office notes.

MISS ANNIE LANE DAVIS

THE MOST POPULAR YOUNG LADY OF CLANTON.

This charming young lady, who has just been declared by a majority of the voters in the late contest to be "The Most Popular Young Lady in Clanton," is strictly a Clanton girl, having been born and raised in the town. It is an enviable distinction to be known as the most popular person in any community, but Miss Davis by her sweet disposition and engaging maners is fairly entitled to the proud position, and this among so many of our girls who are all so good and sweet and pretty, that it is almost an impossibility to decide if one of them excels the other.

The contest was originated to raise funds for some improvements to the Methodist church, and votes were sold at ten cents each. Of 1642 votes cast, Miss Davis received 32, or nearly one-half, and the contest was a most enjoyable one to all of the young people of Clanton. The church realized $164.20 from the contest and the improvements will be at once carried out.

Antarctic expeditions make it plain that intrepid explorers will dare everything and suffer everything in the hope of reaching the South Pole, as the heroic leaders of Arctic adventure in this generation and in generations earlier have done. Nevertheless, the goal in either case seems to be practically hopeless of achievement. It is true the discovery of the sources of the Nile was an unsolved problem for thousands of years. But the ice barriers of the frozen north and the frozen south find no parallel in Africa.

The sounds which flow from the violin of Kubelik, when the accomplished virtuoso touches the strings, are so entrancing that it might be supposed any and every passion would be soothed when the air is filled with his exquisite harmonies. But in the town of Lintz, on the European continent, so violent became a feud between Czechs and Teutons that the gentle player was assailed with various missiles and driven from his platform. Even the violin does not invariably succeed in composing racial hatreda.

While it is true that the obligations of the healing art especially expose the physician to infections of every sort, it is due to him that any extra risks should be reduced to the minimum. It is a popular belief that he is singularly proof against contagion of any sort, as if guarded by a special Providence for the good that he can do to others, observes the New York Herald. While this would be a simple act of justice to one who voluntarily is ever ready to take his chances, it is nevertheless the fact that mortality of medical men from strictly contagious diseases is greater than that in any other calling of life. Why even more do not succumb is possibly explained by the extra precautions taken by them in guarding against disease invasion, but above all by their maintenance of that high state of health which throws off disease of any sort.

If facts proving we eat too much accumulate the next ten years as they have in the last two years, say, how long will it be before some man will come along with the proposition we do not need to eat at all? asks the Boston Transcript editorially. He will be sure to come, and he will have for the basis of his argument the improvement that has even now been noted as resulting from a fast of two or three days in certain illnesses. And there will be many, by the time he arrives, to give him support. Perhaps a belief in him will bring to them the same fate that befell the horse who was taught to do without his daily fare, and perhaps the doctrine will not be promulgated till that dire time, already prophesied, arrives when all the food supplies in the world are exhausted. In that case it will be universally welcomed as a plan of nature to keep her perfect balance.

Some of the warm advocates of college games advocate the foundation of generous endowment funds for boat clubs, baseball organizations, football teams and other athletic associations in American universities. It is unlikely that the students would object to the raising of such an endowment, but a movement among alumni and other well wishers to subscribe sufficient sums to provide for the athletic expenses of the undergraduates is not destined to succeed right away, declares the New York Tribune. The grand stand and gate receipts at the best known and most popular football contests are extremely large every year, and the college baseball nines rejoice over the attendance and applause of multitudes of enthusiastic witnesses. Hosts of excited spectators yell themselves hoarse as the plucky college crews bend to their oars, but the amounts which flow into the treasuries of the boat clubs are small.

Robert B. Fort, member of the Illinois state senate and candidate for lieutenant governor before the present state republican convention, is dead. He came to Springfield a few days prior to the assembling of the state convention and conducted his campaign through the first few days of the convention. Mr. Fort was born in 1867 and was a grandson of Dr. Boal, one of the founders of the republican party.

A CONTENTED FARMER.

A little farm well tilled,
A little barn well filled,
A little wife, a boy, a girl,
The happiest trio in the world.
We've plenty to eat and plenty to wear,
And a little money to go to the fair;
We have no mortgage, we have no debt
Over which to wriggle, foam and sweat.
We have plenty and some to spare,
We give to the needy whoever they are,
I am contented, I'm nobody's slave,
For more than this I do not crave;
I am contented—a boon to save,
I've all there is this side the grave.
—Country Gentleman.

AN ACT OF CHARITY.

Mrs. Boldero, having been advised by the doctor "to keep up her strength," had ordered for luncheon a rump-steak-and-kidney pudding, which she was just about to carve, and some mutton cutlets, now in front of Miss Lucy Westlake, her companion, whose principal duty was to read Mrs. Boldero to sleep after the present meal and dinner.

The pudding was served in a white basin with a napkin around it, and the parlor maid stood interestedly looking on while Mrs. Boldero cut a V-shaped piece out of the top, placed this on a plate, and began to spoon out the contents. Suddenly, pausing, with the spoon in her right hand, she turned wrathfully toward Mary.

"Where," she severely demanded, "are the kidneys?"

"Cook said the butcher didn't send them in time," was the answer.

Mrs. Boldero felt disappointed. She had thought of the pudding once or twice since her 10 o'clock breakfast. "Take it away!" she exclaimed, and Lucy Westlake tried somewhat markedly to look as if the affair possessed no interest in the world for herself, as, indeed, it would if Mr. Roper had not chanced to pass the house at that moment.

Mr. Roper occupied one room in a very small house a few hundred yards away; there he had lived as long as Mrs. Boldero could remember, and, although she had naturally never spoken to the old man, he was well known to her and to most other persons in the neighborhood by sight.

He looked more than 60 years of age; he was short, erect, and remarkably thin. His limp-brimmed felt hat, once black, and now become green, his tightly fitting coat and faded from dark blue to brown. As Mrs. Boldero had often remarked, "a crossing-sweeper could not have dressed more shabbily," yet his white hair was always closely cut, his chin cleanly shaven, his large mustache carefully curled. From one of her servants (Mrs. Bodero had a habit of exchanging confidences of the kind) she had learned that Mr. Roper half-starved himself. "He certainly looks as if a good meal would do him good," she would remark.

Lucy, from a kind of interest in the old man, who often passed her window, and this afternoon she happened to look up in time to recognize him.

"Ah! she cried, "it would be an act of charity to give it to that poor man!"

"Who is that?" asked Lucy, helping herself to the smallest cutlet.

"Mr. Roper," was the answer. "It would make him a meal every day for a week. I have a good mind to send it——"

"Oh, but——"

"I beg your pardon? said Mrs. Boldero, sharply.

Lucy's cheeks were crimson, for she perceived what Mrs. Boldero could not see, that, although his clothes were fit for the dust-bin, Mr. Roper was a gentleman.

"You couldnt do such a thing," murmured Lucy.

"Not perform an act of charity? And why not, pray?" asked Mrs. Boldero. "Mary," she added, "take away my plate and the pudding. I will have some cutlets. Cook can put the basin in a basket and Miss Westlake shall carry it to poor Mr. Roper directly after luncheon."

Lucy Westlake looked inclined to rebel. But, although Mrs. Boldero might be a trying woman to live with in many respects, Lucy had a comfortable home, with sufficient salary to enable her to help her own people. Caution prevailing, she set forth half an hour later with tingling cheeks and reluctant steps. Lucy was 22, fair haired, and pretty; a sensitive plant forced by circumstances into a stony garden. A widebrimmed hat shaded her face from the sun, the basket hung on her left arm as she timorously drew near to the terrace of small houses where Mr. Roper lodged.

Lucy's voice trembled as a short, stout, red-faced woman opened the street door.

"May I speak with Mr. Roper?" she asked, and turning her back, the woman of his house shouted his name at the foot of the narrow staircase. He came down a few moments later in the act of buttoning his shrunken, faded coat, too courteous to betray surprise, too hungry to refrain from sniffing slightly as the savor of the steak pudding tickled his nostrils.

"You wished to see me," he inquired, with a bow.

"Ye—es, if you please," said Lucy, glancing from the basket to Mr. Roper's face and scarcely knowing how to explain her errand.

"Mrs.—Mrs. Boldero saw you pass our window," Lucy faltered.

"I have not the—er—pleasure of Mrs. Boldero's acquaintance, I believe."

"Still," said Lucy, becoming more nervous every instant, "she knows you well by sight."

Mr. Roper straightened his back; he had been somewhat of a buck in his day—major in a line regiment, retired on half-pay some years ago. His only son had come to a melancholy end, and, having left numerous debts of honor undischarged, Major Roper had felt it incumbent to take them on himself. In order to raise immediately the necessary sum of money, he had sequestered a bulk of his pension, retaining, in fact, sufficient only to support the barest existence. He then retired to this sedate country town, dropping the "Major" rather than bring, as he conceived, a discredit on his profession. Another year and the debt would be wiped out; then, Major Roper told himself, he would again be able to hold up his head.

"Mrs. Boldero presents her compliments," said Lucy, drawing on her invention, "and she—she has sent you th— this."

"And what is this?" he demanded, fixing his single eyeglass and leaning forward to peer into the uncovered basket.

"I am Major Roper!" he said.

"Mrs. Boldero thought——"

"She evidently though she could insult me with impunity."

"I—I am very sorry," faltered Lucy.

His annoyance was the greater, if possible, on observing that the pudding was not eaten whole, yet, incongruously enough, the sight of it tickled his palate. Formerly a man of extravagant habits, economy had never become easy to him, and, although he made a practice of counting out his money into small sums, and wrapping these in separate scraps of paper, so that he might, at the worst, retain sufficient for rent and food until his next pension became due, he would extract sixpence from one pocket, a shilling from another, thus leaving the last weeks barely provided for. In a manner he was still a gourmand. Every Saturday, after paying his small rent, he would purchase sixpennyworth of jam tarts, patronising a shop where seven were sold for sixpence and thus insuring one for each day in the week. Today his meal had begun and ended with tart, whereas Mrs. Boldero employed an excellent cook. Still, Major Roper found his appetite easier to control than his pride, which had never been more aggressive than now, when he looked forward shortly to leave Burrowfield and to live again within reach of a London club.

"You will kindly present my compliments to Mrs.—er——"

"Boldero," faltered Lucy.

"To Mrs. Boldero, and tell her that I am very much—very much obliged—"

"She will be rather hurt," said Lucy.

"And I," said Major Roper, "am rather hurt."

"I do wish you would let me leave it!" cried Lucy, holding out her arm with the basket in her left hand close to his face.

per!" he answered, stepping backward.

"Mrs. Boldero will be immensely angry," murmured Lucy, gazing from the basket into his face.

"Angry—with you, do you mean?"

"I am afraid she will," said Lucy with a deprecatory smile.

Major Roper began to cough.

"You will kindly present my compliments to Mrs.—er—Boldero and say that I am greatly obliged, and accept her—her gift in the spirit in which, no doubt, it is offered."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed Lucy, and, with an air of extreme relief, she saw Major Roper take the basket.

"You will wait a moment for the—for the basin?" he suggested, as she would have turned away.

"I can come tomorrow——"

"There is no necessity to give you the trouble," he insisted, "if you will pardon my closing the door." He did not wish her to follow his movements so, leaving Lucy standing on the top step and the street door ajar, the Major held the basket gingerly as he walked along the passage to another door which led to a back yard.

There he removed the basin from the basket, standing this on the red tiles while he gazed with mingled sensations at the top of the half-cold but still savory pudding. Never since his boyhood had he felt such temptation at the sight of anything to eat. Holding the basin now at arm's length, he stepped toward the dust-bin and therein emptied the enticing contents. A few feet to the right was a tap, and, stooping in front of it Major Roper turned the water into the basin, which he afterward dried upon a duster that hung from a nail in the wall. Having replaced the empty basin, he carried the basket into the house and opened the street door.

"A thousand apologies for keeping you," he said, offering the basket to Lucy, whose face looked quite cheerful again.

"I hope you will enjoy the pudding, Major!" she cried, with a laugh, which made him feel almost young again; besides, he had not been so addressed for many a day.

"You will kindly tell Mrs.—er—Mrs. Boldero, it is one of my favorite dishes," he answered with a bow. Lucy nodded brightly as she was away with the basket.—Thomas C. in the Sketch.

Very Easy.

"Don't you wish you were as smart as Conan Doyle's detective?"

"My dear sir," replied the modest detective, "if they'd let me plan the crimes in the first place I could discover the facts in ways quite as extraordinary as those of any detective that an author ever put into a book."—Chicago Post.

FASHIONS IN BEAUTY.

Is the type of beauty changing? Is delicacy of feature old-fashioned? And is it gradually becoming modish to have rather thick features, a complexion so fat as to approach the very reverse of the joy of life? Is dulness like a canker eating into our very tastes and affecting our apprehension of the beautiful?

I ask you all these questions because of a visit I paid not long ago to the studio of a fashionable protrait-painter. A few faces there were of the mignon type, sweet in expression and neat of nose. But all the most admired of modern women were very different indeed. There was a lady of the lyric stage whose features can be described only by the word flat. She is a Paris celebrity, but enchants music-hall London now and then with her particular form of art. There is no denying her charm. The difficulty lies in analyzing it. What kind of soul looks out from those apparently almost lifeless eyes? The stolidity of expression is almost inconceivable. The lips are like those of the women of ancient Egypt, large, thick, and yet with some vague, if sensuous, charm about them. The chin is solid, firm and masculine. One can imagine men obeying the owner of that chin. One could never picture her obeying any one. A smile would wonderfully transform the face. But it is not easy to imagine it curving into a smile.

Is this the coming type? It almost seems so. Such a woman as she whom I have been trying to sketch would never trouble herself to ask "Why?" about anything and her answer to every question would be "Because," a sufficient reason to any one who understood her.—London Truth.

TO REMEMBER.

Sleep nine hours.
Rest after luncheon.
Don't bathe when very tired.
Don't bathe soon after eating.
If thin, massage the face gently.
If too plump, a firm pressure is better.
Use some good cold cream with the massage.
A thorough cleansing should precede message.
Gentle, thorough hair brushing should be indulged in twice a day.
If hair brushes be cleansed daily and the scalp massaged the hair and head will keep clean much longer.
If in addition to scalp massage we palms of our hands it will be much more silky.
The eating of fruit which is neither green nor over-ripe, combined with the drinking of plenty of pure water, is a great thing for anybody.
After disagreeable tasks the hands will not suffer if thoroughly cleansed (with acids if necessary), and then treated to cold cream and soft gloves.
Regularity in the taking of wholesome meals would do much toward beautifying some persons who never have time to conduct their affairs methodically.—Philadelphia Record.

Women in Japan, from the highest to the lowest ranks, are taking an active hand in the work of the various war-time aid societies that are caring for the Mikado's soldiers in the field and in hospital. It is an interesting fact, says William Dinwiddie in Harper's Weekly, that all the Japanese princesses of royal blood are enlisted among the members of the Red Cross. Mr. Dinwiddie is one of the Weekly's special correspondents in the Far East, and he has had special opportunities for studying affairs in Japan. Speaking of the work of the royal members of the Red Cross, he tells of seeing, almost any day, a dozen princesses at work in the military hospital making bandages and lint. The president of the Ladies' Patriotic Society is no less a personage than Her Imperial Highness Princess Kain.

REST FOR WEARY MOTHERS.

As the health of a nursing infant depends largely upon the health of the mother, it is very essential, as has been stated before, that to great strain, physical or mental, should be put upon her, and that she should have a certain amount of rest and mental diversion. To this end it is advisable, as early as possible, which means as soon as the baby is well started and gaining in weight, to give one bottle feeding of diluted cow's milk once in twenty-four hours. It is usually safe to commence this feeding at the end of a month, and it is best to give the milk quite diluted for the first two or three days, say, one part of milk to four parts of water, until the stomach becomes accustomed to the change of food.—Harper's Bazar.

GIRLS OF NEW ORLEANS.

Poets and lovers of New Orleans will tell you that the girl of the Southern city gets her pale, creamy complexion from the magnolias that bloom in such profusion; her grace and languid ease of motion from the thousands of waving palms; the dusk of her eyes and hair from the wondrous tropical beauty of the Southern nights; her voice from the whispering of the zephyrs and the changeful song of the mockingbird. Much of her health, says a writer in the National Magazine, is undoubtedly owing to the fruit she eats; oranges like globes of greenish or russet gold into whose flavor has entered the perfume of the most delicious flowers in the fruit world, figs which are flowers, purple without, rosy within, "watermelon" whose cool colors are as refreshing on a summer day as the draught that comes from its crimson heart.

TELLTALE GRAINS OF RICE.

Here is a lesson that all persons who make pretensions should take to heart. A woman who was invited to a fashionable wedding did not think her two spring hats quite good enough to cope with the Paris creations that would prevail. So the undaunted woman called at a milliner's and selected a costly affair of lace, which she had charged to her account. Of course her idea was to wear it to the wedding and returned it the next day. Her hat was vastly admired. She glibly said it cost a mere $50," and enjoyed the effect the price produced on her friends. Unfortunately she got in the way of the shower of rice that was hurled at the happy couple. The next day she returned the "hat-on-credit." The day following she was asked to call on the milliner, and was confronted with the question. "Didn't you wear this unsatisfactory hat at a wedding yesterday?" The unhappy woman denied it, but finally broke down. "How did you know?" she gasped. "Well," the milliner replied, "we found several grains of rice in the folds of lace."—New York Press.

FASHION NOTES.

The 1830 or French blouse is the latest idea in black taffeta coats.

While shirrings are very fashionable they are not so effective for wash materials as for wool or silk.

A new notion is to stitch down the up and down tucks of a skirt around the hips with horizontal rows of machine stitching to the depth of a hip yoke.

High turnover linen collars, handgether by gold links, and finished with a soft tie of chiffon velvet, tulle or coarse woven silk, are very much worn with separate waists, even with those of silk mull.

Chiffon voiles are accorded first place.

The colored linen gown is to be in great favor for midsummer vogue, in fastest shades, like pale green, blue mauve and yellow.

The so-much-talked-of "religious plaits," or "men's folds," are simply very wide tucks.

Men Who Lasso Ships.

Writing of a trip over the Great Lakes in Harper's Magazine, Louise Morgan Sill tells of the lariat throwers, who are even more skilful than the Western cowboys.

"One of the most interesting persons connected with the lake traffic is a sort of brother to the landlubber cowboy," she writes. "He is practically the lariat thrower of these prairielike lakes, but he does not lasso cattle or anything so trivial. His game may be a wharf or an 8,000 ton freighter, and he never misses his cast. He makes no pretence to anything picturesque, and it is doubtful if he would care to be so described; but picturesque he is as he swings the rope in the air from the dock to vessel, or vice versa.

"He may be in trim sailor garb or merely clothed in the easy going garments of the man who wears them merely as a means of covering.

"The lariat thrower is of no particular nationality. He may be an American or Canadian, or Irish, or Swedish, or German, or almost anything; but after he has worked awhile on these vast inland waters the lakes put their stamp upon him and he becomes a lake man. He does his work with a certain calmness and ease, a philosophical mastery of things without excitement. If you talk with him you will find that he knows much more than he seems to know."

A Rag-Time Letter.

Monotonous as their life is, as a rule, the postal authorities in India have their exciting moments. We cull the following Babu letter from a contemporary:

"The Sub-Postmaster reports that last evening a mice came out from behind the office door, and after walking a little stammered and breathed its last in the presence of the Sub-Postmaster there. As these are the prognostics of plague, I beg you will kindly arrange to have the office disinfected at an early date."

Curious that the mouse should have stammered. Nervousness, probably.

WHISKEY FLOODED THE STREETS

Three Thousand Cattle Were Burned to Death as Fire Spread to Adjoining Stock Pens.

Ten men were killed, a score injured, 30,000 barrels of whiskey destroyed and 3,000 cattle burned to death as the result of an explosion at the plant of the Corning Distillery company, said to be the largest in the world, at Peoria, Ill., Saturday.

The immense ware house in which the explosion occurred was destroyed, and three other buildings were gutted by flames. The property loss is over $1,000,000. It is thought that the death list will be increased.

This is the third catastrophe in less than a year to overtake the distillery.

The ten men were buried beneath the ruins by the explosion and burned to death. Six others were seriously injured.

It is believed that all the government men escaped.

The ware house where the first explosion occurred was an eleven-story brick structure, covered with corrugated iron. Two other explosions followed in rapid succession, but the cause has not been determined.

The ware-house was 100 by 200 feet and contained 30,000 barrels of spirits. Another ware house containing the cistern room was a three-story brick building 100 by 200 feet. It contained in the neighborhood of 52,000 gallons of spirits. In the two fermenting rooms, which were 100 by 200 feet, were eighteen tubs with a capacity of 1,000 bushels of mash each. They were all filled and contained about 5,000 gallons of spirits. All this went up in flames, and added to the general loss.

The fire spread to the stock yards, where a dozen large cattle barns, filled with cattle, were burned. The loss to the stock yards is $250,000.

Critics Give Up Port Arthur.

Leading military authorities expect the early fall of Port Arthur, and regard this as a most serious if not irreparable blow to Russia, the present defense of Port Arthur being compared in that of Metz and Sedan during the Franco-Prussian war. It is pointed out that General Kuropatkin must make the same fatal mistake in relation to Port Arthur's ability to resist that the French made in connection with Metz. The military critics approve of Kuropatkin's policy of resistance.

The advance guard of 14,000 men under General Stakelburg, sent by General Kuropatkin, to the relief of Port Arthur, has reached the entrance to the Liao Tung peninsula and the bulk of the army is following.

Merchants from the south complain that the Japanese are not paying for supplies taken by them, as they did in the early stages of the war, and assert that they are even ill treated and refused when they ask for money.

TORNADO IN OKLAHOMA.

One Killed, Several Injured and Property Damaged.

A tornado in the Kiowa and Comanche nations, Okla. T., has demolished a great number of residences and business houses at numerous small towns and laid waste dozens of farms. One person is known to have been killed and about a dozen are believed to have been injured, one fatally. It is reported that the towns of Chattanooga and Faxons, small places, have been entirely wiped out.

Wires are down and details are lacking. The town of Helen also is said to have been completely destroyed.

A rain storm prevailed first, five inches of water falling, washing out crops and ruining many farms. This was followed by a heavy hail storm. A peculiar climatic condition followed. The atmosphere became stifling and then there was a deluge of rain, accompanied by a gale which developed rapidly into a tornado.

GUILTY ON THREE COUNTS.

Assistant Postmaster Fined in Three Cases and Confesses in Another.

Charles F. Pieper, formerly assistant postmaster at Choctaw, Ala., and at the time of his arrest postmaster at Carlton, against whom the federal grand jury returned eight indictments for violation of postal laws in connection with securing mail contracts and postoffice funds, was convicted in the United States circuit court on three counts of forgery and fined $100 in each case. The punishment also carries imprisonment. On Thursday Pieper pleaded guilty to the embezzlement of $12.75 of postal funds, and was fined $25 and costs. There remain four indictments to be tried.

FRISCO HELD RESPONSIBLE.

For Death of Clark, Who Was Killed by Jeff Van Horn.

As the result of the first suit of its kind ever brought in the state of Alabama, so far as is known, H. J. Martin, administrator of the estate of Bud Clarke, of Cordova, obtained judgment for $5,000 against the Frisco railroad for damages for the death of Clarke, who was thrown from a passenger train of that road on September 2, 1903, by Jeff Vanhorn, and died a few days later. The judge charged the jury that the passenger, Clarke, who was killed, was entitled to the protection of the conductor and the conductor, under a statute, is vested with regular police powers in preserving order on board of trains.

Farmer Kills Himself.

Seaborn Watts, a well-to-do farmer of Cedar Bluff, Cherokee county, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart with a pistol.

It is supposed he was mentally deranged, as he has been showing signs of insanity for years.

Sensational Elopement.

A sensation has been created in Dallas by the elopement of J. L. Phillips, a married man, and Miss Horton, a popular young lady of the village. The couple have been gone a week, but it was not known until today that they were together in St. Louis.

Fatal Railroad Wreck.

By a head-on collision of two Missouri Pacific passenger trains near Mastin, twenty-two miles south of Kansas City, one person was killed and nineteen injured, most of the latter being passengers.

The trains were behind their schedule, and were trying to make up time. No. 36 had orders to take a siding at Mastin, but had not reached that station, and was met on a culvert, a mile beyond Mastin, by the flyer. Both engines were demolished.

The music teachers of Alabama will meet in Birmingham June 14th and 15th for the purpose of organizing a state music teachers' association.

RUSSIAN VESSEL LOST

RED CROSS FUNDS ARE MISSING.

Japanese Fleet at Port Arthur is Surprised and Four Vessels are Sunk.

It is persistently reported that the Port Arthur squadron made a sortie shortly before dawn Saturday, with the torpedo boat destroyers leading, and found the Japanese fleet quite unsuspecting the presence of hostile warships, with the result that four of the Japanese ships were sunk during the attack.

The rumor is not given credence in some circles, for it is not believed Russian vessels are coaled.

Four thousand Russians belonging to General Stakelberg's brigade on May 31 attacked 1,500 Japanese occupying a position five miles south of Wafangtien. The Russians were repulsed, losing 200 killed and 400 wounded. The Japanese lost more than 100 killed.

General Kuroki has been suffering from a mild attack of typhus fever, but he has now recovered. The general belief is that General Kuropatkin will not advance to the relief of Port Arthur. In any case orders to do so have not yet been transmitted.

England has obtained from Japan in behalf of Russia assurances that the Japanese will not destroy seals in Bering sea during the war.

The Russians are printing a newspaper in Chinese at Mukden for the purpose of influencing the natives. The latest copy says that the Japanese attempted to float a second loan in America for $3,750,000, but were coldly rejected. Other contents of the paper explain that the Russian loss in the Yalu battle was due to the preponderance of the Japanese cavalry, and also says that the Russians will soon dictate peace terms in London, and that the leading Japanese statesmen will be reduced to ricksha coolies.

RIOT AT WORLD'S FAIR.

Bull Fight Was Stopped and Mob Burned the Building.

Incensed over their disappointment to see a genuine bull fight which the authorities had ordered stopped, a riot was started in an arena near the 2500 men and boys, who were unable to get their money back, and the building was burned to the ground. Four men were placed under arrest charged with the destruction of property. The crowd thinking these men were connected with the show made an attempt to mob them, and in their encounter with the deputy sheriffs a number were roughly handled and some received scalp wounds. The building cost $25,000. It is a total loss with no insurance.

Lost a Hand.

Jim Hickson, a young railroad man of Pratt City, met with an accident which resulted in the loss of his right hand and other injuries. The young man was assisting in the switching of a train of loaded coal cars. In attempting to apply the brakes he lost his balance and fell between the cars to the ground. His body was caught underneath the moving train and dragged some distance before the engine could be brought to a stop. The other trainmen who witnessed the accident hastened to the unfortunate young man's rescue expecting to find only his mangled and lifeless body. They were surprised to find him alive and conscious. The right hand was so badly crushed as to necessitate amputation.

Killed by Falling Rock.

Wint E. Robison, a white miner in the employ of the Vulcan Coal Company, was fatally injured Saturday in the mine at Coal City. He was the victim of a loosened rock.

Robison had started through a crosscut in the mine to do some blasting and sat down to rest a few minutes. While in a sitting posture a rock jarred loose by dynamite a few hours before fell, striking Robison on the right leg and mashing him against the wall. His leg was broken and his back was injured, besides other internal injuries that hastened his death.

The Atlantic Coast line has under consideration extensive terminal improvements at Jacksonville, Fla., which will provide for the heavy traffic in phosphate, naval stores and lumber, which the company handles at that point.

Mobile's Dry Dock.

The port of Mobile boasts the largest wooden single box dry dock in the United States and possibly in the known world. It was launched Thursday, June 2d.

This dock is the property of the Ollinger Bruce Dry Dock Company. The dimensions are 310 feet by 82, with 11 feet depth and 35 feet side walls. With the pumps in place, the dock can be emptied of its water in thirty minutes, can handle a vessel of 3,200 tons dead weight or a 4,000-ton gross ship of any kind."

MONTGOMERY JEWELER.

William Ludicus Committed Suicide Last Thursday.

Soaked in blood, with decomposition well advanced, the body of William Ludicus, a well-to-do Montgomery citizen, was discovered in his room. He killed himself with a pistol last Thursday afternoon. He was a dwarf being only a little over three feet tall.

Swarms of flies were passing in and out of the room through a back window and the transom, and nearly all that part of the building was permeated with a horrible odor. These caused the investigation that led to the discovery of the tragedy.

Thursday afternoon was heard a report like a pistol shot, but it was concluded it was only a torpedo on the tracks of the street car line near by.

Indications were profuse that the unfortunate man struggled considerably after the shot was fired. The most thorough investigation failed to reveal anything in the way of note or message explaining the deed. He amassed a fortune, on which he has lived for some time. His property consists of real estate and bank stock, much of the latter being in the Merchants' and Planters' Farley, National of Montgomery.

No reason can be conceived for the deed of self-destruction. Mr. Ludicus was cheerful when last seen on Thursday, and no one remembers that he seemed other than his usual self, either as the result of mental distress or the use of stimulant.

STABBING AT GIRARD.

Young Man Lacked Surgical Attention for Fifteen Hours.

In Girard Charles Edwards, a 19-year-old boy, was dangerously and possibly fatally stabbed. It is claimed that Reid Ballard, aged 15, did the cutting, and R. F. Jones, aged 16, held Edwards so the other could stab him. The two boys were arrested and placed in jail. Edwards claims that quite a number of young men attacked him. It was stated that the young man could not obtain medical assistance, the doctors refusing to go to the house for fear they would be summoned before court as witnesses, thus entailing loss of time.

A physician was secured for Edwards this afternoon, fifteen hours after he was cut, and he is now receiving medical attention.

JUDGE RANDOLPH BACK.

Supposed to be in Montgomery.—Baggage is There.

It is reported that Frank Randolph, ery county, is in Montgomery somewhere, but he can not be located. Several trunks are at the depot marked "F. C. R." with baggage bill for them marked F. C. Randolph. Every place where he is likely to go has been searched, but he can not be found.

Randolph left Alabama in 1895, having been discovered short many thousands of dollars. He went to South America and in Honduras shot and killed a man, for which he was sent up for life. On strong efforts of United States officials he was pardoned. The state recovered money lost to it by entering suit for a legacy left by Randolph's uncle in Philadelphia. Mrs. Randolph recently entered suit for divorce, which is now pending.

William Tommie, formerly of Hokes Bluff, Etowah county, became involved in a row with his landlord, a Mr. Wills, when they came to blows several times during the day. At night when the man reached home the trouble was renewed, whereupon Red Tommie, a brother of William Tommie, knocked Mr. Wills down, who jumped up and shot at Red, the bullet plowing its way through his hair. Wills then shot at William Tommie, striking him in a fatal point. After being shot Tommie ran into the house and secured a gun and coming out fired at Wills but missed him. Tommie fell to the ground and expired without saying a word. Wills escaped to the woods and is still at large. Mr. Wills had returned home only a short while ago from the asylum.

Dead by Her Own Hand.

Miss Pearl Morgan, an attractive young lady of Alabama City, aged 19, committed suicide by taking an overdose of morphine.

All efforts to save her life failed, the cause is known for her rash act. She purchased the morphine Friday. She leaves a father and several brothers and sisters.

The 1904 meeting of the Alabama State Association is scheduled for June 14, 15 and 16 at Tuscaloosa. It will be the twenty-third annual session.

FLOODS IN KANSAS

Cause Immense Damage. Rivers Overflowed Twice in Thirty Days.

WATER UP TO SECOND STORIES.

Cloudbursts Add to the Volume of Water—Six Hundred Homeless at Newton.

All tributaries of the Kaw river in Kansas are rising rapidly and a serious flood is threatened. Heavy rains continuing for two days have prevailed over Kansas.

Twice within thirty days most of the streams have overflowed their banks, washing out railroad tracks and crops, destroying much property and rendering several hundred persons temporarily homeless. But each time there came a lull in the rainfall, the rivers receded, and almost normal conditions prevailed.

In the past twenty-four hours, however, heavy rain storms have again swollen the streams, this time beyond the height experienced in the two former rises. Rain continues to fall at many points throughout Kansas and the ultimate results must be that the Kaw, already bankful at many places, will overflow its banks at Kansas City.

Railroad traffic is demoralized and many trains, both east and west-bound, are stalled. The principal streams affected are the Kaw, the Smoky Hill, the Republican and the Marais Des Cygnes. So far no casualties have been reported.

At Newton over 600 persons have been rendered homeless by a sudden rise in Sand creek. The flooded district embraces about one-fourth of Newton and in many houses the water stands as high as the second-story windows. The rise in the creek was caused by a cloudburst and the water rose so rapidly that hundreds of persons were caught in their homes. Hundreds of men worked all night rescuing the unfortunates. Morning found all removed to places of safety, but with the water still rising further heavy damage is likely.

At Emporia three inches of rain fell within a few hours and the Cottonwood river flooded the business portion of the town and caused much damage. Commercial street was converted into a river and boats were used.

Topeka is threatened with a flood as serious as that of last year when the property damage amounted to over $300,000.

At Parkville the water in the Neosho is within two feet of last year's record and still rising.

Electric Cars Collide.

Six persons were killed and a dozen or more others badly hurt as the result of a collision between electric cars at Norwalk, Ohio.

All those who were killed were in the smoking compartment of the car, and death came instantly. The injuries of several are so serious that they may result fatally.

France Wants Cruisers.

The naval budget provides a total appropriation of $62,000,000, which is $1,050,000 in excess of the budget for the current year. The increase is largely in a provision for a reserve for armored cruisers for the northern squadron and a division of torpedo destroyers for the Asiatic squadron. A general reorganization of the coast defense is also provided for.

Lost a Leg in Mid Air.

While at work on a twenty-story building in lower Broadway, New York, John Sullivan, a laborer, fell five stories and lost one of his legs in mid air. Sullivan struck an iron girder with great force. It cut off one of his limbs above the knee like a knife.

May Be Built Yet.

A story is current in railroad circles that the Frisco system is seriously considering at this time the advisability of constructing a line from Vicksburg to Birmingham, to follow the route of the proposed Vicksburg and Birmingham railroad, which was chartered several years ago, and a preliminary survey made. The plan now being considered is said to be to build a line from Canton to Carthage, Miss., and afterwards follow up the entire route as laid down in the original Vicksburg and Birmingham survey.

Secretary Taft has approved the allotments made by the quartermaster general of the funds for barracks and quarters at various army posts and for the amounts to be expended during the fiscal year beginning July 1st.

At Houston, Tex., there was turbulence in the street car strike Friday, several men being hurt, and the mayor ordered the light guard to disperse a crowd which had gathered about the office of the car company.

ORDERED TO PORT ARTHUR.

Viceroy Alexieff and General Kuropatkin having asked the emperor to settle their disputes, his majesty summoned a council of war. General Kuropatkin has been advised to attempt to relieve the fortress, but to act with the greatest prudence.

Telegrams from different points seem to confirm the rumors that General Kuropatkin is making a diversion in the direction of Port Arthur. Russian reinforcements, according to a dispatch from Tien Tsin, are moving southward aggregating 12,000 men. Another brigade is following, the intention being to disengage the Japanese now attacking Port Arthur in their rear.

No further news of any kind has been received about the movement of the Japanese forces. Both Generals Kuroki and Oku are working in the utmost secrecy.

The Russians have completed eleven fortresses at Liao Yang and are laying mines at a distance of 5,000 feet around them.

A Russian warrior is quoted as saying:

"If Kuropatkin is weak enough to advance, he will commit a serious blunder. The number of his troops is insufficient, and the conditions under which he would act are unfavorable. He might meet an almost irreparable reverse, and Port Arthur be further from relief than ever. If we try to relieve Port Arthur we will be doing exactly what the Japanese hope."

Russian naval contractors have been advised that final preparations for the Baltic fleet must be completed by the first week of August.

A St. Petersburg telegram says two submarines started for the far east Friday.

An additional force of 15,000 Japanese is reported landed at Takushan.

SURRENDERED THE RAILROAD,

But Not Until Sensational Scenes Were Enacted.

The final scenes in surrendering the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad to North Carolina's authority were sensational. Judge Purnell approved the bond required in the supersedeas of Chief Justice Fuller, saying that he doubted its legality, as it was signed out of the circuit by the chief justice, but he would approve it in deference to his superior officer. He also questioned as to whether the state could get possession of the receivers without a further order.

Governor Aycock wired the superintendent of the road at Newbern to take possession. The answer came back that the receivers would not recognize his authority, though warned that this was at their peril. Superintendent Dill asked if he should put them out.

Governor Aycock telegraphed back to put them out of the office, and if necessary call on the sheriff to do so, adding:

"If military is needed, notify me. Order of Chief Justice Fuller shall be obeyed."

The governor wired authority to the sheriff and military to act if needed, saying the order of the chief justice should be enforced with the whole power of the state.

Finally, by the use of more conservative force, Receivers McBee and Mears were removed.

The arrival of President Bryan, of the Atlantic and North Carolina railroad, was signaled by the shrieking of whistles, ringing of bells, explosion of torpedoes, and salvos of cheers.

Mexican Veterans, Too.

The veterans of the Mexican war will meet in Nashville at the same time the confederate veterans hold their reunion.

3 1-3c a Year.

A New York judge has sentenced two men to nine years and six months in prison for stealing thirty cents. The men are ex-convicts, it is said, and were found guilty of holding up a woman. The fact that her purse, which they snatched, was almost empty did not lessen their crime in the eyes of the court.

A. O. U. W. Supreme Master Dead.

It is said that the request of the United States for the co-operation of France in bringing about the release of Ion Perdicaris and Cromwell Varley has produced a very favorable impression at Paris, where much significance is attached to the request, as embodying the first distinct international recognition of France's paramount influence in Morocco.

DEMOCRATS of Chilton will have a rousing rally and barbecue at Clanton this coming Saturday.

THE Russo-Jap war has not been very active this last week, but from the preparations being made by both sides, stirring news may be expected shortly.

MONTGOMERY is to have a new and up-to-date hotel on the site of that old landmark, the Exchange. Montgomery won't look like the same city with the old Exchange gone.

THE Democratic party of Chilton county has not felt so enthusiastic for a long time as it does at present, the prospects of victory in November increase every day.

ANARCHY prevails in the Cripple Creek mining district in Colorado. Armed men throng the streets and conflicts are constantly occurring. Twelve non-union miners were killed by the explosion of an infernal machine, and it is said that twenty-two men are dead and a score or more injured in the riots taking place there.

The Weekly Crop Bulletin reports: Copious to heavy and generally well distributed rains during the first week, followed by warm, dry weather, made the week, as a whole, very favorable for all crops; the last three days were generally hot, the temperature being slightly above 100 degrees in some middle counties on Sunday; in some western and extreme southern counties, the rainfall was light, and more is needed; in extreme southeastern counties the drought has been fairly well broken, but more rain is needed in that section also. Cotton has improved considerably; the stands are now fair to good; while the plants are still small, they are generally growing nicely; chopping is practically completed; the crop, as a whole, is clean and well worked, and squares are forming on some of the early planted; there are very few reports of lice.

On motion a committee of three, viz., S. M. Adams, T. A. Curry and Tipton Mullins, was appointed to nominate a delegation to the county convention to be held at Clanton, June 11, 1904, with instructions to name a full delegation of twelve, or as many more as was considered advisable. The committee reported the names of twenty-four delegates to the convention, it being understood that the delegation can only cast twelve votes. The delegates are as follows:

The meeting then adjourned to give the committees time to act, and on Tuesday morning the adjourned meeting was held at the office of Col. W. A. Collier, and the preliminary arrangements completed.

Value of the Cotton Crop of 1903.

The estimated value of the cotton crop of 1903 is $660,549,230.82, compared with $501,897,134.65 for that of 1902. The average value of a 500-pound bale of cotton grown in 1903 is $60,80, against $41 for 1902, an increase of $10.80 per bale. To the farmer producing 10 bales, this amounts to a gain of $198.

Notwithstanding the crop of 1903 was less than that of 1902 by 779,816 bales, the value of this crop to the producer has been greater by $158,652,096.17. The population of the 12 important cotton states is estimated at 20,907,047, of which 17,279,687 may be considered as rural and closely identified with the cultivation and harvesting of the cotton crop. The per capita production for rural population in 1903 was 272 pounds, valued at $33.20; and for the total population of these states, 225.4 pounds, valued at $27.41. The increased value of the crop of 1903 over that of 1902 amounts to $9.18 per capita of rural population and $7.59 on the basis of the total population. The value of the cotton crop of 1903 is greater than that of any other agricultural product except corn, which for 1905 was estimated at $952,868,801. The wheat crop grown in 1903 was estimated at $443,024,826, or $217,524,404,82 less than the value of the cotton crop of 1903.

In 1903 cotton was grown in 812 counties of the United States, whose total area amounts to 472,566 square miles, or 306,922,240 acres. The area from which cotton was harvested in 1903 was estimated by the United States Department of Agriculture at 28,014,860 acres. This would indicate that 1 acre in every 11 of the area of the cotton counties was devoted to cotton culture. The 12 important cotton producing states contain a total area of 487,798,400 acres, and of this total area only 1 acre in every 17 was given to cotton.

GOLD MINING IN CHILTON.

From the New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Gold in paying quantities, it is believed by experts, has been found near Jemison, Ala. Col. M. B. Hilliard, an experienced metallurgist, who lives in New Orleans, has returned from Alabama bringing with him a lot of specimens rich with the yellow metal, and a full account of the vein which has been discovered. He says that capitalists will at once develop the vein, plans to that end having already been formulated. Among those interested in the development of the mining property is H. Dudley Coleman, melter and refiner, employed at the United States mint here, who owns the option on the property where the gold has been discovered. It is the purpose of Mr. Coleman and others to organize their capital and put in a stamp mill to extract the gold from the rock.

The mine is known as the Glasscock mine, and is situated near the town of Jemison, in Chilton county. Gold was discovered in that region more than forty years ago, and stories are told of men wearing nuggets taken from mountain streams as watch charms. About two years ago Martin J. Franklin, a farmer, panned some gold in a small stream where the Glasscock mine is now located. Since then numerous tests and experiments have been made, with the result that rich paying ore has been found.

According to Col. Hilliard, an expert who was paid $100 a day, has made assays and his report is extremely encouraging to the prospectors. At the top of the opening the body of the ore assayed $3.60 per ton. Ten feet into the rock it assayed $6.20 per ton. The remarkable feature of the tests was that the expert took the samples every two inches for sixty-five feet on the vein. It is believed that the vein is half a mile in length. Another eminent metallurgist took one hundred samples out of a lot of culled rock and found that they averaged $18.30 per ton. Col. Hiliard says that a lawyer in Birmingham has had an assay made of rock about fifteen feet on the pitch of the vein, or about ten feet deep, which shows a value of $36 per ton. Out of five assays made from the rock taken at one time and assaye at different places without anyone of the assayers knowing that the others were making the same tests, all of the specimens coming from a shallow depth showed a value of $8.68 per ton. After these tests the men interested became satisfied of the existence of the vein. It was then that Col. Hiliard was requested to go to the mine and obtain specimens of the rock. He was asked to see that the specimens came from the mine and were securely boxed, so that no imposition could be practiced. He took out about 1200 pounds of rock, and these samples will be sent to some milling plant and further tested. Col. Hilard says he put in several blasts at different parts of the vein and saw the ore taken out and boxed. One body of ore was taken from the lower part of the vein. At this point it is said the ore will assay $100 per ton, which is almost as rich as rock is ever found to be. Col. Hiliard boxed 300 pounds of the ore seperately, which will be assayed to show the exceeding richness of a particular point. The other 900 or more pounds of ore will assay, it is said, from $3.60 to $6.00 per ton, these specimens coming from various points at the surface of the vein.

Col. Hilard says no attempt will be made by the men interested in the mine to put stock on market, as they are satisfied to keep their holdings, believing firmly that the property will prove of vast value. It is believed by these prospectors that in few years the gold fields of Alabama will challenge the attention of the world.

DIED.

On Sunday last, June 5, Mr. Charles H. Dansby died at his home near Verbena. He had been in poor health for some months past, and passed peacefully away on Sunday. The remains were carried to Pensacola, Fla., on Monday, for interment. A widow and seven children mourn the loss of a good husband and father; may the Lord be with them in their affliction.

THE CRY OF THE EASTERN WAR.

A valued correspondent asks what the point at issue is between Japan and Russia in the present war; and asks further if the Czar who called together the Peace Tribunal at The Hague, has not declined its offices in the settlement of the present dispute. The last question may be best answered first. The Czar was the leading spirit in founding the Peace Tribunal. He has not declined its good offices. These so far as we know have not been tendered to either party.

In getting at the foundations of the struggle now going on, it is only necessary to say, it is a war of conquest on both sides growing out of the density of population in Japan on the one hand and on the other Russia's longing for a deep ice-free harbor on the Pacific. Japan is the most thickly populated country on the globe, Belgium in Europe or China in Asia not excepted. These teeming millions were overrunning peacefully the territory of China in Manchuria and in China's dependent state, Korea. It was the friction engendered by this race movement that provoked the war between China and Japan in 1894. Japan is duplicating almost to the letter by her present operations on land the campaign she fought ten years ago. The end of that war found Japan in complete control of every foot of land now in dispute with Russia. Russia backed up by France and Germany then stepped in and wrenched with a threat both Manchuria and Korea from Japan's hold and Russia proceeded at once to make an armed camp of Manchuria, pretending to do this as the friend and ally of China. Taking advantage of the Boxer insurrection she largely re-enforced her army in the Far East. With the crushing of the Boxer rebellion, Russia was confronted with the necessity of explaining her continued activity in building towns and fortresses and in steadily strengthening her army. She did this by promising Great Britain, the United States, and Japan in turn and every time they asked a promise, that she was preparing to clear out. Nobody believed in Russia's good faith, but she evidently reckoned in playing with the situation, on the difficulty any one power would have in dislodging her. So she lied and re-enforced, re enforced and lied. For nearly a year, Japan made free by an alliance with England, had been urging on Russia not only to give a promise to clear out, but to make a [illegible] knew this meant war and she redoubled her efforts to make herself secure against attack in Manchuria. She put Japan off, once, twice, three times and Japan determined to wait no longer. She struck at Port Arthur and the rest we know.

In the upshot of it all, it seems clear Japan was the aggressor originally as against China and Russia the aggressor as against Japan. The first blow does not count in a conflict where two nations have for years been steadily arming for war. Japan was being cut off from any possible growth in the only direction where growth was to be had. She is fighting for elbow room, Russia for a coast line where she can build and operate great fleets. China is to pay the piper whatever the event; that is in land. It must be said, however, that Japan has been studiously correct in her treatment of China, and offers, it is understood, to turn over Port Arthur promptly to China if China feels equal to governing there. Japan will too throw the whole region open to foreign trade. This generosity is in deference to European public opinion. Japan has no notion of ever again releasing her hold on Manchuria and Korea except at the point of the bayonet.—Montgomery Advertiser.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery.

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins, antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflamation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. AN INFERNAL MACHINE

Sends Fifteen Colorado Miners to Their Doom. Reign of Terror Existing.

300 POUNDS OF DYNAMITE IN IT.

Fifteen men were killed by the explosion of an infernal machine at the railroad station in Independence, Colo., and several others were seriously injured. Eleven men were killed outright and one died later from his wounds. All the killed and injured with the exception of two men were non-union miners employed on the night shift of the Findley mine. The men had quit work at 2 a. m and were waiting to board a suburban train on the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad and return to their homes in Cripple Creek and Victor.

Just after the engineer of the approaching train blew his whistle an explosion occurred underneath the station platform, on and near which twenty-six men were gathered. The platform was wrecked and a hole 20 feet in circumference and about as deep was torn in the ground.

Some of the bodies dropped into the pit made by the explosion, but pieces of flesh were found on buildings 500 feet away and blood stains covered every foot within a radius of fifty feet. The force of the explosion was felt throughout the camp, and the crash awakened everybody.

Amputation has been performed upon a number of the wounded, but it is almost certain that several of them will die.

A majority of the dead and wounded were single men, but had families living in the district.

The infernal machine with which the work was done consisted of a quantity of dynamite, estimated at 100 to 300 pounds, a loaded revolver and a wire attached to the trigger. The wire ran from under the station to the cribbing of the Delmonico property, about 400 feet away, where its end was fastened to a chair. The dynamite was placed close to the muzzle of the revolver which was discharged by pulling the wire when the engineer blew his whistle. The ball from the revolver exploded the dynamite.

A man was seen running down the hill from the Delmonico after the explosion. The troops who were ordered out were so stationed as to keep people from passing over the path taken by this man, and bloodhounds were sent for the purpose of trailing the assassin.

The Western Federation of Miners will investigate the outrage and have sent men to the district to make a thorough investigation of the affair and to spare no one in its report.

Armed men throng the streets and conflicts are hourly occurrences. Militiamen are marching hither and thither, making arrests by wholesale. A number of union miners have been placed in the military bull pen. City and county officials have been compelled to resign their offices because of their reputed sympathy.

As near as can be estimated twenty-two are dead and a score or more injured.

A company of militiamen was marched past union headquarters, pursuing their search, and they were fired upon, according to reports from men concealed in union hall. The soldiers stormed the building and from last accounts seven unionists were shot dead in their tracks.

Victor hardware dealers have been ordered not to sell firearms to miners.

STATUTE ATTACKED.

Concerning the New Judicial Districts of Alabama.

A bill of exceptions in the case of Minerva Walker, who, at Huntsville, was convicted of the murder of Constable Russell and sentenced to imprisonment for life, has been filed. The defense takes an appeal on the grounds that the bill creating the new judicial circuits of Alabama was not adopted by the legislature in accordance with the constitution, and that trial by the court of the sixteenth circuit was irregular and illegal. The matter will be thoroughly tested in the supreme court, and upon the final decision rests the fate of the new judicial districts in Alabama.

Tuscaloosa Store Burned.

NOT SUCH A TERROR.

Boll Weevil Ant Said by Texans to be Common Insect.

The department of agriculture has been advised that Dr. Cook, who has discovered in Gautemala an ant that is a fierce enemy of the boll weevil, has started by the overland route from Guatemala for the cotton fields, carrying colonies of ants with which experiments will be made in the weevil ravaged sections. If these experiments prove as successful as is expected by the department, the ant colonies will be imported in a wholesale manner. Dr. L. O. Howard, the chief entomologist of the department, has received from his experts in Texas regarding the reported discovery in Beaucar county of an ant that destroys the weevil.

The report says that the ant mentioned is the common Texas ant and nothing unusual has been developed by the investigation into the matter. it suggests that the weevils had been feeding and depositing eggs on the plants left over from last season and that many of the femals which died and fell to the ground were eaten by the ants, and adds that as the extreme dry weather has reduced the number of plant lice on the cotton, the ants thus deprived of their natural food merely took advantage of the opportunity to feed on the weevils.

MERRIMAC'S ENGINEER

Dies at Cambridgeport, Mass., of Bright's Disease.

George F. Phillips, who won renown as engineer of the collier Merrimac, sunk by Hobson at the mouth of Santiago harbor, died in Cambridgeport, Miss.

Phillips enlisted in the navy as a machinist at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. When Hobson called for volunteers to sink the collier Phillips offered his services. He remained at the engine of the Merrimac and at great personal danger reversed his engines under a storm of shells, then opened the sea valves, flooded the ship and made his way to the deck while the vessel was sinking. After the war Phillips was transferred to Philippine waters.

His death was due to Bright's disease. He was taken ill in Galveston last March and came north. A mother and two sisters survive him.

A WOMAN'S BODY

Found Floating in the Tennessee River Below Knoxville.

The decomposed, dismembered body of a woman was taken from the Tennessee river near Knoxville, parts of the body having been found in three different places, two miles apart.

The police are inclined to think that the body had been placed in the river by medical students. They claim the bones are sawed too well for any person other than a medical student. People in the up-river section are not satisfied with this theory, however, and are keeping a watch to see if anybody will come for the boat which was found drifting near the bank.

Another Farm Located.

One of the demonstration farms authorized by the government for the state of Mississippi will be located at Ridgeland, in Madison county, about eight miles north of Jackson, and arrangements will be made to get the farm in preparation for the various fall crops on which the government intends to make demonstrations of methods of culture.

The department has authorized four of these farms for Mississippi. The first of the number was located near Wiggins, in Harrison county, several weeks ago, a large tract of land having been donated, and the third will go to Panola county, near Courtland. The fourth has not been decided upon, but will be located in the delta.

These farms are not experiment stations, but are intended to demonstrate the best methods of cultivating crops, which have been found to be profitable by agriculturists in the employment of the government.

System Applied to Robbery.

John Culverhouse, a negro porter at the Louisville and Nashville depot at Minter, was locked up on the charge of burglary. The agent at Minter has been missing small sums of money for over a year and every trap to catch the guilty party failed until recently. Mr. Jack Dilburn, a merchant of the place, concealed himself in the depot while Agent Lee went to dinner. The agent had hardly gotten out of sight when a key was thrust in the lock and Culverhouse entered the door. He walked to the safe, quickly worked the combination and took $1.75 out of the drawer. Just as he was closing the drawer Mr. Dilburn covered him with a revolver.

The negro would never take but a small amount of the money that was in the drawer, and the agent for a long time thought he was making errors in change.

It is not likely that any further attempt will be made to hold it in the future, but the building will probably be taken down and sold. It has been conducted for ten years by voluntary subscriptions, and no salaries have been paid to any of its officials.

Wants Ships Called Off.

Although no official intimation on the subject has been given, it is understood that France would view favorably the withdrawal of some of the American warships now at Tangier. Their presence has had the effect of attracting ships of the Italian and British. According to the French view, if a local agitation occurred ships might land forces to preserve order, and this would have the effect of discrediting France's influence in Morocco. The American officials say that the United States warships will be promptly withdrawn if France undertakes the entire burden of securing the release of Ion Perdicaris.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

A STRONG DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "WHAT CHURCH OWES CHILDREN."

The Rev. Howard Melish Talks Wholesomely on the Promise of Zechariah to His Discouraged Countrymen—Man's Thirst For Righteousness.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—"What the Church Owes the Children" was the subject of a strong sermon preached by the Rev. Howard Melish, rector of the Church of the Holy Trinity. A number of requests for its publication have been received and it is herewith given. The text was from Zechariah viii, 5: "The streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof." Mr. Melish said:

Zechariah gave the promise as a word of encouragement to his discouraged countrymen when on their return from their exile they were trying in the face of enemies and great obstacles to rebuild Jerusalem. The time will surely come, he says to them believe, when the city shall stand once more on Mount Zion in all its former strength and splendor, blessed with that greatest of all its resources, children at play. The streets of the city shall be full of boys and girls playing in the streets thereof.

One of the wonderful stories which came last Christmas told with the phenomenal growth of the American city. How true it is that the hope of the nation lies in its children. The tremendous responsibility which is resting upon the men and women of our cities in connection with the most significant and sobering facts of our times.

The city is built. The problem's promise has been fulfilled. The streets are full of boys and girls. But what a fundamental! They are playing in our streets because we have built our cities in such a way that there is no other place for them to play. In our tenement districts especially the houses stand so closely together that there is scarcely space for light and air to enter rooms, not to mention courts, back yards, play grounds and small parks. Within a short walk of where we are to-day are hundreds of families living in one or two small rooms to a family, rooms often gloomy at mid-day. Of course, the children are in the streets.

And what places the streets are for these little ones! Look over the pages of our papers day by day with the children in mind and you read the sad story of this little child crushed by a car, of that one maimed for life by some wagon. Go into the Children's Court and see boys of twelve and fourteen arrested for crimes which would send men to the penitentiary for a long period of years. Between the crowded tenements and these injuries, deaths and crimes, there is the relation of cause and effect. The tenements drive the boys into the streets, and there they are forbidden by the police and prevented by traffic to play games which kept me and my boy friends from going to the devil. No! I don't mean that insinuation. The good God won't let the devil have those boys. They may become impertinent criminals, and die like the hardened thief on the cross, but conditions shaped them, and God will give them, in my heart of hearts, I believe, a new chance to become like Him in the new city, Jerusalem, which is not built by men's hands. And yet true it is that in our cities boys who are denied the healthy amusements of boy life drift into the crap games and form street gangs which terrify neighborhoods and brutalize boys and turn the spirit of mischief into the demon of crime. Jacob Riis has told us that between the tenement and the penitentiary he has found a beaten path, traveled by the feet of hundreds of our boys every year.

It is about this somewhat new and very serious situation of the children of our streets that I want you to think with me this morning.

It is often said, as an argument against the church assuming this responsibility, that the church's one mission is to preach the gospel, and I want to say at the start that the purpose of the church has never been more correctly defined. The gospel is the message of the good tidings that God cares for men, that God is love. Once let a man accept that message and let it sink into his soul that it becomes the principle of his life, and even though he lives in a badly ventilated house in a crowded district, surrounded by evil influences, yet he will be a good citizen, son, father, husband and friend. Yes, and once let a landlord receive the gospel in his heart and he will transform his tenement into decent abiding places if it costs him half his income. For the gospel of the Son of God is the regenerating power in the world which makes all things new. To preach it clearly, with consecration and power, is the supreme, all important, never-to-be-forgotten mission of the church of Christ.

But how is the gospel to be preached in our crowded cities to-day? It is as important to know the way as the destination when one is trying to reach a definite point in the world. Some men fancy that the city needs nothing more than a country village—a preacher and a building—to have the gospel preached with power. There was a famous test case of that preaching on the East Side in Manhattan. A man of ability determined to preach the gospel every Sunday and do nothing else, believing that people would come as they did before the city became what it is to-day. After several years he gave up the work as a proved failure. He was a John the Baptist crying in the city wilderness, but unlike John's experience the people did not come out to listen to the voice. And I believe it is because they were waiting for the Christ. Not the voice in the wilderness, but the man to go about doing good, healing, strengthening, encouraging, inspiring. Sermons, services and prayer meetings are preaching the gospel and do good. Many of us could not live without them. But they do not monopolize preaching the gospel. Did Jesus do nothing but preach and teach? The church needs to learn anew the message of the incarnation, the truth that life is imparted only through a life. We are Christ's body. May we prove it by going, as He went, into the highways and back alleys, doing good, bringing hope to the discouraged, lifting up the fallen, taking little children into our arms, and so assuring them as Christ assured the world that love reigns enthroned above this world of pain, sorrow and hardship. When the church is a manifestation of Christ among men, as Jesus was of God, not merely by speaking and singing and communion, but by living, working, helping in the world the gospel of Christ will be truly preached.

Let me specify. One man may stand in a pulpit by telling of God's love, give hope to some poor mother who is almost in despair over her boy. Another man, animated by God's love, may furnish a club room where young men may spend their evenings apart from the dangers of the saloon, and by so doing give hope to the mother whose boy goes there. Both preach the gospel of hope, one in words and the other in deeds. A preacher gives a strong sermon against the saloon and his hearers say he is preaching the gospel. A man starts a cooking class where women learn to make food so wholesome that their husbands and sons do not longer have the desire for drink. Are not both preaching the gospel of the more abundant life? You see what this means. The church is preaching the good tidings of love through every agency which gives hope to men, and makes them feel their brotherhood of men and the Fatherhood in God.

You know the way the churches shirked responsibility for this kind of preaching, the kind that is effective in crowded districts. It is one of the saddest chapters in the history of Christ Churches among our responsibility, splendid exceptions, have all moved up town with their ever-increasing wealth, leaving their poorer members without a shepherd in the tenements." One will hunt far before he finds more un-Christian speech than this. The duty of the Christ-ian church in tenement districts where the children are the richest asset of the future is the plainest duty given us. Instead of the rush to the suburbs and the desire to contribute to missions, here are human souls to be saved for time and eternity. The church must be where the need is greatest. Where the most children are found in the streets, there the church should be found. Where the streets are full of boys and girls playing in the streets there is the place for you young men and young women, and older ones, to gather once a week a little group around you and lead them through the wonderful story of Him who came to earth to be a servant and yet was King Eternal, and then through the alchemy of your own lives of your life move them to love purity, goodness, man, Christ and God. Nor will I admit the older people are to preach the living Christ. There rises before me the picture of a scene in a club in a certain parish house where a professor of political economy most perfectly natural way a brakeman on the Pennsylvania road, and both men come to see that great labor problem more as a real brother and had more of the Christ to them ever before. And I know of scores who have found through the Girls' Friendly society the chance to preach the living Christ so effectively that girls have risen and called them "blessed among women."

The few hours given to such work in a single year seem very powerless before the powers of darkness which walk our streets both day and night, week in and week out, in vacations as in working or school days. But, thank God, a man's life is the equilibrium of forces, a resultant of heredity and environments. In every soul there is a thirst for righteousness which can be aroused by bringing it face to face with the righteous life. There is a constant power for goodness as there is for badness. There are those dormant faculties in every soul which, with Christ's help, will enable them, with all the influences of home and church. This is the opportunity of the church in our crowded cities. By working in the church will find, what every lover of souls who has so met opportunity finds, that he gets by giving and has a firmer hold than ever on the realities of truth and life.

Call such service what you will, but I personally hate the trite phrase, "Institutional, for I am pleading for a church altogether personal, the touch of life with life, but you must believe that the church which assumes this responsibility meets this opportunity is following the example of the Master. When Christ came to earth to lift men up to God He took the form of a common man. He went about, we say, have gathered the Jewish youth on some great plain and revealed His glory, and in the sight of all with such glory men must bow the knee before Him. He would have come with angels straight from heaven and swept men irresistibly into the kingdom train. What He did resembled this, but points the way for us to follow. He was among men as a servant. He lived a life of service, now with words, but always with deeds, and always with a life radiating a contagion of love, courage, manliness, sincerity. He, the Son of God, profoundly touched the hearts of men, and men have risen up and crowned Him King of Kings and Lord of Lords.

The Power of a Godly Life.

In a recent article, the Rev. Dr. Schauffler incidentally said: "I had a teacher in our school who was a common sailor—a godly man. He knew no history, and nothing of science, but he knew Jesus. He so taught his class that everyone found the Savior, and before public confession. By and by he came to me and said: 'Take my class away from me and give it to some one else who is better educated. I can't lead them higher; but I have led them to the Savior. Give me,' he said, 'a new class of boys who do not know Christ, and I will lead them to the Shepherd.' I gave him a new class, and before he died every one of them found the Savior. What was the secret of the tendency in that uneducated man? It was his not his humble trust in Him who is sanctify whatever word is spoken."

Our Responsibility.

"Others sin against us and we suffer in spite of us, but none can injure us. Whenever that is done we have injured ourselves." It were well for us all, ones of earth, yea, and some in heaven, themselves strong, to ponder on this truth. Men are prone to blame others for their misdeeds. This one tempted me, that one led astray. And so the conscience is soothed, the still, small voice is stilled. The consequence is that the real sin, in all probability, is repeated, and repeated when a little wholesome reproof, a little a putting of the real blame where it belongs, would save much. Let us look to our own sin for us. Whenever that is done we have to do it ourselves.—Christian Endeavor World.

His Father's Watch.

The Rev. John McNeil, the well-known evangelist, says:

"I owe more than I can tell to my father. He had a habit of saying little when he spoke to us, nor we to him. He was a hard-working quarryman, and I often found him downstairs on dark mornings sitting by the fire with his watch in his hand on the threshold before I left for work. He would say aloud, 'I go to my work in my father's name.' I can never forget the impression this made upon me, and I can say to-day, 'My father's God is my God.'"

DR. WOOLLEY'S
...PIUM & WHISKY ANTIDOTE
...cure permanently at your own home. ... M. Brown, of Ferguson, Ala., says: "Seven years ago I was cured entirely by your medicine, and have had very good health ever since." ... Tunstall, of Lexington, Ky., is delighted to say that I drove to ... entirely and permanently cured of the Liquor Habit, so I have never even wanted a drink in any form since I took your medicine, now 18 months ago. It was the best money I ever invested." ... Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., moved up town with their ever-increasing ... here leaving their poorer members ... without a shepherd in the tenements." One will hunt far before he finds more un-Christian speech than this. The duty of the Christ-an church in tenement districts where the children are the richest asset of the future is the plainest duty given us. Instead of the rush to the suburbs and the desire to contribute to missions, here are human souls to be saved for time and eternity. The church must be where the need is greatest. Where the most children are found in the streets, there the church should be found. Where the streets are full of boys and girls playing in the streets there is the place for you young men and young women, and older ones, to gather once a week a little group around you and lead them through the wonderful story of Him who came to earth to be a servant and yet was King Eternal, and then through the alchemy of your own lives of your life move them to love purity, goodness, man, Christ and God. Nor will I admit the older people are to preach the living Christ. There rises before me the picture of a scene in a club in a certain parish house where a professor of political economy most perfectly natural way a brakeman on the Pennsylvania road, and both men come to see that great labor problem more as a real brother and had more of the Christ to them ever before. And I know of scores who have found through the Girls' Friendly society the chance to preach the living Christ so effectively that girls have risen and called them "blessed among women."

The few hours given to such work in a single year seem very powerless before the powers of darkness which walk our streets both day and night, week in and week out, in vacations as in working or school days. But, thank God, a man's life is the equilibrium of forces, a resultant of heredity and environments. In every soul there is a thirst for righteousness which can be aroused by bringing it face to face with the righteous life. There is a constant power for goodness as there is for badness. There are those dormant faculties in every soul which, with Christ's help, will enable them, with all the influences of home and church. This is the opportunity of the church in our crowded cities. By working in the church will find, what every lover of souls who has so met opportunity finds, that he gets by giving and has a firmer hold than ever on the realities of truth and life.

Call such service what you will, but I personally hate the trite phrase, "Institutional, for I am pleading for a church altogether personal, the touch of life with life, but you must believe that the church which assumes this responsibility meets this opportunity is following the example of the Master. When Christ came to earth to lift men up to God He took the form of a common man. He went about, we say, have gathered the Jewish youth on some great plain and revealed His glory, and in the sight of all with such glory men must bow the knee before Him. He would have come with angels straight from heaven and swept men irresistibly into the kingdom train. What He did resembled this, but points the way for us to follow. He was among men as a servant. The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

A PRIMROSE BOWER.

The housewife who wishes simplicity, coolness and harmony to characterize a room in her country cottage might well follow the example of Whistler, who designed a room as an embodied protest against the over-decorated furniture and apartments of a score of years ago.

His room was simplicity itself and the colors were those of the primrose. He used every shade from the green leaves and the greeny-yellow stem up to the pale flower. The result was a spring bower as refreshing as a woodland dell after a sunlit plain.

LEMON HEALTH HINTS.

No family should be without lemons in the spring. Their uses, from a health standpoint alone, are very numerous.

Two or three slices of lemon in a cup of strong tea will cure a nervous headache.

Lemon juice is better than any drug or complexion powder for giving permanent clearness and beauty to the skin.

Lemon juice (outward application) will allay the irritation caused by the bites of insects.

A dash of lemon in plain water is an excellent tooth wash. It not only removes tartar, but sweetens the breath.

TACK AS YOU GO.

The economic value of a stitch in time is equaled by that of the tack placed promptly. A sweeping day seldom goes by that the edge of the carpet is not found loose or a shade on the verge of falling from its roller. It is some work to get the hammer and tacks and make repairs, but it pays.

After years of housekeeping experience one concludes that the housekeeper needs her own hammer about as much as her own toothbrush; but, unlike the brush, the hammer must be kept under lock and key. She must never loan it, even on the most urgent plea. A few cents will buy three kinds of tacks—the common carpet tack, double-pointed or straw matting tacks and very small ones for curtains.

Keep the outfit in a little box. Straw matting must be repaired at the first sign of decay, or it will go to ruin quickly. The stove zinc, if ragged edges are nailed down at once, will last a long time after it begins to wear.

Taken in time, household as well as physical ailments may be treated successfully and a long useful life will follow.

SILLY NEATNESS.

One hears so much nowadays about hygienic housekeeping and sanitary matters generally that it seems impossible that any woman who can read ordinary printed matter can fail to have some knowledge on this important question. But for all this it is certain that the woman whose housekeeping may be described as "nasty nice," and whose methods are of fifty years ago, has by no means died out of the land. She lingers here and there with her old-fashioned prejudices and preferences.

She prides herself, it may be, on the fact that every article of clothing of herself or children taken off at night is carefully folded, one piece upon the other, before she gets into bed. This is a piece of folly exacted by elders in past days—a remnant of old-fashioned early Victorian tidiness. Almost better the methods of the average man who flings one garment here and another there. At least they get some chance to ventilate. It is better still when clothes are separated and hung for the night near the open windows.

Then there is the woman who prides herself upon the face that her bed is never seen unmade; that before she goes down to breakfast it is immaculately remade, with its French bolster and its starched "shams," and its interior, alas! still warm. It may be a radiant piece of furniture, but all the same it is a fusty, unhealthy sleeping place.

Then there is the housekeeper who goes out against dust as if she were a London policeman and dust a street gamin. She has but one idea—it must be "moved on," and so with a flapping cloth or that ridiculous household utensil, the feather duster, she stirs it up and whacks it from place to place, but never learns to gather it up into a soft duster and remove it to some place where it will not be rebreathed.

The care of clothes in a closet is another matter often mismanaged. Every one knows how quickly a wardrobe grows fusty, and the happy day may come when architects will manage some method of ventiation for cupboards other than by occasionally leaving the doors wide open. In the meantime, if all clothes are perfectly cooled and aired before they are hung up, and if they are carried out from time to time and hung in the open air for a few hours, this difficulty will be very largely met.

The lives of women who keep the house will be simplified and sweetened when they all learn to "use their brains to save their bodies."—The Youth's Companion.

Wireless telegraphy is in successful use between Port Limon, Costa Rico, and Bocas del Toro, Panama. A station will now be established at Colon.

What is of chief significance in the result of the recent municipal elections in France is the decisive defeat of the Nationalists, who have controlled the governments of several large cities, including Paris. It goes to show that the French people are tired at last of Chauvinism and its eternal incitements to international conflicts. What the French need is peace with their neighbors; and they will no longer tolerate a party that seeks to disturb the friendly relations which they have established on all sides.

Professor Lounsbury takes up another question of English in Harper's Magazine, treating it in the same scholarly and entertaining manner as in his paper on the split infinitive. Now, in "The tSory of an Idiom," he carefully outlines the beginning and growth of the use of would better for had better, a practice of recent inception, but which bids fair to increase if not checked by a knowledge of the real facts in the case. Would better, says Professor Lounsbury, "is as ungrammatical as it is unidiomatic"—a statement which will challenge the attention of a number of people who have been conscientiously if thoughtlessly trailing themselves to the use of would better.

A Japanese house is the simplest thing in the world. It consists of a post at each corner and a roof. One may say it is all on one floor. And in the daytime it is all one room, if it is a small house. The number of rooms in it depends on the number of bedrooms the owner requires. They are divided by night by papers shutters fixed in grooves like the divisions of an old fashioned workbox. There are no doors or passages. Your bedroom acts as a passage, and when you want a door you slide back the nearest panel.

Stanley, the explorer, had little confidence in the material value of tropical Africa until after he met Livingstone. But it was not long before he became imbued with the sublime faith of this great man that there was good in Africa and in its peoples which every popular influence of civilization should help to develop. This faith strengthened in him to his last days. He never tired of African topics. He welcomed at his London or his country home all who knew the work that was being done and had confidence in its value. He lived to see predictions realized that had been counted as idle dreams. He was laughed at when he said that a few years more would see Central Africa joined to the ocean by a railroad; but today trains are running regularly between the Indian Ocean and Victoria Nyanza.

Mrs. Gertrude Atherton's remarks on American literature in the North American Review call forth some pointed comment in Harper's Weekly. Mrs. Atherton, it will be remembered, complained of the bad effect of the magazines in demanding from authors "anæmic literature with vigor, audacity and all American characteristics bleached out of it"; and she derided the magazine authors as "good family men, who eat well, rarely drink, and are too dull to be bored by their own wives." The Harper's Weekly writer rejoins that, on the contrary, "great authors are almost incorrigibly addicted to the comforts of life, and got them if they can," and he cites Mark Twain, Stevenson, Kipling, Dickens, Thackeray, and Bret Harte as examples. There is nothing, he says, the matter with current American literature. "The publishers print the best books they can get; the magazines print the best stories they can get; the public reads the best books and magazines it can find. There is no conspiracy to put down talent, and some notable minds that ought to be making literature are otherwise employed. We fear that there is no better reason for it than the sordid on that the other jobs pay better."

The Outlook says: The Department of Agriculture reports most interesting experiments made by Professor Poffa, of the University of California, upon men engaged in hard manual labor most of the time and students working to support themselves while pursuing their studies. The professor declares: "Nuts are the cheapest source of energy, peanuts ranging far ahead." The price, 3.6 cents per 1,000 calories of energy, is at less cost than any animal food, or potatoes at 90 cents a bushel. Peanuts deserve special mention because they are the cheapest domestic nut containing the highest percentage of proteine, with maximum fuel value and minimum refuse. Ten cents, for instance, will purchase more proteine and energy when spent for flour or meal, but these are raw materials, requiring considerable preparation before they are eaten. This is not necessary with fruits and nuts. Ten cents' worth of peanuts will contain about four ounces of proteine and 2,767 calories of energy. Although peanuts supply proteine and energy for a smaller sum than bread, they are outranked by dried beans, which, at five cents a pound, will supply for 10 cents over 200 grams of proteine and 3,040 calories of energy. If more peanuts and dried beans were used by the fruitarians the diet would be enriched and the cost decreased. Fifteen cents a day was the average cost, with fruit, nuts, beans and a limited quantity of cottage cheese and eggs.

Thimbles.

A soreness in what is called the thimble finger and even serious inflamamtion are sometimes caused by the use of cheap thimbles. These thimbles, which are composed of lead or something equally injurious, may be tempting by reason of their low price, but they are not safe. Silver thimbles are the best, but for those to whom they prove too expensive nothing is better than thimbles of highly burnished steel. By a person who gains her living with her needle a steel thimble is always liked, for it will outlast two or three of the more expensive silver ones.

Proper Care of Provisions.

Through carelessness and ignorance the loss is often great if the good things you provide for your larder are not properly taken care of after they are delivered. Salads and fresh greens should not be left to wilt in a hot kitchen. Meat should be put immediately in a cool place and taken off the paper it is wrapped in. Butter and milk must be very carefully treated and always kept by themselves, as they get very quickly tainted with the taste of anything they are near. To pay attention to these little details is the secret of a good housewife, and you will be rewarded both by delicious things for your table and by getting out of your purchases their full value.—New York American.

Doing Things Easily.

"Do sit down," said a wise mother of a family to the new and ambitious young housekeeper. "I do not in the least approve of what might be called laziness, or the habit of collapsing into a chair every time one turns around, but I do believe in saving one's strength when it is just as easy to do it. You are standing at the table to pare your potatoes, when you might just as well sit down to it. By the by there will be cleaning and bruhing and scrubbing to do, when you must stand.

"If there is fruit to prepare, vegetables to get ready or any of the many things where one may remain quiet while doing them, it is much better to sit. This gives renewed energy for the harder part of the work, and, while there is so much about housework that is necessarily taxing, it seems to me a very wise thing to do this. I do not know why economy in strength is not just as important as economy in anything else.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Recipes.

Bean Croquettes—Boil the beans until tender, then mash through a colander. Season with butter, salt and pepper and add enough cream or good brown meat or vegetable stock and beaten egg to make right consistency to form into cylinder-shaped croquettes or into cutlets. Dip and fry same as other croquettes, and serve with tomato puree or sauce.

Brown Betty Pudding—To two cupfuls of finely chopped apples add half a cupful of brown sugar; butter a deep pudding dish; put in a layer of the chopped apples, then sprinkle with a little sugar, a layer of bread crumbs, a little cinnamon and a few dots of butter; continue with alternate layers and sprinkle over the top buttered crumbs; cook in a moderate oven; serve with sugar and cream.

Scotch Eggs—Cook one-third of a cup of stale bread crumbs in one-third of a cup of milk; stir to a smooth paste; mix in it one cupful of lean cooked ham, minced; add half a teaspoonful of made mustard, a pinch of pepper and a dash of cayenne and one raw egg; mix well; remove the shell from the eggs and cover each egg with the mixture; fry in hot fat until brown; drain and serve hot or cold; the quantity of ham, etc., will be sufficient for six hard boiled eggs.

Meat Porcupine—Chop fine some cooked veal, chicken or lamb; add one-fourth its amount of bread crumbs or mashed potato and a small quantity of chopped bacon; season highly with salt, pepper, cayenne and lemon juice; moisten with beaten egg and stock or water enough to shape it; mould or form it into an oval loaf; put it in a well greased pan; cut bacon in strips one inch long and a quarter of an inch wide; with a skewer make holes in the loaf and insert the strips of bacon, leaving the ends out half an inch; then pack the meat firmly against the bacon; put into a hot oven and bake till brown; the bacon will baste the meat sufficiently.

Coffee Fromage—Pour one pint of scalding hot milk over one-third of a cup of ground coffee; let stand 10 minutes; strain this through a clean, wet piece of cheesecloth; have one tablespoonful of gelatine soaking in one-third cup of cold water; add this to the coffee mixture with five tablespoonfuls of sugar; put this in a double boiler; when scalding hot pour over the yolks of two eggs; return all to the double boiler; when scalding hot pour over the yolks of two eggs; return all to the double boiler and bring to the boil, stirring constantly; remove and pour into a bowl; when cold and beginning to thicken add one cup of cream whipped stiff, mixing it thoroughly; turn into a mould; let stand in the ice chest an hour or more; serve on a glass platter.

The Kentucky Soldiers' Home.

Seeing letters in the Banner from some of my friends prompts me to write a few lines.

I will write a few words about the Confederate Soldiers Home in Kentucky, also a few words of federal decoration day.

Last Sunday a friend and myself went out to Pewee Valley to visit the "Old Soldier's" Home. It is 16 miles out from Louisville with which it is connected by an electric line. It is a delightful trip for one who has been shut out from pure country air for some time. You see beautiful fields of growing grain with here and there a stately mansion, the summer home of some prosperous Louisville business man.

Reaching our destination we introduced ourselves to an old gentleman, dressed in grey, who tendered his services to show us through the building. First, we went to the office and, at his request registered; next we were shown the library, which contained an extensive collection of books, magazines, etc. We then went to the billiard room. The "old boys" in grey are prepared for passing rainy days in pleasant games. Next, our guide showed us the dining room and chapel. We were invited to remain for services, and while waiting had quite a pleasant time listening to stories of "conflict furious."

When the time for services drew near people from the surrounding country began to arrive and it was interesting to note with what gallantry and hospitality the old soldiers busied themselves in bringing extra chairs for the ladies, when all the seats had been filled. Rev Carter Helm Jones preached from 1 Tim. 1 15. This was one of the most interesting sermons ever listened to by me, and it was enough to move anyone to see the tears trickling down the cheeks of these old men in grey as they listened to the preaching of the eloquent pastor of Broadway Baptist church.

There are about 130 old soldiers at the home, which is a large four story building surrounded by broad balconies, and well provided in every way for the comfort of the inmates.

On Monday following our school was closed in the afternoon as it was Decoration day. I went out to Cave Hill cemetery where there are some 6000 Federal soldiers laid in their final resting place. Cave Hill is an ideal "city of the dead," containing several hundred acres of land, provided with beautiful drives and walk ways and covered with most costly monuments and decked on every hand with lovely evergreens and beautiful flowers. There was nothing remarkable about the decoration.

The negroes seemed to be the most conspicuous element in the whole affair, and I suppose it was right. I don't know. I see my letter is growing too long so I will quit and trim my pencil for the benefit of the Editor.

BLACK WEED, the great vegetable remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, and Kidney and Bladder complaints, has met with almost instantaneous success because it has made some noteworthy cures of very severe cases.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

BLACK WEED is sold by all druggists at $1.00 a bottle, or we will send prepaid upon receipt of price.

Send Your Name and address at once for a trial sample of this great remedy, which will be sent absolutely free, together with our book containing valuable information and endorsements. Please mention this paper. Address,

The Nashville Reunion.

The Reunion Committee sends the Southern Press the good news that all arrangements are perfected for entertaining the United Confederate Veterans at Nashville, June 14 16.

The Camps of Veterans, the Sons of Veterans, and the three chapters of the Daughters of the Confederacy are working in harmony with the business organizations of Nashville to furnish an entertainment as nearly faultless as possible.

The fact that these conventions had become so expensive to cities entertaining so deterred action that it was left for Nashville to become host again sooner than was expected. But the capital of the Volunteer State, aided by adjacent communities, is ready. All of the people are in hearty accord, and arrangements are such that this invitation to Confederate Veterans everywhere, is extended without reserving in any particular. Arrangements are far better than ever before for Veterans to meet in their own commands—on the campus of the Vanderbilt University.

FEMALE WEAKNESS

843 1-2 Congress St.
Portland, Maine, Oct. 17, 1903.

I consider Wine of Cardui superior to any doctor's medicine I ever used and I know whereof I speak. I suffered for nine months with suppressed menstruation which completely prostrated me. Pains would shoot through my back and sides and I would have blinding headaches. My limbs would swell up and I would feel so weak I could not stand up. I naturally felt discouraged for I seemed to be beyond the help of physicians, but Wine of Cardui came as a God-send to me. I felt a change for the better within a week. After nineteen days treatment I menstruated without suffering the agonies I usually did and soon became regular and without pain. Wine of Cardui is simply wonderful and I wish that all suffering women knew of its good qualities.

Wilhelmina Snow
Treasurer, Portland Economic League

Periodical headaches tell of female weakness. Wine of Cardui cures permanently nineteen out of every twenty cases of irregular menses, bearing down pains or any female weakness. If you are discouraged and doctors have failed, that is the best reason in the world you should try Wine of Cardui now. Remember that headaches mean female weakness. Secure a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui today.

WINE OF CARDUI

In Memoriam.

Died in Birmingham, June 3d, 1904, Mrs. Emma Grimes. She was sick only one day. She had her trunk packed to visit Mr. J. C. Grimes, near Kincheon, on the next day; his buggy was in waiting at Clanton depot to meet her smiling face, but instead he met father with babe in his arms, with mother dead in the baggage coach ahead, whose soul had taken its flight to meet sainted mother and little babe on the other shore. She leaves a husband and one little babe to mourn her loss. She was buried at Bethsalem church; there was a large concourse of relatives and friends at the interment. She was a good mother, a faithful wife, and a good Christian. Our deepest sympathy is with husband and friends in their bereavement.

I'll tell of a little hunt myself and Mr. S. Driver and son taken last Saturday evening while we were resting; we killed 2 hawks, 2 squirrels, 1 rabbit, 5 minks, is not that early up to our friend Wyatt? Best wishes to the Banner.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Hooks, Texas, June 6, 1904

Editor Banner—Please allow me small space for the Texas crops. The farmers of this country are very badly behind with their crops on account of wet weather; crops are very good considering the wet, cool weather. The farmers of this country have formed a Truck Growers' Association and are raising all kinds of truck.

The new Boston Truck Growers' Association sold and shipped eleven car loads of Irish potatoes last week at 70 cents per bushel, averaging 600 bushels to the car. DeKalb, Texas, thirteen car loads at same price, same number bushels to car. Maud, Texas, fifteen car loads were sold at same price, same number of bushels to car; one car put on switch at Hooks this morning to be loaded; there are several other shipping points in Bowie county. Have not heard from adjoining counties. Atlanta, Cass county, Texas, loaded and sold twenty-five cars, same number of bushels to the car; but have not heard what they brought per bushel. I will try to write weekly. So I will close by thanking the Editor for his kindness in publishing this letter.

Yours truly,

M. E. CULP.

Everything is doing well in these parts; crops are looking fine and some few people are laying by their corn. We have no cotton blossoms in this section of the country, as the season was so late this year; but plenty of squares are putting out and soon will be plenty of blooms. Well, if the old sign doesn't fail we are going to have another drouth of about 40 days or as much rain. We learn that there has been seen another one of those things called water dogs, and that is almost a sure sign of 40 days of one or the other.

Rev. O. P. Langston attended his regular appointment at Pleasant Grove Sunday, and preached one of as good, if not better, sermons than we have ever listened to. He still improves and will be an able little minister some day.

The Sunday school is doing fine, and it was very pleasant to listen to them repeat their verses last Sunday, which they are preparing to say the second Sunday in July, which will be the day set for Children's Day at Pleasant Grove. We cordially invite all to come and be with us. After the children have finished and dinner is served, we will have a lecture by Mr. T. U. Crumpton of Maplesville, the great lecturer of Jerusalem and a number of these foreign countries which many of us have not yet seen Come one, come all, and be with us.

TOUGH LUCK.

Maplesville.

The weather for the past few days has been delightfully cool, or rather too dry, for cotton.

The closing exercises of our school were held in the Methodist church on the 10th, as our academy was too small to seat the crowd, who gave most respectful attention. A concert with acting by pupils, reflected great credit on all. This was as satisfactory as the tuition given by Miss Florence Adair; many of her patrons at the close of the exercises were so delighted that they solicited her as teacher for another term. It would be invidious to speak of any, so perfectly were the children drilled, but we cannot forbear speaking of the salutatory speech of Master Latyn Parnell, and the "Doctor," by Master Kelly Martin, in long pants; the "Old Umbrella," by Miss Gazaline Ricketts, and Henry Damsky, "Brought down the house."

The girls' drill in crepe paper was fairy-like, the colors were most tastefully arranged and great assistance was given by Mrs. Saunders from New York. The tableau scene in these costumes was something to be remembered. Program was read by R. H. Martin.

"Alabama" was sung by school, words of our gifted country woman, Miss Julia Tutwiler, at request of T. U. Crumpton.

Medals were presented by C. W. Plant, in a most impressive speech. To Miss Isabel Saportas was awarded the scholarship medal; to Miss Lula Hosby was awarded the penmanship medal, and to Master Albert Gore the medal for regular attendance and perfect deportment.

Miss Edna Ricketts is taking her vacation in Atlanta with relations.

Mrs. N. A. Saportas has returned from a most enjoyable visit to relations in Newnan, Ga.

Our little town has been honored by a visit from Miss Rea Adair of Uniontown. The courtesies extended her by friends were highly appreciated by her hostess, Mrs. Glover.

Last Saturday Dr. and Mrs. Parnell gave a most delightful dance; music was furnished by Kelley's string band. Mrs. Parnell was assisted in receiving by Mrs. Hanlon and Miss Branch, who were elegantly costumed and added much to the enjoyment of the guests. Misses Florence Adair and Elizabeth Ricketts were most gracefully attired in pink and blue crepe de chine, beautiful Miss Charles was greatly enhanced in white organdy, the Misses Abney were beautifully attired in organdy over tinted silk, Miss Rea Adair was lovely in pure white swiss with blue ribbons, Mrs. Ricketts was most tastefully gowned in pale lavender shirt waist suit. Miss Johnnie Wilkerson of Riderville delighted her friends by her presence and was attired in white china silk. Our old friend, Mrs. A. S. Foshee, was there and greatly enjoyed being a looker-on of the young people's enjoyment. Our most estimable friend, T. U. Crumpton, "knocked many years from his head" by tripping the light fantastic toe" with beautiful widows and charming young ladies. Many were heard to say "what a delightful time we had."

Since 1895 there has been a considerable development in the American importation of wood oil from China. Until that year the oil was practically unknown in this country, although it had been used to some extent in Europe. It comes from the so-called oil tree, which grows in China and seeds of which have been successfully planted in California. The oil is valuable for its astringent and drying qualities and is principally used for the finer kinds of furniture varnish. In Europe it is said to have been utilized in soap making.

A potato famine started the wave of Irish emigration which carried nearly 4,000,000 Irishmen (the exact figures are 3,961,011) to foreign lands between the years 1851 and 1903. This is equivalent to 74 per cent. of the average population of Ireland during the period mentioned. The cotton famine in Lancashire, England, may produce a like effect if it shall continue long enough. Two thousand persons weekly, mostly Lancashire mill hands, are sailing for Canada to take up farm work. A dislocation of population is bound to follow any restriction upon the means of subsistence.

The sacred scarab, little Egyptian charms, are manufactured by a Connecticut firm. They are carved and chipped by machinery, colored in bulk, made to simulate age, and shipped in casks to the Moslem dealers at Cairo. The Arabian guides are the chief buyers, many of them being adepts at "salting" the sands at the base of the pyramids, or about the sacred temples, where they artfully discover these scarabei before the very eyes of the Yankee tourist and sell him for an American dollar an article manufactured at a cost of less than a cent, perhaps, within a stone's throw of his own home.

New England makes two-thirds of the boots and shoes produced in this country. The value of the shoe output of New England centres amounts to $175,000,000, a sum exceeding by $40,000,000 the worth of all the gold and silver money coined annually by the United States Government. In its making the modern shoe passes through the hands of 100 to 200 people and the processes of not less than fifty separate machines. American shoes go to every part of the globe, and in whatever place men want to make shoes by modern methods they must come to America—and to New England—for the machinery.

The London Academy bewails the dearth of fine illustrated magazines in England, points with generous pride to the "fine art and remarkable talents" of our American Sarah Stilwell, Elizabeth Shippen Green, and Jessie Willcox Smith, and asks why it is that England seems "unable to produce editors who can gather the best illustrators into a band and produce a great magazine." It cites Harper's Magazine, the Century, and Scribner's as examples of what can be done in America. It was the American magazine, continues the Academy, with a certain mournfulness, that, "steeped in the artistic spirit of the great Englishmen of the eighteenth century, gave us Howard, Pyle and Edwin Abbey."

SPEECH OF GEN. LEE

RESPONDED TO THE WELCOME

Extended to the Old Soldiers—Draws Lessons from the War and Speaks of Southern Prosperity.

The welcoming addresses to the confederate veterans were responded to by Lieutenant General Stephen D. Lee, who is filling the unexpired term of the late commander-in-chief, General John B. Gordon. General Lee's appearance was made the occasion of the most remarkable demonstration of the session. The veterans rose as in a body. Hats, handkerchiefs and coats went into the air in all parts of the hall, cheer after cheer rang out, the gallery joining in the applause. The demonstration continued for several minutes. General Lee said:

"It is impossible for me to respond to the kindly and cordial welcome so fitly spoken to my comrades who wore the gray without thinking of the great soldier and orator upon whom this duty would have fallen if he had not been taken from us. It was in historic Nashville, seven years ago, that his eloquent voice gave utterance to the gratitude of our hearts to the citizens of this beautiful city for the hospitality for which they are famous, and which today has laid us under new obligations. It was here that he placed in your hands his commission as your chieftain and sought to retire into private station. With an outburst of loyal devotion, resistless as the whirlwind, you again called him to be your leader, and gave him the commission of your unmeasured love and confidence.

"He was true to your service to the last. His noble voice is hushed forever. He has answered the great roll call. He has conquered the last enemy. He has joined his great commander in the white hosts of peace. The armies of the confederacy have marched to fame's eternal camping ground, and we who meet today are only the belated stragglers of that mighty host who have entered into their immortality.

"'The living are brave and noble,
But the dead were the bravest of all.'

"As I listened to the eloquent and comforting addresses of welcome, it was impossible for me not to remember an occasion now nearly forty years past when some of us yearned to enjoy the hospitality of Nashville. Many of her citizens would at that time have been glad to see us, but not half as much so as we would have been to see them. Between us and these hospitable homes there stretched a wall of fire, and instead of your cordial greetings we heard the thunder of guns.

"This time, however, we have kept our engagements better, and your good will has made us more than conquerors. We have entered into this city of great men and great memories. We have beheld your educational institutions, sending light and hope into the remotest corners of our beloved land. We have made pilgrimages to the graves of your mighty dead—we have been refreshed by your hospitality.

Tennessee's Enlistment.

"The confederate soldier does not forget that from the bosom of this old commonwealth came 115,000 men to follow the banners of Lee and Johnson, and that more than 31,000 were enlisted in the armies of the union—Tennesseeans believe with their heart's blood. They did not count the cost when the great question of state or nation had to be settled with drawn swords. They spent the last drop of blood, the last mite of treasure, for the defense of Tennessee, their mother and their sovereign.

"We, the witnesses of that great sacrifice, can never cease to honor Tennessee, for the blood of her sons, for the tears and prayers of her daughters, for the indomitable spirit which rebuilt the ruined homes, which sowed the blasted fields, which has wrenched prosperity from field and mountain, and has made this wonderful land, once more a thing of beauty and pride to every southern heart. You have done well, men and women of Tennessee. With peaceful hands you have won back more than your fathers lost.

World is Better and Richer.

"I wonder sometimes whether, when the great balances of the universe are poised, and the great judgments of the Ancient of Days are rendered, whether even when the last human history is written of the war between the states, and the stern verdict of remote posterity is rendered, the cause we loved will seem as great as it does to us. It may be that in the providence of God, and the development of humanity, these fearful sacrifices were necessary for the highest good of this nation and of the world. Truly in human experience, without the shedding of blood there is no redemption. Rather let us believe that the world is richer and better, purer, and greater for the tragic story of forty years ago, and that the shed blood has brought blessing, honor, glory and power, incorruptible treasures of which a brave and noble people can never be despoiled.

"It is a source of joy to every one of us, as we make our annual pilgrimage to meet together, when we see how prosperous our country has grown. At last I think we all feel that the prosperity of the land is assured. When the savings of all previous generations were consumed in the common disaster, it seemed for a while as if the south had to face the bitterness of poverty for generations to come—statesmanship, literature, art, culture, flowers of leisure and opportunity, were to remain forever withered on the soil once so congenial; nothing was to be left but the hard struggle with adversity till the bitter end.

"I think we are convinced now that the south is fully on its feet again in material prosperity we have now not only reached, but surpassed, the achievements of our fathers; yet, when I look about me for the men who are to enter into the garden which you, my brave comrades, have made bloom under such hard conditions, I can not but be sensible to the incomparable loss which the south sustained. The tongues which would have commanded the applause of senates were never heard after the cry of battle was over; the genius that might have directed the counsels of nations breathed its last upon some forgotten skirmish line. The very flower and pride of our people perished in the battle front, and the blood of our race lost much of its most magnificent strain when they went to their graves.

South's Peerless Devotion.

"I hold no view of southern degeneracy, but I deplore the irreparable loss to my country and the coming generations when those splendid men, the bravest and best the world has ever held, went down in death. Some one has said that every generation must have its war. If so, in God's name let it not be a real war. The burning houses, the wasted fields, the ravaged cities—I could see them all go until the wilderness was back again, and contain my grief; but I can never bear to think of the strength and beauty, the manly courage, the stubborn nerve, the pure chivalry, the peerless devotion, the unstinted faith and loyalty which went into the battle's deadly front and never returned. It is the loss of men like these that made the south poor indeed, a loss that can never be restored, not in forty years. No, not in forty centuries.

"But, my comrades, it is a great comfort to know that the south had such men to lose. It was a revelation to the world. It was a revelation to ourselves. What a magnificent race of men, what a splendid type of humanity! What courage! What grandeur of spirit! What patriotism! What self-sacrince! It was sublime. It is wonderful beyond compare. Not all were conquered. Some of these men came back. I see them before me now. God has bountifully prolonged their days, that they may illustrate to the next generation the civic virtues, that they may tell the wondrous story of those days, that they may stir up in the hearts of youth the emulation of virtue, the passion for noble achievements, the spirit of sacrifice.

"As the close of our days draw near, and the work of upbuilding our country passes on into younger and stronger hands, let us make it our mission, comrades, to tell the story. Do not let your children and grandchildren forget the cause for which we suffered. Tell it not in angel—tell it not in grief—tell it not in revenge. Tell it proudly as fits a soldier. There is no shame in all the history. Dwell on the gallant deeds, the pure motives, the unselfish sacrifice. Tell of the hardships endured, the battles fought, the men who bravely lived, the men who nobly died. Your dear comrades shall live again in your words.

Tell of the Heroes.

"The infinite pity and glory of it all will awake the hearts of those who listen and they will never forget. Tell them of Albert Sidney Johnston, of Stonewall Jackson, of Stuart with his waving plume, of Forrest with his scorn of death. Tell them of Wade Hampton and Gordon, the Chevalier Bayards of the south. Tell them of Zollicoffer, of Pat Cleburne and Frank Cheatham, of Pelham, of Ashby. Tell them of the great soldier with the spotless sword and the spotless soul who sleeps at Lexington, in the valley of Virginia. Tell them of the great president who bore upon his sad heart the sorrows of all his people, and upon whom fell all the blows which passed them over.

"This, my comrades, is your last commission. Do this for the dead, that they may be loved and honored still. Do this for the living, that they may also become worthy of love and honor. Do this for your country, that when the time is ripe she may again be rich in heroes and in noble deeds.

"Shall not the self-same soil bring forth the self-same men?"

"When the great account is taken which page think you, my countrymen, will the south most willingly spare? Will it be the old page torn and ragged, stained with blood and tears, which tells the story of secession and defeat—or will it be the new page of her latest census, with its magnificent figures of wealth and prosperity? Whatever she chooses give us old soldiers the old page to read and read again. This blood and those tears mean more to us than to all the world. The cause in which they were shed will never be lost to us, and the love we gave it, will not die till the last gray head is buried beneath the sod.

"My comrades, neither do I believe our descendants will ever hesitate to make the same choice. The people of the south would not exchange the story of the Confederacy for the wealth of the world. At their mother's knee, the coming generations shall learn from that tragic history what deeds make men great and nations glorious. A people who do not cherish their past will never have a future worth recording. The time is even now that the whole people of the United States are proud of the unsurpassed heroism, self-sacrifice and faithfulness of the soldiers and people of the confederacy."

General Lee was followed by Rev. Harrison McKim, of Washington, D. C., who made a masterly address entitled "A Vindication of the Motives and Aims of the Soldiers of the South." The orator's defense of the confederacy was supremely eloquent and held the closest attention of his auditors until the end. When he had concluded, he was given rousing cheers.

IN THE FAR EAST

Recent Events in the Russo-Japanese War—England Speaks.

The Nova Vremya has become suspicious of the Chinese amusement of kite flying. These kites, the newspaper avers, are used along the coast as signals for the Japanese torpedo boats, which can thus obtain what information they desire without coming in close proximity to the Vladivostock squadron or shore batteries.

Report says that a great naval battle was fought outside Port Arthur. General Stoessel, who is in command of the Russian troops at the port, was wounded and one of his legs has been amputated at the thigh.

While the Japanese transport Mskiho Maru was laying mines at the entrance to Port Arthur harbor one of the mines exploded, killing one officer and eighteen men. The vessel was not injured.

It appears from a question and answer in the house of commons that the fall of Port Arthur will mark the end of the British tenancy of Wei-Hai-Wei, on the Shan Tung promontory. Earl Percy, the under foreign secretary, informed the house that under the Anglo-Chinese convention of 1896, Great Britain's lease of this Chinese port was only valid so long as Port Arthur remained in the occupation of Russia.

According to a captain of one of the Japanese cruisers blocking Port Arthur, the Russian cruiser Novik has been out of the harbor on several occasions hunting Japanese destroyers. The captain thought that obstructions at the mouth of the harbor prevented the exit of the larger Russian vessels.

About a Quarter.

John Jenkins, a white man, was shot and probably fatally wounded by George Jost, an employe in a Birmingham saloon. Jenkins is at the hospital and the physicians do not believe he will recover.

The shooting was the result of trouble over a quarter. It seems that Jenkins and another man had some trouble, and that Jenkins abused the other man, using violent language. Jost, who has charge of the pool games and also acts as bartender at times, passed by and asked what was the matter. Jenkins is said to have replied by cursing him and attempting to cut him. Jost ran behind the bar, got a pistol and shot.

J. H. Griffin, administrator of the estate of C. Cahill, filed a suit against the Alabama Steel and Wire company for $25,000 damages, alleging that the defendant company was responsible for the death of Cahill, who was killed at the steel plant on the 18th of last February by cars.

THEY WORE THE GRAY

ALABAMA WELL REPRESENTED.

Sons of Veterans Meet With Their Sires—30,000 Visitors in Nashville—The Last Drum Corps.

The United Confederate Veterans began their annual convention at Nashville Tuesday morning. It was the fourteenth yearly gathering and for the first time since the organization was formed General John B. Gordon, the beloved commander-in-chief, did not preside. The tabernacle was crowded to suffocation with the veterans, sons of veterans and their friends and on the stage were the chief figures of the confederacy.

Among those on the platform were General Stephen D. Lee, acting commander-in-chief, Chaplain J. William Jones, of Richmond, Va.; General A. J. West, commanding the north Georgia brigade of Atlanta; General C. H. Tebeault, chief surgeon C. S. A.; General William E. Mickle, adjutant general; General W. S. Cabell, commanding the trans-Mississippi division; General George W. Gordon, of Memphis, commanding the Tennessee division; General C. I. Walker, department of Virginia, and General Clement A. Evans, department of Tennessee.

The first genuine outburst of enthusiasm occurred when the Kentucky delegation marched in headed by a Louisville band playing "My Old Kentucky Home."

This was quickly turned to "Dixie," occasioning an uproar.

A few minutes later the only surviving drum corps of the confederacy, from North Carolina, escorting the delegation from that state, again aroused the convention. Many enlivening scenes and good music by the Seventh Cavalry band, United States army, stationed at Chattanooga, kept the veterans cheering until the convention was called to order at half-past 12 by General George W. Gordon, of Memphis, commanding the Tennessee division. Chaplain Jones delivered an impressive invocation. Governor J. B. Frazier welcomed the veterans to Tennessee and Mayor A. S. Williams and Hon. Tully Brown spoke for the city of Nashville.

Governor Frazier said:

"When that grand man, that patriot, that noble Christian soldier—General Robert E. Lee—surrendered at Appomattox, he spoke with a heart too full for deceit. In that no southern mother swore her son to bitterness. She swore him to love and honor. All accepted the inevitable finality. When you saw furled for the last time the stars and bars you had followed for four years, when you had made your last final march back to your homes, had bade a final farewell to your comrades and found the sainted mother's grave sleeping in the family cemetery, the beautiful home in ruin and ashes, when you pressed upon your wife's lips a loving kiss, you sealed a solemn pledge that from that day on you would know but one country and but one flag.

"You came back to take up your old work, to build a new civilization; to redeem a land that had almost maliciously been given to the negro. In less than thirty-five years, unaided by anything except a fertile land and energy, you have attained commercial freedom for the south. The south has already snatched from New England the hitherto unchallenged record of cotton manufacturing. The south is destined to become the garden spot in this fair land.

"We welcome you to the warm hospitality and sunshine of the south, and if that is not warm enough, we welcome you to some of our good homes."

The first response was delivered by Thomas M. Owen, of Montgomery, in behalf of the United Sons of Confederate Veterans, and General Stephen D. Lee, of Columbus, Miss., made a response in behalf of the United Confederate Veterans.

General Lee announced the fourteenth annual convention ready for business, and introduced the orator of the day, Rev. Randolph H. McKim, D. D., of Washington, D. C.

The banner representation, outside possibly of Tennessee, has come from Alabama. Hon. Thomas M. Owen, state historian of Alabama, is the comander-in-chief of the Alabama division. Accompanied by his entire staff, all uniformed, he arrived early Monday night and opened headquarters at the Tulane hotel. He was accompanied by Miss Lucy McAdory, sponsor for Alabama; Miss Daisy H. Baker, maid of honor, and Mrs. T. M. Owen, chaperon. About one hundred and fifty Alabama delegates with their families, came on the same train.

Dr. C. J. Owens, division [illegible] of Alabama, the duties of which are "to organize new ranges [illegible] up the older ones, claims the [illegible] ration record of the year. He is president of the Alabama Ladies' seminary and has [illegible] in the past year four [illegible] home county, eight [illegible] ted in the entire [illegible] another of the [illegible] ted in the whole [illegible].

The Sons of Veterans met [illegible] kins hall in the afternoon. The [illegible] gates were called to order by [illegible] mandant DeWitt of the Joe [illegible] camp of Nashville. Colonel [illegible] delivered an address of welcome, which United States Senator [illegible] R. Bate responded. General [illegible] said the object of the organization [illegible] were to prepetuate the history of the Confederacy and to see that it is [illegible] untarnished. He and the other veterans, the general said, would not be here much longer, and the sons would soon be called upon to preserve history. He made a plea for the preservation of southern relics.

Mrs. Kate Lytton Hickman, of [illegible] ville, welcomed the sons on behalf of the Daughters of the Confederacy. She was followed by Colonel Hindman, of Louisville, past commander, who referred to the fact that while so many of the old veterans were crossing the river, it was [illegible] ful to know that they were leaving such men as Lee, Stonewall Jackson and "That nature's nobleman, Gordon."

The Jefferson Davis memorial service under the auspices of the Southern Confederacy Memorial association, held at Christ's church cathedral, was one of the notable events of the day. The edifice was beautifully decorated.

Bishop Thomas F. Gailor, Episcopal diocese of Tennessee, delivered the memorial address. The association has retained its old officers with the exception of a successor to Vice President W. R. Garrett, of Nashville, who died several months ago. The officers elected were General Clement A. Evans, of Georgia, president; Hon. J. Taylor Ellyson, Richmond, second vice president; Rev. Dr. J. William Rose, Memphis, secretary.

"Love to the old boys. I am sorry I can not be present to see and greet them."

The veterans and sons of veterans were received at the capitol this afternoon by Governor Frazier and staff.

At the afternoon session of the second day of the seventh annual convention of members of district No. 20, United Mine Workers of America, [illegible] in Birmingham, Edward Rigby was re-elected president, W. American Tents Adopted.

Russia has adopted recommendations by Lieutenant Hodkin embodying the use of the United States army model tents. These are convertible into ponchos for the protection of the troops during the rainy season.

Orders have been telegraphed to Manchuria to equip as ponchos the ordinary tents in use now, so as to protect the men from rain during the day without impeding their movements and afford them shelter at night.

What the Sandwich Islands are Worth to the United States.

"In the six years since annexation the net profits from Hawaii to the federal treasury have aggregated $2,259,000," is the statement of George R. Carter, governor of the Hawaiian islands. Continuing, he said:

"Uncle Sam took away from Hawaii fully one-third of its annual revenue by transferring to Washington the entire receipts from import duties. The islands have presented into the treasury of the United States over $8 for every man, woman and child living on them, getting back but little more than $1 per capita. We have by reason of this loss of revenue been forced to cut down our expenses about 33 1-3 per cent and this retrenchment has caused no small hurt and inconvenience.

"The great disadvantage we labor under is that there has been no recognition by the United States congress of our exceptional situation and special needs. We need money for improvement of our harbors, but not one cent has been forthcoming."

WILLIAM LOGAN CAPTURED.

Is Charged With Murder Committed About Three Years Ago.

William Logan, who has been wanted for about two years, has been captured and is now in the county jail at Tuscaloosa to answer the charge of murder. He was found in Louisiana.

Logan is charged with the killing of Lewis Beavers, which occurred north of Tuscaloosa, two years ago. It is said that the two men got into some difficulty when Logan struck his adversary with an ax and afterward shot him. The government offered $100 reward for his arrest.

Six Ships There.

Rear Admiral Barker expects to leave Lisbon on June 16th for Gibraltar, where the squadron will remain until the Morocco incident is settled. On the arrival there of the Illinois and the Missouri the squadron will consist of six of the most modern battleships, besides the two squadrons of cruisers and gunboats now at Tangier.

They have an equipment of about 2,400 men, a large landing force if necessary.

It is also foreseen that the claim for an indemnity against Morocco may have to be settled before the Perdicaris incident is closed, this indemnity covering redress for the indignity to the prisoners and the heavy expense involved in sending ships to Tangier.

To Increase the Fund.

The society of the alumni of the University of Alabama has determined to increase the educational fund of that institution from $2,500 to $5,000 before 1906 and active steps are now being taken to raise money.

At present the education fund is only $2,500, which is not deemed sufficient by those who have the welfare of the university at heart. The fund is loaned to needy students who are unable to pay their way through college. They give their notes for the amounts they borrow, which are to be paid back at the end of six years and bear 6 per cent interest.

Special Term Called.

A special term of the supreme court of Alabama called for July 5th to hear the charges against Probate Judge J. C. Wood, of Lowndes county. The court will meet on that day for a public hearing and investigation of the charges. Testimony will be heard by the court as to whether Judge Wood bought votes in the April primary, whether he is addicted to the ause of intoxicating liquors so as to unfit him for his duties, and whether he failed in certain specified instances to discharge the duty of probate judge.

Artesian Well at Pratt City.

While drilling a well a mile north of Pratt City, Contractor Jackson struck an artesian stream. The water rushed out of the top of the well, flowing down the hillside. The flow is estimated at between 1,300 and 1,400 gallons per hour. It is only 200 feet deep.

Motion Denied.

The supreme court has denied the motion of the board of county commissioners of Jackson county to dismiss the appeal in the Scottsboro court house controversy. The appeal was made by citizens of Jackson county on the ground that the price contracted for the court house was exorbitant.

The residences of J. A. Dearing, G. S. Winfield and W. R. Davis, at Compton station, Birmingham, with a total valuation of about $6,000, were completely destroyed by fire. Insured.

Walter Q. Rawls, of Alabama, has passed his examination for admission to Annapolis.

Gadsden's city council has turned over the matter of securing donations and money for the purchase of a lot for the proposed Carnegie library to the board of education.

The constitutionality of the act consolidating the courts of Jefferson county was attacked by a bill filed by Messrs. London & London, solicitors for John H. Wallace.

The Rensselaer Polytechnic institute main building, Troy, N. Y., was destroyed by fire. The loss will exceed $200,000.

A MOSQUITO BRIGADE.

In Part of the Panama Medical Staff Arrangements.

Dr. W. C. Gorgas, chief sanitary officer of the Panama canal commission, will sail from New York June 21st for the isthmus and establish quarters in the canal zone. Dr. Gorgas has selected all his principal assistants and they will accompany him.

Dr. Henry R. Carter, of the public health and marine hospital service, will be in charge of marine sanitation, which comes under the care of the commission for the ports of Colon and Panama. This includes quarantine arrangements, etc.

Dr. John W. Ross, medical director of the navy, will have charge of the hospital controlled by the commission. There will be at least twenty-five of these, it being the intention to establish a small building devoted to this purpose at each village along the route of the canal.

Dr. Louis A. Lagarde, U. S. A., will be in charge of the general hospital at Panama, which was established by the French company and is considered a model institution of its kind. The French had eight hundred beds in this hospital, but under American interests better sanitation will reduce this number to about six hundred.

Joseph A. LePrince, who is in charge of similar work at Havana, will be in charge of the mosquito brigade in the canal zone.

FORTY THOUSAND ACRES

Of Winston County Lands Bought by Eastern Syndicate.

It is learned that a party of eastern capitalists has purchased 40,000 acres of land in Winston county. Much of the land contains coal, iron and timber and this they expect to develop, and it is likely that they will build a railroad to this property either from New Decatur or some other point. The lands which contain no minerals will be colonized.

Much of Winston county is practically undeveloped from the lack of railroads. The county contains virgin forests of the finest of oak, poplar, chestnut and other timbers while her fields of coal and iron are the richest in the country. But few mines have ever been opened up in Winston county from the fact that railroads do not reach the fields.

Two Sloss Fires.

The commissary of the Sloss-Sheffield Steel and Iron company at Flat Top mines was destroyed by fire Tuesday morning. A good-sized stock of goods was carried. W. J. Harrison, one of the clerks, was asleep in the place at the time of the fire and was gotten out before being suffocated to death. The origin of the fire is unknown. The loss is estimated at $5,000, covered by insurance.

Fire also damaged one of the ore washers of the Sloss-Sheffield company at Russellville, doing about $2,000 worth of damages. Insured.

Attempt to Blow Up Church.

It became known that an attempt by some unknown person was recently made to blow up with dynamite the church of St. Anthony, St. Louis, which is in charge of the Franciscans. The explosive was a stick of dynamite discovered under the altar, attached to a fuse running to one of the candles. Inability of an attendant to light this particular candle led to the discovery of the fuse and dynamite.

Frank Barker, the young white man who was convicted of the murder of a Jew peddler in St. Clair county, was removed to Birmingham and placed in the county jail for safe keeping.

Bolling Property Bought.

W. C. Shackleford, of Birmingham, has closed a trade for all the Milner, Caldwell & Fowler lands in Butler county, known as the Bolling property, situated nine miles south of Greenville. It will be remembered that this tract of land, embracing in the neighborhood of 30,000 acres, was purchased about two years ago by a syndicate. Because of failure to make payments, the lands were sold under mortgage and became again the property of the original owners.

Killed His Brother-in-Law.

Montezuma Goodwin, a white farmer, who lived near Trussville, was shot and killed Sunday afternoon by James Sims, his brother-in-law. Sims is under arrest.

It is said that the trouble resulted from a family feud; that the deceased went to Sims' house Saturday night with a knife and threatened to kill Sims.

During the latter part of July a party of Huntsville, Florence and Decatur people will make a trip on a steamboat from Riverton, Ala., to St. Louis. They will provide themselves with every comfort and take their time going and coming. In St. Louis they will not be worried in the hunt for hotels, but will use their boat as a hotel.

Effective Monday, the Southern railway made an increase of a little more than 10 per cent in the wages of all its section laborers on the Memphis division, from Stevenson to Memphis.

Selma boasts a man who lived there three years and had two legal wives, neither of whom suspected the existence of the other, and both of whom were recognized by their liege lord.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "DOES GOD CARE?"

The Rev. Robert MacDonald Declares That the Greatest Discovery of the Twentieth Century Will Be the Discovery of God.

BROOKLYN, N. Y. — "Does God Care?" was the subject of the sermon Sunday morning by the Rev. Robert MacDonald, pastor of the Washington Avenue Baptist Church. He took his text from I. Peter v:7: "Casting all your care upon Him, for He careth for you." Mr. MacDonald said:

"The greatest discovery of the twentieth century will be the discovery of God, and then it will be seen that God does not care." Such is the latest assumption of science, if a certain learned professor of one of our largest universities is deemed a trustworthy interpreter. He wisely drew the line between Christianity and infidelity as between believing that God cared for us and that He did not care, and stated that the leading scientists were infidels.

Lest such statements upset or weaken the faith of some of us, let us see what the weight of probability is for the realizing of these presumptive prophecies. Let it at the very start be remembered that any more definite scientific discovery of God than we now have is unlikely. And this is said, not because we now possess so much, but that we are possessed of so little. Science will doubtless discover more about God. Shame upon our developing intelligence if it does not. Every discovery is that. But that is a very different thing from discovery of God. His handiwork will be more clearly traced, the working of His purposes more definitely realized; but I think we can trust the Infinite One to as successfully outwit the scientific inquisitiveness of the twentieth century as of any that has soul. I am confident that 1900 years hence the exclamation of the human mind will be about as it is now—"Who can by searching out find God?" One of infinite retreats is not going to be taken by surprise. The secret of His presence will ever elude the discoveries of man. The mystery of His person shall still remain inviolate.

Why do I speak as though God were antagonistic to human discovery? Because, friends, this learned prophet whose statements we are considering sees the only lack to the discovery of God to be the present incompleteness of human knowledge and the present paucity of scientific means, both of which will be remedied, he is sure, before the present century closes. I speak as I do because I do not like to have Him whom we honor as Creator and Father stripped of His mystery and robbed of His volitional power and referred to as you would to an impersonal, objective fact of creation. We discover stars and continents and seas and laws and a good many other things, but it does seem to me that God Himself will have something to say about the discovery of Himself. Moreover, I have no right to believe that God will ever be discovered by any man save by Him whom God has discovered. He only finds God whom God has found. I am striving to maintain the integrity of the divine revelation as over against that of human investigation. We must take God on His own terms, rather than on ours. Therefore, he only discovers God to whom God has revealed Himself, to whom God permits such discovery. We need not fear that any future discovery of God will negative the revelation we now have through Jesus Christ. Science is mighty, but not almighty. Not more mighty than God. We welcome it in the realm of well defined data, in the realm of demonstration and proof. But its advocates need to learn that the eternal transcends its scrutiny and the Supernatural bends not to its demands. Reassure your heart that if you are so fortunate as to be a habitant of the realm bounded by the Christian religion the essence of your faith cannot be harmed. Faith's form, as also the form of revelation, will be scientifically questioned and repaired. Faith's content examined and modified perchance, but its essence, that spiritual thing we call the divine grace, that precious consciousness of His care for you, and that you are living in the light of His face is too sacred to ever bend to scientific formula, and too mystical to be expressed in the cold accuracy of scientific terms.

There is, for instance, that stubborn thing called conscience to be dealt with. That stands out as a very Gibraltar of protest against the assertion that God does not care. In all the history of mortals conscience has been regarded as God's handwriting on the wall, telling man he must do the right and must not do the wrong. True, it does not tell him what is right and what is wrong. That is a thing of fluctuating standard. Always difference of opinion about that, because dependent upon the man's intelligence that owns the conscience. And any certain type of intelligence depends upon the age and civilization in which he lives, circumstances, moral and religious ideas. 'Tis not it is that the truest standard for the enlightenment of conscience is Christianity. Christian ethics, springing from the Sermon on the Mount, is universally recognized man's truest and highest standard of enlightenment.

But on what higher authority rests this sense of "oughtness" as to the doing of right and wrong? God demands it, we say. The Creator has a right to impose terms upon His creation. We recognize our obligation to Him. Yes, but because the moral sense rests upon an intuition of God's perfect morality. We could not feel any obligation to God unless we felt Him worthy of that obligation. We believe Him to embody the ideal and perfect morality. His sense of obligation to us, then, is the sanction of our sense of obligation to Him. It is precious to read that "we love Him because He first loved us." It is as true that we are under obligation to Him because He is under obligation to us. We never speak of it that way. We seldom, if ever, think of it that way. The more expressive side of the divine nature occupies our thought. God is so pleased to do for us, His blessings are so much more truly the manifestation of His love than of any other characteristic. But the divine rationality expresses itself in justice and morality as truly as in love. We are conscious ever of our demerit, insignificance, dependence, see all divine favor to be an emanation of His love. The Creator must make provision for His created. The necessity of His own nature demands it. The divine Father, as well as the human father, must support His child. Conscience in us is evidence of God's care. And it is evidence that can never be explained away. So long as humanity endures conscience will advocate right and denounce wrong, and just so long must man believe in God's care. Does God care? Our very constitution thunders Yes. No valid discovery of God in the future can be expected to overthrow the overwhelming weight of this evidence. Verily, God hath not left Himself without a witness. We need not fear any future discovery, however supposedly scientific, to offset this constitutional evidence. Whatever the evidence that God does not care we will match and outweigh it by this nearer, dearer, stronger evidence that He does care. We have a Roland for their Oliver.

Then there are man's religious instincts to be accounted for. These are not acquired. Neither civilization nor Christianity begot them. We are not arguing within a circle in referring to these. All races, white, yellow, red, brown, black, ignorant or enlightened, superstitious or free, cruel or kind, instinctively believe that God cares. Mind you, it is not that He is propitious unto them. Oftener that He is not. But the very fact of inventing so considerable means to placate Him, some of them barbarous and revolting, indicates so strongly that it almost proves God's interest in mortals. It is an evidence so universal that it cannot easily be explained away. Every instrumental need in humanity has its satisfaction existing somewhere. Hunger presupposes food. Thirst indicates the existence of water for its quenching. Nakedness instinctively leads to the necessary clothing for its protection, even though beasts are satisfied, fins and wool grown, to accommodate it. So with all the hungers of rational being, moral, intellectual, moral, religious. They all are evidence of reality somewhere answering to them. None of these is more fundamental and imperative than the religious, that which demands God's care. A most pathetic manifesting of this longing is idol worship. The heathen, God's ignorant children, like ours, demand object lessons that can be apprehended by the senses. To make God in their image is the nearest they can get to the sublime consciousness that they are made in His. Better, it seems to us, no God than a wooden one. A spirit of negation and indifference would save them so much useless sacrifice and cruel practices and barbarous acts of superstition by way of supposed atonement. But whether better or worse atheism is not a constituent characteristic of man. Strange, is it not, that it is never innate, but always an acquired accomplishment, always the sad result of culture else of sin. By nature, and that means by right, God is always the rightful occupant of the throne. But as our self importance grows, as we become consciously great in thought and achievement we become also great in arrogance, as is all science falsely so called, and the King is asked to vacate the throne, and God is not even bowed out of the universe, but heartlessly banished. Oh, no, denial is not better than affirmation of God, however superstitiously that affirmation express itself. It is evidence of God's care much needed to offset a threatened evidence that He has not interest in the human race.

Notice the two possible results to which these religious instincts lead. They are the receptacle into which Christianity fits. Without them the Gospel of Jesus has no appeal. They cry out for God. Christianity introduces God to them. They want an assurance of God's care. Christianity assures them God cares for men to the uttermost, even enough to die for them. Creation thus prepares for revelation, and welcomes its beneficent approach.

There is another result that shows the helpfulness of the religious instinct universal among men. It is the sorrow that possesses us when we are told it is all a delusion. The moment you convince man there is no God, or, if there is, that He is indifferent to man's welfare, that moment the face loses its complacency, the heart its assurance, the spirit its buoyancy, the mind its sense of satisfaction. Doubt, disappointment, despair set in. Little to live for, nothing to die for is the cry that will not be comforted. A stolid indifference results that crushes out the heart's music, else wild despair that dethrones reason and inflicts self injury. Let me make a prophecy more dismal in its outlook than that one we are considering of a future discovery that God does not care, a prophecy that if ever that dark day dawns poor humanity in despair will in an hour fall back from all hopefulness, aspiration, joyousness, and be one despairing plaint, reverse the line satisfactions of a thousand years.

Greatest of all these is the presence and worth of Christianity to be accounted for. Christianity is a very unyielding fact. It has become too deeply rooted in the earth to be waived aside and crowded out by any discovery, however authentic, that would invalidate its claims. It has been confronted for centuries with conflicting beliefs and scientific evidence against its integrity. The more it is opposed the more fearlessly it asserts itself, comforting the heart, lighting the dark mind, inspiring and reinforcing the spirit. A fact so helpful to humanity in every conceivable necessity when sinning and needing forgiveness, when weak and needing strength, even when suffering martyrdom at the stake, in the amphitheatre of wild beasts, in heathen lands, midst persecutions too numerous to be mentioned, but not too many to be valiantly borne, must be confronted with stronger, surer proof than is at present conceivable that it relinquish its hold upon men's esteem. Yield it must if it were even proven God did not care; for Christianity was rooted in God's esteem before it found a place in man's. God not only cared, but so cared that He loved, else Christianity, that superb blossom and fruitage of Christ's life and teaching and death, had never existed. Christianity not only embodies God's care, it enshrines God's heart. And the surest thing about it all is that we who have yielded to God's word, caught the blessings of the revelation through Jesus, have all the evidence necessary for the reality of God and His care. What value is proof against God's interest in us, however scientific, to the man who has seen the Lord, whose sins are forgiven, upon whom God is each day lifting up the light of His face? When once the spiritual life has entered the human heart, all cold, external evidence is ignored, and wisely. Then, again, the peace of mind that results from belief that God cares for us enough to share His eternal home with us by and by is evidence that will die hard, if it ever die at all, before any external evidence that this world is all, and that our brief, storm-tossed existence is forever hushed in death's long sleep. A man said to me during the week, "It pays to be religious, even though it be discovered at the last that there is no eternal life." The idea was that present satisfactions are worth the having, whatever the future may reveal. When the divine spark that we call the spiritual life once electrifies the heart, stimulating new loves, imparting new ideals, revealing God's love and Christ's mastership, all of which produce blessings of satisfaction and joy unspeakable, all external evidence to the contrary weighs little with that man's belief. And that is exactly what Christianity does. It imparts life. As Harnack puts it, "It is eternal life in the midst of time, under the very eye, and in the very strength of God." As Jesus puts it, "I am come that ye might have life." Life is a difficult thing to argue against, and even to prove the fallacy of when men possess it and are reaping manifold blessings from its presence each day.

This is why we affirmed that God must be discovered through internal revelation, rather than through external investigation. The necessary approach, to be successful, must come from Him to us, instead of from us to Him. God must grapple with and subdue man before man can reasonably expect to grapple with and conquer God. Man's attitude is, Let me understand and I will reverence; let me know and I will love. God's attitude is, You must reverence that you may understand; you must love that you may know. Man's attitude is as yet in prospect, only the dim hope of the scientific few. God's attitude is daily being verified and proven to the world's sin sick, sorrow filled multitudes. All valid external discovery of the future will, I think, be along the line of and in harmony with revelation. Even now there are scientific evidences in this direction. Immortality is being scientifically proven, not the fallacy of it. Much verification of Christianity's content and assertions may be expected from scientific research. God's universe is one. His creation unified and harmonious throughout, all true discovery must confirm this, that consistency result. Apostolic testimony is good enough and preferable to all prophetic scientific negation. We believe Peter knew whereof he spoke when he said "God cares." So much does He care that you can well afford to cast all your care upon Him, for He careth for you.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JUNE 18.

Subject: Christ Risen, Matt. xxviii., 1-15 —Golden Text, I Cor. xv., 20—Memory Verses, 9, 10—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

I. The resurrection announced to the keepers (vs. 1-4). 1. "And in the end of the Sabbath." After the Jewish Sabbath was past. It was on Saturday night it was done. "To dawn." The women prepared all their spices at different times during the days. When it was over, during the night, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary came at the dawning of the next day. "First day of the week." Christ was in the tomb part of Friday, all day Saturday and part of Sunday, which we called three days according to Jewish reckoning. Mary Magdalene, who was a native of Magdala, a town on the Sea of Galilee, and was tormented among the demoniac women who ministered unto Christ and His disciples, being especially devoted to Christ for His mercy in casting out from her seven evil spirits (Luke 8:2, 3). There is no evidence that she was ever a bad character. "The other Mary." This was Mary, the mother of James the Less and Joses (Mark 15:47), the same as Mary of Cleophas, a sister of the blessed Virgin (John 19:25). To the women named here Mark adds Salome, and Luke adds Joanna and other women. Note the devotion of these women. They came not expecting the resurrection, but bringing spices to embalm Christ. "Sepulchre." The tomb was cut in the side of a rock, like a cave, large enough for several persons to enter.

2. "Earthquake." The earthquake and the resurrection took place previous to the arrival of the women. There was also an earthquake at the time of Christ's death (Matt. 27:51). "Both were given for the same purpose, namely, to manifest to the 'senses' of men the mighty operations that were going on beyond the reach of sense." "Angel of the Lord." Luke says "two men," John says "two angels," while Mark agreeing with Matthew as to the number speaks of him as a "young man." These evangelists evidently speak only of the one who did the speaking. "Rolled back." Not that Jesus could not have burst the barrier, but the ministry of angels was necessary to give form to the transaction to human conception.

3. "Countenance." In the original this word refers not only to the face, but to the general aspect, the general appearance. "Lightning." In vivid and intense brightness. "White." This was heavenly apparel. This dazzling whiteness was the symbol of joy, purity and glory. 4. "The keepers." The Roman guard. "Did shake." It was still night. The appearance was sudden and unexpected. "As dead men." It is very probable that the splendor of a glorified body is of such sufficient to overwhelm the senses and prostrate the strength of a living mortal. See Dan. 8:27; Rev. 1:17.

5. "Said unto the women." The angel who sat upon the stone had entered the tomb as the women drew near, and then the women entered also, and the words of the angel were spoken to them on the inside (Mark 16:5, Luke 24:3). All apparently entered, but Mary Magdalene finding the sepulchre empty hastened away to tell Peter and John that Jesus was not there (John 20:1, 2). "Fear ye not." The angel's message embraces the remainder of this verse and verses 6 and 7. He spoke words of peace and comfort to these mourning friends of Jesus. 6. "Not here." Tombs and Roman guards and seals could not hold the Prince of life. Wicked men tried to keep the Saviour in the grave, and for centuries infidelity has been dashing its surging waves against the door of the tomb, but they have fallen harmless, for He is not there; "He is risen." "Is risen." The manner of the reuniting of Christ's soul and body in His resurrection is a mystery, one of the secret things that does not belong to us. "As He said." See Matt. 16:21; 17:22; Luke 9:22, 44, 45; 18:31-33. "See the place." Pointing doubtless to the particular cell in the wall of the tomb. This would be convincing evidence.

7. "Go quickly." The resurrection did two things: 1. It revived the dead hopes of the disciples. It was a time of gladness and brought (1) joy, (2) victory, (3) faith. 2. The resurrection brought hope to humanity. (1) It brought the hope of blessed immortality. (2) It gives assurance of our own resurrection with spiritual bodies like His glorious body. (3) Christ is alive and is thus able to make His promises good to us; He is able to save unto the uttermost, seeing He "ever liveth." (4) The risen Christ is the remedy for every trouble. (5) The fear of death and the grave is removed. In Christ death has met its Master, and the grave can no longer claim to be the victor. "Tell His disciples." Instead of anointing Him as dead they may rejoice in His being alive from the dead. "Death hath no more dominion over Him." "Into Galilee." According to His promise in Matt. 26:32.

II. The appearance of Jesus to the women (vs. 8-10). 8. "With fear." Fear at what they had seen, joy at what they had heard. 9. "Jesus met them." This was the second appearance. The first appearance was to Mary Magdalene (Mark 16:9). It seems that when she told Peter and John of the empty tomb they at once ran to the sepulchre to see for themselves (John 20:2-10), and she also returned at once to the tomb. During her absence the other women had received their commission from the angel and had hurriedly left. Peter and John soon left also, and Mary remained alone at the tomb weeping. It was then that Jesus appeared unto her (John 20:11-18). Later in the morning Jesus met the other women who had gone to tell the disciples, who were probably scattered and may have been some distance away. "All hail." Literally, rejoice; the Greek salutation on meeting and parting. 10. "Shall they see Me." This public appointment was made in order that the whole body of disciples might meet the risen Lord. Five hundred were present on a mountain in Galilee.

III. The Roman guard bribed (vs. 11-15). 11. "The watch." We suppose the quaternion or guard of four soldiers. 12. "Taken counsel." They probably had a hurried, informal meeting to consider the best course to pursue. "Large money." It took a large bribe to induce them to thus criminate themselves. 13. "While we slept." The absurdity of this position is apparent: "1. The disciples could not have stolen Jesus away had they attempted it. 2. The disciples were as much amazed at the news of the resurrection as were the priests. 3. The Roman soldiers set to watch Jesus' tomb would not all be asleep at the same time. 4. The council could not have voted large sums of money merely to have reported a truth. 5. Sleeping soldiers could not know what took place."

Professor Schron, the discoverer of life in crystals, has found a new microbe which caused pulmonary phthisis, a microbe quite different from that causing tuberculosis. Professor Schron affirms that this discovery explains why Dr. Koch's serum not only did not cure consumption, but aggravated it.

FIVE Big Busy B's—Barbecue, Brass Band, Badges and Banner.

NOT much doing is again this week's report from the Russo-Jap. war.

Is it possible that the Mayor and Council of Clanton will not even try to improve matters at the railroad crossing?

EVERY Beat in the county should have at least one great Democratic gathering. Which will be the first on the list?

IT looks as if there is more trouble brewing in the Republican party of Alabama, and it is by no means certain that Charley Scott will succeed Capt. Dimmick as national committeeman.

IT is respectfully suggested to the County Commissioners that they take steps to enlarge the court house, so that at the next Democratic rally it will be large enough to hold at least one-half of the crowd which will be present. The grand jury has more than once recommended the enlargement of the court house, it being inadequate for court requirements, and now there is the additional inducement that it is not nearly large enough to accomodate a Democratic rally.

SOME four men, whose names are not familiar to the public, have signed a call for a "Populist State Convention" to be held at Birmingham next Thursday. There is no probability of there being more than a very few men at this so-called "State Convention," and we conscientiously warn our Populist friends, no matter how strong your Populist proclivities, that it is only a waste of time and money going there,

A GREAT DAY FOR DEMOCRATS.

It is many a long day since Clanton has seen such a big crowd as was gathered here last Saturday for a political meeting. They came from all directions, north, south, east and west, until all the vacant places in the vicinity of the court house were occupied by buggies and wagons; some came by train, some on horseback and some afoot, but no matter how they reached here they were here, over one thousand visitors, to take part in the Democratic County Convention and to enjoy themselves at the barbecue.

On the early morning trains a batch of visitors arrived, and with them came the Thorsby Democratic Band, who took their stand upon the balcony outside Col. Collier's office and made the morning air resound with the sweet strains of music, welcoming the other arrivals as they came into town. Very soon the streets were filled with a happy crowd, large numbers of them calling at the Banner office, where they were supplied with badges bearing the Democratic motto "White Supremacy," a crowing rooster, "For the Right." Delegates to the convention wore red badges and visitors blue, and the supply of 700 was exhausted, with many applicants not furnished. The thronged streets with the moving crowd wearing these red and blue badges, while the band played lively airs, made a gay and festive scene, goodly to the eye, and glad to the hearts of all good Democrats, nay, not only Democrats but all good people. It presages the happy time when all the people will meet together in accord and harmony.

At 10 o'clock the Executive Committee held a meeting and examined the list of delegates from the several beats.

Promptly at 11 o'clock, Hon. Tipton Mullins, chairman of the Executive Committee, called the Convention to order, congratulating the audience upon the large number wearing Democratic badges, and stating that the Executive Committee suggested Dr. H. W. Caffey, of Verbena, for temporary chairman. The name of Dr. Caffey was then presented to the Convention and he was elected unanimously.

Dr. Caffey, on taking the chair, said "I desire to express my sincere thanks to you for the honor you have conferred upon me in presiding over this grand body of Democrats of Chilton county, and as Mr. Mullins has remarked, it is a source of gratification to see so many of you wearing Democratic badges. Our county has been without the pale of Democracy for some time, but there is no reason why it should remain there any longer, and it appears now that we are about to get in line with the rest of the State. I will not take up your time by making a long speech and we will now proceed to the business of the Convention."

On motion, Frank Crichton was elected secretary.

Col. W. A. Collier made a motion that the temporary organization be made the permanent organization, and the motion was unanimously adopted. The roll of delegates, as approved by the Executive Committee, was adopted without dissent.

On motion, the following order of business was adopted: First, the nomination of a candidate for Judge of Probate; second, the election of an Executive Committee.

Chairman Caffey announced that nominations were now in order, and a motion by John C. Dennis, that for the purpose of saving time, nominations be made without eulogy of candidates, was carried.

Thos. A. Curry presented the name of E. B. Deason as the candidate of the Democratic party of Chilton county for the office of Judge of Probate, and, after a short pause, the Chair asked if there were any more nominations. There being no reply, Col. Collier made a motion that the nomination of E. B. Deason be made by acclamation, and the motion was enthusiastically carried. Calls were made for Deason.

Mr. Deason spoke as follows:—"Mr. Chairman, Ladies and Gentlemen, and Fellow-citizens: I do not believe that I can express my gratitude for the honor you have conferred upon me. I am not a man of many words, and do not know that words can express what I feel. In the April primary I had hoped that the nomination would come to me, and when it did not, I accepted the result and have ever since been working for the success of the Democratic party in November. This is not my fight, it is yours, and we all want to do every thing we can to steer the Democratic ship to victory. I thank you."

The next business was the election of the Executive Committee, and on motion it was unanimously resolved that the present committee be retained, and that they are hereby authorized by this Convention to appoint a Campaign Committee.

This concluded the business of the Convention, and a motion was made to adjourn.

Chairman Caffee said he desired to say that this meeting was a happy augury of success. There was no reason why the people of Chilton should not be united, and he hoped they would be. The convention then adjourned.

Col. W. A. Collier, master of ceremonies for the day, then invited the nominees to make short talks to the meeting.

Prof. R. A. Rasco, nominee for County Superintendent of Education, said: "I want to say I am not a political speaker, but I will do everything in my power to be elected and to elect the Democratic ticket. I appreciate the honor of having been nominated without opposition, and purpose making a through canvass of the county. I believe I can do something as Superintendent of Education that will be for the good of the county."

W. C. Dickinson, nominee for Commissioner from the 4th district, said "I have been in this county for 40 years, and desire to serve my fellow citizens as a county commissioner. It is my aim to do all in my power for the good of the county. This is a great day, but I believe after the election is over in November we can hoist our flag and be more joyful then than we are now. I am going to do all I can to elect the nominees of the Democratic party in Chilton county."

Col. Collier then announced that being in charge of the proceedings of the day it was his duty and pleasure to introduce Congressman Bowie.

The court house was packed full to overflowing and at least 600 persons were present, while as many more were outside unable to obtain entrance. Every seat was occupied, and the aisles were a solid mass of standing humanity, the hall at the top of the stairs being also filled.

After Mr. Bowie's speech (which will be found in the next column) Tipton Mullins offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, that it is the sense of this meeting that Democratic clubs be organized in all the Beats in the county to continue the work of the campaign to victory.

At the conclusion of Mr. Bowie's speech, which lasted about an hour and a half, Col. Collier invited all present to form in line outside the court house for a grand march to the barbecue grounds. The band began to play, and two by two the men fell in, while the sidewalks were lined with spectators. At the head of the procession was carried a banner bearing the Democratic motto of "White Supremacy," and the Committee of Arrangements are greatly indebted to Mrs. Blanche Mullins, whose artistic hand painted the victorious roosters on the banner. The band played and the procession started, about 400 men being in line, and reaching from the court house down Main street, round by the Johnson drug store to the residence of Dr. Hayes. Thence a straight march to the barbecue grounds, where 5 beeves, 4 goats, 2 sheep and 1 hog had been tastefully prepared by J. C. Grimes of Kincheon and Tom Tyus of Clanton. There was a bountiful supply and everyone declared it was the best barbecued meat they had ever eaten. The tables groaned under the weight, but the onslaught soon cleared them. To Tom Tyus and C. R. Mullins must be given the credit of carrying out all the arrangements for the barbecue in so satisfactory a manner. After dinner a rush was made for the stand where the Upchurch Drug Co. and the Clanton Drug Co. dispensed ice-cream and lemonade, and they did a thriving business for awhile. The band played on the grounds during the afternoon, and the entire day was one of thorough satisfaction and enjoyment.

SPEECH OF HON. S. J. BOWIE.

Ladies and Gentlemen: For the last few days I have not been at all well, and at one time feared it would be impossible for me to meet you here today, but since seeing this grand meeting of the Democrats of Chilton county it has so revived me that I am proud to be here, and more especially seeing such a large number wearing the badge of the Democratic party.

Why are you here to day from all parts of the county? and not room enough to hold more half who are here. You are engaged in the work of bringing your county in line with the rest of the State. You are engaged in the work of building up your county. You are not here in the interests of the men who are nominated, but for the principles of the Democratic party and for the good of your county. In 1892 all was peace in Alabama, all were one. We are still the same people, with the same hopes and aspirations. In 1892 a misunderstanding arose. There were men, good Democrats, who thought things were not quite fair, and they formed themselves into the Jeffersonian Democracy. I am not going into the merits of the case, they thought they were were right, while some of us thought that all abuses could be best amended inside the grand old Democratic party.

What brought fraud in elections in Alabama? It came when the Republican party got into power in Alabama, when the most infamous laws were enacted by them in the days of reconstruction. They provided that a man who had fought in the confederate cause could not vote, and the negro was permitted to vote whether he could read or write or not. That was the origin of fraud in elections. The State was put $30,000,000 in debt, schools were neglected and the money that should have gone to the schools went into the pockets of carpet-baggers. That was revolution.

When a community is afflicted with disease, what do they do? Remove the cause. This was the problem confronting the Democratic party, to disfranchise the negro without difranchising the white man. There were difficulties in the way, notably the 15th amendment to the Federal constitution. But the Democratic constitutional convention surmounted the difficulties, and of the 182,000 negroes only about 3000 got on the registration list. I understand the assertion has been made that some white men have been disfranchised. Not one, except those disqualified for crime. Some men cannot vote because they have not paid their poll tax, and a man who won't pay $1.50 for the benefit of the schools in his own community is not worthy of the franchise. Some men have not registered, it is their own fault, the opportunity was given them and they have no cause of complaint. In good faith the Democratic party honestly redeemed their pledge that no white man should be disfranchised, and that no negro should be allowed to vote that we could keep away from the polls.

The Legislature met to enact laws to carry the Constitution into effect. There were two things to do, one was the passage of an honest primary law so that Democrats and all other parties might have a perfectly fair deal among themselves, and Lewis Reynolds, on the floor of the Legislature, admitted that the law passed was even better than he expected. A fair and honest general election law was also passed, and in 1902 the election was as fair and honest as any ever held in any State in the Union.

The school fund has been doubled in seven years, and when the Democratic party did this and when they made it possible for every white man to register, and cut off every negro voter possible, they earned the gratitude of every white man in Alabama.

It is charged by the Republicans that in Dallas county negroes are put on the jury. There is not a county in Alabama where the Democrats are in control where negroes ever get on the jury, but where the Republicans have control of the Federal courts there you will find negroes on the jury, and they also elected seven negroes to represent the Republicans of Alabama in their national convention.

We are going to win this fight. There never was such a grand gathering as we have here today that could not win. In the counties around you all is peace, only strife here, and after November there will be no strife here. Your fights hereafter will be in the primary. The Democratic party is the party of freedom and liberty in this country, of equal rights to all and special privileges to none, that is the principle that has given it vitality all these years.

A crank is a man who has a different hobby than your own.

BASE BALL.

On Saturday afternoon a gay set of young men hailing from Greasy Ridge, who called themselves the Rough Head ball team, made their appearance on the Clanton diamond. As some of Clanton's regular players could not be there, a team was scraped up, among whom was one "Dusty" Aldridge, Clanton's pitcher, who proceeded to attend to the Rough Heads. The game closed at the end of the seventh inning with the score 16 to 2 in favor of Clanton.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

VETERANS' REUNION

The Fourteenth Annual Meeting Opened Tuesday in the City of Rocks.

OLD SOLDIERS IN NASHVILLE.

Abbey Fund Reaches $206,000—The South in History—Movement for Library.

There are delegations present from Missouri and as far north as Montana. The Pat Cleburne division of the Texas veterans, with headquarters at Waco, arrived, but the five other Texas special trains are less fortunate; they having been delayed by a washout near Pine Bluff.

The battle abbey committee met. The report of the committee shows that the treasurer has in his hands nearly $106,000 in cash. In addition thereto there is the gift of the city of Richmond, $50,000; subscriptions collectable, $10,000; balance due from Charles B. Rouss, $40,000. This latter amount is payable at any time. This makes the total money available for the erection of the abbey $206,000. The committee is trying to raise $300,000, but the work can begin any time now with the money in hand. The exact date for the inauguration of the work, however, has not been decided.

The committee states that more funds will be raised as soon as possible to establish a complete library of American and especially southern history which will become a part of the abbey. Numerous portraits and statues of southern soldiers which have been presented from time to time by southern women will find a resting place in the abbey.

The historical committee, of which General Clement A. Evans, of Georgia, is chairman, will submit a report setting forth the congratulations of the committee to the south on the reforms made in the histories in which the south is now much more fairly treated by authors than formerly. This committee will also report on the battle flag matter, which has agitated the veterans for several years. The committee is of the opinion that the battle flag is square with cross lines from corner to corner. The contention of many has been that the flag was oblong instead of square.

General Lee, commander in chief, received a letter from General Joseph Wheeler expressing his regrets at not being able to attend the Nashville reunion. General Wheeler said he had hoped to lend his voice in an effort to urge special exertions by the veterans in hunting up war rosters and records to be printed as permanent archives.

For the first time since its organization, the Sons of Veterans will meet with the veterans. The sons will have all the privileges of the floor and a voice in the proceedings. The veterans hope by this close relation to perpetuate their organization and put the sons in a position to acquire the proper spirit.

The movement for a permanent meeting place has its friends as well as opponents, and it is not thought that the matter will crystalize into action at this year's reunion.

Can Not Attend.

Among those who will not attend the confederate veterans' reunion is General John H. Reagan, of Texas, former postmaster general of the confederacy. In a letter to General Lee, General Reagan says:

"I have to express my sincere regret that I shall be unable to attend the reunion once more to extend greetings and congratulations with the brave and patriotic old confederate veterans. God bless them and you. One of the reasons why I can not attend is that I am preparing the manuscript of a book, one of the purposes of which is to demonstrate by conclusive proof that the war between the states was forced on the south by the revolutionary and unconstitutional policy of the republican party, and that our people were not rebels and traitors, but patriots defending their rights, and only demanding obedience to the constitution and laws for the protection of their rights."

While stooping over a spring to get a cup of water in Mount Calvary cemetery Sergeant Andrew N. Davis, of the police accidentally dropped his revolver. The weapon was discharged, the bullet entering Davis' breast and killing him instantly. His eleven-year-old daughter was by the officer's side at the time, and his aged mother was but a short distance away.

Mercy Recommended.

In the United States court a jury returned a verdict of guilty in the case against D. A. Pettis, charged with embezzlement, while he was assistant postmaster at Leesburg, Ga. Pettis's daughter was postmistress.

A deficit of $1,000 was found. The shortage was made good. A grand jury brought in a true bill, however, charging embezzlement. The verdict of guilty carried with it a recommendation for mercy.

DAMAGE OF PLANT ENEMIES

During 1903 Was Considerable—Department of Agriculture Report.

The destruction wrought on crops by the countless plant enemies throughout the country is revealed by the report issued by the department of agriculture on "plant disease in 1903."

It shows that the coffee leaf blight has accidentally been introduced in Porto Rico and measures are being taken to stamp it out. The tomato blight has practically ruined the tomato crop of Porto Rico. A potato rot has caused the loss of nearly the entire potato crop.

The cotton root rot in Texas prevailed to a greater extent than for many years, the loss being estimated at about $2,000,000.

Anthranaose has been generally prevalent from North Carolina to Georgia and locally injurious, especially to sea island cotton in south Georgia. Wilt seems to spread slowly and now occurs in limited areas in North Carolina and South Carolina, is widely prevalent in south Georgia and southeastern Alabama, in connection with the root rot. Rust occurred as usual on the poorer soils and was unusually severe in Texas.

Lays It to Socialism.

General Bell has given out a statement concerning his action in deporting strikers from Cripple Creek and the cause leading up to the same. He attributed the recent troubles growing out of the miners' strike and the strike itself to the socialistic element in the Western Federation of Miners, who, he says, captured the federation at the Ogden convention two years ago. He declares the federation has made unionism a secondary consideration and that the organization, root and branch, is being made a vehicle for the promotion of socialism. General Bell made the following statement for publication:

"I have indisputable evidence in my possession which will lead to the conviction of a number of union men for the murder of the men who were killed in the Independence depot explosion. We have between thirty-five and forty men in the bull pen who will swing for this crime. We are only waiting to capture two or three more men before we tell what our evidence is. There will be no hesitation in acting."

SHOT GOING HOME FROM CHURCH

Young Man Says He Did It Accidentally, But Escapes.

Miss Anna Jones, of Wichita, Kans., while returning from church services, was shot and killed by some one in the party who was firing a revolver for fun. William Ward immediately after the girl was shot, exclaimed that he had shot her accidentally, but before officers arrived to arrest him he fled and has not yet been apprehended.

Ward is said to have been barely acquainted with the young woman and there seems to have been no motive for intentional shooting. The attempt of Ward to escape arrest is taken by the authorities as the only circumstance pointing to his guilt.

Woman May Hang.

Remarkable efforts are being made to prevent the hanging of Mrs. Alma Valentine, at Hankanset, N. J., next week for murder. The board of pardons already has refused to interfere and before starting for Chicago to attend the republican national convention, Governor Murphy signed the death warrant. Only two women have been executed in the history of New Jersey and opposition to the hanging has developed on that account. Efforts are now being made by her counsel to secure a reprieve from Acting Governor Wakelee so that the case may again be presented to the board of pardons.

Had Plenty of Money.

Unconscious, with $13,800 in cash fastened in a belt around his waist, a man whose name was later discovered to be Henry Butterman, was found in a Chicago boarding house in which gas was escaping from an open jet. Butterman was taken to the Alexian Brothers' hospital. Upon searching at the hospital for a clew to his identity the brothers uncovered $2,800 in gold and $11,000 in paper money tucked away in a leather belt. Butterman is said to be an agent for a Milwaukee publishing house. The escape of gas is attributed to an accident.

May Go to Turkey.

One more of the American men-of-war now assembled in Mediterranean waters, it is possible, after their service at Tangier is concluded, may go as far east as Turkey. The United States is aiming to secure for certain institutions and missions in Turkey the same privileges that the government of that country grants to the missionary and educational institutions of other countries.

Located at Huntsville.

The Butler-Kyser Oil company, after looking over all available sites, has decided to locate its big cotton oil mill, fertilizer factory and gin in Huntsville. The company expects to have building operations under way within a few days. The plant will be ready for business when the next cotton crop comes in.

Leadville, Colo., had a 4-inch snow fall last Thursday.

DEPORTED TO KANSAS

And Then Ordered from There by the Sheriff with an Armed Posse.

JURY BLAMES THE FEDERATION.

Co-Operative Mine to be Opened in New Mexico for the Deported Miners—Provision Made.

Seventy-six deported miners sent out from their state on a special train in charge of Colorado militiamen were put off in Kansas and left destitute on the prairie. With a parting volley fired into the air the militiamen returned west. Later the unfortunate miners were turned back to Colorado by an armed Kansas sheriff and deputies.

The miners had been placed on the train which was made up by the authorities in control at Cripple Creek and in charge of armed militiamen started for the east. The cars were closely guarded. The miners were not permitted to leave the cars, nor were any of the hundred or so men who gathered at the station allowed to communicate with them.

When a point in Kansas half a mile east of the Colorado state line was reached a halt was made. It was a deserted spot on the wild prairie with no railway station, eating house or farmer's house within several miles.

The men were disembraked, the engine was reversed and the militiamen reboarded the train. Colonel L. W. Kennedy, the officer in command of the guard, instructed the miners plainly that they were not wanted in Colorado and told them they had better go east.

A pitched battle between the military and union miners was fought at Dunville, the new mining camp, 12 miles out of Victor.

John Carey, a union miner, was killed.

The troops returned to Victor with fourteen captives.

It was reported before the special train left Victor for Dunville bearing the force under General Bell that the miners in the hills about Dunville numbered about 250 men, and that it was their intention to march into Victor in a body and attempt to liberate by force the inmates of the bull pen at Victor. The force actually consisted of but twenty-one men, is the statement of one of the number that was taken captive.

Union miners ridicule the theory of mine owners that any significance is attached to the marked photographs of non-union mines found at Victor union headquarters. A union leader said the purpose in printing pictures is to prevent strike-breakers assuming an alias and securing work in a union camp.

The coroner's jury says:

"We further find that said explosive was exploded by an infernal machine purposely and artfully set, and discharged by some person to the jury unknown, for the purpose of wilfully, maliciously and feloniously killing and murdering said persons, and others; that said crime is one of similar crimes designed and committed and perpetrated for the purpose of intimidating non-union miners, and said crimes are the result of a conspiracy entered into by certain members of the Western Federation of Miners, and known, incited and further by certain officers of that organization."

The committee says it has damaging evidence against a number of persons connecting them with the Independence dynamite outrage.

General Charles L. Cooper, retired, of the United States army, has been assigned to Colorado as adviser of the organized militia for a period of four years. General Cooper comes at the request of Governor Peabody and will receive the full pay and allowance of his rank.

President Roosevelt received a telegram from W. D. Heywood, secretary of the Western Federation of Miners, urging him to institute an investigation of the present conditions in the Cripple Creek district. Beyond the mere statement that the telegram had been received and that no answer had yet been sent to it no official information is obtainable. At least twice within the last six months the president has been requested to interfere in the Colorado troubles, but declined because he had no legal power to take action in the matter.

The women's auxiliary of the miners' union has been forbidden by the military authorities to hold meetings.

Lumbermen Win.

The Mississippi-Louisiana Retail Lumbermen's Association and the Mississippi Wholesalers' association have achieved a victory in their fight before the Mississippi railroad commission to secure sweeping changes in the rules of car service associations that will facilitate freight shipments, and the institution of a system of delayage charges by which railroads may be penalized for failure to deliver cars within a reasonable length of time.

ABNER M'KINLEY DEAD.

All Four McKinley Brothers Have Met Death Suddenly.

Saturday morning at his home in Somerset, Pa., Abner McKinley, brother of the late president, was found dead in a chair. His death came without warning to his family. His colored servant was up with him at 2 o'clock, and it is not known at what time Mr. McKinley got up again, as he did not awaken his servant.

Mrs. McKinley walked into his room and found him sitting in a chair, cold and dead.

The body will be taken to Canton for burial beside his mother in Westlawn cemetery.

Funeral services will be held at the home of Mrs. Ida McKinley, widow of the president, Monday afternoon.

Abner McKinley was the survivor of the four sons in the McKinley family, each of whom met a sudden or violent death. James McKinley died suddenly of apoplexy on a train near New Castle, Pa.; David was stricken in the same manner at San Francisco, and William, the president, was assassinated at Buffalo.

FLOODS BREAK LEVEES.

Arkansas Cotton Lands Inundated and the Crop Ruined.

The flood in the Arkansas river reached its most destructive stage when part of the Frenchtown levee, about three miles below the city, broke and turned the river through a rich section of the country filled with growing crops of cotton and corn. Since the water began to rise the planters in that section have been working day and night to save this important levee, because it protects the rich bottom lands for miles below.

Ten thousand sacks of sand were sent on a special train and scores of men went down to assist in the work. The men worked all night, but the rising water swept away their labors.

The breaking of this levee gives the water a clean sweep over the southern portion of the country.

A special from Pine Bluff, Ark., says: The levee at Hannaberry broke Saturday and more than 3,00 0acres of cotton land is under water. Every available man, together with state convicts, is being pressed into service in an effort to repair the break.

Mississippi Railroad Question.

What promises to be an important piece of litigation, especially to those sections affected by the recent consolidation of railroads, will be the outcome of the resolution pending before the Mississippi railroad commission prohibiting the Mobile and Ohio and Southern railways from making a joint rate on shipments carried over both lines. Although the consolidation of the Mobile and Ohio and Southern railway has been officially sanctioned by the railroad commission, it has never been sanctioned by the legislature or the courts. A bill seeking to validate the merger was passed at the recent legislative session after a fight, but it has not yet been signed by the governor.

New Railroad a Go.

The Memphis and Gulf railroad will be built through Meridian and east Mississippi in a very short time. It is reported that Memphis investors have too much at stake to let this railroad project drop and those behind the proposition are determined to carry out the plans and have a direct line to the gulf as the completion of the Panama canal promises benefits to those cities which are prepared to reap the benefit through transportation facilities.

School Tax Carries.

The election for the levy of one mill school tax passed off quietly in Walker Saturday. Returns from the larger precincts indicate that the measure has carried by about five to one.

Columbus Gets Standard Stove Works.

D. R. Saunders, proprietor of the Standard stove works of Fort Payne, Ala., announces that the total amount necessary to be subscribed to remove that enterprise to Columbus, Miss., has been raised and that city will have the industry in operation not later than September 15th.

Alabamian First.

The medal that is offered each year to the graduate of the Lowell Textile school making the highest grade by the united cotton concerns of New England was won this year by William P. Meadows, a young man from Alabama. The only other Alabama student in the graduating class was E. R. Halsell, of Marion, Ala.

William R. Meadows is well known in Birmingham, having attended Howard college, graduating with the bachelor's degree. After leaving Howard he received the degree of bachelor of science at the University of Chicago. He is from Lowndes county, where his parents and relatives reside at present.

Iron Market.

From statistical returns it looks, says the Iron Age, as though the consumption of pig iron had declined materially since March, while expanding production had not been checked until last month.

The output for May was 1,533,500 tons of anthracite and coke pig iron as compared with 1,554,000 tons in April. But the rate of output, which had reached 366,000 tons a week on May 1st, had dropped back to 326,000 tons June 1st.

IN ALABAMA SOIL.

Mother Earth Has Deposited Great Store of Riches.

Late census bulletin relates to mines and quarries. It credits Alabama with 209, which yielded products in 1902 worth $17,367,992. The number of wage earners in them was 19,132, to whom was paid $10,345,.48 in wages.

Alabama's mineral products in 1902 were valued as follows:

Clay	$ 19,742
Coal	12,419,666
Gold and silver	1,057
Iron ore	3,936,813
Limestones and dolomite	759,617
Sandstones and quartzites	42,.06
All other minerals	188,.6?

"All other minerals" include a barytite mine, a cement quarry, a graphite mine, a marble quarry and a sulphur and pyrite mine. The coal miners earned $7,841,4a7, and the ore miners $2,029,807.

Supposed Insane.

William Roberson, a son-in-law of Locke Groves, of near Blountville, committed suicide Saturday. Ed Groves went to his home near Oneonta and brought Mr. Roberson to jail with the intention of sending him to Tuscaloosa as soon as papers could be arranged. The next day his father-in-law came to town and as Roberson was quiet and in no way dangerous the authorities consented for Locke Groves to take him to Blountville for treatment.

While at his father-in-law's and after the family had retired Thursday night, Mr. Roberson arose and was missed next morning. A search was instituted for him, and he was found hanging to a tree, cold in death. He had hanged himself with a halter chain.

Drink Did It.

Jim Kennedy slashed his brother-in-law, Pat Connelly, with a knife near the home of the latter in Wylam. The men, it is stated, had been drinking and became engaged in a quarrel, Kennedy using his knife with awful effects. Little hopes are held out for Connelly's recovery. The blade pierced his right lung, almost cutting that organ in twain.

The exact cause of the fight is not known. The men are between forty and forty-five years of age. They are miners by occupation and have large families dependent on them.

Will Encamp.

The conference of the commanding officers of the various organizations of the Alabama national guard with Governor Cunningham and the adjutant General resulted in the decision that a brigade encampment should be held between July 20th and 30th.

The matter of the place was referred to a committee composed of Adjutant General Brandon and the commanding officers of the five military divisions. The location is to be selected in a reasonable time, bids being invited.

Huntsville Wants School.

Another public meeting will be held for the purpose of considering plans to secure the location of a female college in Huntsville. Since the destruction by fire of the Huntsville Female college, the citizens have been sending their daughters elsewhere to finish their education. They are now thoroughly aroused over the matter of having a local college and several thousands of dollars have been pledged to the movement.

About three and one-third million tons of pig iron were made in southern furnaces during 1903.

The thirty-second annual commencement of the Alabama Polytechnic institute officially ended Wednesday morning and was in many respects ahead of any preceding in the history of the institution.

Officer Shot.

George Bryan, for years a member of the police force of Greenville, was shot, perhaps fatally, by John Johnson. Johnson is accused of setting fire to the Baptist church at Till, Butler county, and was wanted on a charge of incendiarism.

TRIED TO KILL FARMER.

News has just reached here from Kemper county, Mississippi, that an attempt was made to shoot Ross Legette, a prominent farmer of the Mount Nebo community. A shot was fired either from a revolver or shot gun into the home where Mr. Legette was sleeping, which shattered the window panes above the bed, but which fortunately did not harm the sleeper.

Later a warrant was issued for the arrest of Henry A. Shutts another prominent farmer of the same neighborhood, charging him with the deed. All the parties are well known and have figured in the passage cases which came up in the federal court at Meridian during the spring term.

In Georgia.

The following named projected businesses will soon be in operation:

Atlanta—$25,000 medicine factory.

Cordele—$6,000 cotton gin.

Savannah—$25,000 cooperage plant; fertilizer factory.

CONFEDERATE REUNION

At Nashville Tuesday to Thursday—The Vets are Gathering.

Tennessee's capital is decorated as never before in honor of the occasion.

Preparations on an enormous scale have been completed for the entertainment of those heroes of bygone battlefields.

Confederate relief for free entertainment of the old soldiers is expected to feed 12,000 daily.

Aside from the parade on Thursday, the laying of the corner stone of the confederate memorial on Wednesday will be a distinctive feature. It will be accompanied by Masonic ceremonies, and Henry Watterson, editor of the Louisville Courier-Journal, will address the veterans.

Stephen Lee, commander of the United Confederate association, is among the early arrivals, the demonstration at his reception being notable.

In an interview regarding the commandership General Lee said:

"I am in no sense a candidate for the place of commander of the veterans. The place is too sacred and too honorable for any man to seek it. I am merely the commander by accident of the death of our late beloved commander, the lamented Gordon."

ANNISTON GETS THE COLLEGE.

Anniston 39, Montgomery 16, Florence 13, Jasper 8.

That was the result of the fourth ballot that settled the location of the Alabama synodical college for women. Bessemer's bid was withdrawn after the third ballot. Anniston was made the unanimous choice.

An effort to secure this college has existed through three years, and the final settlement of a location is a matter upon which the entire church in the state is now congratulating its representatives. At times the contest became heated, but the victory for Anniston was received in a splendid spirit by the entire membership of the synod, and the board of directors was instructed to take charge of the property at Anniston, getting proper titles to same.

Some subscriptions have already been made and students are already enrolled.

Brookside's Roast.

The report of the grand jury of the criminal court of Jefferson county is a vigorous document.

The most significant portion of the report is contained in the paragraph referring to the appalling disregard for human life in the county, and urging the peace officers of the county to co-operate with the people at large and future grand juries in forcing "from the public service many of those who now disgrace it." On this point the report says:

"One of the most appalling examples of the possibilities of making the laws of the state a vehicle for persecution and oppression comes to us from Brookside. God help the defenseless and the ignorant when the officers of the law there get them in their clutches. All who spoke of the conditions there did so either with contempt or with fear and trembling. Indictments are pending against practically all of the guilty ones there, and we urge a vigorous prosecution."

Two from Atlanta.

The National Association of Deans of Faculties, representing fifty-one colleges and universities, which has been in session in Washington, adjourned Saturday to meet subject to the call of the executive committee. Officers were elected as follows:

President, Dr. S. W. Foster, of Atlanta; vice president, Dr M. W. Reuter, of Baltimore; secretary, J. J. Kennerly, of St. Louis; treasurer, H. Jewett, of Atlanta.

Peonage Alleged.

Sheriff Sim D. May, of Crenshaw county, has been arrested and arraigned, charged with holding in peonage Matt Youngblood, a half-grown negro woman. He made temporary bond. The warrant was sworn out by the woman herself.

Mining Combination.

Announcement will soon be made of a combination of mining interests of America with John D. Rockefeller at its head. The capital of the new companies, it is said, will be $100,000,000, and the purpose is to control the mineral output of the United States with the possible exception of the Calumet and Hecla copper mines in Michigan.

Mormon Bishop Accidentally Killed.

J. B. Asheroft, of Fruitland, New Mexico, a bishop of the Mormon church and manager of the co-operative store at Fruitland, has been accidentally killed while blasting rock in the construction of an irrigation ditch for the Navajo Indians.

A mistake of a grocer in filling a customer's jug with gasoline instead of vinegar was asked for resulted in an explosion at a home in Kansas City and caused the death of one person and injury to three others.

From Waugekan, Ill., we learn that the Warner Sugar Refining company, whose great glucose establishment was destroyed by explosion several months ago, has now rebuilt the entire establishment.

CATARRH OF MOST

PE-RU-

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Reader Court No. 1, I. O. O. F., 205 New High St., Los Angeles:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. A change of climate would cure me, but I found I was mistaken. But what the climate could not do Peruna did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine, and I am a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney troubles through the use of Peruna, and it has no equal for these troubles in this city."—SAMUEL R. SPRECHER.

Catarrh of the Kidneys a Common Disease—Kidney Trouble Often Fails to Be Regarded as Catarrh by Physicians.

Catarrh of the kidneys is very common indeed. It is a pity this fact is not better known to the physicians as well as the people.

People have kidney disease. They take their doctor's boring to get better. They never once think of catarrh. Kidney disease and catarrh are seldom associated in the minds of the people, and, alas, it is very often associated in the minds of physicians. Too few physicians recognize catarrh of the kidneys. They doctor for something else. They try this remedy and that remedy, and fail to get the desired results.

Peruna is the remedy for catarrh of the kidneys. It is a specific for this disease. It is a specific for catarrh wherever located. Peruna is a specific for catarrh of the kidneys because it is a specific for catarrh. Peruna is a specific for catarrh because it is a systemic remedy. It is a remedy that goes to the bottom of the disease. It is a remedy that removes the cause of the disease. It is a remedy that builds up the whole system. It is a remedy that makes pure blood. It is a remedy that makes strong nerves. It is a remedy that makes good digestion. It is a remedy that makes good appetite. It is a remedy that makes good health.

Peruna is a remedy that has been used by millions of people. It is a remedy that has been used by the family of a noted Boston physician, and with great success as a Vaginal Douche in Leucorrhea, Pelvic Catarrh, Nasal Catarrh, Sore Throat, Sore Eyes, Cuts, Abrasions of mucous membrane.

CATARRH IS THE CAUSE OF MOST KIDNEY DISEASES.

PE-RU-NA CURES CATARRH.

Samuel R. Sprecher, Junior Beadle Court Angelina, No. 2, F. O. O. F., 205 New High St., Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I came here a few years ago suffering with catarrh of the kidneys, in search of health. I thought the climate would cure me, but found I was mistaken. But what the climate could not do Peruna could and did do. Seven weeks' trial convinced me that I had the right medicine, and I was then a well man. I know of at least twenty friends and members of the lodge to which I belong who have been cured of catarrh, bladder and kidney trouble through the use of Peruna, and it has a host of friends in this city."—SAMUEL R. SPRECHER.

Catarrh of the Kidneys a Common Disease—Kidney Trouble Often Fails to Be Regarded as Catarrh by Physicians.

Catarrh of the kidneys is very common indeed. It is a pity this fact is not better known to the physicians as well as the people.

People have kidney disease. They take some diuretic, hoping to get better. They never once think of catarrh. Kidney disease and catarrh are seldom associated in the minds of the people, and, alas, it is very often associated in the minds of physicians. Too few physicians recognize catarrh of the kidneys. They doctor something else. They try this remedy and that remedy. The trouble may be catarrh all the time. A few bottles of Peruna would cure them.

Peruna strikes at the very centre of the difficulty, by eradicating the catarrh from the kidneys. Catarrh is the cause of kidney difficulty. Remove the cause and you remove the effect. With unerring accuracy Peruna goes right to the spot. The kidneys are soon doing their work with perfect regularity.

Thousands of Testimonials.

Thousands of testimonials from people who have had kidney disease which had gone beyond the control of the physician are received by Dr. Hartman every year, giving Peruna the whole praise for marvelous cures.

Pe-ru-na Cures Kidney Disease.

Peruna cures kidney disease. The reason it cures kidney disease is because it cures catarrh. Catarrh of the kidneys is the cause of most kidney disease. Peruna cures catarrh wherever it happens to be located. It rarely fails.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

CAPTAIN JAMES L. DEMPSEY.

"From my personal experience with Peruna I am satisfied it is a very fine remedy for catarrhal affections, whether of the head, lungs, stomach or pelvic organs. It cures colds quickly, and a few doses taken after unusual exposure prevents illness.

"Some of the patrolmen under me have also found great relief from Peruna. It has cured chronic cases of kidney and bladder trouble, restored men suffering from indigestion and rheumatism, and I am fully persuaded that it is an honest, reliable medicine, hence, I fully endorse and recommend it."

—JAMES L. DEMPSEY.

"As my duties compelled me to be out in all kinds of weather I contracted a severe cold from time to time, which settled on the kidneys, causing severe pains and trouble in the pelvic organs.

"I am now like a new man, am in splendid health and give all praise to Peruna."—A. C. Swanson.

WOMAN'S WORLD

A WOMAN DID IT.

"How and when was condensed milk discovered?" said D. M. Miedell to the Louisville Herald. "Well, that is an easy question, known to all venders of the article.

"It chanced that in 1854 the journey from New Orleans to New York was a considerable trip. A certain lady—Mrs. Albert Cashinger—determined to make the trip with her sick infant.

"Mrs. Cashinger's baby was so ill that she realized that it would be necessary to make a trip to New York to receive expert medical attention if she hoped to save the child's life. But to travel that long distance the child had to have milk. Milk wouldn't keep fresh more than a few hours. So there she was, kept back from making the trip merely because she could not supply the child with fresh milk.

"In her despair she began to experiment to see if she could not preserve milk the same as she did jelly or anything else. She hit upon a plan which seemed to give satisfaction. So she preserved several big jars of the stuff, put it upon a sailing vessel and made the trip. The child fed upon the milk and was nourished.

"In New York several men learned of her discovery. They tried to make some of the condensed milk in the manner she had told them, but failed. They followed her to New Orleans and there she unwittingly unfolded her valuable secret. On the island of Galveston these men started a small factory and there the first salable condensed milk was made.

"The woman died poor. The manufacturers made a fortune. Now condensed milk is sold in every part of the world.

THE FUTURE OF DRESS.

As women advance in the scale of progress, will they leave the love of dress behind? Fifty-odd years ago, when the first woman's rights conventions met in New England, this did not seem a debatable question. Short hair and bloomers characterized the feminine champions of the cause. Dress was proclaimed as one of the vanities from which the sex was to be emancipated. But fifty years have passed; and now Miss Susan B. Anthony, in her gracious and serene old age, wears point lace, like any other woman fortunate enough to possess it. The leader of a suffrage convention and those of a whist club could be shaken up together nowadays, and no one would know which was which, as far as their clothes were concerned. The advanced woman no longer cuts her hair short, and the speaker at a woman's club is often the most daintily gowned woman in the room.

The dress of the future will follow the conditions of the future woman. It is prettier and daintier to-day than it ever was, and as long as women continue pretty and dainty there is little fear that the graces of costume will vanish. It would be a graver world if they did. Dress reform always has a field. But when it is a reform against nature, no one need worry lest it should succeed. Dress is safe in the hands of the women of to-day, and ought to be safer still in the hands of the women of to-morrow. The alarmist has small cause for fear on that score.—Harper's Bazar.

FOR A REAL FACE WASH.

How many women ever wash their faces? How many even know how? For the application of soap and water does not cleanse the pores of the skin. It only takes off the outside dirt, and the pores are left just as they were before the soap and water were used. To make the skin beautiful and fresh, to remove the blemishes, is easily done by really washing the face. To do this, have a supply of boiling hot water, some icy-cold water, cream for the skin, and two towels, one soft. Put the soft one in the hot water, and then spread it over the face; repeat this, until the skin feels as if it had been parboiled. Quickly apply the cream, rub in thoroughly with the tips of the fingers, then wipe off the cream and again apply the hot towel. Without stopping a moment place the towel dipped in the cold water on the face, and do this until the skin tingles. Dry the face, and you may be sure that your face is washed, if it never has been before. To prevent any chapping, rub cold cream lightly over the skin and apply a little powder to keep away the shine that would follow the use of the cream. If the face is washed this way two or three times a week it will always be fresh and young looking.—New York Press.

FASHION'S NEW DEPARTURES.

Tan colored linen, with a touch of sky blue, will be seen a good deal at our gay resorts this year, and a good many new shades are likely to come to the fore, for they have not only been introduced, but they have caught on our variable minds. The pink apricot, the deep raspberry pink, the spinach green and the coffee brown, not unlike burnt bread, are second to none in general appreciation. Some of the stuffs are covered all over with pendant balls in marked contrast, and a lattice work of velvet and ribbon not only forms trimmings on skirts, but heads the high and low bodices a jour, and the sleeves are as various as the days of the year, but they must be large; straps of the same velvet or ribbon carried across the shoulders seem to keep the bodice in place. Tucks appear upon the hem, from one to two inches deep, and are set crossways on the hips to the depth of an eighth of an inch. The bodices are more blousséd than ever, but a good figure is not thrown away, and the materials adjust themselves closely to the waist at the back.—The Queen.

WOMEN AFTER MIDDLE AGE.

After middle age the average woman begins to care more for women than she does for men. Her allegiance undergoes a psychic change, her eyes are opened, her judgment cleared, and she learns to appreciate her sex fully. The characteristics that seemed to her hateful frailties long ago are developed now as their poetic distinctions, says The Independent.

She sees in every girl the fair mirage of her own youth; in the pathetic, careworn face of the young matron the gentle heroism of other years; in the mother of a grown family her own queen days when sons and daughters suddenly grew tall and proclaimed her. And for them all she has a chastened affinity. Men have passed out of her calculations.

They are the things with whom she failed or succeeded, from lover and husband down to her youngest son. And, however much she remains dependent upon them, she is no longer related to them in the same way. She has survived them and returned to her own.

THE CAMERA AT COURT.

The Queen has long been famous as an amateur photographer. But she is by no means the only member of the royal family who is a devotee of the camera. The Princess of Wales has a large collection of photographs taken by herself, many of them at Sandringham. Princess Victoria, Princess Beatrice, the Duches of Fife—all these go in largely for amateur photography. At Sandringham a dark room has been fitted up, and some at least of the Queen's own pictures are developed at home.

WOMEN AS EXPERT MARINERS.

In some coast villages among the Danes, Norwegians and Finns women are employed as sailors and prove themselves to be expert mariners. In the smaller sailing ships, where there is a woman on board, whether she be the wife of the skipper or the stewardess, she is expected to take her turn at the ordinary work of the sailor, not even excluding the duties of the man at the wheel or of the night watch. Denmark employs several women as state officials at sea. Experienced captains assert that the women make excellent sailors, and are equal to most seamen in dexterity and power of endurance.—London World.

WOULD YOU BE SVELTE?

The "health" craze, which has been started of late years by the insistent demands of hygiene and the disconcerting discoveries of scientific and medical men, now includes a new "cure" for the matron with a tendency to embonpoint. This is nothing less than a daily practice of the ancient art of "skipping." Every morning the lady who values her personal appearance must take her skipping rope and solemnly jump the allotted number of times, breathing slowly and regularly as she goes through the performance. The girl still in the nursery and schoolroom is also being encouraged to revert to this old fashioned amusement, which "has been found to be beneficial in every way to the health."

And yet, when we who are yet on the sunny side of thirty, look back we can recall that rope skipping was often condemned, when we were children, because it was so bad for the heart!

FASHION HINTS.

Deep ruffles of lace, Hamburg or the material finish many of the thin waists. These are some three or more inches wide, set on at the lower edge of a deep yoke, and carried over the tops of the sleeves.

Lawn petticoats in pink and blue, with deep ruffles, trimmed with lace, are a feature of the shops, and are delightful for wear under summer gowns of the same shade.

A lovely quilt for the baby's bassinet is of pink India silk, eiderdown filled, quilted in a diamond pattern, and the wide pink ruffle is edged with lace.

TOLD IN CALIFORNIA.

Helping the kidneys is helping the whole body, for it is the kidneys that remove the poisons and waste from the body. Learning this simple lesson has made many sick men and women well.

Judge A. J. Fetter, of 318 So. E St., San Bernardino, Calif., says: "For 18 years my kidneys were not performing their functions properly. There was some backache and the kidney secretions were profuse, containing a sediment. Many doctors and I had no relief. Doan's Kidney Pills wrought a great change in my condition and now I sleep and feel well again."

A FREE trial of this great kidney medicine which cured Judge Fetter will be mailed to any part of the United States. Address Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y. Sold by all dealers; price 50 cents per box.

A French scientist has made some observations as to the behavior of different wild animals at sea says the Westminster Gazette. The polar bear, he says, is the only one that takes to the sea, and is quite jolly when aboard ship. All others resent a trip on water and boisterously give vent to their feelings, until sea-sickness brings silence. The tiger suffers most of all. He whines, his eyes water continually and he rubs his stomach with his paws. Horses are very bad sailors and often perish on a sea voyage. Oxen are heroic in their attempts not to give way to sickness. Elephants do not like the sea, but they are amenable to medical treatment.

The engineers who have studied the effects of fire in tall buildings in Baltimore seem to agree that iron and steel should not be intermingled in the frame of a building. Cast iron after heating and cooling shows a permanent expansion, while under similar conditions steel will return to its original dimensions. Baltimore's steel skeleton buildings resisted the fire, while cast iron buildings lay in shattered ruins. One towering steel building, although gutted from top to bottom, was found to be plumb and the skeleton in such perfect condition that the building could be refinished and occupied again.

The czar has given a commission in the Daghestan cavalry to Prince Napoleon Murat, great grandson of Napoleon's marshal, the stable boy whom Napoleon made king of Naples. He resigned, to accept this place, a lieutenancy in the Ninth Cuirassiers of the French army, in which service he won great honor in Madagascar. His grandmother was Caroline Fraser, of Philadelphia, who was governess in the family of Joseph Bonaparte when he lived in Bordentown, N. J., and afterwards married Lucien Murat. His mother, the wife of Achille Murat, was a Mingrelian princess.

Miss Gannon, Sec'y Detroit Amateur Art Association, tells young women what to do to avoid pain and suffering caused by female troubles.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can conscientiously recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to those of my sisters suffering with female weakness and the troubles which so often befall women. I suffered for months with general weakness, and felt so weary that I had hard work to keep up. I had shooting pains and was utterly miserable. In my distress I was advised to use Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and it was a red letter day to me when I took the first dose, for at that time my restoration began. In six weeks I was a changed woman, perfectly well in every respect. I felt so elated and happy that I want all women who suffer to get well as I did."—Miss GUILA GANNON, 320 Jessie St., Detroit, Mich., Secretary Amateur Art Association.—$5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving its genuineness cannot be produced.

When one considers that Miss Gannon's letter is only one of the countless hundreds which are continually publishing in the newspapers of this country, the great virtues of Mrs. Pinkham's medicine must be admitted by all.

I have not seen anything from here lately. I think some things have occurred that are worthy of note.

Rev. T. L. Deason visited Maple Springs the third Sunday in May and preached an excellent sermon. Bro. Deason once had the care of this church and his old congregation gave him a most hearty welcome.

Hon. T. U. Crumpton filled his appointment at Maple Springs the first Sunday and delivered a fine lecture on the Holy Land to a large and appreciative audience; the house, though large, was crowded; those that could not get seats stood in every space to be found and the windows were full and there was quite a large crowd that could not get in hearing. Bro. Crumpton's lectures are interesting and instructive; he explains and makes clear many things in the Bible that is not thoroughly understood by the common people. He is doing a great work, may the Lord bless his labors.

Mrs. H. A. Harris is still quite sick. We have had a fine rain and crops are growing rapidly, fruit is getting ripe and berries are coming in. Farmers should cease to complain and learn to be greatful. C. J.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

The health of this community is very good at this time, except Mr. N. J. Maddox and Mrs. Willie Wright; we hope the Lord will soon restore them to health, so that they can attend to their domestic duties and church service. We miss them very much on church days.

Prof. R. A. Rasco of Thorsby was with us Sunday. By request of the pastor and congregation he agreed to address the people at 11 o'clock, on the subject of Sunday school work; he gave us a good lecture and said many good things that will be remembered by some of us a long time. We hope to see the fruit of his talk by our people taking more interest in the Sunday school. We hope Bro. Rasco will come to see us again.

We expect to have a few day's meeting here the last of July. Bro. A. C. Swindall has promised to come and help in the meeting. I ask all praying people that read this to pray for the success of the meeting.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are pieced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins, antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflamation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Thorsby, June 20, 1904

Editor Banner—A few words from Collins Chapel for my first time. General health of community good; farmers are moving along nicely with their farm work; corn working is about over for this season; cotton is looking shabby for the time of year.

Well, we have a fine Sabbath school every Sunday and a choir that can't be beat in the county, which we are proud of, and to know that the young people are ingenious in the Master's cause.

We are going to have a good singing school to begin at the Chapel July 1, under the skillful management of Mr. J. L. Gore and wife.

Well, Mr. Editor, I learn by actual count there was only about half as many at the Republican rally as were at the Democratic rally, so you see how things are going. Not a single thing of note was discussed, only a few big yarns blowed off by Lewis on the Democrats of much such stuff as don't amount to anything at all. He also referred to Pratt's letter in The Banner, and had a little chat on that letter, and he knew at the time that Pratt said that the total indebtedness of the county was only $42,000 and the last payment to be made in eight years, and the county had no bonded debt and didn't owe a dollar that she couldn't pay promptly. Also said that they had to tag the Democrats on the 11th inst. so they would know them. Yes, Lewis, and so they did, but not in order to know them altogether, but to show to such fellows as you are that we aim to march to victory in November. I would to God that some man or party would tag you so people would know what side you are on.

In Birmingham you are a Republican and in Chilton a Pop. So I think you will soon be popped out.

Now, my fellow-citizens, the good Book teaches that we can't serve two masters at once, so Lewis is trying to serve two and misses both. Now, gentlemen, watch this, after the 26th July and see if Pop. ticket ain't headed a Republican ticket straight. Now, if you don't want to affiliate in the Republican party straight stay out of the primary the 26. What can a man promise himself in the Republican party here in the far South? Nothing only to associate with the black African negro. Yes, they say the Democrats have negroes as jurors; God bless your soul, when the Republicans are in power of the Federal courts of our land, there and then you can see negroes on the juries and only then.

Well, I notice in the Union that N Ray said he was a spectator at the Democratic rally, and so he was a "spec." for we did't expect anything else of him only as a spectator, for we don't need an ex preacher, nor an ex man, nor ex Socialist, nor a red tea drinker in any public office in the county. So gentlemen beware how you make the cross on the 26th of July, for Mr. Ex is on the ticket for Tax Assessor, and we must ex him out of the race on the 26th and let him swing the Republican banner around his own door and see if he can raise any ex ray there. I am sure after the November election we will ex him out with the rest of the demagogues.

SUNDAY SCHOOL BOY.

Burwell, June 18, 1904

Editor Banner—Please allow me space for a few items from Rushton and Burwell. People are generally up with their work, and crops are looking well considering the drouth; we are needing rain badly, it's raining in sight.

As to politics, it's like the old lady's sugar. They don't like the color of their party's delegation in these Southern States, and it looks like that would just make a natural born Southern white man vote the Democratic ticket anyhow, as the old Democratic party has always stood for white supremacy and is the party that put the negro out of business politically. Success to the Banner and the Democratic party.

Thorsby.

The neices of the Misses Rasberry of Maplesville are visiting in Thorsby.

Much is due to the tender care of Dr. and Mrs. Stabler, that little J. W. can now sit up and enjoy life.

The Sunbeam society met June 22d with Miss Olsen, the gracious hostess at the hotel.

Mr. J. J. Hawthorne of Meridian, Miss., is visiting his people at the dormitory.

Rumor of the Thorsby ice plant gives one agreeable sensations now-a-days.

Thorsby can find ice cream Saturday and Wednesday at either Miss Gerald's parlor, or at the store of J. J. Stanley.

Mr. J. W. Franzen and Arnold contemplate a trip to New Mexico.

Band Master Blair returned to Montgomery last week.

The sign of Thorsby Inn is out.

Prof. Rasco preached last Sunday to the edification of Collins Chaple people.

Bulletin board says, Thorsby fruit arrived in good condition. Ten carloads have already gone.

Mr. Sam Thames has returned from a most enjoyable visit to friends in and around Jemison.

Mr. T. J. Traywick, one of Verbena's most enterprising merchants, paid our city a flying visit recently.

Your correspondent raised a turnip this season 20 inches in circumference. How is that for turnips raised on a high mountain?

Mrs. Northcutt and children of Chilton are visiting Mrs. Elmore Disons' family.

A number of young people from here attended the ice cream supper given at Oak Grove. Some of those that attended were Misses Kate Hill and Leila Goodwin, also Messrs. Gray Hill, Tom Arlege, H. B. Northington, Ben Gibbons, John Honeycutt and Averett Goodwin, they report having a pleasant time.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

Last Saturday night Dr. W. O. Walker of Plantersville was held up and robbed by two white men, about two miles from Maplesville. His hat, watch and $5 in money was taken from him, but after the robbers were arrested next morning the Doctor got all his belongings back, except his hat, which was cut to pieces by the highwaymen.

The men arrested were Tom Klinner of Maplesville and Ocie Holloman of Plantersville, both white men.

Pleasant Grove.

A number of our people from Pleasant Grove visited Rockymount and report a nice time.

Mrs. J. B. Lewis, who has been visiting her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Cleckler, near Jemison, has returned to her home in Fairburn, Ga., Monday.

Mr. S. E. Cleckler had all of his children home Sunday and a host of other friends, and the day was enjoyed by all. Best wishes to the Banner.

ONE OF THE BOYS.

Falakto.

Bro. Willie Jones of Mountain Creek filled his appointment at Maple Spring Saturday night and preached a fine sermon for one so young a d so little experienced; he is but twenty years of age and has been preaching one year; he bids fair to make an able expounder of the Scriptures. He is a grandson of the late Rev. Hardy Jones. K.J.

New Cedron.

The people of our community are getting along nicely with their farm work; most of them are done working their corn and by the help of the Lord expect a good crop.

Our literary school here is progressing nicely under the skillful management of Prof. M. D. Mims.

Mr. W. S. Jones of Billingsley visited the family of Mr. J. S. Bone Sunday.

Mr. I. M. Deason and family visited relatives near Bethsalem Sunday.

Mr. Tom Strycklin and family visited relatives near Sardis Sunday.

Some of the young people of our community went to Maple Springs Sunday and report an excellent time.

Well, I must tell about the hunt. Some of our people went out hunting last Saturday evening and killed 21 rabbits, 12 squirrels and 4 hawks, and the best of all they gathered 50 gallons of blackberries which were very nice for canning purposes.

The world's a thrill of joy until
My soul has caught its tune;
So I sing a song the whole day long,
Of the warm sweet day in June.

SUNSHINE.

Energy.

Please allow me a small space in your dear old Banner.

Well, the health of this community is very good now. Everybody is needing rain; it is raining about in places and we hope to see it raining here.

The Sunday school at this place is progressing nicely, we hope it will keep increasing very fast.

We think that Mr A. J. Gray is doing big business selling goods.

I notice Mr. M. E. Culp is writing to the Banner, next time you write, I hope you will write something besides Irish potatoes.

YOUR SWEETHEART.

Thrown from a Wagon.

Mr. George K. Babcock was thrown from his wagon and severely bruised. He applied Chamberlain's Pain Balm freely and says it is the best liniment he ever used. Mr. Babcock is a well known citizen of North Plain, Conn. There is nothing equal to Pain Balm for sprains and bruises. It will effect a cure in one third the time required by any other treatment. CLANTON, ALA.

One of the twelve-inch guns of the Italian warship Brul is to be named Wilhelm II., after the Kaiser. It is the first compliment of the kind paid to anybody in Italy.

A point in flag etiquette was settled in London on the day the Duke of Cambridge died. In ordinary circumstances the official flags would have been half masted. But as it was the birthday of the Princess Louise, the flags were full masted, a birthday outranking a deathday in the royal family.

The Milwaukee Sentinel avers that "we should not jump at conclusions drawn from the Russian disasters too favorably to the torpedo and inferentially the submarine. The claim made by some that the battleship is shown by the test of war to be the 'helpless prey' of these new engines of attack is overdrawn and unwarranted."

The United States intends to have an office building of rare proportions and dignity. May it prove to be as impressive architecturally as the splendid edifice of the Congressional Library! Washington is surpassing all other cities in this country in the planning of structures which are not raised for passing fancies or fads, but which will be monumental and will endure for centuries.

Of an estimated coal area of about 4,650,000 square miles in the world, China is credited with 1,000,000 square miles; the United States has about 280,000 square miles, Great Britain 11,900 miles, Germany 1770 miles, France 2080 miles, and Belgium 510 square miles. Area is not, however, a true measure of value. The anthracite fields of Pennsylvania include an area of only 468 miles, but these are undoubtedly of more value than any other coal area of like extent anywhere in the world.

The fact is brought out by the Educational Review that over 13,000,000 persons are enrolled in the Sunday-schools of this country. In the public schools the enrollment is nearly 16,000,000, or nearly 3,000,000 more. The accusation that the religious education of children is neglected in America, with the consequence of inevitable moral degeneration in our society, as alleged by Rev. Mr. Geer, is not sustained by these statistics. More attention seems to be given to the religious training of children in this country by churches and in schools and by home instruction than in any other of Christendom.

The time has not yet come, says the Philadelphia Inquirer, when battleships and cruisers can be abandoned, because there is nothing to take their places. The lesson which we learned from the Spanish War is that they should be handled with the greatest skill and efficiency, and that is all that has come out of the Russo-Japanese War up to date. Mines blow vessels up, whether they are battleships or lumber rafts. Torpedoes are dangerous to cruisers in armor and to mud scows alike. In naval warfare the problem is to keep away from your enemy's mines and torpedoes and do the destroying yourself. It is the gun that is handled with efficiency that wins in a conflict. That is the word—efficiency—the keynote to success on the seas.

The limit fixed by some authorities for the disappearance of wood pulp paper is fifteen years. A writer in the Brooklyn Eagle says that "as a matter of fact wood pulp came into general newspaper use in the early eighties and the Eagle files of that date are in a very good state of preservation, yellow around the edges, but with no signs of any such disintegration as will make them illegible. The same thing is true of the issues printed on straw paper in the years before wood pulp came in. Both are brittle and crackly and would go to pieces rapidly under rough usage, but as files are kept in any library they give no more sign of disappearing than do the papers printed last year. This indicates that there is a good deal of guesswork in the prediction as to the ultimate disappearance of all that vast literature and journalism which is now printed on wood pulp. Certainly the guess of fifteen years is wrong and the prophets may have as much difficulty in fixing a date for the disappearance of wood pulp records as the early Adventists had in foretelling the end of the world.

CAPTURED INNER FORT

Reports Say Japanese Have Possessed Themselves of Port Arthur Defense.

LOST 1,000 MEN IN THE FIGHT.

Russian Squadron Has Completed Its Raid After Damaging the Japanese Fleet.

There is current a Chinese rumor that the Japanese have captured one of the inner forts at Port Arthur, losing one thousand men in the engagement. It can not, however, be confirmed.

The agitation among the Mongols inhabiting the Altai region is increasing over the appearance of the god Airol, who they believe will deliver them from a foreign yoke and create an independent kingdom. The Mongols are gathering in thousands to answer to the summons of men who are proclaimng themselves to be the apostles of the god Airol. These men are inspiring awe among the ignorant nomads by means of an alleged miracle carried out with the aid of electrical and pyrotechnical devices. They warn the Mongols to abstain from wearing white or red clothing, these being Russian national colors, and to wear only blue and yellow, the national colors of Japan, and urge them to worship the sun and moon. They also warn the inhabitants to discard all agricultural implements, and to keep their arms hidden in the mountains and elsewhere.

The raid of the Russian Vladivostock squadron is over. The squadron disappeared off Cape Henashi, steering to the north, and it has not been reported since. It is assumed to be returning to Vladivostock. Whether or not a portion of Vice Admiral Kamimura's squadron is awaiting the Russians off Vladivostock is a carefully guarded secret.

The weather has been foggy, and thus conditions have been against the Japanese. It is said that the raiding Russians captured a British steamer laden with coal, bound south from the island of Yezo, and sent her to Vladivostock with a prize crew. Japan had thirteen transports in and near the strait of Korea the morning the Sado and the Hitachi were caught. She was fortunate that only three ships were overtaken.

There had not been a fresh attack on Port Arthur by land or sea up to June 14th, though the Japanese had made a fourth unsuccessful attempt to block the entrance to the harbor, using four fireships, two of which were immediately sunk by shots from the batteries, the other two withdrawing.

The raid of the Vladivostock squadron has brought criticism upon Vice Admiral Kamimura from the Japanese, and his failure to catch the Russians in the firing off Gen San, off the coast of Korea, when the Japanese transport Kinshui was sunk on April 26th, with a loss of about two hundred men.

Some of these even declare that if Vice Admiral Kamimura fails to catch the Russian vessels before they reach Vladivostock he should either resign from the navy or commit suicide.

The popular demand for his replacement is growing.

The commandant at Vladivostock has recommended to the inhabitants that they place their families in villages along the railroad as a measure of economy. It is announced that when winter comes, families having property but no children will be allowed to remain in Vladivostock, but that other families must be prepared to leave town on short notice.

The British torpedo boat destroyer Sparrow Hawk struck an unchartered rock off Saddle islands near Hang Chow bay and is a total loss. The guns from the vessel were saved and no lives lost in the disaster.

The Japanese transport Idzumi, which was reported missing a few days ago, was sunk by the Vladivostock fleet off Oshima island last Wednesday morning.

In addition to the transports Hitachi and Sado the Russians sank the Idzumi, a transport homeward bound, carrying a few sick soldiers. Three boats from the Idzumi reached shore. The losses are not known.

$5,000,000 MORTGAGE.

Its Recording Means a Railroad Extension.

A deed of trust for five million dollars given to the Colonial Trust company of New York by the Mississippi Central Railroad company was recorded Saturday. The money will be used for the extension of the lines to Natchez and Pascagoula.

Greenville Tipple Sold.

The Pittsburg Coal and Coke Company has purchased from the Southern railway the Tipple at Greenville, Miss., with all of the equipment of the southern railway, including barges, tugs and steamers, used in the coal trade on the Mississippi river. The price paid was $100,000. The Pittsburg company has begun operations and are shipping coal from their mines at Corona, in Walker county, down the river to New Orleans and intermediate points.

TYNER THREATENS SUIT.

Will Ask $100,000 Damages for Defamation of Character.

General James N. Tyner, once assistant attorney general for the postoffice department, will institute suit against Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States, if the latter should ignore his letter of June 11th asking the retraction of the president's criticism of his conduct.

The allegation will be defamation of character and the damages will be set at $100,000. The law is being now carefully investigated by General Tyner's attorneys and unless the word from the white house is soon received the case will be filed.

It is pointed out that Tyner was acquitted on May 25th and that he waited until June 11th for some word to come from the executive mansion recalling the accusations. Finally the general wrote a letter to President Roosevelt, and after waiting a sufficient time for it to reach him gave a copy to the papers.

Drowned with Her Fortune.

Some $200,000 in valuables were found upon the bodies of the victims of the Slocum.

There is one package for which no claim has yet been established. It was found on the body of a woman at first supposed to be that of Eva Kruger, but not yet identified.

The property consists of eight bank books, showing deposits of nearly $25,000; two or three life insurance policies amounting in all to about $10,000 or $15,000; deeds to property in New York and elsewhere, and a considerable amount in bank notes.

The deeds, insurance policies and the bank books are all in the name of a person who it would seem is quite different from Eva Kruger, but the coroner is keeping the name secret for the present.

TO AVENGE BROTHER'S DEATH

Jesse Calhoun Shoots the Crouch Brothers, His Brother's Slayers

Reports of the killing of Ike and Tom Crouch at Crouch's Landing, La., on Black river, Miss.; have reached here.

The report says that Jesse Calhoun, aged about 23 years, was standing on the steamer Columbia when the Crouch brothers, aged respectively, 30 and 26 years, were about to board the boat. Calhoun fired three shots from a Winchester rifle, killing the two brothers instantly and slightly wounding a negro.

Three months ago the Crouches shot and killed Calhoun's brother about a negro laborer, and the double murder is the outgrowth of that affair.

According to the records of Insurance Commissioner Cole, of Mississippi, the losses by fire in Mississippi during the month of May were the largest ever known in the history of the state, those of Yazoo City alone reaching $1,800,000 and the total loss being nearly $2,500,000. This was about one-seventh of the fire losses in the United States during that month.

"Dixie" Prevents Horror.

At Americus, Ga., a catastrophe that might have been terrible was narrowly averted. The Americus theater was packed beyond its capacity. Twelve hundred people, principally ladies and children, filled the building when an alarm of fire was given from without.

Hundreds rushed for the single entrance, twenty feet above the pavement, and reached by a single wooden stairway. The orchestra, with wonderful inspiration, struck up "Dixie."

This served to restore quiet. In the stampede on the outer stairway several women fainted.

Four different and separate investigations are under way, looking into the cause of the disaster to the Slocum and to determine where the blame for the fearful loss lays.

The court of appeals overruled the petition for rehearing in the case of James B. Howard, given a life sentence on the charge of murdering William Goebel.

FORTY-ONE MORE BODIES

Recovered From the Slocum Disaster Sunday.

Sunday's harvest of dead from the steamer Slocum numbered forty-one, bringing the total number of bodies so far recovered up to 624. Of these 559 have been identified. Men with grapple drew up a section of the rail of the upper deck of the Slocum, about thirty feet in length. The bodies of four women were clinging to the rail, the fingers gripping the interlaced wire roping. This is part of the rail which gave way just before the steamer was beached, precipitating one hundred persons into the water.

During the day, two women whose arms were locked around a life ring, were recovered. These rings were made of canvas filled with cork and are supposed to float four persons. The ring was not cut open tonight, so that it is not known with what it is filled, but when it was thrown on the water it sank immediately. The ring was recovered by the police and will be turned over to the coroner.

Secretary Cortelyou, of the department of commerce and labor, visited the scene.

Guatemalan Ant.

The Guatemalan red ant that attacks the cotton boll weevil is a large, reddish brown ant, provided with mandibles large enough to grasp the boll weevil (a kind of beetle) around the waist, as it were, and strong enough to pry apart the joint between the beetle's thorax and abdomen. Not content with this dismemberment, the ant at the same time bends its long, flexible body around its victim, and inserts its sting at the point where the beetle's shell armor opens. The poison of the sting takes effect instantly, and the weevil never recovers.

Wherever the ant is found in Guatemala the Indians raise cotton successfully, in spite of their ignorance of all the conditions of proper cultivation.

The question has been raised whether this Guatemalan ant, being of tropical origin, could live in our southern states. The boll weevil itself is of tropical origin and has learned to hibernate in Texas. Moreover, the ant excavates a nest three feet in the ground, where it would be entirely safe against any frost that visits our southern states.

A single pair of boll weevils will multiply into millions in a single season, whereas the ant is propagated, as bees are, by queens.

Panama's Money.

The commission charged with the preparation of the currency system for Panama reached an agreement which established a coin equivalent in fineness and weight to the dollar of the United States as the standard, and which also makes the United States dollar legal tender in Panama. Under the terms of the agreement, the Panama government will re-coin or convert the Colombian silver into coins of the size of the silver dollar. This amount of silver is now estimated at $1,500,000.

At the request of Secretary Taft it was agreed to coin as much more silver as necessary until a total of $6,000,000 is reached. In order to maintain a parity with gold, there will be deposited 15 per cent of the amount coined, and in addition there will be deposited all the seigniorage which Panama will make in the coinage to meet the American government's requirements.

Summer School.

The summer school at the University of Alabama has begun. President Abercrombie expresses himself as being greatly pleased, the number of matriculates going far beyond his expectations.

Anniston's Glass Factory.

The machinery for the glass factory to be built in Anniston will be shipped from Anderson, Ind., within the next thirty days and installed as rapidly as possible. A number of the buildings at Anderson will be moved. The company has already commenced work at the Dixie Tile and Pottery company, which it has leased, and the brick for the new glass factory will be manufactured right away.

Canadian cotton companies have agreed to close down all their mills for the first two weeks in July, and there is every probability that some of them will remain closed much longer. The shut down is caused by the condition of the raw cotton market, and by lack of protection due to the British preference which takes off one-third of the duty of 35 per cent.

At Jacksonville, Fla., Charles McCoy, attorney with offices in Chicago, committed suicide by cutting his throat with a razor in a bath tub at a hotel. McCoy, it is said, in the last few days had lost $10,000 by speculating in stock on Wall street.

Santos Dumont, has arrived from France on his way to St. Louis to compete for the $100,000 prize which has been offered by the exposition authorities. The date of his attempt to navigate the air depends, he says, upon how quickly the express company can send along his airship. Seven days will be required to put the machine together.

The sixth and new furnace of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company at Ensley is nearing completion.

BOILER EXPLODED.

And Four are Injured, One Fatally.

A terrible boiler explosion took place Saturday at the sawmill of W. M. Huff, five miles east of Gadsden. The injured are: Love Herring, scalded from stomach down in horrible manner and cannot live; Ed Dentore, deep gash in both sides; Dell Huff, leg scalded, ankle dislocated. Dentore was standing at a well getting a drink of water when the explosion occurred. He and the well curbing were blown 50 feet.

Love Herring, the fireman, had up 150 pounds of steam and the safety valves were tied down. He secured a piece of iron and pushed up the valve to let off some steam. When he removed the rod the explosion followed, wrecking the entire mill and demolishing everything, parts of the boiler being blown a hundred yards away.

The mill was the property of A. J. Bradley of Keener, Ala. It was valued at $1000.

DYNAMITE IN THE WOOD.

Explosion of a Stove May Prove Fatal.

Mrs. Lee Slinker while in the kitchen at the home of her brother, Jesse English, at Bessemer Saturday afternoon, received burns which may prove fatal. The stove upon which she was heating irons, for some unaccountable cause exploded throwing fire in every direction, setting fire to the house and the woman's clothing. Before assistance could reach her, her clothes were ablaze severely burning her about the body.

The house and all the household goods were entirely destroyed, leaving the family in very destitute circumstances.

The cause of the explosion is not known, but it is supposed that the wood had dynamite in it, which had been placed there for the purpose of splitting it, but had never been exploded. The citizens of Bessemer are raising subscriptions to aid the family.

A Baby's Death.

Annie, the little 20-months-old daughter of James Parker, of Girard, met death in a peculiar manner. The child, while playing about the yard, went under the house. A swing had been suspended under the house and was hanging low, as it was used by children. In some manner the little girl fell across it. Her throat rested across the cords forming the edge of the swing, and her feet barely missed touching the ground. The little one did not have strength enough enough to change her position, and she slowly choked to death.

ALABAMA TOPOGRAPHY.

Government Men Making Surveys of Several Counties.

The field work of the eastern division of topography of the geological survey during the coming season will cover portions of twenty-two states. In Alabama, acting in co-operation with the state geologist, two large parties from the federal survey are engaged in mapping portions of Shelby, Jefferson, Blount, Cullman, Lee and Chambers counties.

Treasurer Commits Suicide.

J. B. Mills, treasurer of Summitt, and a prominent citizen of south Mississippi, committed suicide in a Jackson hotel. He left notes to several persons explaining that he had not the courage to commit the act at his home, and declaring that it was done because he was embarrassed financially. It is learned that his accounts as treasurer of Summitt were all right, and that his financial difficulties were personal. He was about 60 years of age and a confederate veteran.

Date palms are to be planted in the great American desert.

SAW MILL BURNED.

The saw mill of the Southern Manufacturing company, near Gadsden, was destroyed by fire Saturday morning. Owen H. Hart, the night watchman, was very badly burned in his efforts to extinguish the flames when he first discovered them. The loss will reach $3,000 with only $500 insurance.

Half Paid His Debt.

As a part payment of the shortage of ex-Sheriff H. Ben Ferrall, of Russell county, $1,300 was turned over to Auditor Thomas L. Sowell Saturday. Ferrall left the office of sheriff of Russell county four years ago owing the state, $5,000. With this payment, and through the efforts of Phares Coleman, attorney for the state, about half that amount has been paid. It is expected that the state will receive the balance due it.

The new rolling mill at East Birmingham is almost completed and brick is being laid on the ground for another mill.

Highway Robbery.

Robert Harvay, a white miner from Warner mines, was found in an unconscious condition in Birmingham. He had been stabbed in two places in the body and his head was badly bruised from being beaten with some heavy implement.

After he regained consciousness he said he was knocked in the head and robbed by two white men, a description of whom he was able to furnish the police.

FEEDING HOGS SUNSHINE.

...are as many different ideas
...how a hog house should be con-

...rangement which will supply an
...dance of sunshine, is faulty. Sun

...if the winter climate is not too
...severe, or if too cold, place the feed-
...troughs where it will be impos-
...sible for the hogs to slop over into
...material composing their bedding.
...This can be done with a little care
...and the outdoor arrangement can be
...made as well, so that the hogs may be
...kept outdoors as often as the weather
...will permit. During the summer see ...that the hog has access to grass, even
...if the space given them for a
...time be small. Then supply plenty
...of water for them to drink, but none
...to allow in. In short, treat the hogs
...a little more along the same line that
...you treat other stock, and you'll get
...better returns from them.

COWS ON PASTURE.

...is hard for the dairyman who has
...to get most of his substance for feed
...from the winter to feel that there
...can be any advantage in feeding
...during the portion of the year
...cows are on the pasture. It would be ...unwise to lay down the hard and fast
...rule that this plan must be followed
...in order to obtain the greatest meas-
...ure of success, but on the other hand
...there can be no objection to one's
...trying the experiment and ascertain-
...ing what there is in it. As to the ...profit, this must be, in quantity at
...least, what is deemed best by the ...dairyman. If the experiment promises
...too costly select a single cow
...and feed her grain during the time
...she is on pasture; keep a careful rec-
...ord of results according to the milk-
...both as to quantity and quality
...of milk, and you'll know what to do
...the second year. Make the test a fair
...one by selecting for the experiment
...an average cow, neither a poor milk-
...er nor a heavy one. Make the grain
...feed say, about one-quarter of the ...ration during the winter. The cost will
...be small and the results interesting,
...if not profitable.

It is not thought by some good judges that overfeeding and forcing make for wholesome meat. A distinguished veterinarian who has investigated the subject holds that "under the present system the public have no guarantee, and are not insured the best, if, indeed, the cheapest, food. The bulky withers of a fat bullock are no guarantee of health, for his fat, tubular back may conceal the revolting ravages of disease. All this can alone be discovered by an inspection of the animal's interior after death. The flesh of animals which have been produced by organs themselves diseased, is itself also necessarily deteriorated, and ought not to be regarded as prime for human food. These facts will be best understood by pathologists, but they also come home to the understanding and the stomachs of all classes."—Home and Farm.

GREASE ON FOWLS.

Much difficulty would be saved if a few drops of lard, not kerosene, were applied to the heads and legs of the fowls once a month. It is a tedious and troublesome job, but it would prevent scabby legs, and would debar the large gray body lice from breeding on the hens. No fowls are partial to grease. They do not like to have it applied to their bodies in any shape, nor should it be placed anywhere on their bodies except head, neck, legs and vents, but still grease is an excellent remedy for the two difficulties mentioned. A mixture of a teacupful of lard, to which a tablespoonful of crude petroleum and twenty drops of carbolic acid have added, is excellent to have on hand for the purpose.

STICK TO ONE BREED.

It is bad policy to change year after year from one breed to another. Of course, if we are positively convinced that the breed we have is not the one suited to our needs, then change; but consider well before you discard any breed. It is also folly to try to keep several breeds and make them pay, unless we confine ourselves exclusively to the fancy side of poultry and wish to be able to supply all wants; and even then the specialist who centers all his efforts in one breed is most likely to succeed. Select one good breed and pin your faith to it, and do not allow any one to persuade you that there is some other that is better.—Home and Farm.

SAVE THE BODY.

It is time lost, and broken backs, to undertake the sowing of garden seeds by hand. Use a drill, which puts the seeds in regularly, evenly, marks the rows and covers them at the right depth. There are many handy little implements suitable for the garden that are not in frequent use. Even a trowel does excellent service in transplanting, and a weeder will tear out the weeds much quicker than can be done by hand. Hand implements are being improved—even the hoes and rakes—and their use is economical and convenient.

PULLETS NOT LAYING.

If a pullet goes on the nest to lay, and comes off without depositing an egg within the nest, it is a sure indication that she is too fat. Overfeeding is usually the cause of the pullets being backward in laying, and this happens mostly when they are confined in the poultry house. As soon as they can have an opportunity to forage and exercise, their allowance of food should be reduced to half its quantity, and they will soon begin to lay and you will have good results.

COLIC IN HORSES.

Use sifted ashes burned from green hickory wood mixed with salt (one fourth ashes and three fourths salt). Keep in the manger where horses can help themselves every day in the year.

Hay Pays Better Than Gold.

A good hay farm in the Yukon Valley is a better paying proposition than an ordinary gold mine. This fact has been demonstrated by a Dawson freighter, who is farming a large tract of native hay at Gravel Lake, on the trail between Dawson and the Duncan district, Stewart River. Last fall this man put in an immense quantity of fine hay, enabling him to bale more than 600 tons this winter. Besides wintering his own large herd of stock, he has considerable feed for sale, receiving $140 a ton. At this price his crop was worth $84,000. He clears a profit of at least 100 per cent. Winter weather has not yet prevented continuous work. A crew of ten men has been employed and two six-mule teams to collect the bales and carry them to market. His entire crop was cut with scythes and handled in a primitive manner. Next season he will replace these methods with modern farming implements, greatly reducing the cost of handling the crop.—New York Commercial.

Treasure hunters are now digging for gold and other valuables among the ruins caused by the eruption of Mont Pelee.

DEATH-BEARING RAYS.

Again science is vindicating the fictionist. In his thrilling story, "The War of the World," Mr. H. G. Wells described how the inhabitants of Mars invaded the earth and spread destruction with a marvelous heat ray. It was like a huge searchlight, except that it set fire to everything upon which it played, reducing woods and towns to tinder, and blowing up the ammunition of the terrestrial artillery.

Almost as terrible as this imaginary heat ray of the Martians, is an invention which has just been produced by a Hungarian scientist.

He is said to have devised a meth... of sending electric waves along ... rays of a searchlight, which will ... stroy anything in their path.

To some extent the principle of t... X rays is employed in creating ... new light. It has almost the sa... power under water that the searc... light has in throwing its bea... through the clearer medium of th... air.

If you look carefully at a searc... light in action you will see an es... cially brilliant concentration of ... brightness just at the point where the rays leave the projector. A long stream of rather faint light marks the rest of its course until it strikes full against the solid hull of the ship toward which it is directed.

Upon that surface the flood of light seems to concentrate itself again with nearly the same intensity that it manifested on leaving the projector. White and clear in every detail, the object pointed at stands out as though the sun itself were shining straight down upon it.

Now, far down beneath the surface of the ocean this wonderful newly-discovered light behaves in very much the same fashion. Indeed, it differs in but one particular. The rays are practically invisible, except at the point upon which they are directed. A wonderful step in the game of war is the development of this new submarine searchlight, and yet it is only half of what the ingenious British inventors expect to accomplish.

Torpedoes or submarines could be detected by the new light, but to destroy them would be a more difficult matter. Something better than steel shells must be found to sink a lively little craft running along 20 or 30 feet under the surface of the water.

This better plan has been hit on by following up the experiments of experts who have studied the possibility of sending electric currents along the track made by rays of light. Already they have succeeded in telephoning for a limited distance over a light-ray of great intensity. The rays have developed one unquestioned property—they are as useful as wires for the transmission of several currents at a time.

The current used in these experiments is of a peculiar nature. The secret of its production has been very carefully guarded. Naval officers, when they vouchsafe to give any information at all on the subject, say that it is not so much an alternating as a cumulative current, and works somewhat as follows: The projectors from which the light issues are located in the battleships a little below the water line. The operator in charge of each sweeps the sea beneath the waves until he discovers the attacking submarine or torpedo.

He then turns on the special current, and this is what happens:

A stream of electric pulsations flows outward along the light ray, and the intervals of pulsation lessen gradually, at the same time gathering strength and increasing in intensity until they become powerful blows approaching detonations in character.

The shock of these electric blows—strokes of lightning they might be called—is sufficient to set off any explosive contained in the hull of the approaching submarine.

In proof of this fact, the officers conducting a recent test blew off the head of a torpedo at a distance of 300 feet, the torepdo being 30 feet under water at the moment of the explosion.

In other similar tests the pulsating current acted on the fuse or trigger of the torpedo, setting it off just as effectively as would sudden contact with the side of a ship's hull.—London Express.

Zealously Guarded His Prerogative.

James Smith of Boston was telling of the experiences of the famous old theatrical manager, Stetson, who was one of the wealthiest men in Boston at the time of his death. He said:

"Old Stetson was dictatorial in his manner and overbearing with his employes, demanding absolute obedience and brooking no interference with his orders. He was especially jealous of any interference with what he deemed his especial privileges. One day the company was playing in a small town, and a sign had been put out in front of the theatre advertising the matinee. It read: 'Matinee today, 2.30 p. m. sharp.' There was a painter with the show, named Sharp, and as soon as Stetson saw the sign in front of the theatre door he began to rage at the unauthorized impudence and interference of Sharp. He had the sign changed to read: 'Matinee today, 2.30 p. m. Stetson.'"—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "CHRIST'S GIFT OF LIFE."

The Rev. George R. Lunn Preaches From a Text Which He Declares Shows in Compact Form the Predominate Aim of Jesus—The Larger Life.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Sunday night, in the Lafayette Avenue Presbyterian Church, the Rev. George R. Lunn, assistant pastor, preached on "Christ's Gift of Life." The text was taken from John x 10: "I am come that they might have life." Mr. Lunn said:

I am sure that I do not exaggerate when I say that no words of our Lord are more profoundly significant than these words of [illegible] thought, in purpose, in all our varying activities. It is the larger life which comprehends our present life, enriching it with all the holy purposes of God, our Saviour, lifting us by its power into the purified atmosphere of noble deeds, done for His sake. In other words, it is the life of which our Master spoke when He said that to lose it was a calamity, even though a man should gain the whole world.

I think I am right in saying that a great many people interpret the words and work of our Lord as applying chiefly to the other world, not altogether, but chiefly. They regard the religion of Christ as an insurance of safety for the next world rather than a definite program of activity for the present. They think more of the saving of the soul after death than of saving the life before death. No stronger illustration of this thought can be found than the large numbers of men who delay their decision in reference to Christ to some more convenient season. They say, not now, but at some future time, I will settle the great question of my soul's relation to God. You cannot find a man who will not express some wish to lead a better life; but in nearly every case they see no need of an immediate decision. In my pastoral work I have come in contact with this experience time and again. And as I have endeavored to understand what is the underlying cause of so much indecision regarding religious things, I find that most of it can be traced to this fundamental misinterpretation of the words and work of Jesus Christ our Lord. You may express this in many ways, but at heart the point is this—the saving of the soul after death, instead of saving the life right here and now; the gaining of heaven hereafter, rather than entering into heaven now. And because of this interpretation men feel no immediate necessity of getting right with God. So long as they are reasonably sure of life here, they are willing to delay the great decision of the soul.

Against this view of religion allow me to bring the message of the Saviour, "I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly." You cannot read the gospels without coming into contact with this purpose of Christ at every turn. Repeatedly do you find the word life. We are struck with the fact how constantly the word life was on the lips of Jesus. It is a word which gives us the very heart of Jesus' teaching. He was always praising, always promising life. "If thou wilt enter into life keep My commandments," "He that believeth on Me hath life," "As the Father hath life in Himself, so hath He given to the Son to have life in Himself," "Because I live ye shall live also." "Ye will not come unto Me that ye might have life." Everywhere we find this same eager pleading with men to enter into life, and we further find that Jesus identified life with goodness. To Jesus life consisted in goodness. Wickedness is death. "The soul that sinneth, it shall die" is not so much a threat as the statement of a great truth. For the sinning soul dies by reason of the very fact of its sinning. There is no life for the human soul but in righteousness. Jesus, therefore, uses language which we may justly call violent when He referred to the possibility of a man's losing his higher life. Better to cut off the offending hand or foot if it hinders the aspiring soul. Better to pluck out the eye which causes stumbling if by that means the real life of God may be gained. I have called this language violent, and such it is. Not that Jesus anticipated any literal interpretation and literal following. The forceful illustration is used to emphasize a terrible and an eternal truth. The very possibility of a man's failing to enter into the life of fellowship with God, was a thought which brought strong tears to the eyes of the Saviour of men. I tell you that in these days we are harboring in our hearts a sentimental sympathy which overlooks sin and condones iniquity and seeks to apologize for the stern words of the Saviour. There was no doubt a ringing doom against sin. But it was not the doom of a threat. Jesus never threatened. He revealed what sin is; its very nature is death. The open door of life in God is before men. To pass by that door does not mean that God will arbitrarily punish, but that the very passing it by is death. The issue of sin is doom, exile into the night, the eclipse of desolation and abandonment.

Does there move in your hearts the suspicion that such a doom is exaggerated and overdone? When that suspicion comes to me, and it often comes, I remember the words of a sainted preacher: "When I am tempted to think that the doom is overdone, I must remember that the Son of God, my Saviour, with an infinite insight into all things, superlatively sensitive, knowing the inmost heart of life, He, our Saviour, pronounced the doom to be just. This Christ, who gave Himself for us, who loved us, told us in words—I venture to say loving words, of appalling terror—that for the deliberately sinful, and for the deliberately unjust, there is no place but the night, no place but the outer darkness, no place but ultimate separateness, no place but ultimate forsakenness and abandonment. These are my Master's words, and against them I will rear no petty imagination of my own; I will rather silence my own unillumined suspicion and humbly and quietly take my place with Him. The wages of sin is the night." It is the night now; it is the night hereafter. The essence of sin is death; it is exile; it is abandonment. Jesus' words were violent, but He was not seeking to produce fear, but to reveal fact.

Now to all of us who feel this fact so keenly Jesus brings His evangel of forgiveness and peace. The words spoken so long ago have their greatest significance now, for we can see, as those Jews could not see, their fuller and more profound meaning. As He spoke of the Father in such intimate terms, bitter resentment arose in their hearts. As He told them of His willingness to lay down His life for His sheep, they retorted: "He hath a demon and is mad; why hear ye Him?" Possibly we would have spoken likewise had we been living then. But now in the light of the centuries past, we look upon that lonely, forsaken, crucified Christ and recognize in His face the glory of the living, suffering God. For the "sufferings of Christ were the true representative symbol and proc-

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JUNE 7.

Review of the Second Quarter—Read Isaiah liii., 1-12—Golden Text, Phil. ii., 9—Topic: Closing Sermon in Christ's Earthly Life.

Introduction.—The lessons of the quarter begin with the visit of Christ and His apostles to the borders of Phoenicia in the early summer of A. D. 29 and close with the resurrection. They have been full of interest and very profitable. The great truths in connection with Christ's mission on earth have been brought out and discussed.

Summary.—Lesson I. Topic: Christ healing the afflicted. Place: On the borders of Phoenicia. Sermons on bread of life and pollution just delivered, the people post against Him. Jesus and His disciples go to the borders of Phoenicia. A Gentile woman beseeches Him to cast the devil out of her daughter. Jesus replies that it is not proper to give the children's bread to dogs; she asks for the crumbs; for this saying the devil was cast out—her request granted.

II. Topic: Christ and His true followers. Place: Near Cæsarea Philippi. Jesus asked His disciples who men said He was; some said John the Baptist, and others Elijah, Jeremiah, or one of the prophets. Whom do you say I am? Peter answers, The Christ. Jesus blessed Peter, man had not revealed it, but the Father had. The foundation rock, gates of hades shall not prevail against it, the keys of the kingdom of heaven given. Christ's death. Peter rebukes him, get behind me Satan, saving and losing the life.

III. Topic: Christ's present glory and future sufferings. Place: Probably Mount Hermon. Peter, James and John go with Jesus into the mount to pray. As Jesus prays He is transfigured, Moses and Elijah appear, converse regarding His departure from the world. The disciples see Jesus and the two men in their glory, enter into a cloud, hear a voice, Jesus is commended, alone with Jesus, tell no man, wondered what the rising of the dead meant, asked question about Elias.

IV. Topic: Christ directing the affairs of His kingdom. Place: Probably in Perea. The seventy appointed, sent forth, two and two, whither He Himself would come, the harvest plenteous, requests disciples to pray for laborers. Go as lambs among wolves, haste, ask that peace may rest upon the house, heal and preach, woe pronounced on Chorazin and Bethsaida, Capernaum should be thrust down to hell.

V. Topic: Importunate prayer. Places: In Perea. Christ prayed often, His disciples asked that they might be taught to pray, the value of the Lord's prayer; meaning of kingdom, God's will should be done on earth as in heaven, daily bread to be given, sins to be pardoned, parable of the importunate borrower, which should teach us to be persistent in prayer, a glorious promise, parents give good gifts to children, our heavenly Father is more willing to give the Holy Spirit to them that ask Him.

VI. Topic: The importance of being ready at the time of Christ's coming. Place: In Perea. Let loins be girded and lights burning—be ready and waiting for the coming of Christ as servants wait for the return of their master from the wedding. Christ will come as a thief, suddenly, when we least expect Him, the faithful, wise, just steward was promoted; the riotous and drunken servant perished; the one who knew his lord's will and failed to do should be beaten with many stripes; the one who knew not and failed to do should be beaten with few stripes.

VII. Topic: Man's folly and God's compassion. Place: In Perea. A certain man had two sons. The younger called for his portion of the inheritance; took all his goods, went into a far country; wasted his substance with harlots; a great famine; in want; feeding swine; decides to return home; is seen and met by his father; the boy is clothed, a feast is made; there is great rejoicing.

VIII. Topic: True greatness. Place: Perea. Christ and His disciples journeying toward Jerusalem, near the close of His earthly mission; James and John ask that they may sit, one on His right hand and the other on His left, in His glory; Jesus told them they knew not what they asked; asked them if they could suffer with Him; the exalted position they asked would be given to those for whom it was prepared; the ten much displeased; they were not to exercise authority as the Gentiles; principles of Christ's kingdom; Son of Man came to minister.

IX. Topic: Christ our Passover. Place: Jerusalem. It was Thursday; Jesus sent Peter and John to Jerusalem to prepare the Passover supper; they found a large upper room where they made ready; in the evening Jesus sat at the table with His disciples; He told them that one of them should betray Him; they were sorrowful and every one asked, "Lord, is it I?" Jesus said it would have been better for that man had he never been born; He then told Judas that he was the one; Judas left; Jesus eats His last supper with the remaining eleven.

X. Topic: The demand of the Jews for Christ's death. Place: Pilate's judgment hall. Jesus is taken to Pilate, the governor, who investigates the charges and finds them false; Jesus is sent to Herod, who finds no fault with Christ; Pilate calls the people together and desires to release Christ; they demand that He be crucified; three times Pilate urges His release; they demand the release of Barabbas, a murderer; Pilate yields, washes his hands; orders Jesus to be scourged; delivers Him to be crucified.

XI. Topic: Closing scenes in Christ's earthly life. Place: Mount Calvary. Christ on the cross; mocked by the soldiers; vinegar offered; the superscription; the two thieves crucified with Christ; one railed on Jesus; the other confessed his sins and asked to be remembered in Christ's kingdom; the prayer answered; darkness from 12 till 3 o'clock; Jesus cried with a loud voice and died; the centurion's testimony.

XII. Topic: The events of the resurrection morning. Place: Garden near Calvary. Christ was crucified on Friday, April 7; rose early Sunday morning, April 9; several women were early at the tomb; the stone was rolled away; the women entered the sepulchre; Christ was not there; two angels appeared; their faces were like lightning and their garments were dazzling; the women were afraid; the angels told them Christ had risen; He was to go before them into Galilee; the women ran to take the disciples word; Jesus met them; the Roman guard bribed.

God's Service.

I thought within those cherished days of old—
Oh, days that knew the tinge of morning sky
When night's blue star veil vanishes on high
And flares the first wild radiance of gold
Along the hazy lengths of field and wold,
That my chief services to Him must lie
In rapt devotion thro' the inner eye
Of meditation, opening toward the fold;
But, lo! the vast is gray, and I have learned
Long gone—ah, how the truth has pierced me through!
That His approval is the fullest earned
By worship in the kindly deeds we do.
God's service is as broad as needs that cry,
God's service knits man to eternity.
—L. W. L. Jennings, in Religious Herald.

The True and the Artificial.

It is not difficult to distinguish between the true and the artificial. The moral test is the sure one. When conscience is sensitive and the will submissive, and the life consistent, there is no doubt about one's spirituality. When the soul sings: "I delight to do Thy will, O, God," and then does delight to do God's will, or does the will of God from firm resolve, there can be no doubt. When one loathes sin and tries to leave it—all sin, all kinds of sin—sin against the body, sin against the soul, sin against the neighbor, sin again Christ and the Father—there is no difficulty in reaching a decision as to the genuineness of Christian character. It is no mirage. The garden of the Lord is there.—Bishop John H. Vincent.

Making Your Temper Over.

If you were not born with a good temper, make your temper over. If cheerfulness and patience and amiability are not natural, cultivate them as a second nature. No one can be really happy who is irritable and fault-finding, and what is worse, he renders his nearest and dearest equally unhappy. Determination can conquer these faults, and a disposition as full of pricks as a bramble bush can be rendered sweet and tranquil and lovable. Don't imagine you must accept the nature you inherited without any attempt at change or alteration. If it is not what you want, make it over.

Optimism of Jesus.

You remember the famous line of Robert Browning, "God's in His heaven, all's right with the world!" That was the one source of the optimism of Browning, but the optimism of Jesus went a great deal deeper. It was the fact that God was in His earth, so that the ravens were fed and the lilies were adorned, and so that the very hairs of a man's head are numbered—it was that which gave a radiant quietude to Christ.—G. H. Morrison.

For County Commissioner 4th District
W. C. DICKINSON

"What a fall was there, my countrymen." Last Friday at Clanton.

WAS that a cry from Beat—to come over and help us form a Democratic club, and arrange for a big Democratic rally? Alright, there is plenty of willing hearts and hands ready to answer the call.

THE Republican party of Alabama, at its State convention, composed largely of white men, duly elected two negroes as delegates from the State at large to the National convention now in session at Chicago.

The National convention is giving honor and glory to the negro delegates: Nathan Alexander, colored, of Montgomery, is on the committee on credentials, and A. N. Johnson, a Mobile negro, is on the committee on platform and resolutions.

The Alabama delegation will try and introduce into the platform a resolution pledging the party to the enactment of such legislation "as shall secure to all citizens of the Republic complete liberty and exact equality."

And yet we have local speakers in Chilton county, who are seeking office, and who have the effrontery to tell the intelligent white men of the county, that the Republican party does not favor the negro, and at the same time urging good, honest, former Populists to align themselves with them. White men of Chilton will not allow themselves to be cheated in this matter.

Mr. B. L. Jones has been appointed to the vacancy on the Board of Registrars. The full Board is composed of Richard H. Gaines, chairman; P. M. Moore and B. L. Jones.

Chancery court convenes at Clanton on Monday next. This will be the last time we shall have the pleasure of seeing Chancellor Kelly preside over the court.

The Masons and Oddfellows of Jemison will have a public installation of officers at Jemison on Friday, June 24, and have arranged a combination basket dinner. A good time is sure to be had.

ANOTHER GREAT DAY FOR DEMOCRATS.

The much talked of meeting that was called for last Friday at Clanton is considered a great success to the Democratic party of Chilton. From 300 to 350 visitors were here, including the candidates, W. H. Shaw's committee, known as the Populist committee, the Republican committee, Secar Harris, chairman, and Chairman Lee Vickers was on hand. The latter committee was appointed by the Lilywhite convention of three, and its existence is hard to discover, but anyway Mr. Vickers is chairman.

Gantt Riggins was elected chairman of the meeting, and one of his first requests was that all the candidates would stand up as he could not tell whether there was most candidates or visitors.

L. H. Reynolds repeated the same old speech he has been making for several years past without variation, using the same old jokes which everyone recognizes as old acquaintances.

Several of the candidates made short talks to the meeting. There was a lack of enthusiasm prevailing which seemed to throw a damper over the proceedings which the music of the Thorsby band failed to dispell.

The contrast between the subdued meeting of last Friday, and the enthusiastic Democratic rally of the preceding Saturday was most marked.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, June 20, 1904

The fact of the business is that the big Democrats of the nation who have visited the national capital in the past few days are all wearing smiles as big as a crack in a frozen liver and are powerfully "hold up" about the situation in general. They feel that the situation is clarifying itself so far as the presidential question is concerned. From the action of the different States all over the country in sending uninstructed delegations to the national convention, they feel that the situation is clarifying itself so far as the presidential election is concerned. From the action of the different states all over the country in sending uninstructed delegations to the national convention, they feel that the purpose of the Democracy this year is to get together. It looks like the watchword is and will be at the convention to meet in the city of St. Louis on July 6, next, get together, take counsel, get the best man and a man who can and will win, put out a platform that the people at large will endorse and then all go out and fight like tigers until victory comes to the party of the people and rebukes the party of spoliation, of special privilege, of combines, of trusts, of treasury looters and post office grafters. It no longer now is the question of any single individual. It is the question of the man who can fill the public eye, in the estimation of the delegated Democracy in convention assembled, and who can compel the Democratic hosts to get out and get red in the face in support of him. They feel that the people not only are sore at but really afraid of the political "four flush" and "fakir" now in the White House and only await the opportunity to vote him out and place therein some man who will execute the laws of the country and not attempt to usurp the prerogatives of the legislative branch of the government. It is the concensus of opinion here that such a man will be nominated at St. Louis and will be elected.

"The most marvelous thing about the great St. Louis Exposition is the audacity of the people in planning such a gigantic undertaking. About 80 per cent. of the exhibits are in place. The only wonder is that 40 per cent. of them are ready for the public to see. Without doubt it is the greatest show the world has ever seen. If there is any gouging at St. Louis on account of the Fair, I failed to find it. The charges at the hotels and at the restaurants are the same that prevailed since I have been going to St. Louis, and are as cheap as are to be found in any city the size of St. Louis. The people there are eager to make the Fair a grand success, and if they get half their dues they will most certainly succeed. I should say that the exhibit by the Japanese ranks second only to the exhibits of this country. The hardy little Japs have things to see in their building, and the neatness of the arrangement is at once attractive and educational. In the art building is a world of treasure. Pictures from every country that has produced artists are to be seen there. To me this is one of the features of the exhibit that will surely attract and hold the attention of art lovers from all the world who see it."

Mrs. J. R. Mullins Entertains.

Mrs. Renfroe Mullins was at home to a few of her friends Tuesday afternoon This was the most unique affair of the season. Those who came first enjoyed cards and pit until the number invited had arrived, then every guest was given a dainty hand painted card, on the back was a water color picture of some animal, every card being different. Each guest was required to draw some animal on a black board known only to herself and the hostess. The others wrote the name of the animal that they thought the drawing represented on their card opposite the name of the one who drew it. One would have been surprised at the talent displayed by many. One of the ladies drew a rhinoceros and the blank opposite her name was promptly filled by the word cat. A prize being offered for greatest number of correct guesses made the contest quite interesting. On making the count, Mrs. W. F. Middleton was found to have been the successful contestant, Mrs. Horn scoring the lowest.

Mrs. Gamma Anderson was then called on to present the prizes, which she did with a pleasing and graceful speech of congratulation and condolence. The first prize was a beautiful picture of an Angora kitten painted by the artistic hand of the hostess. The booby prize was a mechanical toy representing two white rats. Mrs. Horn was requested to get on and catch up.

The guests were then invited into the dining room, which presented a beautiful picture in pink and green. Pink ribbon extended from the chandelier to four tables in the corners of the room. The cakes and ices carried out the color scheme. Everyone left feeling indebted to the charming hostess for a delightful afternoon. Those present were:

Mesdames Guy Higgins, Lamar, Gamma Anderson, W. F. Middleton, Carrie Mullins, Sallie Watts, J. C. Jones, M. C. Jones, P. I. Hopkins, H. P. Chandler, J. Watts Moore, E. M. Pinckard, E. G. Hyman, A. R. Horn, W. H. Foshee, Misses Bettie and Nell Mullins.

Startling Evidence.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Guaranteed by Upchurch Drug co. Trial bottles free, regular sizes 50c. and $1.00.

Aggregating $80,000 for the Publication of Dickert Affidavit.

DICKERT IS COUSIN OF COMER.

Louisville and Nashville Railroad, Age-Herald and Ledger Made Defendants.

Mr. B B Comer, the democratic nominee for president of the railroad commission, is the plaintiff in libel cases and the defendants, together with the amount of damages asked, are as follows:

Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, E A Dickert and B. M. Starks, $30,000 damages.

Birmingham Ledger Publishing Company, $25,000 damages.

The suits are based upon the publication of an affidavit, which is alleged to have appeared in the papers. The affidavit in question was by E. A. Dickert, who claimed to be a cousin of Mr. B. B. Comer, and it was claimed, in substance, that Mr. Comer had tried to induce him (Dickert) to take for himself certain money due the railroad company for repairs on the tracks at the Avondale mills. The newspaper publishing companies are sued for publishing the affidavit, while the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company and E. A. Dickert and B. M. Starks are sued upon the allegation that they caused the same to be published.

THE SLOCUM JURY

Now Investigating Disaster—Steamer in Good Condition.

The coroner's jury on the Slocum disaster was quickly secured. President Barnaby, of the Knickerbocker Steamboat company, owner of the General Slocum, was the first witness, and from him it was learned that the actual operation of the steamer was under Captain Van Scheick, who received his instructions from Captain Pear. On application of the latter he said an inspection of the Slocum was made by the United States authorities before she was put into commission this year. He presented reports of the expenditures on the Slocum for life preservers in 1902, 1903 and 1904 and explained that the books which were offered for inspection would show for which vessel they were intended.

The certificate of United States inspection was placed in evidence. It certified that on May 7, 1904, the General Slocum was in good condition to carry 2,500 passengers and that it had on board 2,555 life preservers.

SHOOTING AT CHURCH.

Fatal Affair Over a Bucket of Water Thrown Over Man.

At Little Vine Primitive Baptist church, ten miles from Warrior, a serious shooting affray occurred with Tom Lowe and Ben Owen as participants.

Lowe is shot in the shoulder and groin and may recover. Ben Owen received three wounds and died instantly.

Luther Owen, brother of the dead man, received one ball through the shoulder, from which it is thought he will recover. It is claimed that this shot was accidental.

All parties in the tragedy are industrious farmers. They fell out over a bucket of water at a well when the dead Owens threw its contents on Lowe. The dispute was dropped for a while, but renewed after church, with the above result.

The Chattahoochee river has this year been put to the severest test in its history. Rainfall is eleven inches short, and according to calculation this is equivalent to 298,705 gallons per acre, or in round numbers 300,000 gallons.

The Huntsville city hospital was opened Monday.

Will Develop New Mines.

New York capitalists have become interested in the development of the brown ore mines six miles north of Fort Payne. The party is headed by John Boehling, of New York. The Alabama Great Southern has entered into a contract to build a road to the mines. The ores have been tested by experts, who report that they are the best in the Birmingham district. The Battelle & Schuler furnaces will take the whole output of the mines, which is estimated to be 400 tons per day.

The same parties have purchased the old Valley Mines coal property three miles north of Fort Payne, and will build fifty coke ovens on the property.

The furnace of the Lookout Mountain Iron company at Battelle is completed and as soon as a few connections in pipes and other apparatus are made the iron maker will be put to work. The furnace is one of the largest in the district and modern in every appointment. It is expected that the plant will be in full operation early in July. The output of the furnace will be 300 tons daily.

WORSE THAN REPORTED.

Russian Losses at Telissu Believed to Reach Ten Thousand.

General Oku reports that after the battle of Telissu last week the Japanese buried 1,516 Russians who were found dead on the battlefield.

A telegram from Chee Foo states that on Saturday the Japanese began a land bombardment of Port Arthur for the purpose of testing their siege guns. The Russians replied to the fire. The result of the firing indicates that the Japanese guns have the greater range.

An interview with Baron Suyematzu published in Paris and suggesting that Japan is willing to accept the mediation of a power equally well disposed as a tentative utterance, attracts much attention, coming from the Marquis Ito's son-in-law. It is generally interpreted as meaning that Japan is shrinking before the prospect of a long, exhausting war to Russia and Japan, while regarded

It is now definitely established that negotiations for the purchase by Russia of six Argentine cruisers had almost reached a successful conclusion when Argentina raised the question as to under what flag they would be transferred, she being unwilling to sell direct to a belligerent. It was suggested that they be transferred to Venezuela, Costa Rica or Bulgaria, which would turn them over to Russia, but President Roca rejected the proposal, insisting that a bona fide maritime power should be the purchaser. Then Turkey began negotiations through the Argentine legation at Paris.

Further reports here show that the blow inflicted by General Oku on the Russians at Wafangow on June 15th was more severe than at first believed. The number of Russians killed in this battle probably will exceed 2,000, and their total loss, including prisoners, is estimated at 10,000. The Japanese losses are less than one thousand.

A RUSSIAN PRINCE

Said to be Responsible for the Destruction of the Petropavlovsk.

It is said that Prince Uchtomski, a favorite of the czar, because of hate of Admiral Makoroff and Viceroy Alexieff and chagrin over not having a high command given him, planted an infernal machine on the Petropavlovsk, sending it to the bottom with nearly all men on board. As soon as Alexieff heard of Uchtomski's connection with the destruction of the battleship he sent for him, it is said, and after a hasty investigation had him hanged, giving him no chance to communicate with St. Petersburg.

While it is imposible to verify this story at present, it is a remarkable coincidence that neither the princess nor any of Uchtomski's friends at court or in society have heard directly from him since the catastrophe reported.

ACCUSED HIM OF ARSON.

And Then Shot Him Dead—Houston County Duel.

Early Monday morning Thad Pennington killed Lee Faulk near Cottonwood. It seems that Pennington and Faulk have not been on very good terms, and Monday morning Pennington's gin house was burned. He discovered it on fire and ran up to Faulk's house for him. Faulk and his boys got up and went to the burning house. When they got there Pennington remarked to Faulk, "I guess you are satisfied now. You have burned my gin house." Pennington then shot at Faulk with a shotgun, but missed him. Faulk shot at him twice with a pistol, but missed him both times. Pennington shot again and killed Faulk instantly.

Several of Faulk's boys saw their father killed, but they were all helpless. After Pennington killed him he reloaded his gun and escaped.

REORGANIZATION.

American Casting Company to Rebuild and Improve.

The American Casting Company, which was destroyed by fire a few weeks ago at East Birmingham, will be rebuilt at once.

The company will be reorganized and much larger than the old one. The new shops will be as near fireproof as possible and the new machinery will be of the latest improvement, and so arranged as to handle larger castings than formerly.

The old company was capitalized at $50,000, and it is said the new organization will be doubled in its capital and output.

She was the mother of Ernest Stanley, who was murdered in Memphis several years ago by Frank Parora, an Italian gardener, and his body concealed in an old well for a number of days before the atrocious crime was discovered. Parora is now serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary at Nashville.

THEIR ARMIES MEET

And the Russias are Defeated Leaving 500 Dead and Guns on the Field

CAPTAIN COMMITS SUICIDE.

Japanese Claim Their Flag Was Violated by Their Enemies—Leaving Port Arthur.

The Russian hope of relieving the pressure on Port Arthur by threatening the rear of General Oku, the commander of the Japanese forces investing the Russian stronghold, came to an end Wednesday at Telssu, when the Russians were defeated. They left over 500 dead on the field and the Japanese captured 300 prisoners and fourteen quick-firing fields guns. The Russians retreated hastily northward.

The Japanese charge that the Russians violated the Japanese flag. Certain officers aver that during the fighting a body of Russian soldiers appeared carrying a Japanese flag and that the Japanese artillery, deceived by the flag, ceased firing upon that particular body of Russians.

Early estimates of the Japanese losses say that 1,000 men were killed or wounded.

Details in connection with the sinking of the Japanese transport Hitachi by the Russian warships are being furnished by survivors. One shell which struck the engine room killed 200 men. The ship began to fill and sank.

Captain Campbell, the English master of the transport, jumped overboard and is numbered among the missing.

Chinese who have been banished from Port Arthur express the belief that the Russians are preparing to destroy the place.

WAR

ANNISTON'S PLUM.

A $1,000,000 Steel Plant May Be Located There.

A special from New York says: "It is stated from reliable authority that the plant of the Woodstock iron works at Anniston has been purchased by wealthy Pittsburg capitalists, who will at once put the furnaces in blast and begin the erection of a $1,000,000 steel plant. The purchase includes all the property of the Woodstock company furnaces, coke ovens, coal and other mineral lands located in Alabama and elsewhere. The steel plant will be one of the largest in the south, and combined with the large furnaces will furnish employment to several hundred skilled workmen and other employes. The new concern has plenty of capital at its command."

COLORADO SUED

By the Portland Mine for $100,000 Damages.

Former Governor Charles S. Thomas is preparing papers in behalf of the Portland mine, in a damage suit against Governor James H. Peabody, Adjutant General Sherman M. Bell and the state of Colorado for $100,000 damages for the closing of the Portland mine by the military.

Attorneys for the Western Federation of Miners are drafting papers in a suit for $50,000 damages against Governor Peabody, Adjutant General Bell and the state of Colorado.

Action is based on a charge of false and illegal imprisonment by the military authorities acting under the proclamation of martial law in San Miguel county.

May Resume.

It is reported that the Bessemer rolling mill will more than likely start up in July. The mill has been idle for several weeks and as they have been making large shipments the stock is running short. There has been a large force of men at work for some time making repairs and overhauling the machinery.

Unconstitutionality Claimed.

A test of the constitutionality of the recent act of the Alabama legislature in conferring additional powers upon the Alabama railroad commission and providing for the election of members of that commission will be made by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway. A bill has been filed in the chancery court of Marshall county resisting the order of the railroad commission which directs that the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis depot at Wyeth City be removed to a designated point within the corporate limits of Guntersville.

Ladies Hurt in a Runaway.

As the result of a runaway in Huntsville Mrs. R. B. Searcy and Mrs. Frank J. Thompson are lying at their homes in a critical condition; the former with a fractured skull. The horse the ladies were driving got his tail over the lines and ran away. Mrs. Searcy jumped out of the buggy, striking her head against a stone curbing. Mrs. Thompson did not jump, but was thrown out.

MRS. MOONSHINER

Attacked Revenue Men with Shotgun and Pistol.

Deputy Collector V. S. Root and Deputy Marshal Henry Arnold captured and destroyed an illicit still near Dutton in Jackson county and arrested Nick King, an old offender, and Burrell Bailey. King requested the officers to accompany him home for a change of clothing and the request was granted.

When the two officers and their prisoners came in sight of King's home, King's wife came forward with a shotgun and horse pistol and tried to kill Root and Arnold. The revenue men had an exciting five minutes disarming the woman, who swore all the while, and when it became evident that they were succeeding, King's aunt attacked them with hoes.

King was committed to jail at Huntsville. His bond was fixed at $1,500 and he can not make it. Bailey made bond in the sum of $300. He had gone to King's still to get a bottle of whiskey for his sick wife and had just arrived there when the officers came upon the scene.

Looks Like Murder.

At Meridian, Miss., what is thought to have been a murder was discovered when a car cleaner on the Alabama and Vicksburg railroad went to clean off the steps of the mail car.

The cleaner found a coupling pin with blood and human hair upon it and the car steps were spattered with blood. Information received from Lake Station states that the dead body of a white man was found alongside the right of way and from the wounds found upon him he must have been the victim of the attack upon the mail coach. The fireman of the train states that he noticed three men on the blind baggage at one time, but they disappeared. The officials of the road are investigating the matter.

SANTIAGO STORM SWEPT.

Forty-five Are Dead and a Large Number Missing.

Fourteen inches of rain fell in five hours at Santiago, Cuba. This was accompanied by a hurricane. The lower village of El Cobre has been destroyed.

Forty-five persons are known to be dead and scores are missing. Bodies are floating in the Cobre river.

All the bridges on the Cobre railroad are out, and many bridges have been lost on the Cuba railroad.

The mines at Daiquiri are crippled and six of the employes have been drowned. The pier has been damaged.

The city's property loss is enormous. All telegraph and cable lines are disabled.

A dispatch from Winona, Minn., says: The dropping of a match into a can of oil in a hardware store of Altura has resulted in practically wiping that village from existence. Fanned by a high wind, the flames licked up building after building, while the people stood by powerless, owing to the lack of water. The loss amounts to many thousands of dollars with little insurance.

Sam McCullough's Grave Found.

When the war between the states took place Sam McCullough sided with the south and in the neighborhood near Decatur, where he lived at that time, there were many who linked themselves with the northern cause. All of a sudden McCullough disappeared and none of his relatives knew what had become of him, but it was believed that he had been murdered by some of his neighbors who were friendly to the northern cause.

Two of the old confederate veterans from Decatur, while in Nashville, visited the confederate cemetery and found a grave of a confederate soldier whose simple moss-covered slab bore the inscription, "Sam McCullough."

Six Stitches in His Heart.

A surgical operation, said to have been but once before successfully performed, in believed to have been accomplished in Chicago, saving the life of 15-year-old Edward Peltz, who had attempted to commit suicide. Peltz fired a bullet into his heart while despondent over the loss of employment. Six stitches were taken in the bullet-torn heart, effectually stopping the hemorrhage.

A FEARFUL DISASTER

Was That of the Steamer Gen. Slocum Near Hell Gate in East River.

EXCURSION STEAMER BURNED.

Greatest Loss of Life Ever Known on American Inland Waters—Death List May Reach 700.

The seventeenth annual excursion of the Sunday school of St. Mark's German Lutheran church, New York city, last Wednesday chartered the steamer General Slocum to carry the excursionists to Locust Grove, one of the resorts on Long Island sound.

While in the East river fire, said to have started by the overturning of a pot of grease in the lunch room, broke out and in a few minutes had spread over the vessel. Captain VanSchaik, who was in command, says he immediately rang the bells for getting out the fire fighting apparatus.

He headed his steamer toward shore at 134th street, but was warned not to endanger the oil and lumber stored there and changed his course for North Brothers island, near the entrance to the sound, some half a mile away, where the boat partially burned was beached.

It is variously estimated that there was between 1,500 and 2,500 persons on board the steamer, though the company which owns the Slocum officially states that the number of passengers was 873, that being only one-third of the vessel's capacity. It is thought, however, that there were several hundred children in arms, for whom fares are not usually charged.

Numerous small boats went to the aid of the burning vessel, but in the meantime the passengers, most of whom were women and children, had become panic-stricken and many not caught by the flames jumped overboard.

So far 559 bodies have been recovered, of which about fifty remain unidentified. Thirteen officers of the St. Mark's church are among the dead, one of them being a woman.

Although many of the bodies taken to the morgue were very badly mutilated, and the clothing in many cases almost entirely burned off, valuables have been taken from them and are in the keeping of city officials to the extent of $200,000 or more. Several of the women and men had the savings of a lifetime on them when they perished.

President Barnaby, of the Knickerbocker Steamship Company, the owners of the steamer, makes a general denial of the reports that the steamer was equipped with worthless hose and life preservers, and that the life boats and life rafts were lashed to the steamer with wires.

"The apparatus for fire fighting on board the boat at the time of the accident was of the very best that money could buy," said Mr. Barnaby. "The equipment was thoroughly overhauled this year, and we spent over $25,000 on her in refitting, machinery, hose, extinguishers, pumps and machinery, as well as for life preservers. We did all and more than the law requires. The fact that the vessel was rated as an A1 risk is the best evidence that everything was done that human foresight could provide."

The coroner's investigation to fix the responsibility for the disaster will begin on Monday. The federal authorities as well as the district attorney also will hold an investigation and the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, through its counsel, has signified its intention to push the inquiry to the utmost.

It is alleged that the life preservers were too securely fastened to their holdings to be available and stories are told of frantic efforts made by strong men to cut them loose; but even if they could have been torn down, they were too high up for the children to reach. It is also alleged that no attempt was made to get out the fire apparatus.

An eye-witness said that great loss of life was due to the collapsing of the upper deck. It fell soon after the fire started, crushing hundreds who had gathered on the lower deck. It was then that the great panic ensued amid the stream of persons going over the rail.

There is in the coroner's possession a standpipe taken from the submerged wreck. The valve of the pipe is closed tight, showing that no effort was made to open this pipe.

It was stated by divers that there are many bodies still under the entanglement of timbers and paddle wheels, and that it would be necessary to dynamite the hulk or raise it before they could be reached.

Brigadier General Cleary, U. S. A., retired, of Mobile, Ala., called to see Chief Geronimo at the Indian school, at the world's fair, but the old Indian refused to recognize the general who at one time chased him through the mountains of Arizona.

Maj. H. M. Folsom of Elizabethton, Tenn., one of the oldest and best known men in that section of the state, fell over a cliff, one hundred feet, on the bank of Westauga river, near Elizabethton, and the fall was fatal.

FORBES' PIANO SALE
-THE FITE STOCK-
STILL GOING ON

Stock Constitutes the Biggest Purchase Ever Made by a Southern House and Contains

FINEST INSTRUMENTS NOW ON THE MARKET

If You Wish a Piano, Organ or Music Box at a Low Figure and on the Most Reasonable Terms See or Write Us.

The E. E. Forbes Piano Co.'s sale of the Frank G. Fite stock continues, for it is no ordinary sale; it represents the biggest purchase of pianos made by any southern house, and as the instruments represent the very best makes of pianos the big cut in prices has been the result of making hundreds of homes happy that have long wished in vain for a piano, but had not until the present opportunity been able to purchase one on account of the high price. Any person in the south can buy one of these pianos and save $100 after paying freight; besides that they can make the payment in an easy way, for they are only required to pay a small part down and the rest you pay next fall or next spring, after the crops have been turned into cash. Another thing about this piano sale is that ever piano is plainly marked, so if there is a man in any part of the state that wants to buy a piano for a birthday or wedding present or as a gift for next Christmas he can send to us and buy just as well without seeing the piano, because every piano is marked and there's only one price to all.

There are also a number of organs and piano players in this sale, and we will be pleased to furnish any and all information or to explain anything about our long-time payment system, which is so easy to meet, and which so many people throughout Alabama and the other southern states are now availing themselves of.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free. F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

THE ORPHAN'S SONG.

I had a little bird,
I took it from the nest;
I prest it and blest it,
And nurst it in my breast.

I set it on the ground,
Danced round and round,
And sang about it so cheerly,
With "Hey, my little bird,
And ho! my little bird,
And ho! but I love thee dearly!"

I make a little feast
Of food soft and sweet,
I hold it in my breast,
And coax it to eat;

I pit, and I pat,
I call this and that,
And I sing about so cheerly,
With "Hey, my little bird,
And ho! my little bird,
And ho! but I love thee dearly!"

KITTY FAST ASLEEP.

Little folks who have read the lives of famous men and women know that people do not usually win fame in their sleep. They get it only by hard work, but with the lower animals it is probably different, for down in the Aquarium at New York City is a big fish which has become famous simply by sleeping. Kitty, as it has been nicknamed, is a Mississippi catfish, and it has been sleeping since last July. They call it hibernating in the scientific books, from a Latin word, "hibernate," which means to pass the winter.

A great many animals hibernate. It is nature's way of enabling them to live through the winter. They have no houses or fires to keep them warm, so they just crawl into a sheltered corner and go to sleep. Frogs bury themselves in the mud at the bottom of ponds; bats suspend themselves, head downward, in their caves, and snakes cluster in masses of a dozen or more in hollow trees or under stones. Even human beings sometimes hibernate. Esquimaux do little but eat and sleep during their coldest season, and in some parts of Russia the peasants save food and fuel by sleeping a great part of the time.

So there is nothing remarkable about the fact that Kitty should have slept through the winter. The strange thing is that she mistook the beginning of July for the beginning of winter and calmly slept through the hottest weather, when all the other fishes were having their liveliest times. She is also sleeping later into the spring than any of her companions. The black bears have awakened and gone to fighting; the little hellbenders and mud puppies have begun to eat, though they are not very wide awake as yet, but still Kitty sleeps. By the end of April Kitty had slept nearly ten months. She would never have done this in her native Mississippi, but the truth is that she is getting a little bored, like a good many other big fish, in her glass box at the Aquarium, with its clear water. She had mud when she was at home, but they couldn't give her mud at the Aquarium, because then the people would not be able to see her, and that is what the Aquarium is for. So Kitty, who would not be very active even in her native haunts, probably thinks that it is not worth while to keep awake in such a world, and when she is awake she will not even eat, unless the eel steaks, on which she is fed, are put right into her mouth.

Animals never eat when they are hibernating, and Kitty has not eaten for nearly ten months. Yet she looks just as she did when she went to sleep. This is because she takes no exercise, lying perfectly motionless on the bottom of her tank, and all the organs of her body have nearly stopped working. Thus, the supplies which she had on hand when she went to sleep last a long time, and she does not have to eat. Some animals do not breathe at all when they are hibernating. The hellbender, for instance, does not breathe for months, for it has lungs just like human beings, and it cannot get air out of the water like animals that have gills. The mud puppy, though it is not a fish, has gills, and keeps them waving slowly while it is hibernating, which shows that it is breathing.—New York Tribune.

A TEST OF HONESTY.

The straightforward, honest man or boy feels insulted when his integrity is questioned, and with good reason. He is slow to distrust others and does not like to be distrusted. Here is a pretty amusing story in illustration.

"Paper, sir? Evenin' paper?"

The gentleman looked down curiously on the mite of humanity—the two-foot newsboy, and said with a slight smile:

"Can you change a quarter?"

"I can get it changed mighty quick!" was the prompt reply. "What paper do you want?"

"Star," said the gentleman. "But how do I know you will bring back the change?" he added, hesitatingly.

"You don't know it," replied the little fellow, sharply.

"Then I must trust to your honesty?"

"That's about the size of it; or—hold on! Here's your security. There's thirty-four papers in this bundle. Ketch on to it."

Before the gentleman could remonstrate the boy had placed the bundle of newspapers in his arms and was off like a flash.

The boy was gone probably three minutes, but during that time the gentleman was rendered completely miserable. A half dozen of his acquaintances stopped to inquire if he had gone into the newspaper business, and how it paid, while the newspaper boys gathered around and jeered him, under the impression that he was an interloper. So he gave a great sigh of relief when the boy returned and put twenty-four cents in his hand.

"I didn't run away, did I?" the boy said with a grin.

"No," answered the man with a groan; "but if you hadn't returned in another minute, I would have run away."

"And cheated me out of ten cents?" demanded the boy, indignantly.

But the gentleman did not stop to explain.—Our Junior Citizen.

THE HAPPIEST LITTLE BOY.

"Guess who was the happiest child I saw to-day?" asked papa, taking his own two little boys on his knees.

"Oh, who, papa?"

"But you must guess."

"Well," said Jim, slowly, "I guess it was a very wich little boy, wif lots and lots of tandy and takes."

"No," said papa. "He wasn't rich; he had no candy and no cakes. What do you guess, Jue?"

"I guess he was a pretty big boy," said Joe, who was always wishing he was not such a little boy, "and I guess he was riding a big, high bicycle."

"No," said papa. "He wasn't big, and of course he wasn't riding a bicycle. You have lost your guesses, so I'll have to tell you. There was a flock of sheep crossing the city to-day, and they must have come a long way, so dusty and tired and thirsty were they. The drover took them up, bleating and lolling out their tongues, to the great pump in Hamilton Court to water them. But one poor old ewe was too tired to get to the trough, and fell down on the hot, dusty stones. Then I saw my little man, ragged and dirty and tousled, spring out from the crowd of urchins who were watching the drove, fill his hat and carry it—one, two, three, oh, as many as six times!—to the poor, suffering animal, until the creature was able to get up and go on with the rest."

Did the sheep say, 'T'ant you!' papa?" asked Jim, gravely.

"I didn't hear it," answered papa. "But the little boy's face was shining like the sun; and I'm sure he knows what a blessed thing it is to help what needs helping."—Christian Observer.

PENS AND SWORDS.

Nations founded by the sword, sustained by the sword, pass and are forgotten. But the written words, the words of "men entirely great," outlast the very civilization amid which they were penned. Who can leave out of account, even to-day, the work of Homer, Virgil, Dante, Shakespeare, Moliere, Cervantes, Goethe? Even to-day every thinking man must acknowledge their sway, must live in the kingdoms of thought these men have founded. Let us, then, put among the relics of the great the tools of their government—and let us hold precious the pens and inkstands that have outlasted and overcome the swords of conquerors, the sceptres of the kings.—St. Nicholas.

Big Japanese Noses.

In Japan the nose is the only feature which attracts attention. The nose determines the beauty or ugliness of the face, according as it is big or small. This is probably due to the fact that difference in noses constitute about the only distinction between one Japanese face and another.

The eyes are invariably black, the cheekbones high and the chin receding.

In Japan a woman who has a huge proboscis is always a great beauty and a reigning belle. There are few large noses among the natives, and lucky is he or she who possesses one.

Richard Miller, a coast guard, who has just died at South Shields, Eng., has taken part in saving 200 lives.

A New York fly paper firm shipped two car loads of the commodity to Butte, Mont., where it will be used in copper mines to catch flies. The consignment comprised 1,100,000 sheets and cost a little over $8,000. As each sheet—they are blanket sheets—will catch 5,000 flies, the total number trapped when the supply is used up will be about 5,500,000,000 insects—several tons of pests.

Up to ten years ago flies were unheard of in the mines. They seemed to dislike the sulphur gases. Horses began to be used under ground, and with them came the flies.

They have become blind by long confinement in the dark subterranean passages.

It is estimated that 2,000,000 boxes of matches are used each day by the people of the United States, and that amounts to about five matches per person. In 1900, $156,705 worth of matches were imported into this country, and $95,422 worth exported from it. The lucifer match was invented in 1827. Safety matches were put upon the market in 1855. In Great Britain, Norway, Sweden and Germany the match-making industry has assumed enormous proportions. In France it is a government monopoly. In the United States it is controlled by a single corporation.

"Suit dismissed with costs for the plaintiff," was the verdict of the court in the suit which Kubelik, the violinist, brought against Dr. Gehrmann, the music critic of the Frankfurter Zeitung, for which the violinist deemed insulting personalities in criticisms of his concerts. Dr. Gehrmann described Kubelik as "a stupid looking man of superfine effeminine appearance" and spoke of him also, as a "specialist and miracle worker who produces but tones."

"Uncle John" Butler was born in Lenawee county, Michigan, eighty-three years ago, and though he has continued to live in the same house, on the same spot, he has resided in the states of Michigan and Ohio, the counties of Lenawee, Lucas and Fulton, and the townships of Seneca, Gorham and Chesterfield, without ever having moved off his farm.

The kindergarten idea was developed and given its name by Frederick Frobel, a German educator, only about 50 years ago. Frobel had tried his hand at almost everything and failed in all. Indeed, his own kindergarten was all but a failure, though the idea since his death has become immensely popular.

So far as known the first campaign emblem was a finger ring of copper. It was worn by the adherents of John Quincy Adams in 1825, when he ran for president, and was inscribed "John Quincy Adams, 1825." Tintypes and medallions were among the insignia of the 1860 campaign.

Republican Executive Committee Meeting.

The meeting was called to order by county chairman, Secar Harris, at 11 o'clock a.m. at the court house of Chilton county at Clanton. The Secretary called the roll of the members and a majority being present, the committee proceeded to business.

The chairman stated that the meeting had been called by him to transact such business as might properly be brought before it, and referred to the published call for the meeting appearing in The Banner, and further stated that he was moved to call the meeting by a a letter received from Chairman Shaw of the Populist Executive committee, which stated that the Populists would also have a meeting on the same day, and that also, several members of this committee had advised him to call it

Moses A. Kilgore of Beat 11 offered his resignation as a member of the committee, but after consideration, the committee decided not to accept it, and it was withdrawn

The attention of the committee was called to the case of commitee man John Aldridge from the county at large, and it being shown that he is not a qualified elector by reason of his failure to pay poll tax for 1902 as required by law, his place was declared to be vacant, and Jonathan Bice was elected to fill the vacancy.

The questions for nominations for county officers was then taken up and after due consideration and discussion by the committee, it was decided to take no action at this time.

The following resolution was then offered and unanimously adopted by the committee:

Resolved, That we condemn the action of W. F. Aldrich of Shelby county in trying to have un-seated at the State convention at Birmingham, the regular Republican delegates from Chilton county, for reasons personal to himself; for the position taken by him against the administration of President Roosevelt; for his action in recently endorsing for a postmaster-ship in Chilton county a man who has been a life-long Democrat and an enemy of the Republican party, as he said, "because he would act with us in the future."

The following resolution was then offered and adopted with much enthusiasm:

Resolved, that we congratulate the people of Chilton county and the nation, that the Republican National convention which meets at Chicago on next Tuesday, will nominate for President of the United States a man, who when elected in November, will give us four more years of prosperity and good government.

The following resolution was then read by F. O. Dudley, and upon motion of Committeeman Kilgore of Beat 11, it was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we extend to the Hon. Secar Harris our bereaved county chairman, our heartfelt sympathy in this hour of his bereavement, in the death of his wife, an estimable Christian mother, an affectionate wife and good neighbor, who went away at God's command to a higher sphere of joy, and though she left behind her a mourning husband and weeping children. It should be to him, and to all of us, a consolation to know that it was by the divine command; the command of Him who giveth and who taketh away with a watchful and guardian care for those who are left behind.

There being no further business, the committee then adjourned subject to the call of the chairman.

CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 22, 1902.

For nearly four years I suffered from ovarian troubles. The doctor insisted on an operation as the only way to get well. I, however, strongly objected to an operation. My husband felt disheartened as well as I, for home with a sick woman is a disconsolate place at best. A friendly druggist advised him to get a bottle of Wine of Cardui for me to try, and he did so. I began to improve in a few days and my recovery was very rapid. Within eighteen weeks I was another being.

BLACK WEED, the great vegetable remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, and Kidney and Bladder complaints, has met with almost instantaneous success because it has made some noteworthy cures of very severe cases.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

BLACK WEED is sold by all druggists at $1.00 a bottle, or we will send prepaid upon receipt of price.

Triumphs of Modern Surgery

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped, and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely; bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins, antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflamation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, A. Sued by His Doctor.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coaella, Ga. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I used, as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not say on oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, it never fails. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw and Some He Saw Not

Some anxiety is expressed as to the absence of rain, and fears are entertained that both corn and cotton will be seriously hurt. The weather is so hot and dry, while clouds tantalize us with the promise of rain. However, we must trust for the best and in His own time the Lord of all will send us refreshing showers.

That was a very interesting convention of the Methodists last week and everyone is pleased with it. Among the visitors we were glad to see Rev. J. C. Harrison, now of Randolph, a gentleman with whom we have been acquainted some seven years. Judge Livingston, H. S. Doster of Prattville were here, and Rev. S. P. West of Birmingham, who was looking after the interests of the church organ, the Alabama Christian Advocate, and a great meeting.

MARRIED.

On Tuesday morning at the residence of Mr. J. M. Potts, Clanton, the marriage of his eldest daughter, Emma, to Mr. J. M. Nix took place, Judge Adams performing the ceremony.

Miss Emma is one of the most charming and popular young ladies of Clanton, and her innumerable friends wish her a long and happy life with the partner of her choice. Mr. Nix is a son of one of the well known citizens of West Chilton, Mr. W. Y. Nix, and is himself a rising and popular young man. All joy and prosperity to the happy couple, who left on the train immediately after the ceremony.

SCHOOL MEETING

A meeting called for the consideration of public school matters, in the Court House Monday was adjourned until Tuesday July 5, when it is urged every citizen of Clanton who is interested in the public school to attend.

On Thursday of last week Deputy Sheriff Lee Hayes arrested at Maplesville, Jack Ellis, Griff Caudle and Tom Klinner, all white, on charge of highway robbery of Dr. Hall, which we reported in last issue.

The three men were carried before Justice of the Peace E. F. Hall for preliminary trial. Ellis and Caudle were discharged, and Klinner committed to the county jail in default of $500 bond.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space for the Texas crops and weather, but more weather than crops. It rains and rains for fear the grass grows for fun. We had a fine rain Friday, which helped our crops and dispelled the dust; while some sections are suffering things makes us think of the strength to work and Him who gives the increase.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Birmingham, June 26, 1904
Editor Banner—For the first time I come asking a little space in your paper. Always glad when the Banner is delivered. I get two dailies but the Banner is more interesting to me than all the rest, for what interest I have is in Chilton county. I enjoy reading the letters, especially the one from Collins Chapel. I think if Lewis and the ex preacher get office in Chilton they will have to homestead them, for the people are not going to be fooled any longer. I hope to be on hand in November to help elect the Democratic ticket, no better set of men ever offered for office than the nominees of the Democrats. Hoping to hear the school boy again, I will close with best wishes to the Banner and all my Chilton county friends.
G. W. HILL.

Maplesville.

Our protracted droughth was broken here the 25th with much wind that blew down much fence and some trees; the farmers are in better spirits.

Mr. Joe Hicks has gone to his father's home in Perry county to take his well-earned vacation; that, Russell Sage says there is no need of, because he made a financial success without a vacation himself.

Mr. Myers has returned from a vacation in improved health.

Misses Ada and Willie Blalack have returned from Thorsby to a visit to their aunt, Mrs. Mary Rasberry.

Miss Edna Ricketts has returned from Atlanta to the delight of the many friends who she has made by her charming manners.

Many miss Miss Adair, who possessed the happy faculty of making friends with all she associated. She is in Livingston with 80 other teachers, who are taking special courses at this celebrated school that we are so justly proud of. We all hope she may teach here again.

Mr. Denson has had quite a serious attack of illness. Mrs. Denson has returned from the sanatarium in improved health.

We regret to state that some white boys wishing to have some fun (so they said) waylaid and robbed Dr. Stanley Walker of money and watch. They were caught and promptly dealt with. We hope this may be a warning to such funmaking.

The ice cream supper so liberally given at Mrs. Plant's was a financial success aside from the enjoyment of the occasion. We were glad to have our old friend, Mrs. Waterworth, with us there.

Mr. Chandler, an old resident near Jemison, has visited old friends here, and sold a very valuable medicine of his own manufacture.

Mrs. James McCary has returned to Birmingham with her family in improved health.

Mrs. Wash Foshee and her daughter, Miss Minnie, have returned from the World's Fair delighted with their trip.

Mrs. Oliver Latham and her younger daughter have been guests of Mrs. Claughton. We wish they could make their home with us again.

Mrs. A. S. Foshee and her sisters, Mrs. James and Mrs. Roy, and a cousin, Mrs. Snead, of Centreville, have had a family reunion at their old home near here that was both sad and sweet with old memories. An old family servant, aunt Frances Holsembeck, was entertained at the meeting, she knows her best friends and has never quit her old master's family.

Mrs. Dr. Parnell, Mrs. Hanlon, and Mrs. A. S. Foshee have taken a pleasant visit to Montgomery.

Mrs. Graphney of New Orleans has made her sister here, Mrs. Jones, a visit.

Mrs. Rosa DuBose, the accomplished wife of Dr. J. A. DuBose, of Anniston, is here on a visit to Mrs. P. C. DuBose, mother of the Doctor. SUBSCRIBER.

METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The annual conference of the Prattville District, Methodist Episcopal church South, convened at the church at Clanton last Thursday morning. There was a large attendance throughout the session and much interest was manifested in the proceedings, the church being well filled at all the services.

On Wednesday night the opening sermon was preached by Rev. J. C. Harrison of Randolph, text, Phil. 2:14, 15. The sermon was well delivered and much appreciated by the large congregation.

Thursday morning at 9 o'clock, the conference was formally opened with devotional exercises by Bishop Alpheus W. Wilson of Baltimore, presiding officer of the conference. Rev. Henry F. Andrews of Billingsley was elected secretary, and Revs. H. C. Threadgill of Lowndesboro, and J. C. Harrison of Randolph, assistant secretaries. Floyd Abernathy of Prattville and Ed Callen of Clanton were appointed pages of the conference by Bishop Wilson.

The several committees were elected, and the order of business arranged as follows: Conference to meet at 9 a.m. and adjourn at 11 o'clock for preaching; meet at 3 p.m. and adjourn on motion. The conference then proceeded to business.

At 8 p.m. Bishop Wilson preached from St. Luke 18:27, "Things which are impossible with men are possible with God." The sermon was intensely interesting and one of the best that has ever been preached in Clanton, although at times the venerable Bishop appeared to be almost exhausted.

Friday morning devotional exercises were conducted by Rev. R. C. Williams of Verbena. The conference revived the license of several local preachers, and a number of visiting brethren were introduced.

Mrs. Julia A. Pratt of Prattvile, district secretary of the Woman's Foreign missionary society read an encouraging report of the work of the Society during the past year.

At 11 o'clock Bishop Wilson preached a grand missionary sermon, on which he referred to the million of ignorant people who had been brought within the reach of the gospel as one result of the Spanish-American war.

Saturday morning Bishop Wilson preached a farewell sermon from Collossians 1:1-9. Resolutions were passed endorsing the Alabama Christian Advocate, and one expressing the thanks of the conference to the good people of Clanton for their kindness and hospitality, and the conference adjourned.

The next conference will be held at Prattville.

Think Him Dead.

All evidence available shows that Kent J Loomis, brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis, was last seen on board the Kaiser Wilhelm II about midnight June 19th, when he went on deck. Shortly afterwards William H. Ellis, Loomis' companion, searched for Loomis, but he was unable to find him. The captain and the head steward, both of whom knew Loomis well, were standing at the gangway as the passengers landed at Plymouth and they both declare positively that Loomis did not land.

Assault to Murder Charged.

Cogbill and George West, two young men of Girard, entered the armory of the Coulter Light infantry drinking. They engaged in a difficulty with Edward Cooper, a young man, whom they struck over the head with a gun. Going outside they loaded the gun with shells and returning up stairs Cogbill fired point blank at Cooper and a young man named Wyndham. The hall was filled with men, but no one was hurt. Cogbill and West were arrested on a charge of assault with intent to murder.

4,000 More Out.

Four thousand more men will be discharged from the Baldwin Locomotive works within the next few days. Six thousand already have been dropped from the company's service and the working force will soon be reduced to 6,000 men. The action of the management is due to a lack of orders for locomotives and is strictly attributable to the falling off in business on railroads.

In accordance with Police Judge John Riley's whipping post decision recently delivered, John West, a 14-year-old colored boy, was given fifty lashes in the public square at Lexington, Ky., Tuesday. His coat was removed and the lad was whipped with a buggy whip in the presence of a thousand citizens. Injuring private property was the charge against him.

Gadsden's board of mayor and aldermen has called an election to be held Friday, the 29th day of July, for the purpose of voting on the question of whether to issue bonds to the sum of $25,000 for the purpose of purchasing a lot and erecting a city hall thereon. The bonds are to be sold at par and at the rate of 5 per cent and to run for thirty years.

At the recent commencement of Washington and Lee university, June 15th, six diplomas were awarded to masters of art, one of whom was Robert Franklin Cooper, of Centerville, Ala., who had previously taken the barchelor of arts degree, and who expects to enter Johns Hopkins university next fall to study for the degree of doctor of philosophy.

Walker D. Hines, first vice president of the Louisville and Nashville railroad, resigned his position to take effect July 15. Mr. Hines will enter the practice of law in Louisville with Humphrey & Humphrey, under the firm name of Humphrey, Hines & Humphrey. Mr. Hines was at one time chief counsel for the Louisville and Nashville.

Ollie Gray, colored, charged with burglary, was captured in a novel way. His left foot was caught in a steel trap at the store of Sam G. Lacy, in Birmingham, and he was held there until the proprietor disengaged him.

Seventy-two out of 120 candidates for the naval academy passed mental examination Monday. Among them were William O. Alston, Third Alabama district, and Preston Cloud, fifth Alabama district.

Twenty-odd cases have been filed against the Louisville and Nashville in Limestone county. It is claimed that the road has no right of way in the county and trespass is charged.

E. J. Pennington, of Mount Vernon, Ill., who is a contestant for the prize in the airship contest to be held at the fair, was arrested on a warrant charging conspiracy to fraud.

The Southern has in use some instruments that record the speed made by the train, the amount of grade being traveled over and the tonnage on the train.

It is expected that trains will be running over the Knoxville, LaFollette and Jellico branch of the L. and N. by October 1st.

John T. Shugart, of Birmingham, a well known attorney, whose son is on trial for murder, was arrested for attempting to bribe a juror.

In his sermon before the 116th General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church, in Buffalo, the retiring moderator, the Rev. Robert F. Coyle, discussed our childless firesides. "It is the ring of the telephone and not the cry of the baby that we hear nowadays," said the good doctor, expressing what might be called the central thought.

Women who are inclined to observe all their leap year prorogatives cannot do better than to take a trip to the Philippines. A cry comes from the islands that there are not enough women, and it should be "easy picking" over there for the bachelor maids this year.

LIMESTONE MURDER.

Too Much Whisky at Barbecue Results in a Fatal Shooting Affray.

A PROMINENT PLANTER KILLED

And Four Men Are Wounded—All are Well Known and Highly Connected.

B. F. Grisham, one of the most prominent men in Limestone county, several times superintendent of education and for years a leading merchant and planter at Elk river, was shot and instantly killed Saturday at a barbecue by John Morris, a wealthy planter. Morris also shot and it is said mortally wounded Professor William McClellan, the present nominee for county superintendent of education, Andrew Vaughan, the constable of that beat and two other men.

The shooting was the result of too much whisky. It is said that Morris entered the ropes where the ladies were invited, mounted the table and was in an ugly mood. When Mr. Grisham attempted to quiet him he drew his revolver and fired upon him, killing him in his tracks, and then fired on McClellan, shooting him just below the heart, producing what is believed to be a fatal wound. Vaughan and others were shot in the effort Morris made to escape.

CAPITOL IMPROVEMENTS.

Work on the Historic Building May Begin This Summer.

Acting Governor Cunningham has called a meeting of the capitol building commission for Tuesday morning.

This commission has in hand the duty of improving the capitol and disbursing $150,000 set aside for that purpose. It is composed of the governor, who is chairman or president; the attorney general, state treasurer, state auditor, secretary of state and the director of the department of archives and history, who will be secretary.

There is a possibility of the work beginning this summer. It will put in circulation a neat sum of money. The law says that $50,000 of the fund became available during the year ending September 30 of last year and another $50,000 available during the same period this year. The balance will come at the same time next year.

The present capitol was erected in 1850, taking the place of one burned in 1849. The one destroyed was erected in 1847 when the seat of government was moved from Tuscaloosa. It was improved by additions costing $25,000 in 1885. It is the same building in which the provisional government of the Confederate States of America was organized in 1861, and on its front portico Jefferson Davis was inaugurated. It is not intended that the general style of the building shall be changed.

Panama Postal Service.

A postal service in the canal zone has been inaugurated. Nine offices have been established. Mails from the zone to the United States and vice versa will be carried at the domestic rates of the United States and until a supply of American stamps are received Governor Davis arranged with the republic of Panama to use Panama stamps with the words "canal zone" printed on them. Arrangements also have been made with the Panama authorities to receive and forward Central and South American and West Indian mail.

Nine postmasters were appointed. As soon as it is possible to do so, registered letters and money order offices will be established.

Tried to Poison Family.

An attempt was made by unknown parties to poison the family of Clarence Blankenship at Gurley. Several farm animals and fowls were killed by drinking the poisoned water, and it was only by accidentally finding the bag of poison that the family escaped.

A Banana Company.

The certificate of incorporation of the American Banana company of Mobile has been filed in the office of secretary of state. The capital stock is given at $750,000. The business of the corporation will be to construct and operate railroads and docks, buy and sell merchandise, plant and cultivate lands, export, import and sell products of lands, and in short do a general fruit business, which is understood to include transportation from place of growth. To reach banana crops a railroad is to be built in the republic of Panama with terminus near the Sixola river.

Ominous reports come in from various parts of the country indicating the prevalence of charbon. So far as this dread disease has been reported this season its attacks have been concentrated chiefly upon horned cattle.

It was officially determined by the navy department that the battleship Orgeon was entitled to the trophy for excellence in gunnery in the last annual target practice.

Mississippi has just shipped sixty Jersey cattle to the Philippines.

BOY ATTEMPTS SUICIDE.

Is in Jail Charged with Murder—Used Matches.

Lee Shelton, the 17-year-old white boy who is in jail in Florence charged with murder of his uncle, W. M. Hammonds, at Lexington on May 8th, made an unsuccessful attempt to end his life by swallowing the ends of matches dissolved in water.

This is the third tragic happening growing out of a feud over the division of some property. Shelton, Sr., remarked to several people that he did not care to live longer, and shot himself.

When the boy was told that his father had shot himself, he said he would die, too, if his father did. When he was informed that his father had died he was very much affected. He wrote a long letter bidding goodby to his sister and other relatives and denying that he had anything to do with the murder of his uncle.

A young prisoner who was confined in the cell with him tried to prevent him from drinking the poison, but he was desperate and succeeded in his purpose.

Physicians were called and a stomach pump saved him. It is thought the matches were given the boy by his father.

EPWORTH LEAGUE

Goes to Gadsden Next Year—New Officers.

The following were elected officers of the Alabama Epworth League for the ensuing year:

President, H. M. Andrews, Prattville; first vice president, H. T. Strout, Evergreen; second vice president, Miss Mabel Wheeler, Birmingham; third vice president, Mrs. E. M. Graves of Montgomery; fourth vice president, Miss Dora Garner, Huntsville; league editor, L. M. Stevenson, Roanoke; secretary, Frank E. Chapman, Jackson; treasurer, Miss Grace Hayes, Avondale.

Gadsden was the only place put in nomination for the next meeting of the state league, and it was chosen by acclamation.

Jealousy the Cause.

At Anniston W. L. Crenshaw was shot and painfully wounded by C. C. Harrison. Harrison immediately surrendered. The cause of the shooting, according to Harrison, was jealousy. Harrison is a one-legged man, having lost a limb while in the employ of the railroad. He was given $1,500 damages. With this money property was purchased and the deed to the same made to his wife. Recently their relations have not been very pleasant, Harrison becoming very jealous of Crenshaw, who boarded with them.

Crenshaw is an aged gentleman and one of the most popular conductors on the Louisville and Nashville railroad. He states that there was absolutely no ground for jealousy upon the part of Harrison.

Quinine Jim Dead.

Hon. James A. McKenzie, former congressman from Kentucky, died Friday. He was 64 years old and known everywhere as "Quinine Jim." Prominence came to Mr. McKenzie through his strenuous and successful championing of the bill, of which he was the author, to take the tax off of quinine. The speech, through its humor, logic and earnestness, sent that measure through the house and put the drug within the reach of thousands who had been unable to use it on account of the prohibitive income tax upon it.

Compromise for $8,000.

A judgment by consent for $8,000 was entered in the case of Rosa E. Starr, administratrix of the estate of Ike W. Starr, deceased, vs. the Louisville and Nashville railroad. Some time ago the plaintiff brought suit against the railroad company for $30,000 alleging that her brother met his death in a railroad wreck near Morris the latter part of last December.

From St. Clair County.

An unknown white man was killed by a southern train on the trestle which spans the Chattahoochee river near Atlanta. Papers on his person bearing the name of S. Skelton, St Clair county, Alabama, may lead to the man's identification.

Voted Twice.

A report comes from Luverne of a sensational plan of the mayor to get his vote fully counted. It is said that the vote on a certain contest stood three to two and that the mayor, who has a right to vote on all questions, voted with the two, thereby causing a tie. He then proceeded to exercise the prerogative of a presiding officer and voted off the tie. This is regarded as illegal and has raised a great hue and cry, especially from the friends of the defeated side. The mayor of the town is T. W. Shows. Those who are opposed to his position threaten to take the matter into the courts.

Accounts Correct.

Assistant Examiner of Public Accounts W. F. Wilkinson reported to the governor that he had examined and found correct in every particular the books of Treasurer E. T. Glenn, of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn. The examination covered a period of one year, during which time the treasurer handled $93,925.80, having at the time the report was made a balance of over fifteen hundred dollars.

JAPAN NOT SELFISH

Will Ask Only Recognition as a Power Even if Port Arthur is Captured

RUSSIAN CRUISER SUNK.

Japanese Disable the Sevastopol Also and Block Attempt to Escape. Russia Charges Inhumanity

The Japanese government is reported to have resolved in case peace is restored to demand nothing else than was mentioned in the government's note of December last, that even if Port Arthur is taken by Japanese to restore it to Russia, respecting the Russo-Chinese agreement and that Japan will regard Russia as economically predominant in Manchuria. Japan demands only that she be considered with the other great powers in the solution of Asiatic questions.

Admiral Togo reports that on Thursday his patrol boat discovered the battleship Peresviet and seven other vessels accompanied by nine torpedo boat destroyers near the entrance of Port Arthur. The admiral discovered that the Russian fleet, carrying six battleships, five cruisers and fourteen destroyers, evidently planned a dash southward by sundown.

The Russians stopped outside the entrance to the harbor and after night fall a fleet of Japanese torpedo boat destroyers attacked the Russian ships and succeeded in torpedoing and sinking a battleship of the Peresviet type and disabling the battleship Sevastopol.

A cruiser of the Diana type was observed being towed into the harbor on Friday morning and it was evident she had sustained serious damage.

The Japanese legation received a dispatch from Tokio announcing that a detachment of the Takushan army surprised and routed a squadron of Russian cavalry at dawn June 23d and also occupied the heights north thereof, expelling the Russians, who left sixty dead on the field.

An unnamed Russian general is quoted as declaring that General Kuropatkin is moving to meet General Kuroki, whom he will dispose of before General Oku arrives.

The army organ figures that the armies of General Oku and Kuroki when combined will consist of eleven and a half divisions, exclusive of cavalry and artillery.

Major General Mistchenko, commander of the Eastern Cossack brigade, attacked the Japanese advance posts on the Siu Yen and Tatchekiao road, and a sharp engagement resulted in which artillery was brought up and the Japanese forward movement was arrested.

A Russian correspondent with Major General Mistchenko's division of Cossacks, which is opposing the junction of armies of General Kuroki and Oku, says: In the fight of June 23, the Cossacks were unable to remove seven wounded men and they were all slaughtered before the eyes of their comrades. The Japanese afterwards indulged in mutilations.

Rosotofu ferry boat while crossing the Khoper river, a tributary of the Don, sank with all on board. Sixty bodies have been recovered and sixteen persons are missing.

Fatally Injured.

Neil Cargell, a prominent citizen of Metcalf, Ga., received probably fatal wounds at the hands of two negroes named Murray. The trouble occurred at a negro church celebration. Cargell was struck on the head with a baseball bat and was shot three times. Both negroes were shot through the body, but will recover.

Changes in Cabinet.

The following cabinet appointments are announced: W. H. Moody, of Massachusetts, attorney general; Paul Morton, of Illinois, secretary of the navy; Victor H. Metcalf, of California, secretary of commerce and labor. The resignations of Secretary Cortelyou and Attorney General Knox have been accepted, to take effect July 1st.

Fire at the Fair.

Fire which threatened for a time to destroy many buildings at the world's fair consumed the house of Hoo-Hoo, rendering the building and all contents a total loss. So quickly did the flames spread after the fire started that the occupants of the building, five in number, all on the second floor, had difficulty in escaping with their lives and were compelled to climb down a tree to the ground. The loss on the building and contents is estimated at $50,000, on which there is an insurance of $20,000. In addition there is a loss of $8,000 to the Union Baking Company, which had a catering concession in the building.

Mississippi Encampment.

The general orders have been issued by Governor Vardaman and Major General Kessler for the annual encampment of the Mississippi National guard to be held at Biloxi from the 15th to the 25th of August.

Adjutant General Fridge has requested the war department to assign Lieutenant Richard P. Winslow, of the artillery corps, now stationed at Tybee island, as government inspector during the encampment.

SPECIAL REPRESENTATIVE MISSING.

But the Treaty With Abyssinia Has Gone On.

Mystery still surrounds the disappearance of Kent J. Loomis, brother of Assistant Secretary of State Loomis. Not a solitary clew as to his whereabouts has resulted after nearly a week's investigation.

He sailed for Europe having in his charge the new treaty with Abyssinia and since his steamer touched at Plymouth he has not been seen.

At the request of Consul General Evans, the hospitals at Plymouth are being searched. Scotland Yard also has the matter in hand and the English papers, especially the local papers at Plymouth, continue to give prominence to the American's disappearance. If Loomis is in England and in possession of his faculties he could scarcely fail to know he is being leased for.

The authorities here are quite unable to form a conjectural explanation of Loomis' disappearance. The theory that he fell overboard finds no support, as it is pointed out that it would be almost impossible for a small man to fall over the big deck rails, and particularly when the sea is practically, as it was in this case. One of Mr. Loomis' fellow passengers a representative of the Associated Press, learned that W. H. Ellis and Loomis were constantly together and were known as intimate friends. Mr. Ellis has gone on with the treaty.

COAL PRODUCTION.

Something About Its Increase in the South.

At the beginning of the last half of the nineteenth century only two states south of the Ohio river and Mason and Dixon's line mined coal to any great extent, Maryland and Virginia, the latter being the first state in this country in which bituminous coal had been mined. In 1903 the total output in the south by tons was as follows:

West Virginia	26,882,524
Alabama	11,700,753
Kentucky	7,150,000
Tennessee	750,000
Maryland	4,454,385
Virginia	3,500,000
Arkansas	3,000,000
Texas	800,000
Georgia	400,000
North Carolina	25,000
Total	62,662,662

In the fifty-two years, with a production of bituminous coal in the whole country rising from 2,600,000 tons to 249,732,000 tons, the production in the south had increased from 325,000 tons to 62,662,000 tons.

Mississippi Sunday School Association.

The Mississippi Interdenominational Sunday School Association has finished its annual convention and adjourned. Hon. Isaac D. Borders, the retiring president, declined to serve another term. The following officers were elected for the coming year:

A. Lotterhoss, Crystal Springs, president; J. P. Brown, Kosciusko, vice-president; E. A. Howell, Canton, secretary-treasurer; J. L. Ray, Wesson, chairman executive committee.

The association decided to employ a field secretary at a salary to be fixed by the executive committee, and who will devote his entire time to the work of organization in the various counties. Only two-thirds of the counties in the state have local organizations. The sum of $500 was raised by the convention to begin the evangelistic work, and an appeal for subscriptions will be issued within the next few days.

The growing business of the town of Menlo, Ga., on the Chattanooga Southern above Gadsden, has resulted in the organization of a bank with a cash capital of $25,000. Menlo is in the peach growing section. The city has set aside $10,000 for an addition to the school house and the Baptist congregation will build a $3,000 church at once.

President Roosevelt, it is understood has decided to offer a southern man and a democrat, Judge Osceola Kyle, of Decatur, Ala., one of the three judgeships on the Panama canal zone.

Tunnel Caved In.

Forty feet of the Southern railroad tunnel at Pine mountain, near Warm Springs, Ga., caved in, blocking the track. The cause of the cave in is a mystery, as no train was passing to jar the earth. Several weeks ago the woodwork in the tunnel burned, and in replacing it only the stoutest timbers were used, and the top of the tunnel was thoroughly cribbed. It is reported that an explosion was heard near the mountain about the time of the cave-in, and this has given rise to a theory that the tunnel was wrecked by some one maliciously disposed.

New School for Selma.

With the passage of resolutions the Tuscaloosa presbytery began work which is intended to end in the establishment in Selma of a high school and polytechnic institute.

This is but carrying out a recommendation of the Presbyterian state synod that each presbytery should establish high schools which would be a feeder to the synodical college.

THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

Fifty years ago the republican party came into existence, dedicated, among other purposes, to the great task of securing the extension of human freedom. In 1860 it elected its first President. During twenty-four of the forty-four years which have elapsed between the election of Lincoln the republican party has held complete control through the possession of one or more branches of the government. For the democratic party during the same period has had complete control for only two terms. This long tenure of power by the republican party is due to chance. It is a demonstration that the republican party has deserved the confidence of the American people for nearly two generations to a degree never equaled in our history, and has displayed a high ability for rule and government which has been made even more conspicuous by the incapacity and infirmity of purpose shown by its opponents.

Record of Party.

The republican party entered upon a fresh period of complete supremacy in 1897. We have every right to congratulate ourselves upon the work since then accomplished, for it has added luster even to the traditions of the party which carried the nation safely through the storms of the civil war.

We then found the country after four years democratic rule in evil case, oppressed with misfortune and afraid of the future.

Public credit had been lowered, the revenues were declining, the debt was increasing, the attitude toward Spain was humiliating and mortifying, the standard of values was threatened and unsettled, labor was unemployed, business had sunk in the depression which had succeeded the panic of 1893; hope had fled and confidence was gone. To meet these unhappy conditions vigorous, effectively and at once.

The Tariff.

We replaced a democratic tariff law founded on free trade principles and tried with protection by a consistent protective tariff, and by indissolubly from oppression and stimulated by the encouragement of wise laws has expanded to a degree never before known, has conquered new markets and has created a volume of trade which has surpassed imagination. Under the Dingley tariff labor has been fully employed. Wages have risen and all industries have revived and prospered.

We firmly established the gold standard, which was then menaced with destruction. Confidence returned to the times and with confidence came unexampled prosperity.

Public Credit.

By sufficient revenues supplemented by prudent issues of bonds, we have made the country an income which has left a large surplus and which in less than four years after the war had closed to remove one hundred millions of annual charge, reduce the public debt and lessen the interest charges of the government.

We have made public credit which had been impaired that in time of peace a republican administration made large issues at extravagant rates of interest necessary to pay current expenditures left by a democratic administration at the highest point and enabled us to put our bonds at 2 per cent even in time of war.

We refused to palter longer with the miseries of Cuba. We fought a successful victorious war with Spain; Cuba free, governed the island for three years, and then gave it to the liberated people with order restored, ample revenues, with education and public health established, free from debt and connected with the United States by wise provisions for our mutual interests.

We have organized the government of Porto Rico and its people now enjoy peace, freedom, order and prosperity.

The Philippines.

In the Philippines we have suppressed insurrection, established order and given life and property a security never known there before. We have organized civil government, made it effective and strong in administration, and have conferred upon the people of those islands the largest civil liberty they have ever enjoyed.

By our possession of the Philippines we were enabled to take prompt and effective action in the relief of the legations at Pekin and a decisive part in preventing the partition and the preserving of the integrity of China.

Panama Canal.

The possession of a route for an isthmian canal, so long the dream of American statesmanship, is now an accomplished fact. The great work of connecting the Pacific and Atlantic oceans is at last begun, and it is due to the republican party. We have passed laws which will bring the arid lands of the United States within the area of cultivation.

We have reorganized the party and put it in the highest state of efficiency.

We have passed laws for the improvement and support of the militia.

We have pushed forward the building of the navy, the defense and the protection of our honor and our interest.

Our administration of the great departments of the government has been honest and efficient and wherever wrongdoing has been discovered the republican administration has not hesitated to probe the evil and bring offenders to justice without regard to party or political ties.

The Trusts.

Laws enacted by the republican party which the democratic party failed to enforce and which were intended for the protection of the public against the unjust discrimination or the illegal encroachment of vast aggregations of capital, have been fearlessly enforced by a republican president, and new laws insuring reasonable publicity as to the operations of great corporations and providing additional remedies for the prevention of discrimination in freight rates have been passed by a republican congress.

To Continue Policies.

In this record of achievement during the past eight years may be read the pledges which the republican party has fulfilled. We propose to continue these policies and we declare our present adherence to the following principles:

Protection which guards and develops our industries is a cardinal policy of the republican party. The measure of protection should always at least equal the difference in the cost of the production at home and abroad. We insist upon the maintenance of the principles of protection and therefore rates of duty should be readjusted only when conditions have so changed that the public interest demands their alteration, but this work can not safely be committed to any other hands than those of the republican party. To entrust it to the democratic party is to invite disaster. Whether, as in 1852, the democratic party declared the protection tariff unconstitutional or whether it demands tariff reform or tariff revision, its real object is always the destruction of the protective system. However specious the name the purpose is ever the same. A democratic tariff has always been followed by business adversities, a republican tariff by business prosperity. To a republican congress and a republican president this great question can be safely entrusted. When the only free trade country among the great nations agitates a return to protection, the chief protective country should not falter in maintaining it.

Foreign Markets.

We have extended widely our foreign markets and we believe in the adoption of all practicable methods for their further extension including commercial reciprocity wherever reciprocal arrangements can be effected consistent with the principles of protection and without injury to American agriculture, American labor or un-American industry.

We believe it to be the duty of the republican party to uphold the gold standard and the integrity and value of our national currency. The maintenance of the gold standard established by the republican party can not safely be committed to the democratic party, which resisted its adoption and has never given any proof since that time of belief in it or fidelity to it.

Merchant Marine.

While every other industry has prospered under the fostering aid of republican legislation, American shipping engaged in foreign trade in competition with the low cost of construction, low wages and heavy subsidies of foreign governments has not for many years received from the government of the United States adequate encouragement of any kind. We therefore favor legislation which will encourage and build up the American merchant marine and we cordially approve the legislation of the last congress which created the merchant marine commission to investigate and report upon this subject.

Wants Big Navy.

A navy powerful enough to defend the United States against any attack, to uphold the Monroe doctrine and watch over our commerce is essential to the safety and the welfare of the American people. To maintain such a navy is the fixed policy of the republican party.

We cordially approve the attitude of President Roosevelt and congress in regard to the exclusion of Chinese labor and promise a continuance of the republican policy in that direction.

The civil service law was placed on the statute books by the republican party, which has always sustained it, and we renew our former declarations that it shall be thoroughly and honestly enforced.

Pensions.

We are always mindful of the country's debt to the soldiers and sailors of the United States, and we believe in making ample provision for them and in the liberality of the pension law.

We favor the peaceful settlement of international differences by arbitration.

We recommend the vigorous efforts made by the administration to protect American citizens in foreign lands and pledge ourselves to insist upon just and equal protection of all our citizens abroad. It is the unquestioned duty of our government to provide for all our citizens without distinction the right of travel and sojourn in friendly countries and we declare ourselves in favor of all proper efforts tending to that end. Our great interests and our growing commerce in the Orient render the condition of China of high importance to the United States. We cordially commend the policy pursued in that direction by the administrations of President McKinley and President Roosevelt.

Representation.

We favor such congressional action as shall determine whether by special discriminations the elective franchise in any state has been unconstitutionally limited, and if such is the case we demand that representation in congress and in the electoral colleges shall be proportionately reduced as directed by the constitution of the United States.

Combinations of capital and labor are the results of the economic movement of the age, but neither must be permitted to infringe upon rights and interests of the people. Such combinations when lawfully formed for lawful purposes are alike entitled to the protection of the law, but both are subject to the laws and neither can be permitted to break them.

McKinley and Roosevelt.

The great statesman and patriotic American, William McKinley, who was re-elected by the republican party to the presidency four years ago, was assassinated just at the threshold of his second term. The entire nation mourned his untimely death and did that justice to his great qualities of mind and character which history will confirm and repeat.

The American people were fortunate in his successor, to whom they turned with a trust and confidence which have been fully justified. President Roosevelt brought to the great responsibilities thus sadly forced upon him a clear head, a brave heart, an earnest patriotism and high ideals of public duty and public service. Through the principles of the republican party and to the policies which that party had declared he has shown himself ready for every emergency and has met new and vital questions with ability and with success.

The confidence of the people in his justice inspired by his public career enabled him to render personally an inestimable service to the country, bringing about a settlement of the coal strike which threatened such disastrous results in the winter of 1902.

Our foreign policy under his administration has not only been able, vigorous and dignified, but in the highest questions which arose in Venezuela were dealt with in such a way by President Roosevelt that the Monroe doctrine was signally vindicated and the cause of peace and arbitration greatly advanced.

His prompt and vigorous action in Panama, which we commend in the highest terms, not only secured to us the canal route, but avoided foreign complications, which might have been of a very serious character.

He has continued the policy of President McKinley in the Orient and our position in China signalized by our recent commercial treaty with the empire, has never been so high.

He secured the tribunal by which the vexed and perilous question of Alaskan boundry was finally settled.

Whenever crimes against humanity have been perpetrated, which have shocked our people, his protest has been made and our good offices have been tendered, but always with due regard to international obligations.

Under his guidance we find ourselves at peace with all the world, and never were we more respected nor our wishes more regarded by foreign nations.

Pre-eminently successful in regard to our foreign relations he has been equally fortunate in dealing with domestic questions. The country has known that public credit and the national currency were absolutely safe in the hands of his administration. In the enforcement of the laws he has not only shown courage, but the wisdom which understands that to permit the laws to be violated or disregarded opens the door to anarchy, while the just enforcement of the law is the soundest conservatism. He has held firmly to the fundamental American doctrine that all men must obey the law, that there must be no discrimination between rich and poor, between strong and weak, but that justice and equal protection under the law must be secured to every citizen without regard to race, creed or condition.

His administration has been throughout vigorous and honest, high-minded and patriotic. We commend it without reservation to the considerate judgment of the American people.

JAPANESE WIN FIGHT

Another Russian Battleship is Reported Disabled Near Port Arthur's Harbor

ENGAGEMENT EXPECTED DAILY

Spies Disguised as Organ Grinders Have Maps and Instruments in Their Music Boxes.

After a hot fight lasting for six hours June 27th, the Takushan division of the Japanese army completely defeated five battalions of Russian infantry, which, supported by two regiments of cavalry and sixteen guns, occupied Fenshuiling. The Russians finally fell back. The Japanese casualties aggregated about 100 killed and wounded. Major Oba was killed during the battle.

Chinese who left Port Arthur on June 24th say that only four battleships, five cruisers and the torpedo boats left the harbor on June 23d. Of these three returned badly damaged, but none sank. The several large ships previously damaged carried no guns.

It is reported that another Russian battleship has been discovered stranded off Tiger Rock near the entrance to Port Arthur. It is presumed she was wrecked while running back to the port, after the fight of last Thursday night.

On June 14th the Japanese main army was within fourteen miles of Port Arthur. The scouts were nearer. Natives of Manchuria have not been ordered out of Port Arthur.

It is reported that Edward F. Knight, the correspondent of the London Morning Post with the Japanese army, was killed at Wafangtien.

Two Japanese masquerading as itinerant organ grinders and attired in Bulgarian costume have been arrested. Their organ was searched and was found to contain maps of the Baltic coast lines and surveying instruments. The prisoners confessed. It is believed that one of them is a colonel on the Japanese staff and that the other is his orderly. Both men were sent to St. Petersburg.

The emperor has received the following dispatch from General Kuropatkin, dated Liao Yang, June 27th:

"The Japanese attacked our forces occupying Mo-Tien, Fen-Shui and Ta passes June 26th. Our infantry and cavalry retreated, persuaded that the advancing divisions of the Japanese army, which were operating against each of three passes, were stronger than our detachments."

Russia has purchased another submarine boat.

Are Investigating.

The bureau of labor, at the request of President Roosevelt, is making an investigation of the labor difficulties in Colorado under the organic act of the bureau which charges the commission of labor to investigate the causes of and the facts relating to controversies between employers and employes. The investigation, which is already under way, may last for some time, for it is the intention of the bureau to go to the very beginning of the troubles and endeavor to ascertain exactly what the difficulties are and the causes leading to them.

Congressman House Dead.

A special from Clarksville announces the death there of Former Congressman John F. House. Deceased was a member of the confederate congress and of the United States congress from 1875 to 1882. In 1887 he was defeated for the United States senate by Senator Bate.

Beekman Winthrop, who is to succeed William H. Hunt as governor of Porto Rico; Charles F. McKenna, of Pittsburg, and Adolph G. Wolf, of Washington, recently appointed United States judges in Porto Rico, and Delegate Degetau have left for San Juan. Governor Winthrop will assume office July 4th.

Capitol Commission Organized.

The capitol improvement commission organized by electing Governor Cunningham chairman, Director of Archives T. M. Owen secretary. Rules and by-laws were adopted.

The attorney general and treasurer were appointed a committee to investigate what the property on the southern portion of Capitol square will cost, and also to prepare a plot and report at the next meeting. All the state officials have been invited to appear before the board. One hundred and fifty thousand dollars is at the commission's disposal.

Air Ship Injured by Vandals.

Some time during Monday night the gas bag of Santos Dumont's air ship was cut and slashed in such a manner as to preclude all possibility of its being repaired to allow an ascension on July 4th.

The work was apparently done with a jack knife. There are twenty long rips in the bag, and Professor Meyers, who has charge of the aeronautic contests, declares that it will take at least two weeks to repair the damage.

THE SLOCUM JURY.

Holds Steamship's Owner and Officers Responsible for the Disaster.

The inquiry conducted by the coroner's jury into the General Slocum disaster was concluded Tuesday, and after nearly four hours' deliberation a verdict was rendered. The finding is as follows:

"That the immense loss of life on the General Slocum was due to the misconduct of the directors of the Knickerbocker Steamship Company; that Captain Van Schaick is criminally responsible, that Captain Pease, of the Grand Republic as captain of the steamship fleet, is criminally responsible in that he failed to properly equip the Slocum with apparatus. That Mate Flanagan acted in a cowardly manner. That the action of Inspector Lumberg should be brought to the attention of the authorities."

Coroner Berry has issued warrants for the arrest of the directors and officials of the Knickerbocker Steamship Company.

WHIPPED THE MINISTER.

Chief of Police Uses Horsewhip—Result of a Sermon.

Rev. Len G. Broughton, of Atlanta, one of the best known Baptist ministers in the south, and Chief of Police R. W. Westbrook, of Albany, Ga., were the central figures in a sensational fight which occurred in a barber shop.

The fight was the outcome of charges preferred against Chief Westbrook in a sermon by Dr. Broughton. Dr. Broughton charged that Mr. Westbrook was a drunkard and that he could be found at all hours in the lowest dives in the city. He claimed to have affidavits in his possession to prove his charges and said he was ready for an investigation, if one was desired.

They met in a barber shop and the officer struck the minister several times with a horsewhip. Friends interfered.

COTTON CONDITION.

The weather bureau report says:

In most of the districts east of the Mississippi river cotton has not made rapid growth and is generally small, though healthy and well cultivated. Good growth, however, is reported from Mississippi and portions of Alabama, and while lice are increasing in the last named state, they are less numerous in Mississippi and South Carolina. West of the Mississippi river the advance of the crop has been more rapid, and while some fields are foul in portions of Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, the crop is generally well cultivated. In Texas boll weevils are more numerous in the southwestern, central eastern and coast sections.

Suspected of Murder.

The story comes from near Cypress Inn, on the Tennessee river, of a tragedy there last Saturday morning. G. W. Moore, a well-to-do farmer, was found by neighbors lying on his bed with a bullet hole through his left breast, dead. His eighteen-year-old son, John, and a daughter were the only occupants of the house, and their claim that their father had committed suicide is given little credence by members of the community. No arrests have been made yet, but suspicion against the son is openly expressed and his arrest may follow.

Blain W. Taylor, chief clerk of the postoffice department, will resign that office July 20th to take effect August 20th, and will be succeeded by Merritt Chance, of Illinois, now chief of the division of postoffice supplies and recently private secretary to the secretary of war. Mr. Taylor is a democrat.

Louis Hood has resigned as superintendent of the Kentucky division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad. He will be succeeded by Master of Trains W. H. Anderson.

At Columbus, Ga., Mrs. Julia Wyatt, aged 28 years, in ill health and despondent, swallowed the contents of a bottle of laudanum, remarking as she tossed the bottle away: "There, see what I've done." She died four hours afterwards. She and her husband had separated and she had been working in one of the cotton mills.

A New Railroad.

It is understood that a new line of railroad will be constructed from Andalusia, Ala., into Pensacola, Fla., and that the line will be completed within the next year and a half. It will connect with the Central of Georgia railroad.

Spared the Child.

Currin Davis, aged 21, was killed by lightning while visiting the home of William Goodwin, near Utica, Miss. A child of Goodwin's sat in Davis' lap at the time, but was only shocked.

Justice Brown, of the United States supreme court, was married Friday.

At Knoxville, Tenn., the third annual summer school for the south opened Tuesday morning and will continue through August. The aggregate attendance is expected to reach 1,500 to 2,000, representing teachers and those interested in education from all parts of the south.

The school is the outcome of the work of the general education board of the south, headed by Robert C. Ogden.

Work on Dam.

It is learned that the dam at Jackson Shoals, on Choccolocco creek, near Talladega, is being rapidly constructed. The contractors have about fifty laborers employed in the work, and with the exceptional low water for the season rapid headway in construction is expected. The dam is to be one of stone construction, thoroughly cemented, and is to be completed by September, when the dynamos will be placed. By this plant it is estimated that 3,000 horsepower will be developed.

American Support to Turkey.

A rumor is in circulation that America has notified the porte of its willingness to give some degree of support to Turkey against the pressure of the powers looking to the application of reforms in Macedonia. This support will be given provided Turkey gives certain concessions to America. The rumor is not confirmed.

Reversed and Dismissed.

William Hunt, who was arrested for an alleged fraud on an insurance company in Texas, and who was taken to that state, tried, convicted and sentenced to five years, is a free man. The following telegram tells the story:

"Dallas, Texas, June 22.—Hunter cases reversed and dismissed. Shake."

The arrest of Hunter caused a sensation at the time. He lived in Brookside, but while in Birmingham attracted the attention of a former agent of the insurance company, who caused his arrest.

Representative Victor H. Metcalf, of the Third California district, will succeed George B. Cortelyou as the head of the department of commerce and labor.

RED RIVER RISING.

Many Plantations Are Under Water. Considerable Alarm.

High water in the Red river has reached the threatening stage and considerable alarm is felt over the situation. Already there has been much damage, and if the river continues to rise the rate it's now rising the loss will be great.

Reports received from along the river above the Arkansas line all the way to within a few miles of Shreveport indicate that a large area of fine farm lands is under water.

Mr. M. G. Wood, of Woodlawn, recently celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday, and weighed on that day just seventy-four pounds. He is in good health.

THE "Populist State Convention" that was called to meet at Birmingham last Thursday failed to materialize, apparently not a solitary individual presenting himself. The Birmingham News has this to say about it:

This is the day set for the Populist State Convention in this city, but diligent search and research on the part of a reporter of the News failed to locate the Convention. Moreover he could not find at the hotels or the union passenger station a single pair of whiskers which in any way suggested the luxuriant hirsute growth of the days when the sub-treasury scheme was the thing.

ROOSEVELT and Fairbanks are the Republican nominees for President and Vice-President. Next week the Democrats will name the men who are to vanquish them.

THE Alabama Press Association meets in annual session at Bessemer this week, and elaborate preparations have been made by the citizens of that thriving city for the entertainment of the editors. On Saturday the Association will proceed to St. Louis.

A GREAT and decisive battle seems to be impending between the Russian and Japanese armies, and from the number of the forces coming together it will probably be the most decisive battle of the war. The Japanese have so far been remarkably successful and a brilliant victory by them now might possibly end the war.

Do not forget that Saturday next is election day in the several school districts. The citizens have to attend to this matter entirely among themselves. The law requires that "the qualified electors of each public school district shall meet at the district public school house, July 2, and elect from among the freeholders and householders who can read and write, residing in the district, a local board of three district trustees."

SCHOOL DISTRICT ELECTIONS.

Every school district in the State must elect trustees on the first Saturday in July (next Saturday.) This is the law and the superintendent of education proposes to enforce it. Those districts which refuse to do so will very probably lose their share of the public school fund. No one is charged with the duty of holding elections for these places. The citizens of the communities are expected to get together and make their selections and certify the same to county superintendents. Blanks are also being sent out to which the names of all children of school age are to be placed, with the name of their guardain or parents and age. It is thought there are some districts getting much more than is coming to them in school money because of faulty enumeration.—Age Herald

MASONIC RESOLUTIONS.

CLANTON CHAPTER NO. 116 R. A. M.

We, your committee, appointed to draft suitable resolutions in memory of our companion John A. Honeycutt, beg leave to submit the following:

Whereas, it has pleased the Grand Master of the Universe to call, from his earthly home to the realm of life and light eternal, our esteemed friend and companion, John A. Honeycutt, who was born April the 6th 1868, and departed this life April the 27th 1904; being at the time of his death 36 years old. He joined the Baptist church at Jemison, Ala. in 1885; he was married in 1887; and was made a Master Mason at Montevallo, Ala 1894 and was exhalted to the August Degree of Royal Arch Mason in Clanton Chapter 116 on the 23d day of October, 1902.

Whereas, compánion Honeycutt was a kind and affectionate husband a loving and indulgent father, and with energy and foresight made his impress in the church, and in his daily intercourse with his fellowmen; his loss will be a serious one, not only to his family and the Royal Craft, but to his town and community.

Therefore, be it resolved:

First: That with sad hearts we humbly bow to this divine mandate, feeling that He who doeth all things well, is too good to do wrong and too wise to err.

Second: That we, as members and companions of this Chapter, do indulge the hope that when our companion's work was called to pass the inspection of the Grand Overseer and the unerring square, it was found well formed, and worthy a place in that Temple eternal in the heavens, whose maker and builder is God.

Third: That in the death of companion Honeycutt, his wife has lost a loving and true husband, his children a kind and devoted father; and to all the relatives of the deceased, we tender the condolence of our sincere and heartfelt sympathy, and would, in the lrour of sad bereavement, point them for comfort to our Heavenly Father who cares for the widow and orphans.

Fourth; That a copy of these resolutions be furnished the bereaved family of our dear companion, and a copy of same sent to the Banner for publication.

Fresh testimony in great quantity is constantly coming in, declaring Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds to be unequaled. A recent expression from T. J. McFarland Bentorville, Va., serves as example. He writes: "I had Bronchitis for three years and doctored all the time without being benefited. Then I began taking Dr. King's New Discovery, and a few bottles wholly cured me." Equally effective in curing all Lung and Throat troubles, Consumption, Pneumonia and Grip. Sardis.

The Sunday school convention of last Sunday was a grand success, which was most heartily enjoyed by all present, and if we say sardis had the largest crowd of any occasion yet, we don't think we will misrepresent anything. The program was carried out in full and we enjoyed some fine speeches from our brethren. Among our visiting speakers were Hon. I. P. Crumpton of Maplesville, E. B. Deason of Clanton, J. F. Johnson an son, Rev. J. C Johnson of Stanton, and Rev. Robert Jones of Stanton, who occupied the stand at 11 a.m. and preached one of the most excellent sermons we ever heard. It will be doing ourselves a great wrong if we ever forget Bro. Jones' sermon. We were glad to have the brethren with us.

At 12 m. we never saw a table better filled than was here, plenty for all and some to spare, for which we thank our community. It was a most enjoyable day to all, and we do hope people who heard those good speeches will take heed to them and become more interested in the Sunday school work than ever before. Again thanking you all for the interest you have taken in the convention and wishing all Sunday school workers and the Banner much success, I bid you all adieu.

All Day Singing

There will be all day singing at Shiloh church, near Kincheon, the second Sunday in July in the Christian Harmony. David said behold how good and pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity. Everybody is invited to come and bring your books and baskets, and let us have as good a time as they did as Sardis and New Cedron last Sunday. We are glad to know that they had such good service and such good behaviour at those two places, and we hope to have the same at Shiloh.

ROOSEVELT AND FAIRBANKS

AMID WILDEST ENTHUSIASM

Nominating Speeches Are Made—The Old Tattered Flag—Alabama Much in Evidence.

The republican national convention met at 10 o'clock this morning with the expectation of nominating candidates and adjourning in time for afternoon trains.

Black, of New York; Beveridge, of Indiana; Knight, of California; Edwards, of Georgia; Cotton, of Minnesota; Cummings, of Maryland; Dolliver, of Iowa, had been chosen to entertain, to stir feeling, to excite admiration and faith in the candidates they nominated or seconded.

Half an hour before the time set for the opening of the convention there were as many visitors in the galleries as witnessed the entire opening session of Tuesday. Not once since the opening of the convention have all the visitors' seats been filled.

Then following an announcement that the recently elected committee would meet in the Coliseum immediately on the adjournment of the convention.

Chairman Cannon at once announced that the next order of business would be a roll call of states for the nomination of president of the United States.

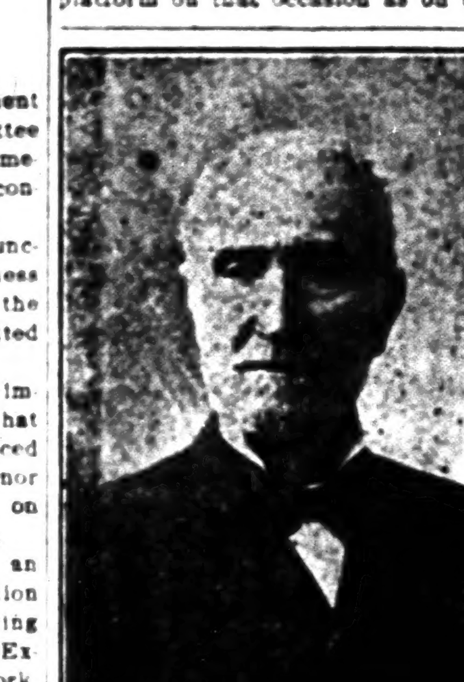
The clerk called "Alabama," and immediately Oscar R. Hundley, of that state, mounted a chair and announced that Alabama requested the honor and privilege of yielding its place on the roll to the state of New York.

Instantly the convention was in an uproar. The New York delegation was on its feet like one man waving their flags and shouting wildly. Ex-Governor Frank Black, of New York, who was to deliver the nominating speech in behalf of President Roosevelt, immediately started for the platform amid the wildest enthusiasm on the part of the delegates.

As Governor Black reached the desk of Chairman Cannon he was warmly greeted by that gentleman and escorted to the front of the platform. Here Chairman Cannon introduced him to the convention. There was a succession of shouts from the convention and a chorus of shrieks from the New York delegation, a paroxysm of tossing flags, then silence and Mr. Black commenced his speech in behalf of President Roosevelt.

Governor Black pronounced the nominating words at just 11:06. As he did so he retired quickly from the platform. But the words "Theodore Roosevelt" had not left his lips when there was a shout. The convention was on its feet.

Chairman Cannon unfurled a tattered silk flag and advanced to the extreme edge of the platform and began to wave it. The flag is the property of the Lincoln-McKinley association of Missouri and it made its first appearance at a republican convention in 1860 when Lincoln was nominated. It was then carried by the Missouri delegation and was waved over the platform on that occasion as on this.



SPEAKER JOSEPH G. CANNON.
Permanent Chairman of the Republican National Convention.

The front of the platform was next occupied by an immense crayon bust portrait of President Roosevelt.

The Indiana delegation sprung open umbrellas of red, white and blue bearing the portraits of Roosevelt and Fairbanks, the Alaskan eagles were held aloft and thousands of flags waved.

The applause continued for twenty-five minutes.

When Chairman Cannon had secured order the secretary read a history of the flag which Mr. Cannon had been waving. Grasping the flag and waving it over his head Mr. Cannon said: "It prophesied victory in 1860; its life has been baptized on many a battlefield since, and it is safe in the hands of President Roosevelt."

Cheers followed and were increased when Mr. Cannon recognized Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, whom he introduced.

Senator Beveridge, of Indiana, seconded the nomination of Roosevelt and was followed by George A. Knight, of California; Harry Stillwell Edwards, Georgia; ex-Gov. W. O. Bradley, of Kentucky, Joseph B. Cotton, of Minnesota, and Harry S. Cummings, a colored delegate from Maryland. Mr. Cannon introduced him as an "American citizen, whose people were brought from slavery forty years ago and who have made more progress in one generation than any race ever made."

Chairman Cannon then announced the roll call for nomination for president.

The clerk began calling the roll by states. When Alabama responded with her entire vote for Roosevelt there was a cheer.

Chairman Cannon announced at the conclusion of the roll call that Theodore Roosevelt had received the entire vote of the convention, 994, and it only remained for him to announce his nomination for the presidency by the republican party.

Mr. Cannon then announced: "The clerk will call the roll for the presentation of candidates for vice president."

"Alabama," called the clerk.

Mr. Hundley, of Alabama, as before on the presidential roll call, announced that his state desired to waive its right in favor of the state of Iowa.

This meant Senator Dolliver, who was to deliver the first nominating speech in favor of Senator Fairbanks, of Indiana.

The first mention of Senator Fairbanks' name was the signal for cheers which were renewed when he formally presented the name of the Indiana senator.

When the applause subsided Mr. Cannon recognized Senator Depew, whose appearance on the platform with Chairman Cannon grasping his hand, was the inspiration for an outburst of applause.

"I introduce, although it is not necessary," began Mr. Cannon, "not Senator, but Chauncey Depew, of New York."

His speech was in seconding the nomination of Senator Fairbanks.

Seconding speeches were made by Senator Foraker, of Ohio; Governor Pennypacker, of Pennsylvania, and Senator Carter, of Montana.

The names of Representatives Hitt, George W. Webster and ex-Mayor Walbridge were withdrawn and Speaker Cannon declared Charles W. Fairbanks, of Indiana, the candidate of the republican party for vice president of the United States.

ELIHU ROOT.
Temporary Chairman.

A resolution was passed naming Joseph G. Cannon chairman of the committee to notify Theodore Roosevelt of his nomination on July 27th and Elihu Root chairman of the committee to notify Senator Fairbanks of his nomination for vice president on August 23d.

Senator Beveridge cast the vote of Indiana for Fairbanks for vice president, with the exception of Fairbanks' own vote.

Senators Depew, Cullum and Spooner had their gold badges, worth about $25, taken from their coats while in the crowds at the hotels, and four robberies of other delegates or visitors have been reported.

PRESIDENT THEODORE ROOSEVELT.
Republican Nominee for President of the United States.

A few moments before the assemblage there was a hurried conference by the managers which resulted in an agreement that Alabama, the first state on the roll, would yield to New York to nominate Roosevelt.

It was also agreed that Alabama, which was the first state to instruct for Fairbanks, would yield to Iowa to place the senator's name in nomination for the vice presidency.

Secretary Cortelyou arrived at 10 o'clock and was escorted to a seat on the platform. He received a very cordial greeting, the members of the national committee crowding around to shake his hand.

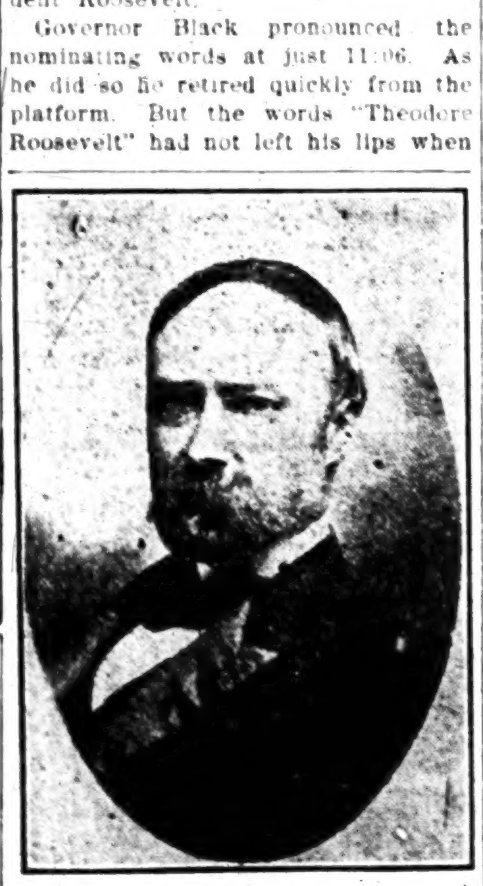
Cheers greeted the arrival of Chairman Cannon upon the stage and the band struck up the national hymn. This was the signal for the convention to rise, and the New York delegation was conspicuous, each of its members waving an American flag.

Senator Fairbanks did not attend the session of the convention.

It was exactly at 10:30 when Chairman Cannon called the convention to order. "The convention will be opened with prayer," he announced.

The Rev. Thaddeus A. Snively, rector of St. Chrysostom's church, was presented. At the conclusion of the prayer Chairman Cannon presented the following announcements through the reading clerk:

"On the sixth day of July at Jackson, Mich., there will be celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the republican party. (Applause.) The time and place where it received its name. Secretary Hay will deliver the principal address. Senator Fairbanks and others will address the meeting."



SENATOR C. W. FAIRBANKS.
Nominated by the Republicans for the Vice Presidency.

William J. Vickory, now in charge of the Chicago division of postoffice inspectors, was appointed chief postoffice inspector to succeed William E. Cochran recently appointed to the newly created office of general purchasing agent of the postal service.

That the ill-fated steamer General Slocum had no life preservers aboard less than nine years old, was admitted by counsel of the Knickerbocker Steamship company at the inquest.

CHICAGO COLISEUM.

Meeting Place of Republican National Convention.

It is said that George J. Gould is about to enter politics, and that he will try at the forthcoming election for a seat in the house of representatives from the district in New Jersey which embraces Lakewood, where he has his country seat. Mr. Gould is a stanch republican. His private fortune is now estimated to be not less than seventy millions of dollars.

A noted New York autograph dealer says that Mr. Roosevelt's autographs are in constant demand in Europe. Of all the presidential autographs, except George Washington's alone, his brings the highest price in the foreign market.

The death list of the General Slocum has reached a total of 907.

NOW IN BATTLE ARRAY

Russian and Japanese Armies Are Expected to Open Battle At Any Time.

300,000 MEN WILL BE ENGAGED

There is received a dispatch from a correspondent at Vladivostok that Vice Admiral Skrydloff's squadron would probably be unable to go out again for weeks, as the ships had to go into dry dock for the purpose of overhauling their boilers and cleaning their hulls preparatory to putting to sea to meet the Baltic squadron. The dispatch added that some of the torpedo boats have been shattered by the storm during the last expedition to the Japanese coast.

A telegram from Tokio says the Japanese government declares that deaths from disease in both armies up to the present equal losses with those sustained in actual fighting.

MUCH LUMBER BURNED.

And Property in Troy Endangered. $100,000 Loss.

What is reported as one of the most terrific fires that ever occurred in Troy broke out in the Henderson and Minchener planing mills and spoke and handle factory. The mills were located about 150 yards north of the State Normal college.

Together with the immense stacks of lumber, they covered something like two acres of land and were entirely consumed, causing a loss of upward of $100,000.

Two residences across the street were partly consumed. The burning of the mills throws about 150 men out of employment.

The mills were owned by Fox Henderson and J. Russ Minchener. There was only about $5,000 of insurance on the property.

AT PELL CITY.

School Matters and Public Buildings. A New Factory.

At a meeting of the trustees of the Pell City school district the election of principal and assistant for the current year resulted in the choice of Professor P. M. Matthews and Miss Matthews, of North Birmingham.

The board without opposition decided to build a school house to be completed by November 1st. This will be of brick, two stories high, and costing not less than $6,000, and located in a block giving sufficient room for play ground.

The board of aldermen are now engaged in deciding upon a site for the city hall and jail, to cost about $3,000, plans for which have already been drawn and accepted.

A $25,000 overall factory is expected to locate there.

The First Train.

The first standard gauge train ran into the town of Pontotoc last week over the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, and there was general rejoicing. In a few more days the first train on the same line will run into Newton, and then there will be some more jollification. Work of construction is being pushed as rapidly as men and money can accomplish it and before the fall crops begin to move it is promised that the entire line will be completed from Mobile to Jackson, Tenn.

The Cane Crop.

A continuation of dry weather is generally reported throughout the sugar district, and this absence of rainfall is becoming somewhat serious in a number of localities. The marked advance enjoyed by this year's crop over that of an ordinary season is being rapidly lost on those places where there has been a long continued drought.

Kyle Appointed.

Judge Osceola Kyle, of Decatur, was notified that he had been appointed one of the three judges to preside over the United States territory along the Panama canal. The appointment was made by the canal commission with the approval of the president and the secretary of war.

Judge Kyle said that he would resign his present place as judge of the eighth circuit of Alabama until he had received and signed the oath of office to his new place. He was nominated in the April primaries for a term of six years. The place of Panama judge pays $7,500 annually.

General Bell Speaks.

General Sherman M. Bell, who is governing Teller county under martial law, has issued another statement for publication, in which he says:

"There are one thousand lies been written about me. I am under orders of the governor of the state of Colorado. He stands for peace, quiet and good government, and has instructed me to see to it that the Western Federation of Miners shall not infest any more men, and they shall not. I am his adjutant general commanding the military forces of the state. You will see that hundreds of bad men are deported, and if when martial law has been called off the citizens permit the cattle I intend to deport to return, that will be their business. No man who wants to work will be molested."

Killed in Water Pipe.

Thirty-three persons were killed in an accident near Kingston, Jamaica, in the conduit of the West India Electric Company, which operates the street cars from Kingston.

Nearly one hundred laborers had been detailed to remove sand from the enormous pipe, which is a mile long and which conveys water from the lake to the turbines of the power house. The work had practically been completed when orders were given to allow a small quantity of water to enter the conduit. Through misapprehension, accident or carelessness the full force of water was turned on and a mad struggle to escape by means of the manholes ensued, with the result that thirty-three persons were drowned.

Both Killed.

A woman and child were knocked from Choccolocco creek bridge near Anniston by a train and instantly killed. The woman was badly mangled. They were caught while crossing the trestle and thrown into the creek.

Twenty-five Mergenthalers and twenty-eight Lanstons are to be placed in the government printing office at Washington in the next sixty days.

Crime in Tallapoosa.

Governor Cunningham drew the attention of Solicitor S. L. Brewer and the sheriff of Tallapoosa county to the alleged murder of Charlie Harris, a negro at East Tallassee, in Tallapoosa county. Harris is alleged to have been murdered last week by a small mob of white men.

John Frederick Elmore has been appointed Peruvian minister at Washington, succeeding Manuel Alvarez Calderon, who has resigned.

The canvass to determine as nearly as possible the exact number of persons that lost their lives in the General Slocum disaster will be even more thorough than at first expected. Not only will every home in the great city, which is thought to have been directly affected by the disaster, be visited by the special detail of patrolmen, but the investigation will be extended to other cities and towns as well.

United States Marshal Seraphic, who was accused of stealing from an Ensley Chinaman, was acquitted.

Baldwin county is to have another railroad. A charter has been granted to the Bay Minette and Fort Morgan railroad company. Its northern terminus and general headquarters will be at Bay Minette, and it will run south through the county a distance of about forty-five miles, developing some of the best part of the county.

Tom Lowe, who shot and killed Ben Owen at Little Vine church, near Warrior, Sunday night, has been taken to Walker county, where he is charged with murder.

Fight for Gun Results Fatally.

In a friendly scuffle at the noon recess of Old Hickory school, in Simpson county, over the possession of a 22-caliber rifle, the fifteen-year-old son of J. J. Ware, a prominent farmer, was accidentally shot through the brain and killed by Henry Maddox or Jim Kennedy. All are sons of prominent farmers.

It is reported that the Cannon pump factory, now at Waycross, Ga., will be moved to Bessemer, Ala.

Fatally Hurt.

Dennis Durgan, an employe of the Louisville and Nashville road, was fatally injured near Birmingham. It seems that Dungan was on the caboose of a freight train fixing one of the lights. The train was backed suddenly and he was knocked off. His right leg was cut off below the knee. Loss of blood before surgeons reached him was the immediate cause of death.

"Miss Hapgood tells how she was cured of Fallopian and Ovarian Inflammation—and escaped an awful operation by using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I suffered for four years with what the doctors called Salpingitis (inflammation of the fallopian tubes) and ovaritis, which are most distressing and painful ailments, affecting all the surrounding parts, undermining the constitution, and sapping the life forces. If you had seen me a year ago, before I began taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and had noticed the sunken eyes, sallow complexion, and general emaciated condition, and compared that person with me as I am today, robust, hearty and well, you would not wonder that I feel thankful to you and your wonderful medicine, which restored me to new life and health in five months, and saved me from an awful operation."—Miss IRENE HAPGOOD, 1022 Sandwich St., Windsor, Ont.

Ovaritis or inflammation of the ovaries or fallopian tubes which adjoin the ovaries may result from sudden stopping of the monthly flow, from inflammation of the womb, and many other causes. The slightest indication of trouble with the ovaries, indicated by dull throbbing pain in the side, accompanied by heat and shooting pains, should claim your instant attention. It will not cure itself, and a hospital operation, with all its terrors, may easily result from neglect.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I can truly say that you have saved my life, and I cannot express my gratitude to you in words.

"Before I wrote to you telling how I felt, I had doctored for over two years steady and spent lots of money in medicine besides, but it all failed to do me any good. My menses did not appear in that time, and I suffered much pain. I would daily have fainting spells, headache, backache and bearing down pain, and was so weak that it was hard for me to do my work.

"I used your medicine and treatment as directed, and after taking three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, menses appeared, my womb troubles left me, and I have been regular ever since. I used fourteen bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Blood Purifier together, and am now restored to perfect health. Had it not been for you, I would have been in my grave.

"I will always recommend your wonderful remedies, and hope that these few lines may lead others who suffer as I did to try your remedies."—Mrs. T. C. WILLADSEN, R. R. No. 1, Manning, Iowa.

Such unquestionable testimony proves the power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over diseases of women.

Women should remember that they are privileged to consult Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass., about their illness, entirely free.

Well Worth Seeing.

One of the most interesting exhibits among the many of all kinds at the Louisiana Purchase Exposition in St. Louis is that of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company, of New Haven, Conn., manufacturers of repeating rifles and shotguns and all kinds of ammunition. The exhibit is in readiness and was opened on the first day of the fair, a fact that clearly illustrates the enterprise and up-to-date methods of the company behind it. It is the aim of the Winchester Repeating Arms Company to show at their exhibit the high development which they have reached in the making of guns and ammunition, and one needs only to see the exhibit to realize how near to perfection the development has come. There can be seen the new automatic repeating rifle, all kinds of shotguns, the modern smokeless powder shotgun shells and rifle cartridges, in fact everything that can interest the devotees of hunting and trap and target shooting. Don't fail to see the exhibit of the Manufacturers and Fish and Game Cottage. It is well worth your while.

It is said that Professor Markwald has discovered minute quantities of a new radio-active substance in pitchblende which is associated with tellurium. On account of its association he has named it radiotellurium. The professor says the new substance is even more difficult to extract than radium.

Preventing farming from being a high science and placing it on the same plane with other sciences must needs rid it of the drudging toil that accompanies it. It is only equaled in the expenditure of muscle power and vital force by coal mining, puddling in an iron mill or digging wells. If science will spare the man and shoulder his hard task with machinery, then it will do for the farmer what it is doing in other fields of human labor.

In a recent report, Professor Green, principal of the eye hospital attached to the Berlin university, says that in some cases blind persons are able to distinguish certain objects illuminated by radium rays. He also found that those whose optic nerve had not been destroyed could see objects in front of a screen made fluorescent by radium. He concludes by saying, however, that the blind cannot expect for some time to get any relief from this new element.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "THE UNIVERSAL IN RELIGION."

The Rev. C. L. Palmer Directs Attention to Certain Forms or Doctrines Common to All—Every System of Religion Has Some Conception of God.

KINGSTON, N. Y.—In the Reformed Church of the Comforter on Sunday morning the Rev. C. L. Palmer preached a scholarly discourse entitled "The Universal in Religion."

Tylor, in Primitive Culture, says: "He who only knows one religion can no more understand that religion, than he who only understands one language can master that language." By which he means, that one cannot adequately appreciate any system of faith and practice without some knowledge of the history, doctrines and customs of systems other than his own, any more than one can master his native tongue without any knowledge of its cognates. It is undeniable that a study of the various systems discloses a religious substratum and phenomena of which no intelligent student is willing to be deprived.

The population of the world is estimated at 1,392,000,000. Of this number 100,000,000 are pagan or heathen, which represents the very lowest grade of humanity. There are supposed to be 175,000,000 Brahmans. The nominal and professed followers of Buddah and Confucius are estimated at 420,000,000. Mohammedans number more than 200,000,000. Christians, including Roman Catholic, Greek Church and Protestant, are computed at 400,000,000. The whole of Eastern Asia is occupied by the Buddhists, India by the Brahmans, Africa, Australia and the South Sea Islands by the pagan tribes. Parts of Europe, Asia and Africa by the Mohammedans, the largest part of Europe and America by Christians.

The conservative classifications of the religions of the world were such as these—true and false religions, natural and supernatural, pagan and revealed, spiritual and superstitious. Such a classification is not only confusing to the student of comparative religions, but is unjust, for every system contains some truth. A better classification is 1. Tribal. 2. Ethnic. 3. Catholic. The tribal includes all systems which have no ritual, priesthood, creed, sacred writings, architecture or music. The ethnic religions are confined to one nation; such, for example, was the religion of Egypt, which for a thousand years was limited to its national borders. The system of Assyria was confined to Assyria; the religion of Greece was confined to the Hellenic race; that of Rome to the Romans; of Confucius to China; Brahmanism is confined to India, and the faith of the Eddas was limited to the Scandinavian or Teutonic races. The Catholic systems, in spirit and method, know no limit in either time or territory. They aspire to conquer the world. Such were Moses, Zoroaster, Buddah, Mohammed and Jesus. Ethnic religions were evolved out of their own life. Catholic systems were formulated, introduced and promulgated by an inspired prophet.

It is not my purpose to trace the origin of religion, the evolution or development, or to compare the merits of each, but to very briefly direct attention to certain forms or doctrines common to all.

Such conception is either just or unjust, true or false, right or wrong, though no faith, even among the most degraded, is entirely destitute of some truth concerning God. Christianity is the one system which has an adequate disclosure of the attributes of Jehovah, because Jesus became incarnate the reveal the Father. "He that hath seen Me hath seen the Father." And even Christianity cannot condense in a single definition a comprehensive description of the Supreme Being, for the idea is not simple but complex. The lowest conception of God is known as animism, which is belief in spiritual powers as opposed to materialism. It is the unformulated notion of the most undeveloped tribes, and has no place in the Christian system except as clarified and perfected in angelology and demonology. Polytheism is found principally in the ethnic systems. In Egypt the divine elements were seen dwelling in nature. The Greek deities were not personifications, but persons, divine men and women. In the Vedic Hymns of India the forces of nature are spiritualized into objects of reverence and love. The most marked form of pantheism appears in the Hindu religion, which is in its extreme development, that the universe is God, and God is the universe. Christian science savors of it. The doctrine of the divine imminence may be so forced as to eliminate the personality of God. Ditheism is belief in two hostile powers which was a tenet of Zoroastrianism. Triads appear in the ethnic and Catholic systems. The Christian doctrine of the trinity is a necessary and natural conception of God, and becomes clear if it is understood to represent Him as one in essence but three in form. Monotheism is principally characteristic of the Catholic systems, though traces are found in the pagan and ethnic. Deeply imbedded in every heart is the conviction of an Almighty personality, and that such personality is back of all forms and images, and that the latter becomes efficacious because of the power of God.

All possible theories about the origin of the universe are reducible to four. 1. That it had no beginning, but has always existed either in its present or another form. While the eternity of matter has been advocated by some it has never become a popular belief, and it does not appeal to modern science. But among the primitive tribes we presume, many think the handiwork of God without commencement and culmination. 2. That it came by a process of evolution. This theory had been modified in recent years by Biblical scholars and philosophical thinkers, with the result of a most hearty acceptance on the part of some thorough studenas and devoted scientists. 3. Another view is that it came by a process of emanation. The difference between evolution and emanation seems to be, that the former is a growth up to and including a certain completeness, while the latter began "with the dark abyss of infinite being, and by means of a series of emanations or fallings away from this inconceivable first essence, gradually reached an intelligent Creator and an intelligent creation." This theory is Oriental in its origin, appearing first in the cosmogony of the Hindus. 4. Conservative Christian scholars are divided on this doctrine. Some hold that God created, that is, actually made, brought into existence, the material out of which all things were formed. Others hold that He simply cut, carved and fashioned the universe out of pre-existing material. It is difficult to say just what form is acceptable to the majority of Christian scholars. Evolution as we now understand it is certainly accepted by men whose sincerity we cannot question and whose scholarship commands universal admiration.

There is a spirit in man and the inspiration of the Almighty giveth it understanding. The lowest and most ignorant pagan, and the most intelligent Christian is born in possession of it. The practice of the human family from the very first confirms the statement, "that the spirit of man goeth upward." All believe in a spirit world and that access is had to it through prayer. Men pray either because they obtain what they ask for, or because the act is a blessing in itself. The Sioux Indians pray—"Spirits of the dead, have mercy on us." The Zulus of Africa pray to their ancestors—"People of our house, people of our house; cattle. People of our house, good luck and health." A Delaware Indian prayed thus—"O Great Spirit above! have mercy on my children and my wife. Let them not mourn for me. Let me succeed in this enterprise, slay my enemy, return in safety to my family and friends, that we may rejoice together. Have pity on me and protect my life." The negro on the gold coast prayed—"God give me to-day rice and yams, give me slaves, riches and wealth. Let me be brisk and swift." The Karens of Burmah pray to the harvest goddess thus—"Grandmother! thou guardest my field look out sharp for thieves. If they come bind them with this rope." Such are a few forms used by the childlike races, the ethnic systems disclose a higher and more enlightened conception of invocation. The Vedic hymns are filled with adoring homage—Of which God now, of which of the immortals, shall we invoke the amiable name? Let us invoke the amiable name of Aditi. Agni, the god of fire, is addressed as the Divine Monarch. In China the worship of ancestors is constantly practiced. On an Assyrian tablet are found these words: "May I never feel the anger and wrath of God." The ancient Mexicans addressed God, "The God by whom we live, Thou omnipresent, Who knoweth all our thoughts and giveth all gifts." They baptized children with this formula, "Let these holy drops wash away the sin that it received before the foundation of the world, so that the child may be new born." In the Catholic religions we discover an element less conspicuous than in the others. It is pardon for past sins, reconciliation with God and growth in grace. It would be interesting to trace under this division the practice of sacrifice, hymnology and other forms that enter into worship, but we pass on.

Inspiration implies that man must have a capacity to be inspired, which makes it a human faculty and therefore common to all. Inspiration in its largest sense is the sight of inward truth, a truth which is seen within the mind. A thought will come while one is walking, conversing, reading or meditating. It is a kind of inspiration. Poets have been inspired to write poetry. Scientists have been inspired to formulate the sciences, musicians to compose music, Columbus to discover, Newton and Edison to both discover and invent. Inspiration differs in quantity and quality, religious being the highest. The Vedas and Zend Avesta are considered inspired by their cult. The Mohammedans believe the Koran is inspired of God and therefore infallible, and Christians make the same contentions for the Scriptures. There is a low and crude form of inspiration among the undeveloped races, which is not committed to writing. The Samoeds of Siberia have diviners who work themselves into a frenzy before delivering oracles. The notion of inspiration appeared in the insanity of the Pythian priestess and the Greek diviners who fell into trances. In the religion of Greece it appeared as an alien element. The wild dances of the Bacchantes, the shrieks and self-lacerations of the Corybantes were considered forms of inspiration. In the Hindu religion it appears in the Yogi, that is one who seeks God by withdrawing from the things of sense. Painful positions are assumed, contortions of the limbs, suppression of breath and other incredible mortifications. The Greenlander has his prophets, who abandon the converse of men and remain in a fixed intensity of thought until they hear and see the spirits. Balaam was compelled to utter an involuntary prophecy, and the priests of Baal cut themselves with lances. Sometimes in our own country, at protracted meetings, men have the "jerks." The Shakers dance, the Mohammedans whirl. These seem absurd to us, but they disclose this, that all mankind would ascertain the will of God.

From time immemorial the human race has had some intimation of an endless life. The most degraded savages and the most enlightened philosophers share the conviction that death does not end all. The Hottentot and the Fiji Islander agree with Plato and Aristotle. The Esquimaux in the Arctic circle, the native of Siberia, the Australians, the Patagonians believe that the grave is the cradle of another life. All the religions of antiquity believe in immortality. Egypt, China, India, Persia, Greece, Rome, Mexico, Peru, the Tartar tribes of Central Asia, the negroes of Central and Western Africa and the islands of the Pacific, all contend that while the body returns to dust, the spirit goes to God, Who gave it. The North American Indian believes in duplicate souls, one remaining with the body, the other departing during sleep. It has been claimed by some that Buddhism is an exception, but it is not. The teaching of Buddhism is to annihilate by the destruction of desire. It is not claimed that this is successful, but that the spirit becomes incarnate in one form or another until it rests in Nirvana. The transmigration of souls was taught by the religion of Egypt, hence they embalmed their dead. It is found in Brahmanism, among the Greek philosophers—Pythagoras, Empedocles and Plato. By the Neo-Platonists, Jewish Cabbala, Arab philosophers, by origin and other church fathers. Also by the Gnostics, Manicheans, Druids and in more recent times by Fourier. Christianity believes in eternal life, and that Jesus became flesh, not only to disclose God, but to bring life and immortality to light.

Man is a moral being, because he has a moral nature. He has a moral sentiment, moral ideas and a moral power. The moral sentiment is the sense of right and wrong, which produces a feeling of duty and obligation. Moral ideas consist in the belief that certain acts are right, others wrong. Moral power is the ability to do the right and not the wrong. Feeling, thought and will cannot be eliminated from any moral test. Even the childlike races have some conception of right and wrong, though often very much below the Christian standard; enough, however, to be classed among those who are not without God. But few, if any, have been discovered without enough moral ability to say yes to the right and no to the wrong. It is not denied that the moral standard is different in each system, and that what may be right in one may be wrong in another. The temples of India and China encourage vices which are too low to mention. The underlying principle of Brahmanism is to gratify every desire. The test of Christianity is the type of life it produces. The liberal, consistent, devoted business man, father, brother, son, the position of mother, sister, daughter, the Christian home, school, hospital and the National flag. They are the result of the code of ethics—the Bible. One has only to read any of the standard works on the life of the nations in order to be convinced that Christianity is capable of producing the ideal life. That while every system contains some truth, Christianity is the truth.

The religious world is passing through a great change. To just what we are coming no one is confident, though the indications are that Christianity is destined to encircle the globe.

1. Christianity is the one system that is making civilization. We lament the indifference and anathy on the part of Christians, but it is not to be compared with the lethargy of heathenism.

2. Christianity is destined to spread, because it has the Bible, church, Sabbath, and has produced a type of civilization that satisfies the enlightened mind and renewed heart.

3. All the aggressive systems have the inspiration of an inspired prophet. We have the greatest of them all. Christ is seeking the nations, and they are seeking Him.

4. Christianity not only contains all the truth of all other systems, but much not possessed by others.

Be not anxious about to-morrow. Do to-day's duty, fight to-day's temptation and do not weaken and distrust yourself by looking forward to things which you cannot see and could not understand if you saw them.—Charles Kingsley.

WHY HOT WEATHER MAKES WOMEN NERVOUS

A Well Known Canadian Lady Sends Letter of Endorsement to Pe-ru-na.

Miss Mary Burns, 28 Spring Garden Road, Halifax, N. S., writes: "Having used Peruna for indigestion and stomach trouble and to build up a broken down system with the very best results, I am pleased to state my experience with this excellent medicine. I had been troubled with stomach trouble and poor digestion for some years, and although I tried many remedies and dieting, nothing seemed to restore my health until I used Peruna. In three months I had entirely recovered my health and strength."—Mary Burns.

Suggestions by Dr. Hartman—How to Combat the Nervous Depression Incident to Warm Weather.

Nervousness is very common among women. This condition is due to enervated nerve centers. The nerve centers are the reservoir for nerve vitality. These centers become bloodless for the want of proper nutrition.

This condition is especially noticeable during the warm season. Every summer an army of invalids are produced as a direct result of weak nervous systems.

This could easily be overcome by the use of Peruna. Peruna strikes at the root of the trouble by correcting the digestion. Perfect digestion furnishes increased nutrition for the nerve centers. Perfectly digested food gives these centers of life a vitality which creates strength, steady nerves, and in this manner fortifies and nourishes life.

Miss Blanche Grey, a prominent young society woman of Memphis, Tenn., in a recent letter from 174 Alabama street, writes: "To a society woman whose nervous force is often taxed to the utmost from lack of rest and irregular meals, I know of nothing which is of so much benefit as Peruna. I took it a few months ago when I felt my strength giving way, and it soon made itself manifest in giving me new strength and health."—Miss Blanche Grey.

Pe-ru-na Contains No Narcotics.

One reason why Peruna has found permanent use in so many homes is that it contains no narcotic of any kind. Peruna is perfectly harmless. It can be used any length of time without acquiring a drug habit. Peruna does not produce temporary results. It is permanent in its effect.

It has no bad effect upon the system, and gradually eliminates catarrh by removing the cause of catarrh. There are a multitude of homes where Peruna has been used off and on for twenty years. Such a thing could not be possible if Peruna contained any drugs of a narcotic nature.

At this season of the year we are peculiarly liable to inflammations of the stomach and bowels. It is the part of wisdom to learn how to treat them short and in the easiest and quickest manner. Peruna does this by its peculiar power over all forms of catarrhal troubles.

The authentic history of hymn tunes begins with Hilary of Poitiers, who died in 368. St. Ambrose, the Great, who died in 604, gave hymn making an impetus that made it secure. The chorale was introduced by Luther. The oldest known hymn book was published in 1621 and was called "The Whole Book of Psalms." The hymns of Watts marked the beginning of the popular epoch and those of Wesley its high water mark. It has been estimated that there are now at least 400,000 hymns in all languages, of which the greatest number are in German and the next greatest number are in English.

A REASON FOR SICKNESS.

Healthy kidneys take from the blood every twenty-four hours 500 grains of impure, poisonous matter—more than enough to cause death. Weakened kidneys leaves this waste in the blood, and you are soon sick. To get well, cure the kidneys with Doan's Kidney Pills, the great kidney specific.

Mrs. J. H. Bowles, of 118 Core street, Durham, N. C., says: "I was sick and bedfast for over nine months, and the doctor who attended me said unless I submitted to an operation for gravel I would never be well. I would not consent to that and so continued to suffer. My back was so weak I could not stand or walk, and it ached constantly. The first day after I began using Doan's Kidney Pills I felt relief, and in a short time I was up and around the same as ever, free from backache."

A Rich Gold Strike.

One of the strikes of gold quartz lately made in British Columbia consists of a veritable network of ore. The United States consul at Rossland says that when a sample as large as a cocoanut is broken up the fragments are held together by the network of gold running through the rock. The prospectors who found this vein broke off a piece of rock from a ledge on Poplar creek and the gold held the particles together as in a chain. The ore is very rich, some of it yielding thousands of dollars to the ton.

VARIETIES OF WHEAT.

Best Yielders at the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station.

Wheat varieties being of interest at present, [illegible] of the Kentucky agricultural experiment station is here presented. The [illegible] illustrated were grown thirty-six varieties planted Oct. 11 for the season of 1902. The fourteen best yielders for two years have been Fulcaster, Red, King, Prady, Lancaster Red, Beechwood Hybrid, Indiana Swamp, Dawson's Golden Chaff, Jersey Fultz, Extra Early Oakley, Pearl Prolific, Falcaster, Turkish, Kansas Mortgage Lifter and Hungarian. There are among these eight smooth varieties, and they average for the two years 39.2 bushels, and seven bearded varieties which average for the two years only 36.9 bushels. The farmers of the section of the state around Lexington prefer a smooth wheat to a bearded one, as it is very hard to get hands to harvest the bearded varieties.

Clawson Longberry is beardless, seeds large, soft and white, but a trifle darker than some other white wheats; stem yellow, average number of seeds from a spike, 47; average weight of seeds from one spike, 2.3 grams.

Canadian Hybrid is beardless, seeds of medium size, plump, red, moderately hard; spike compact, stem pale yellow; average number of seeds from a spike, 64; average weight, 2.1 grams; of good appearance, but with the stem rather slight.

The Hungarian wheat produced a very rank growth; average height, about 53 inches, though occasional plants reached a height of 58 inches; strongly bearded; seed large, very dark in color and very hard; number of seeds from a spike, 36.5; average weight of seeds from a spike, 1.55 grams.

Pooting wheat is beardless or bearded; seeds small, soft and red; spike

The straw was very w[illegible] and much of it was thrown down before it was cut; average height when mature, about 50 inches, though often reaching a height of 54 inches. Utilizing the Underflow.

According to statistics published by the Denver chamber of commerce, Colorado advanced during the decade 1889 to 1899 to the front rank of irrigated states, surpassing California in the extent of land under irrigation, but remaining second in the number of irrigators and in the value of irrigated crops.

Water is held in the layers of sand and gravel which have been deposited at various depths beneath the surface of the plains. Investigations indicate that this supply is large and that considerable areas of valuable land located at too great an elevation to be irrigated by gravity diversion of water will ultimately be reclaimed by utilizing the underflow.

BLACK WEED, the great vegetable remedy for Rheumatism, Catarrh, and Kidney and Bladder complaints, has met with almost instantaneous success because it has made some noteworthy cures of very severe cases.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

BLACK WEED is sold by all druggists at $1.00 a bottle, or we will send prepaid upon receipt of price.

If a man had a $50 bull pup he would look after it very carefully an[illegible] not let it run over town at night. But if he has a boy it is different. He is turned loose at a tender age to go to the bad and the people wonder where the great army of bums, tramps, deadbeats, loafers thieves and gamblers come from! They are germinated from the pure seed gathered from the home, sown broadcast on the streets and alleys. The boys ought to be given a show equal to that of a bull pup.—Exchange.

222 South Peoria St.,
CHICAGO, ILL., Oct. 7, 1902.

Eight months ago I was so ill that I was compelled to lie or sit down nearly all the time. My stomach was so weak and upset that I could keep nothing on it and I vomited frequently. I could not urinate without great pain and I coughed so much that my throat and lungs were raw and sore. The doctors pronounced it Bright's disease and others said it was consumption. It mattered little to me what they called it and I had no desire to live. A sister visited me from St. Louis and asked me if I had ever tried Wine of Cardui. I told her I had not and she bought a bottle. I believe that it saved my life. I believe many women could save much suffering if they but knew of its value.

Georgia Dunbar

Don't you want freedom from pain? Take Wine of Cardui and make one supreme effort to be well. You do not need to be a weak, helpless sufferer. You can have a woman's health and do a woman's work in life. Why not secure a bottle of Wine of Cardui from your druggist today?

Triumphs of Modern Surgery

Wonderful things are done for the human body by surgery. Organs are taken out and scraped and polished and put back, or they may be removed entirely, bones are spliced; pipes take the place of diseased sections of veins, antiseptic dressings are applied to wounds, bruises, burns and like injuries before inflamation sets in, which causes them to heal without maturation and in one third the time required by the old treatment. Chamberlain's Pain Balm acts on this same principle. It is an antiseptic and when applied to such injuries, causes them to heal very quickly. It also allays the pain and soreness. Keep a bottle of Pain Balm in your home and it will save you time and money, not to mention the inconvenience and suffering which such injuries entail. For sale by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

"A doctor here has sued me for $12.50, which I claimed was excessive for a case of cholera morbus," says R. White, of Coaling, Ala. "At the trial he praised his medical skill and medicine. I asked him if it was not Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy that I used, as I had good reason to believe it was, and he would not make oath that it was not." No doctor could use a better remedy than this in a case of cholera morbus, as it never fails. Sold by Upchurch Drug Co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Health is good in this community now.

I hope that the Energy community has got plenty of rain by this time, because we get so much rain; we get a nice rain every day. I think we will get a season yet after while.

I notice that the Energy writer wants me to write on something besides Irish potatoes. I do not know what it would be unless it is fun and foolishness or politics. I do not know very much about them, we have plenty of all kinds of ticks except politics and if they are as bad as the ones we have, we do not need any of them. I guess you don't like to eat Irish potatoes. I don't like to eat them, but I like very well to raise them, and I like very much to receive the money when they are saked and sold. So I will close by thanking the Editor for kindness in publishing this letter.

Yours as ever,

M. E. CULP.

Harmontown, Miss., July 4, 1904

Editor Banner—I enclose $2.00 for the payment on Banner and renewal, please receipt me and let me know how I stand. I like the paper so much, it gives me so much news from my old home. I am so glad to see my county going into the Democratic party, but am sorry to see some going to the Republican party. We had so much trouble in this State about 1874-75, negroes holding office under the Republican rule. It looks to me like no white man South would be a Republican and mix with the negroes.

Yours truly,

M. E. CHILDRESS.

Kincheon, July 5, 1904

Editor Banner: Please allow me space to say a few words in regard to politics. I would like for X Ray or M. A. Killgore to tell why a man that was in the Populist party hasn't got as much right to go to the Democratic party and still be a gentleman as a man that quit the Populist and went to the Republican party has. They seem to think the Democrats are the lowdownest fellows on earth. Now I think that X Ray is getting pretty low when he stoops to such dirty words as he did in last week's Union, the very idea of a man that has set himself up before the people for an office, claiming to be worthy of the support of his fellowman and then stoop to such words as he did. I say Mr. Editor, no gentleman will do such a thing, just because a little Sunday school boy had a few words to say about him and Lewis. Now, if they don't know it, I will tell them, the Democrats are going to win this time. Now a word to that fellow from Coopers that wanted to air his views in last week's Union. Do you feel better since you have aired a little? I guess you do for it would do all of you Republicans a great deal of good to air yourselves a little, for you are getting mixed up with the negro a little to close to smell good. He also complained that the Banner never publishes any names of Populists that visit Clanton. Say, old boy, have you just waked up? The Populist party has been dead so long that we have almost forgot that it ever existed. Now Moses said that the Sunday School Boy and Lige would get such a fall that they never could be resurected, say Moses, what kind of fall did you take when you fell from the sheriff's office, wasn't there some kind of a deal that you never have fully explained, or was it incompetency, if so do you think that the people will vote for you again?

Mr. Wm. Oleson of Dakota is spending his vacation with his mother and sisters here.

Mr. Fosdict is ably filling Mr. Franzen's place in the store, during the absence of the proprietor in New Mexico.

One of the arrivals last week was a new son at Dr. Stabler's home.

Dr. Nix of Texas has come to live in Thorsby.

Last week it was "pick fruit," this week "pic nic."

It is a good sight—the refrigerator cars taking Thorsby's fruit—especially as the people here feel confidence in the commission men, Newhall & Sons, of Chicago, and their agents, Messrs. Bigelow and Gore, now sojourning in Thorsby.

Mr. J. J. Warnick returned to his former home to attend the funeral of his neice.

Miss Blanche Carr's funeral took place from her home, July 1, Rev. L. Windsor conducting the services.

Rev. Crenshaw was a visitor at the dormitory last week in the interest of the college.

Rev. Davis preached morning and evening at college hall, giving, as usual, good material for thought.

Dr. Junkerman and Glover Collins took in the all day singing at Pleasant Grove.

Collins Chapel got a thorough wetting Sunday evening, but that didn't keep our young men from their usual Sunday trip.

Thorsby folks had to celebrate the Fourth with their neighbors this year. "All work and no play, etc." Surely people have a right to a good time in moderation.

Editor Banner—Please allow me space in your dear old paper to tell a little about our part of the country. We are having plenty of rain in this section now, but crops are badly damaged by the long drouth.

Little Esther Vickers is on the sick list, but we hope she is improving.

Misses Eugenia and Olive Foshee have returned home from a week's stay with relatives in Clanton.

Miss Carrie Littlejohn of Clanton visited relatives in this section last week. We had a fine game of ball at the new Liberty diamond last Saturday evening, the Red Rippers from Highland being the first to play a match game at the new diamond, the score being 19 to 20 in favor of the Red Rippers.

There is going to be an all day singing at this place next Sunday. Everybody is invited to come and bring your books and baskets.

Messrs. Will, Charlie and Lewis Reynolds were pleasant visitors here Sunday.

The all day singing was enjoyed by all Sunday. The singing was led by Profs. R. D. Durham, J. C. Veazey, James Franklin and Charlie Langston. Miss Lizzie Lowery presided at the organ. I am sure Prof. Durham and Miss Lizzie are among the finest of teachers.

Messrs. Champion and Joe Headley visited Lomax Sunday evening and report a nice time.

DELEGATES KILLED.

Chicago Limited Runs into an Open Switch—Twenty Killed.

The Chicago Limited on the Wabash railroad was wrecked Sunday night at Litchfield, Ill. The train struck an open switch and was overturned and seven of the nine cars were burned.

Twenty persons were burned in the second and third coaches and some forty were inured.

Among the dead are Joseph Barder, delegate from North Dakota, and I. R. Mills, internal revenue collector at Decatur, Ill.

The engine after running into the switch struck a string of freight cars and with the first three coaches was piled in a heap across the track and caught fire at once.

The track was reported clear at the last station, and as the train was running about fifty miles an hour the open switch was not noticed. No information can be obtained as to who is responsible for the accident.

Three of the injured have since died.

"Some one turned that switch at Litchfield," said President Ramsey, of the Wabash, in speaking of the derailment of the train. "Whether it was one who had a spite against the railroad, or who was merely crazy, I do not know. Certainly it seems that no human spite against the road could be so bitter as to be willing to sacrifice the lives that were lost or to cause the suffering that has resulted."

LOSS $10,000.

Alexander City Has Another Big Fire.

Saturday night about 10 o'clock fire broke out in the dry goods store of George W. Sealey, at Alexander City, and for a while it seemed that the whole block, including eight stores, was doomed, but the fire was held within the building in which it originated. The fire totally consumed the large Pearson building, including the Truett saloon. Three attorney's offices and liveries and the Kennedy shoe shop on the second floor were totally destroyed. The Adams building, on the east and north of the building destroyed, was considerably damaged. Many stocks of goods in the fire vicinity have been badly damaged on account of removal. Those involved in the fire are as follows:

H. W. Pearson, building loss, $4,000, insurance said to be $3,000. Truett saloon, nearly a total loss, covered by insurance. George W. Sealey, total loss, covered by insurance. Mamie Whatley, millinery, loss about $500, insurance $300. Damage to the G. B. Adams store building adjoining, amounting like $1,000, covered by insurance. City Grocery Company, T. B. Turner, tinner and hardware; C. C. Adams, Jr., Adams & Lightfoot, all had bad removal losses, all covered by insurance. The total loss to property will aggregate about $10,000, with something like $7,000 insurance.

BRYAN'S ANSWER

Deemed to be an Insult—A Dramatic Scene.

Constant reports to the effect that Bryan would bolt the nominee of the convention led several delegates to go to Mr. Bryan and see him personally. Mr. Bryan was asked the direct question by Colonel Holt, of North Carolina:

"Will you support the nominee?"

Mr. Bryan placed his hand upon his heart and replied:

"I do not ask any person or party how I shall vote. This is responsible only."

Colonel Holt said:

"Mr. Bryan, I supported you; will you support the nominee?"

Mr. Bryan responded:

"Would you support Roosevelt?"

Quick as a flash Colonel Holt said:

"Mr. Bryan, I consider that an insult and I apologize to the democrats of North Carolina for having cast my vote for you."

MISSISSIPPI BANKS

Statement of Their Condition Loans and Discounts Deposits

COMBINED CAPITAL IS $7,668,078

One Hundred and Eighty-three Banks Doing Business in the State and All Prospering.

The recapitulation of the financial statements of the state banks doing business in Mississippi on May 27th, as prepared by State Auditor Henry, shows that there are 183 banks in operation in the state as compared with the 149 reported on the 31st of last December. This report does not include the few new banks which have been lately organized, but have not yet started in business.

The 183 banks now in business show total resources to the amount of $41,513,273.07 as compared with $46,427,977.62, shown by the 149 banks on the 31st of December. Loans and discounts increased from $21,708,618.85 to $26,485,989.57 on May 27th. The aggregate capital now reported is $7,668,078.06, as compared with $6,998,614.27 for the 149 banks of December 31st, an increase of about one million dollars.

There is a decrease of about seven million dollars in deposits, those of December 31st being $32,087,042.82, while on May 27th they were $25,608,641.39.

Loans to the amount of nearly one million dollars in excess of the individual deposits are being carried by the banks, but they have for a safety barrier about two million dollars of deposit in time certificates.

CAPTAIN E. A. GRAHAM,

Ex-Mayor of Montgomery, Died Last Friday.

Captain Edward A. Graham, former mayor and one of the most prominent citizens of Montgomery, died Friday morning. His death was not unexpected. He had been steadily failing in health for the past six months and his friends were prepared for the announcement of the end.

His last public appearance was in the state democratic convention May 25th, when, although a sick man, he was on the floor as a member of the Montgomery county delegation.

Captain Graham was the son of Malcolm D. Graham, a member of the confederate congress from Texas and attorney general of the state. Captain Graham served as clerk of the circuit, was a member of the Alabama house of representatives for two terms, state senator for one term, mayor of Montgomery, city recorder and as a member of the constitutional convention. He commanded the Montgomery Greys when that command achieved a national reputation as a prize winning company. He was one of the most prominent Knights of Pythias of Alabama.

July Weather.

The following data covering a period of eight years has been compiled from the weather bureau records at Birmingham:

Temperature for month of July for eight years: Mean or normal temperature, 81 degrees.

The warmest month was that of 1902, with an average of 84 degrees; the coldest that of 1900, of 80.

The highest temperature was 104 degrees, on the 12th, 1901. The lowest was 59 degrees on the 14th, 1897.

Average rain for the month, 5.68 inches. The greatest monthly precipitation was 7.88 inches in 1900. The least was 2.21 inches in 1902.

The prevailing winds have been from the west.

Arranged.

Final details in the payment of the $40,000,000 to the Panama Canal Company by this government are completed. J. P. Morgan & Co. received from the sub-treasury the $25,000,000 of bonds which they deposited with the treasury officials while payment for the canal properties was pending.

Bicyclist Injured.

In the three-cornered twenty-mile motor paced race between Bobby Walthour, of Atlanta; Bennie Monroe, of Memphis, and Deguichard, of Paris, France, Walthour was "pocketed" by the other two riders in the fourth mile and while going at a terrific speed was thrown against the railing. His body struck two supporting pin posts, three by six inches, with such force that the pins were snapped in the center and the champion rider was left hanging insensible on the railing, his feet dangling over the track.

Two ribs one arm and a collar bone are broken. It is thought he is injured internally.

Lad Hangs Himself.

A thirteen-year-old lad, Alexander Johnson, has hanged himself in New York, because his sister compelled him to retire early. Johnson had just graduated from the grammar school. He objected strongly to being ordered to bed, and finally went and was found hanging to a bed post.

The thirty-first chautauqua opened Thursday.

"DIXIE'S" AUTHOR

Laid to Rest in Ohio with Full Elk Honors.

Friday afternoon at Mount Vernon, Ohio, the funeral of Dan Emmett, the composer of "Dixie," was held under the auspices of the local Elk lodge. Mr. Emmett was not a member of the Elks, but a special dispensation was granted by District Deputy J. L. Murray, of Cleveland, giving authority to the local lodge to conduct the funeral. Scores of well known theatrical men were present, including Al. G. Fields, who acted in the capacity of marshal at the funeral.

The band rendered "Dixie" while the body lay in state at the residence and "Dixie" was also played as the body was consigned to the tomb.

LATE WAR NEWS.

Colonel Novitsky, a member of the Russian general staff, expressed the belief that a decisive battle at present would prove disastrous, as a strategic combination of Russian forces could not be affected. Delay, he says, is the only alternative for the Russians. The czar's forces should retire to the north until the rainy season is over.

The Japanese have a hundred and eighty thousand troops in the field exclusive of the fourth division which has not yet landed.

General Kuropatkin has asked for two hundred and fifty thousand more soldiers. The application was refused owing to the burden already on the country and the internal condition of affairs. He was informed that he would be given such troops as could be raised, but no number was stated.

A message from Chee Foo reports that the Japanese are now encamped eight miles from Port Arthur's forts. The rival forces are visible to each other.

A Russian torpedo boat destroyer arrived from Port Arthur at New Chwang Thursday.

General Kuroki, having forced Motieng Ling Pass, is now advancing toward Liao Yang. Should he reach here he will have cut off the retreat of General Kuropatkin, who is at Haichong.

The question of intermediation between Russia and Japan in behalf of peace continues to be discussed in diplomatic circles. Conditions could be framed easily since Japan does not seek territorial acquisition in Manchuria, but only wants the preservation of her commercial interests and a certin influence in Korea.

A dispatch from Mukden gives what is purported to be the details of a fight outside of Port Arthur Sunday last. The dispatch states that fighting occurred between Dalny and Port Arthur. The battle opened with a bombardment by the Japanese fleet, which was followed by a land attack on the heights near by, which was held by the Russians. The Japanese finally turned the Russian left and the czar's forces retreated. The losses by the Russians were seven officers and nearly 200 men killed. The Japanese losses were heavier, as the Russians exploded a mine under them.

On June 24th it is said the Japanese landed an independent division of 10,000 men at their naval base on the Elliott islands. This division is to be used, it is said, either to assist Gen. Nogi at Port Arthur or General Oku in clearing the railroad.

From an authoritative source it is learned that the Japanese now have 180,000 men in the field.

No rain is reported from Alabama and the central and western districts of the cotton belt; rain fell in eastern sections, however, from Georgia and Florida northward throughout all the Atlantic states, Ohio valley and lake region. In the west there were scatteered showers in western and northern Texas, Kansas and Minnesota.

Secretary Hay and Minister Quesada exchanged ratifications of the permanent treaty between America and Cuba embodying the Platt amendment.

It is reported that M. Waldeck Rousseau, former French premier, attempted to commit suicide. His wife, however, arrived in time to prevent his doing himself harm.

The resignation of Charles M. Schwab, former president of the United States Steel corporation, as a director of the corporation is announced.

Advices indicate that heavy rainfall in sections of the southwest has proved a detriment to general business. This, however, will more than be compensated for through benefit to the crops. Although jobbing interests still complain of slow trade, results already achieved are better than a year ago with promise of increased July volume.

A Cuban negro has confessed that he was the perpetrator of the bomb explosion recently on the Cuban Eastern railroad at Guantanamo, and James Stuart, a Jamaican, who had been arrested on suspicion of having caused the explosion, has been released.

Lieutenant Colonel D. D. Ewing, assistant inspector general under Major General Keesler, has been detailed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Major S. W. Hoskins, commander of the First battalion of the Third Mississippi regiment.

At Knoxville, Tenn., in the Southern Railway shops 100 men were reinstated in the coach shop. They were recently "laid off." Considerable coach repair work is being done now for various divisions of the system.

DEKALB THE CENTER

The Negro Population of the Country Turns on DeKalb County as its Hub

THE RACE NUMBERS 8,840,789

A Few Statistics Concerning Them. Death Rate and Illiteracy.—DeKalb County History.

The census bureau issued the final bulletin on the negro population of the United States, which shows a total of 8,840,789. The report indicates that between 11 and 16 per cent of the negro population has or is believed by the enumerators to have some degree of white blood.

The center of the negro population is in DeKalb county, Alabama, about four miles from the western boundary of Georgia, having moved thence from Dinwiddie county, Virginia, where 76 miles northeast, since 1790, more than 77 per cent of the negroes lived in the county against more than 57 per cent of the whites.

Almost 90 per cent of the negroes in the continental United States are in the southern states and three-tenths of them are in Georgia, Mississippi and Alabama.

Negroes constitute about one-fifteenth of the city population and about one-seventh of the country population of continental United States. There was an increase among the negroes of 1,345,318, or 18 per cent in continental United States, but the rate of increase declined steadily through the nineteenth century.

The negroes, unlike the Indians and the native white, have a slight excess of females. Illiteracy among them is about seven times greater than the whites. There are 3,992,337 negroes in the United States engaged in gainful occupations. Their death rate approximates 30 per cent while that of the whites under the same calculation is 18 per cent.

The county of DeKalb is one of the strong white counties of the state. It has a registered voting population of 4,500, which classes it about sixth in political strength. It is one of the older counties, having been carved out of the last Cherokee section from the district attached to St. Clair by an act dated January 9, 1836. It was named in honor of Major General DeKalb, of the colonial rebellion of 1776.

Baron DeKalb was a native of the German province of Alsace, which at that time belonged to France. He served with credit under Frederick the Great, by whom he was knighted, and afterwards entered the French army. He introduced the Marquis de la Fayette to the American commissioners, and resigned the position of brigadier general to accompany La-Fayette to the colonies in 1777. He was made a major general and served in New Jersey until ordered south in 1780. He was mortally wounded at the battle of Camden August 16, 1780.

The district in which the proportion of negroes is greatest lies in the Mississippi alluvial region along both banks of the lower Mississippi, where five-eighths of the population is negroes, the maximum in Lasquena county, Mississippi, being more than fifteen negroes to each white person. Negroes are a third of the population in the south, both in cities and in country districts, while in the north they are about one-fortieth in the city and a ninetieth of the population of country districts.

Half the negroes in the United States are below nineteen years of age, this medium age being four years below the whites.

Must Serve Sentence.

The supreme court has affirmed the decision of the lower court of Jefferson county in the case of Glenn Havis, who was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to twelve and one-half years. He was convicted of killing Elias Lathem in the Morris hotel April 17, 1903.

VANDALS

Continue Their Miserable Work at St. Louis.

An attempt has been made to wreck the great organ, the largest in the world, in festival hall at the world's fair, by cutting the secondary bellows. This will not affect the working of the organ, which can be operated with the primary bellows.

As a result of this attempt at vandalism, the company that is building the organ, which is only partly finished, will hereafter exclude from the stage all except those employed in the construction of the instrument.

Air Ship Injured by Vandals.

Some time during Monday night the gas bag of Santos Dumont's air ship was cut and slashed in such a manner as to preclude all possibility of its being repaired to allow an ascension on July 4th.

The work was apparently done with a jack knife. There are twenty long rips in the bag, and Professor Meyers, who has charge of the aeronautic contests, declares that it will take at least two weeks to repair the damage.

NO AGREEMENT

And Work Has Stopped in Alabama Coal Mines.

A general suspension of work began Friday morning at the coal mines in Alabama employing United Mine Workers except about seventeen commercial coal operators' mines, and it is estimated that more than 7,500 miners are now idle awaiting the making of a new wage contract.

All of the coal mines of the furnace companies are now idle and a dozen or more commercial coal mines.

Mines in Walker county and those employing convict labor are not disturbed.

At the convention of the miners held in the morning the scale committee reported that no agreement had been made with the committee of the furnace operators on a scale and that the meetings of the joint committee would be continued on Tuesday next. The miners' convention then decided to leave the matter in the hands of the district executive board, the suspension of work to continue until such time as a wage scale was made.

ARRESTED THE SENATE.

General Ortas Broke into the Treasury to Pay His Soldiers.

Advices from Cartegena, Colombia, confirm the recent news that Governor Escobar had all the members of the state assembly arrested. The assemblymen recently expressed themselves in strong language against the administration and the secretary of public instruction, has been repeatedly insulted.

A great deal of ammunition has disappeared from Cartegena and gatling guns and field pieces have been stolen. Rumors are current that another revolution may break out at any moment.

General Daniel Ortas recently surrounded the state treasury in Cartegena and broke open the safe to obtain money for the soldiers who had not been paid for a long time.

It is now generally admitted that General Reyes has been elected president of Colombia but there is no official confirmation.

CHANGED HANDS.

Anniston Plant of the Southern Car and Foundry Company Sold.

The entire Anniston plant of the Southern Car and Foundry Company is now the property of the Illinois Car and Equipment Company.

This information was given out by Joseph J. Willett, attorney for the Illinois Car and Equipment Company. The question which has been involved since the Southern Car and Foundry Company went into bankruptcy was the ownership of the new machinery installed by this company since its lease of the plant on June 1, 1903. The deal virtually places the property on the market. This is one of the largest and most complete car building plants in the south. Captain James M. Elliott made a deal for the property some time ago and the trade may now be consummated.

FREEDMEN'S COLLEGE.

Work Will Begin in August. First Building Will Cost $25,000.

Ground will be broken on the first building of the college for negroes to be erected by the Freedmen's Aid and Southern Educational society in August. The first building to be begun will cost $25,000.

The institution will be located, it was decided by the executive board last year, at Mason, a small station on the Louisville & Nashville railroad. It was done in response to a donation of a plot of land by the Red Mountain Improvement company and about $5,000 in cash raised by the colored people of Birmingham and vicinity. The college will be made a parallel of that one which is thriving in Atlanta, and it is the intention of the society to spend as much money on it or probably $400,000.

Cars are now running between Florence, Tuscumbia and Sheffield. There was jollification there Friday over the consummation of the work. Representative Richardson spoke. Senator Morgan, who was to speak, was forbidden by his physician to leave Bailey Springs, where he is staying, and his speech was read by Captain R. T. Simpson.

COL. J. H. BRIGHAM,

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, is Dead.

News has been received of the death at Delta, O., of Colonel Joseph H. Brigham, assistant secretary of agriculture.

Colonel Brigham was chairman of the government board at the St. Louis exposition.

For many years he had been prominent in Ohio politics, and has occupied his present position since the first administration of President McKinley.

Summer School Open.

At Knoxville, Tenn., the third annual summer school for the south opened Tuesday morning and will continue through August. The aggregate attendance is expected to reach 1,500 to 2,000, representing teachers and those interested in education from all parts of the south.

The school is the outcome of the work of the general education board of the south, headed by Robert C. Ogden.

Railway building in the United States during the first six months of 1904 shows a falling off in comparison with the corresponding periods of 1902 and 1903. Increased operating expenses and decreased traffic, resulting in small net earnings, together with the continued stringency in the money market, supply the explanation for the decline in construction.

The official reports received it appears that 1,937 miles of track were completed during the first six months of the year on 134 lines in 29 states and territories. In the first six months of last year 2,221 miles of track were completed while for the entire year of 1903 there were completed 5,756 miles.

Two Pullman car loads of Alabama editors and their mothers, wives, sisters and daughters left Birmingham Monday over the Frisco system for the World's fair at St. Louis.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Two White Men Jailed on a Charge of Killing a Negro.

Will Adams, fireman, and Walter Baker, engineer, on the Frisco System are in jail on the charge of murder in connection with the shooting and killing of Jack Taylor, a negro, in Birmingham. Ed Bennett, a negro, is also in a charge of assault with intent to murder on these two white men.

Cutting Affray.

Jesse Baker and Ollie Walker, two negro workmen at the Ensley steel works, became engaged in a difficulty which resulted in Walker fatally slashing Baker with a knife. Walker has not been arrested. He is the son of Chief of Police Walker, of Wylam. Mr. Baker is a married man.

In the first six months of last year 2,221 miles of track were laid, while for the entire year of 1903 there were added to 5,786 miles.

No More Convict Labor.

In Illinois the law abolishing convict labor passed by the last session of the state legislature became effective Thursday. Under its provisions convict labor is abolished entirely. Neither the convicts will be employed in the manufacture of articles for the state. The measure furthermore provides that the convicts shall not be employed more than eight hours a day.

A FIRE IN CRONSTADT

Destroyed the Russian Torpedo Works.

There was a fire in the arsenal at Cronstadt Wednesday night. The damage was confined to the torpedo mechanism shops, which were almost wholly destroyed, together with twenty Whitehead torpedoes. Five of the torpedoes had war heads attached and they exploded, which added to the fire and the excitement. A considerable quantity of oil stored in the works was also burned. An alarm was given in time to prevent loss of life and more serious loss of property.

The authorities do not attach serious importance to the accident and say that the works will soon be able to resume full time.

CHASED HIM THIRTEEN YEARS.

Been Around the World and Changed His Name, but Now in Jail.

Pursued by government officers for thirteen years, during which time he visited England, France and Africa, and returning to the United States and locating in Indian Territory, Henry Rodgers, alias Frank Thomas, is behind jail bars in Mobile, charged with numerous indictments.

On May 23, 1891, Rodgers held up Reuben S. McCreary, a mail carrier on a star route between Evergreen and Turnbull, Ala., rifled the mail pouch, threw the mail matter into a creek and robbed the carrier of money and a gold watch.

After his return from abroad Rodgers, under the name of Thomas, located in Indian Territory, where he was arrested, tried and convicted on the charge of selling liquor without a license. He was sentenced to serve two years in the federal penitentiary at Atlanta. It is said he made a confession while in prison, and at the expiration of his term a requisition for his return to Alabama was honored by the governor of Georgia.

Died From Injuries.

Mr. John Brown, an engineer on the Southern railway, is dead at Columbus, Miss., his death being caused from injuries while in the discharge of duty. He was in a severe wreck at Pheba, Miss., about a month ago and gradually became worse from his injuries each day since he was hurt.

Big Fire in Texas.

A special from Jefferson, Texas, says: A fire broke out in the Torrans Manufacturing company and two big mercantile establishments and six warehouses were totally destroyed, with an aggregate loss of $100,000 to $150,000, about half insured.

War on Vagrants.

Huntsville authorities have decided to begin a war on vagrants who infest the city. Every vagrant will be arrested and required to prove his means of livelihood, and if it is not satisfactory he will be sentenced to a term at hard labor.

Attorneys for Charles Pircher, who was recently sentenced by Judge Toulmin in the United States court to pay a fine of $300 and serve a term of three years in the federal prison at Atlanta, having been found guilty of forgery of mal route contracts, have taken an appeal. Pircher is now out on a bond of $2,000.

The south became last week the brightest spot in the whole country so far as sustained trade and general consumption is concerned. Texas reports a heavy business in retail buying at a period which is usually regarded as the dullest of the year.

Great Britain has successfully brought pressure to bear on the porte for the relief of the persecuted Armenians. According to statements in a letter written by Foreign Secretary Lansdowne to the Anglo-American Association.

Pittsburg for the first time in many weeks is becoming hopeful over the steel outlook.

Died from His Injuries.

Michael Golden, foreman in charge of some railroad work being done at Piper, was fatally injured by an explosion of dynamite. The head of the deceased was badly bruised by the force of the explosion, and it was almost impossible to recognize the body. Golden was a very popular man.

NEGRO SHOT FROM AMBUSH

And Riddled Tom Higginbotham, White, at Patton Junction.

Tom Higginbotham, white, was shot from ambush at Patton junction by Dellar Black, a negro.

Higginbotham was driving in his buggy when the negro fired with a double barreled shotgun filled with buckshot, striking him in the chin and body. He fired the other barrel at his back, completely riddling him. The shooting is the outcome of some trouble the men had Sunday. Both are miners. Black was arrested soon after the shooting. Higginbotham will recover.

Mail Agreement.

Postmaster General Payne and Mr. Takahira, the Japanese minister, have signed a parcels post agreement between the United States and Japan. The agreement will take effect August 12th. The treaty allows a maximum limit of weight of four pounds six ounces in the mails between the two countries. The rate fixed is 12 cents a pound or fraction thereof.

JAPANESE SINK TWO

Russians Lose a Cruiser and a Torpedo Boat. Disease Attacks Both Armies.

RAIN STOPS FIGHTING.

Japanese are Withdrawing—France Will Allow Coaling. Peace.

A belated report from Admiral Togo records a desperate and successful torpedo attack at the entrance of Port Arthur June 27th, in which a Russian guardship and a Russian torpedo boat destroyer were sunk.

Admiral Togo reports the loss of one officer and thirteen men killed, and one officer and two men wounded. He makes no mention of damage to his fleet.

The twelfth torpedo boat flotilla, under the command of Commander Yamada, delivered the attack. The Japanese vessels were revealed by the Russian searchlights and the shore forts opened a heavy fusillade on them. The Russian guardship was surrounded and attacked by the Japanese, who saw this vessel sink. Following this the Russian torpedo boat destroyers attacked the Japanese vessels, which responded to the onslaught. A Russian destroyer, while within the area lit up by the searchlights, was seen to explode, rise, fall back into the water sideways and sink.

It has been announced officially that Vice Admiral Kamimura met the Russian Vladivostock squadron Friday night, about sixty miles north of Nagasaki. The Russian squadron consisted of three cruisers only, the torpedo boat flotilla evidently having returned to Vladivostock after the bombardment of June 30th. Vice Admiral Kamimura was in superior force. He opened fire and the Russians replied, but at the same time they fled to the northeast with the Japanese in pursuit.

The Vladivostock squadron eluded Vice Admiral Kamimura's squadron in the darkness. A drizzling rain and fog favored the Russian vessels.

Land operations in Manchuria are believed to have been practically adjourned for six weeks until the rains shall be over. Telegrams from Liao Yang agree that the Japanese are withdrawing from their positions, the capture of which entailed the cost of so much blood and ammunition. The same telegrams show that the Russians are promptly taking advantage of the withdrawal of the Japanese and are assuming the offensive, inflicting considerable losses on the Japanese.

A war correspondent from Mukden expresses the opinion that with the rainy season at hand the Japanese have lost their opportunity of dealing General Kuropatkin a crushing blow. He says that neither the world in general nor the Japanese knew how weak the Russian army was in the earlier stage of the war, and asserts that practically the Russian army was nonexistent, but when he left June 18th Kuropatkin had 125,000 men and reinforcements were pouring in at the rate of 2,000 a day.

The Japanese legation received the following dispatch from Tokio:

"On the 15th of June a petty officer and other soldiers, six in all, belonging to the Eighteenth infantry regiment, encountered while scouting about fifteen Russian troops at Cheng Tsu Shan and were killed after a hand to hand fight. On the death of these men the Russians thrust their bayonets into their mouths and cut open their lungs and took away the contents of their pockets."

The reports that France will permit the Russian Baltic fleet to take in coal at French ports along the route to the for east are officially verified.

The Russian losses in killed or wounded so far number 8,000. Many more have been in hospitals, but no epidemics have yet been reported.

The Tokio correspondent of the Reuter Telegraph Company wires that it is rumored there that Russia, through France as an intermediary, has offered the surrender of Port Arthur with ships and arms to Japan, provided the garrison is allowed to go free. The report is not confirmed.

Military experts believe that the center of gravity again has shifted to Port Arthur, where siege operations are expected to engage most of the attention of the Japanese until the conclusion of the rainy season permits the resumption of the campaign in southern Manchuria.

Ominous reports come in from various parts of the country indicating the prevalence of charbon. So far as this dread disease has been reported this season its attacks have been concentrated chiefly upon horned cattle.

It was officially determined by the navy department that the battleship Orgeon was entitled to the trophy for excellence in gunnery in the last annual target practice.

Mississippi has just shipped sixty Jersey cattle to the Philippines.

DOES NOT WANT THE ANTS.

Texas Planter Seeks Injunction to Prevent Introduction into the State.

Robert Clark, a prominent planter of Cahoun county, Texas, states that he will apply for an injunction to prevent the government experts bringing the Guatemalan ant into Texas as insect enemy of the boll weevil. It was stated recently that Government Entomologist Cook is now en route with a large number of the ants, the first lot of which are to be taken to Victoria, in which county Mr. Clark has interests and which adjoins Cahoun county, where his plantation is located.

Mr. Clark asked as to the basis for his application, said:

"To my mind it is a serious and dangerous matter to transplant a South American insect or pest to south Texas, because they will multiply very rapidly here.

"One-half the cotton is picked by negroes who do not wear enough clothes to make a whole shirt, and the other half by barefooted children. This ant to be of avail in destroying the weevil must cover the entire field, and any one who has had a few of the native ants sting him will realize that it will be impossible to get the cotton picked."

SHIPBUILDING TRUST.

Decree Rendered Ordering Sale of Its Properties.

Judge Lanning signed a final decree in the United States circuit court ordering a sale of the United States Shipbuilding company in the foreclosure proceedings instituted by the Mercantile Trust Company and the New York Security and Trust company on the two mortgages held by them for $15,000,000 and $10,000,000, respectively. In this decree Judge Lanning also fixed the minimum amount which the receiver is authorized to accept for the properties of the underlying companies in the trust.

The shipbuilding company is ordered by the decree to turn over the total amount due on the two mortgages within ten days, in default of which the receiver is authorized to advertise and proceed with the sale.

FIRE IN MEMPHIS.

Destroys $30,000 Worth of Property in the Wholesale District.

Fire of unknown origin in the wholesale district caused a loss estimated at $30,000.

Pease & Dwyer, grain dealers, $15,000; J. F. Frank & Co., wholesale groceries, $2,000; Charles Barboro, saloon, $5,000; Sighexter & Co., brokers, $3,000.

Twelve or fifteen offices of cotton factors and others sustain damage. The losses are covered by insurance.

Frank Harvey, a fireman, fell through the elevator shaft in Pease & Dwyer's building and was probably fatally injured.

Senor DeLome Dead.

Senor Dupuy DeLome, who was Spanish minister at Washington prior to the outbreak of the war between the United States and Spain, died at Paris Friday of cerebral hemorrhage. The ambassador had been suffering for some time, but there was no apprehension.

Minister DeLome's career in the United States was marked by one of the most sensational incidents in the history of American diplomacy. This was the famous DeLome letter episode of February, 1898, in the heat of the Cuban excitement and barely two months before the outbreak of the Spanish war. The letter was a personal one to Senor Don Jose Canalejos, containing very deprecatory utterances about President McKinley.

Hanna's Heirs Must Pay Tax.

According to a ruling the estate of the late Senator Hanna will be compelled to pay the state tax of about $60,000. This is under the direct inheritance law passed by the legislature last winter, the auditor ruling that all estates not yet settled are liable for the tax, no matter if the person died before the law was enacted.

Exports Increased.

Statistics of the treasury department show that exports of manufactures for the fiscal year ending June 30 (with June estimated) approximate $450,000,000 and an increase of about $40,000,000 over the last preceding year, and the largest on record. The volume of our foreign commerce for the year just closed will reach the enormous total of $2,485,000,000, nearly $50,000,000 more than the year before. Imports are rather less, while exports are considerably larger.

Accounts Correct.

Assistant Examiner of Public Accounts W. F. Wilkinson reported to the governor that he had examined and found correct in every particular the books of Treasurer E. T. Glenn, of the Alabama Polytechnic Institute at Auburn. The examination covered a period of one year, during which time the treasurer handled $93,925.80, having at the time the report was made a balance of over fifteen hundred dollars.

GLORIOUS FOURTH

Numerous Fatal Accidents and Serious Injuries Reported from Every Section.

A STORE FULL OF FIREWORKS

Caused Panic in Massachusetts—One Badly Injured—Report from Indiana—Birmingham Escaped.

Accidentally stepping on a large toy torpedo, a clerk in a Worcester, Mass., store started a fire which caused the explosion of $700 worth of fireworks and cut off forty customers and clerks who were in the store from the only exit. Women and children were injured and suffocated from smoke and were rescued from the cellar where they had fled to avoid the flames. Manuel Oviminian was caught under a freight elevator as it was descending with twenty-five women and was probably fatally hurt. Twenty-five women and children received minor injuries. One little boy who had been locked up in a room directly under where the fire started on the charge of stealing candy in the store was rescued by the firemen.

Louisville, Ky., dealers in explosives were warned by the board of safety not to sell fireworks.

R. Lee Suter, a member of the board of public safety, an attorney and for several years an important figure in democratic politics, was shot and killed by Sanford Vaughn, Jr., the son of a wealthy contractor. Vaughn, who admits that he fired the shot, says he was celebrating the Fourth.

Suter was asleep on a cot and the bullet passed through his breast, severing an artery and producing a wound similar to that received by William Goebel. Vaughn was driving, and according to the statements of three young men with him, was shooting from side to side, one of the bullets finding its way to the river bank where Suter's tent was pitched. Vaughn was arrested.

A sail boat containing seven pleasure seekers was capsized in Muskegon, Mich., lake and four of the occupants were drowned in view of the hundreds of spectators.

No Fourth of July casualties are reported from Alabama.

In Indiana one fatality and 87 injured is the total of the celebration accidents. At Elkhart a 10-year-old boy was killed and a number of companions severely injured by an explosion of dynamite caused by concussion of exploding fireworks.

At Great Falls, Mont., Margaret Fink is dying of a wound inflicted during a Fourth of July celebration by Arthur Gies, 40 years of age, who discharged a shotgun in the girl's face, blowing off part of her head.

William H. Jones and Miss Myrtle Harper, while bathing in the Oconee river a few miles below Oconee Springs, Ga., were drowned.

Cloudburst in Utah.

A cloudburst leading into the Wasatch range from the bench lands northwest of Salt Lake City sent a wall of water six to ten feet high down Dry Creek canyon causing much damage. A fan-shaped cloud swept over the northeast portion of the city with a roar that could be heard several miles. Streets were converted into rivers.

Trees, sidewalks and streets were torn up. Several costly residences were damaged and only saved from destruction by their high retaining walls. The power houses at Ogden Bear River and Murray were struck by lightning — the latter being destroyed.

Bishops Appeal.

"Turkish barbarians massacreing thousands. Armenians humbly solicit United States government in the name of Christianity and humanity to save innocent lives.

"ARMENIAN BISHOPS IN PERSIA."

Ensley Mill Busy.

The steel rail mill at Ensley, belonging to the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, is furnishing steel rails to the Harriman system of railroads, quite a quantity having already been delivered to the Southern Pacific railroad, a branch of that system.

The statement is made that the management of the Harriman system of railroads is making extensive improvements, and among other things 60,000 tons of steel rails weighing eighty pounds to the yard, to cost in the neighborhood of $28 a ton, or a total of $1,680,000, will be purchased.

A Governor's Mansion.

A governor's mansion in Montgomery, to be used by the chief executive of Alabama and his family, is one of the possibilities of the near future. Under the provisions of the capitol improvement act the commission may in its wisdom take part of the funds for the erection of a governor's mansion. This measure is under consideration by the commission.

SUNDAY'S STORM

Old Considerable Damage in Various Parts of the State.

The worst storm in years swept over Scottsboro and vicinity. The rain fell in torrents and the lightning was terrific. Great damage was done to land, the hillsides which had been recently plowed washing away. Several fine and valuable horses were killed by the lightning. A number of fine milch cows were also killed.

The fine barn of W. W. Howard was torn to pieces by the wind. The lightning took the top off a large tree near the Harris hotel and struck the handsome residence of Mrs. W. P. Robinson. Dozens of trees were struck and literally torn into fragments in the town. Several persons made narrow escapes.

For the past few days the section about Gadsden has been visited with severe rains and hail storms in widely separated sections and a great deal of damage has been done to growing crops. In Coats Bend a 50-acre cotton field belonging to W. H. Hood was almost ruined, all the leaves and limbs being stripped from the plant and leaving only the stalk. In Little Willis valley Wednesday a heavy rain fell and a 25-acre field of corn was submerged for more than an hour and badly damaged.

In Whorton's bend, some eight miles below Gadsden, a hail storm wrecked cotton and corn for several miles and did other damage to crops, especially to peach trees.

Hail in Birmingham broke windows and punctured awnings.

POOR WILL PROFIT

By New Revenue Laws in the Philippine Islands.

The internal revenue law for the Philippine Islands prepared by Governor Wright has been passed by the commission after an extensive public discussion. It estimates the revenue at five million gold, one-quarter of which will revert to the provinces and municipalities, and three-quarters to the insular government. The articles taxed include alcoholic productions, beer, tobacco, cigars, cigarettes, matches and some licenses and occupations.

The law repeals many taxes imposed on the poor people under the existing Spanish law. It is believed that the new law ultimately will furnish the basis for substantial and complete support of the government.

SHOT THROUGH THE HEART.

Martin Ragland Commits Suicide Near Warrior.

John Ragland, a young white man about twenty-one years old, committed suicide by shooting himself through the heart.

With some others he had a keg of beer and had previously engaged in a beer drinking, and it is said that in a fit of despondency after a war of words with his mother, he took up his coat and told her he would never come into the house, and the fatal shot was soon fired.

Foreign Corporations in Mississippi.

Within the next few days a ruling from the state revenue agent's office is expected to the effect that the foreign corporations doing business in the state without having filed their charters for record with the secretary of state have no legal standing in the commonwealth and can not enforce the collection of their debts.

Such a ruling will have a sweeping effect, as at least 90 per cent of the corporations that send traveling men in the state to take orders have not filed their charters for record, and if persons not overscrupulous are inclined to take advantage of this method of settling their debts with these firms they will find it a very easy matter.

Three Killed.

A special from Texarkana says:

Miss Sybil Pugh, aged 15; Maud Pillow, aged 14, and Birdie Bell Pillow, aged 4, were killed and four others injured. The party were in a surrey when the horse ran away, overturning the surrey, dragging it directly in front of a rapidly moving street car, which plowed through it.

Held Without Bail.

At Selma, Calvin Kimball, a negro, was assaulted with a pistol and Josh Sills and Walter Davis, white men, are in jail for the offense. From evidence obtained Davis was guilty of the assault, striking the negro on the head with the weapon and then shooting him in the leg as he ran.

According to the statement of Kimball, one of the men ran against him and when he remonstrated, cursed him and struck him on the right temple with a pistol. Kimball turned and ran and the holder of the weapon fired two shots at him.

Second Payment Made.

The Louisiana Purchase Exposition company paid the United States $212,692 as the second installment on the repayment of the $4,600,000 loaned by the government. This payment represents 40 per cent of the total admission royalties, covering the period from June 16th to and including June 30th, as required under the act of congress authorizing the loan.

W. C. DICKINSON

THE Fourth was celebrated in Clanton by the closing of all the business houses and everyone taking a holiday. Throughout the county there was a number of barbecues and picnics, and the day generally was observed as a holiday.

THE National Populist Convention was held at Springfield, Ills., this week, less than 200 delegates being present, and only 23 States represented. Tom Watson of Georgia was nominated for President, but whether he will accept such an inglorious nomination remains to be seen—we are disposed to think he will declide it. A few years ago their was hope that the Populist party would be able to accomplish some good, today it is a party of the past.

IT is remarkably strange that the parents of children in Clanton appear to have no interest in the education of their children. Two calls have been made for a public meeting to determine upon a course of action for the ensuing scholastic year, and at neither meeting were many parents present. It is rumored that the indifference to the public school is due to the efforts of a few interested parties to establish a private school. Be this as it may it is up to the citizens of Clanton to see that a good public school is provided for the benefit of the children of the town.

THE Alabama Press Association held its annual session at Bessemer last week and elected the following officers:

President—C. H. Greer, Standard, Marion.

4th Vice-President—H. Y. Brooke, Critic, Luverne.

Secretary—Jacob Pepperman, Oddfellow, Montgomery.

Treasurer—S. H. Morris, Banner, Fayette.

Annual Poet—Frank Crichton, Banner, Clanton.

Nearly all of the Editors left on a special train for St. Louis, and are spending this week there, taking in the Fair and the Democratic Convention.

DANGER IN NEW CORN.

An Unparalleled Promoter of Hog Cholera—Shortened Station Best.

During the last year there has been less cholera and swine plague than formerly simply because less corn was fed. This does not mean that corn is the direct cause of cholera, but it does mean that as a promoter of the disease corn, especially new corn, is an unparalleled success. This greatest of all grains is the greatest heat producer grown on the farm and when fed in large quantities produces fat at the expense of tissue, so that the animal falls an easy victim when the cholera microbe puts in an appearance.

At this time, in the face of an enormous crop, farmers are likely to forget the lessons they have learned as to feeding the smaller corn ration. New corn is unexcelled for fattening purposes, but it is deficient in muscle, flesh and bone forming elements. It should be fed cautiously and always with some digestible concentrated feed.

A well known Iowa authority said recently that the system of the pig soon becomes deranged by continuous feeding of new corn, the animal soon becomes sick, and much of the loss usually attributed to hog cholera might be termed corn disease. He stated further that two bushels of new corn are required to equal one bushel of old corn in results, and as pigs like the new grain and will eat it ravenously if permitted every precaution should be taken to prevent overeating.

Don't misunderstand me. I would not urge any one to discontinue the use of corn. The farmer who has a big corn crop this year will be immeasurably benefited if he will continue to feed the balanced ration. The big yield of corn should not deter him from using concentrated feeds. He should remember the danger in feeding new corn and that three or four hogs saved will more than pay for the necessary quantity of concentrated feed rich in digestible protein.—Cor. Country Gentleman.

Where Only a Small Flock Is Kept.

Dipping sheep is universally acknowledged as being the only way to properly destroy the injurious pests that cause our sheep raisers and wool growers so many thousands of dollars loss each year. The accompanying cut shows a dipping tank the writer helped to make that has given very satisfactory returns where only a few sheep are kept. The tank is 7 feet 8 inches in length at the top and 4 feet 2 inches long at the bottom.

The height is 4 feet. It is 2 feet wide at the top and only 6 inches at the bottom. We made the frame on the outside so as to have the inside perfectly smooth. We used three 2 by 4 pieces 16 feet long. The studdings are 4 feet 2 inches in height, allowing two inches to frame the studding across the bottom in order to hold the tank solid.—Cor. Ohio Farmer.

Knows His Own Mind and Speaks It.

I see some say that hogs will destroy Johnson grass. That's a delusion. Colonel Gurley says that the roots contain an acid that destroys hogs' teeth and causes them to be unable to eat corn off the cob. Cattle also fail to destroy it. I have seen it tried thoroughly. It's all bosh to say that they can. No man that has seen a stand that is thoroughly rooted will say it can be destroyed by cattle. I repeat what I have already said, that it can't be destroyed in Texas. How in the name of common sense can you do anything when it penetrates the earth from three to five feet deep? I've seen it twice that deep a few times. This may sound like many other Texas tales—sounds big to a man who has never been there—but I have no fear of successful contradiction. The man who thinks he can kill it should go to Texas; plenty of jobs for men there who are able to kill Johnson grass. It's the poorest feed in the way of hay that was ever put on the market. It's not half as good as broom sage hay. I know whereof I speak. I have tried it.—Cor. Southern Cultivator.

The Cotton Crop.

Late cotton has improved in the Carolinas, Mississippi and Louisiana and in portions of Missouri and Tennessee, according to the weather bureau's report. In Alabama and Florida a light crop is indicated, and in Georgia the outlook is so varied as to range from excellent to almost a complete failure. Rust and shedding are very generally reported. In Texas the crop has deteriorated on account of excessive heat, shedding and ravages of bollworms and weevil. Some damage has resulted from hot, dry weather in Oklahoma and Indian territories.

What Others Say.

The man who grows and feeds hogs to the full capacity of his farm is always prosperous.

Sheep will live and thrive on pasturage so short that cattle cannot get enough grass during the day to do them overnight.

Stock farms don't wear out, but become more and more fertile and more and more profitable.

Sheep require no expensive shelter. A dry place and protection from the force of storms, an open shed with a roof that will turn the rain, are all that is required.

The patrons of our school district met last Saturday morning and elected the following named men as trustees for this school district: W. J. Billingsley, Thos Jones and Robert Williams.

Mr. J. F. Bone and his sister, Miss Cauzada, visited relatives at Prattville last week.

Misses Lela and Emmie Wright of Prattville are visiting relatives in our community this week.

Married at the residence of W. J. Bone last Sunday, Mr. C. L. Dickenson and Miss Josie McKinney. Their many friends wish them a long and happy life together.

The angel of death visited the home of Mr. I. W. Weldon last Friday and carried the spirit of one of their little infant babes to eternal rest. We extend our prayers and heartfelt sympathy to the bereaved family. We can only commend them to the Lord, who doeth all things well. Our loss is heavens gain. Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Dr. Joe Johnson of Chattanooga was in Clanton Sunday.

THE PRELIMINARIES

WILL NOT OPPOSE PARKER.

Tammany Has So Decided—Gorman Out of the Race—Bryan Supports McClellan.

At a meeting of Tammany leaders it was practically decided that all opposition to Judge Parker will be withdrawn.

The sub-committee of the national democratic committee which heard the evidence in the fourteen contests in the state of Illinois, reported to the national committee that it was the unanimous opinion of the committee that the Hopkins delegates be allowed to retain their seats. The report was concurred in and the Hopkins people will hold their seats unless ousted by the action of the committee on credentials.

The victory of the Hopkins faction was also a defeat for W. J. Bryan, who has made the fight almost a personal matter.

That Senator Carmack, of Tennessee, shall second the nomination of Judge Parker has been decided on. The Tennessee delegation has appointed a campaign committee to work for the nomination of Senator Carmack for the vice presidency.

The invitation to Senator Carmack to second Judge Parker's nomination came in a letter from William F. Sheehan, of New York, who stated that Conecticut would be asked to yield to Tennessee for this purpose.

J. M. Head, national committeeman from Tennessee, will be asked to place Senator Carmack in nomination for the vice presidency.

The gavel that will be wielded by John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, in calling the national democratic convention to order will be of historic material. The Lake, Pa., delegation have had it constructed of timber of Commodore Perry's flagship Niagara, which took such a prominent part in the notable battle on Lake Erie.

Pennsylvania's delegation to the democratic convention has decided to vote for Parker. This gives him 63 more.

Colonel B. L. Russell, of Mobile, has been elected chairman of the Alabama delegation. R. P. Hobson is in charge of the Folk candidacy for vice president and is working for a big navy plank in the platform and against the dismemberment of China.

There is a deadlock between Campbell and Clayton for membership on the national committee.

Populist Convention.

The 500 or 600 delegates that were expected to attend the populist national convention in Springfield, Ill., did not put in an appearance,and when the convention was called to order there were fewer than 200 delegates in the hall. Mayor Deveraux, who was scheduled to extend a word of welcome to the populists at the opening of the convention, did not show up, neither did he send a representative or an explanation of his absence.

Only twenty-three states were represented in the convention.

The convention was called to order by Vice Chairman J. H. Edminton, of Nebraska, and the call of the convention was read by Joe A. Parker, of Kentucky, national chairman. Ex-Congressman L. P. Weller, of Iowa, was made temporary chairman and Charles Q. DeFrance, of Nebraska, temporary secretary.

The president has granted a pardon conditioned on the payment of costs, to Charles Parks, who pleaded guilty in Mississippi of embezzling postoffice funds. The embezzlement was only a technical one which was repaid before any prosecution and the court suspended sentence pending an application for pardon.

WILL MARK BOUNDARY.

Aluminum Bronze Posts to be Used on Alaskan Frontier.

Aluminum-bronze posts about two and a half feet in height, especially manufactured for the purpose, and set at half-mile intervals, are to mark the international boundary line between Alaska and the British possessions, as determined by the London award.

Plans for surveying and marking the line are now being made, and the engineers who are to do the work are assembling.

Three parties will be put into the field, each composed of an equal number of Canadians and Americans. Each party will consist of about ten men in charge of a surveyor. Two of the parties will work on the valley of the Chilkat river, where the other party will go up the valley of the Stikine river and commence to establish the boundary there.

This survey will be a joint affair in which both Canadian and American surveyors will participate jointly. It will be an arduous undertaking, and only a small portion of the new boundary line, which is over five hundred miles in length, can be permanently located and marked this season.

As these posts will have to be erected in solid rock over a large portion of the boundary line, an ingenious arrangement of a forked base has been made. When this base is set in holes drilled in the rock and firmly fastened in place with cement, there is not much fear of the marking post being removed except by some forcible means.

Negotiations Suspended.

Negotiations between the United Mine Workers of America and the Furnace Operators' Association, through their respective scale committees were terminated Tuesday afternoon when the joint committee adjourned. The statement is made that the joint committee can get together again upon request of one or more members of said committee.

While information concerning the transactions before the joint committee is hard to ascertain, the miners, so it is reported, withdrew their proposition offered in their convention two weeks ago and made a new proposition, which was the same contract as existed before June 30th. The new proposition was but a little different from that offered by the miners in their convention, so in reality there was but little difference in their demands. The committee representing the furnacemen maintained their proposition, ranging from 40 to 55 cents per ton.

While no definite reports have been received there was a general resumption at the mines, where temporary contracts have been signed between operating companies and the miners and mine workers.

SHOOTING AT TROY.

Sam Hollingsworth Seriously Injured by Alto Brooks.

Alto Brooks shot and, it is thought, fatally wounded Sam Hollingsworth Monday evening at Troy.

Hollingsworth is about twenty-one years of age and Brooks about eighteen. It seems that these young men attended a picnic a short distance out of town and had engaged in a slight difficulty before returning.

After they reached the city they met in a pool room and the difficulty was renewed. Brooks charges that Hollingsworth was coming toward him with a billiard cue when he shot him. Brooks emptied a 32-caliber six-shooter revolver at Hollingsworth, three shots taking effect.

BREVITIES BY WIRE.

But one accident is reported as a result of the celebration of the Fourth of July at Bessemer, but that will result fatally. The excursion train on the Woodward Iron company's line was carrying passengers backward and forward to the picnic at Brighton, and a youth, P. J. McGuire, of Brighton, was riding on the cars when he stuck his head too far out of the window, coming in contact with another car and inflicting a wound on the head that causes grave apprehension as to his recovery.

A bad wreck occurred on the Southern railway three miles west of York, Ala., in which fortunately no one was hurt, but an engine was smashed to pieces and the track torn up for a hundred yards, delaying traffic seven or eight hours. The wreck was caused by a wind storm which blew a tree across the joint track of the Southern and Queen and Crescent.

The contract for the erection of the new school building in Ward 5, Anniston, has been awarded to Wolsoncroft & Scarbrough. The building proper will cost $6457, and the furniture about $2000 more. The Woodward Iron company has signed a scale agreement with the United Mine Workers with conditions similar to those made by this company in previous years. It continues operations at its mines at the old scale and later on will pay whatever wages the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company may sign.

The Alabama Bar Association, in closing its annual gathering, will picnic at Jackson Lake, out of Montgomery, next Friday. A special train will be operated for the benefit of themselves and their families and friends.

TWENTY-FIVE ARE DEAD.

Injured Number 1,200 and Property Loss $200,000Due to the Fourth.

The Chicago Tribune publishes a partial list of casualties resulting from Fourth of July celebrations all over the country. The list gives the total number of dead as 25, injured 1,284, and a property loss of $277,800.

A year ago accidents reported on the night of July 4 were forty-eight dead and 3,431 injured.

The fireworks which were to have been set off at Tacoma, Wash., as a finish to a big Fourth of July celebration caught fire from almost the first rocket that was sent up, and in an instant the entire heap of explosives was flying in every direction. About four-dozen eight-pound rockets flew through the audience of 30,000 persons, creating a panic in which many were injured. Others were struck by the flying objects and it is estimated as many as fifty were injured, one fatally.

At Corrina, Maine, a fire started by Fourth of July explosions caused a loss of $100,000. Nine buildings were destroyed, including two general stores and a grist mill.

PACKING HOUSE SCHEME.

Cattle Stockade at Pensacola to Acclimate Animals for Cuba.

It has been announced that the Armours, of the packing company of Chicago and Kansas City, have purchased an immense tract of land close to Pensacola and with several miles of water front. Bids will be asked for the construction of immense cattle guards, it being the determination of the new owners to make this place a point to acclimate cattle in large numbers preparatory to shipping them to Cuba, where thousands of acres of grazing lands have been bought and where extensive packing houses will be constructed. A line of steamers will be established between this port and a point in Cuba for the transportation of the cattle and the reshipment of the dressed beef, etc.

"BLOW BACKS" PREVENTED.

Experiments for Naval Gun Device Proved Successful.

There will soon be no danger of another "blow back" in the navy such as caused the terrible accident on the Missouri. Experiments at the Washington navy yard and Indian Head for some weeks with a simple automatic device which instantly after the discharge of a gun expels from the bore every particle of smouldering cloth and all the foul air created by the firing, have proved successful.

Orders have now been given to adapt the mechanism to all of the turret guns in the navy, beginning with the large sizes. It is expected within a few months all of the big ships will be thus guarded.

CROPS.

The weather bureau's summary of crop conditions says:

Portions of the south Atlantic and east gulf states continue to need rain, although drouthy conditions in these districts have been largely relieved.

Winter wheat harvest has made slow progress in Missouri and Kansas.

The general outlook for oats is promising. An improvement in cotton is generally indicated throughout the cotton belt and while the plant continues small in the central and eastern districts it is now making rapid growth throughout the belt, especially in the central and western districts.

The crop is generally well cultivated, although some fields in Oklahoma and northeast Texas are foul. Cotton is beginning to open in the extreme southwestern coast counties of Texas.

All reports respecting tobacco are promising.

Six of the Sloss-Sheffield's seven furnaces are in operation.

Attorney-General Williams, of Mississippi, has intimated rather strongly that a hold-up is being attempted in the award of the contract for the erection of the new deaf and dumb institute buildings.

SCIENCE WARS ON RATS.

A Bacillus Used to Exterminate the Dangerous Rodents.

The spread of the plague in the east has been shown to be due to rats which are carried from infected ports on vessels. Just the precise way in which this is accmoplished, says Harper's Weekly, is still a matter of debate among biologists, but the fact is appreciated, and in Manila and elsewhere the health authorities endeavor to kill all the rats in an infected locality and on board ships about to discharge their cargoes. This is accomplished in several ways, such as traps, catching rats by hand or by animals, and on board ships sometimes by asphyxiation with carbonic acid, the latter a costly method, and often difficult of application. A method promising to be most efficacious has recently been devised by M. Danysz, of the Pasteur Institute, in Paris. He has found the bacillus of a disease which is peculiar to rats and extremely fatal to such as are inoculated with it, while at the same time it does not affect other animals or human beings. A culture can be made of this bacillus bouillon in which bread or grain is soaked. This is exposed for the rats to eat, and has been found a successful means of communicating the disease, which usually proves fatal in five to 12 days. The method has been tried on the rats in the Paris sewers and those of the Bourse de Commerce, which attack the grain supplies. It is now recognized that if the rats can be destroyed it is possible to keep plague and other diseases from Europe and the civilized portions of the east, and it is to be hoped that the new method of inoculation will be found successful when practiced on a large scale.

Animal Language.

A sound or gesture made by an animal under any mental or emotional impression and calling out a similar one in another animal is an element of language. When the rabbit quickly beats the ground, its fellow rabbits know that there is danger somewhere, and they take action accordingly. That is rabbit language. When the hunter imitates the rabbit and thus conveys the same idea, he is "speaking" the rabbit language for the time being. Many animals use signs, which of course are understood through the eyes. The ants converse by touching antennae and feet. Many insects rub the elytra. This is animal language in its simplest form. It expresses but few ideas. But there are animals which are capable of modulating their "voices."

Even the common rabbits, which seem to be mute, are constantly making sounds, which a little observation will soon discover to be ever changing in volume, modulation, etc. Much of this method of communication changes when the animal is brought into civilization from the wild state. The wild dog, for instance, barks very little when in freedom. How the household dog barks and is able to express himself is well known.

Bowyer's Bible.

It is eighty years since William Bowyer put the finishing touch to his monumental Bible — an anniversary which is of peculiar interest just now. Bowyer was a miniature painter of fair abilities, who devoted every spare hour for thirty years to extra-illustrating a copy of the Bible which came into his possession. With infinite patience and at considerable cost he collected every drawing, engraving, and etching of Biblical subjects he could lay hands on, to the number of 7000, and interleaved his Bible with them, until the original modest book had expanded into forty-four imposing folio volumes, containing the work of 600 artists, from Michael Angelo to Benjamin West. The work was completed in 1824, at a total cost of 4,200 pounds. After his death it figured as a lottery prize, and underwent many vicissitudes before it passed into the possession of Mr. Heywood, of Bolton, for little more than an eighth of its original cost. — Westminster Gazette.

Engine drivers working from Crewe to London and back have to notice no fewer than 570 signals.

A FABLE.

BY WILKINSON WILDE.

There was a very learned man
Who had a foolish wish,
He set a mouse-trap on a bank
In hopes of catching fish.

He then went home and all day long
He sat around the house
With rod and reel and wriggling worm
He tried to catch a mouse.

The moral of his enterprise
The whole of life will match
You always should adapt your skill
To what you want to catch.

A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

AN ELOQUENT DISCOURSE BY THE REV. W. T. BEST.

"Faded Leaves," the Subject of a Helpful Talk—The Endless Variety of Leaves—All Must Stand the Storms of Life Alike and Come to the Same End.

CHASM FALLS, N. Y.—The following sermon, entitled "Faded Leaves," was preached here by the Rev. William T. Best. He took as his text "We all do fade as a leaf." Isa. 64 6.

Nature has once more been disrobed of her green foliage, and the Stork in the heaven knoweth her appointed time and the Turtle and the Crane and the Swallow have gone to a warmer region. While looking from my study window, I noticed the leaves falling and the children playing among the dead leaves that lay upon the ground. I then began to think of the past year. I remembered distinctly its birth when we knelt together in the Watch meeting and reconsecrated ourselves to the Master. The thoughts of its youth revived those pleasant memories that can be appreciated only by one living in the Adirondacks. But, oh, how changed everything appears to-day! The same river glides by the door and the same mountains are on either side of the house, yet a cloud of sadness hovers o'er me as I watch the leaves fall from the trees. "Ah! these are harbingers of approaching storms; the indication that another summer's warmth and beauty is about to be succeeded by the chill desolation of winter."

It is so difficult for us to understand religious truths that God was obliged to draw them out in diagram upon the natural world. Therefore a minister may go to almost any branch of nature and find a sermon. "Go to the ant," says the wise man Solomon. Consider the "Lilies of the field," says Christ. Bush and brook, beast and bird, day and night, the changing seasons, all abound with spiritual lessons, and the faded leaves, blown wildly about by the wilder winds of autumn, whirl up in our faces and before our doors, seeming to say, "What about us?" God has commissioned us to carry a message to man, and mingling with the dirge of autumn, comes the sadder dirge of the Prophet Isaiah, "We all do fade as a leaf."

I. The Endless Variety of Leaves.

Though there are so many different kinds of leaves in the world it is doubtful if there are two leaves of any class exactly alike. Then all species of leaves are not found on one tree. The king of white oaks may witness 600 years of Canadian history, the Canforman pine may have existed centuries before "Leif the Lucky" discovered Vinland; the Parliament Oak has seen 1300 years of European progress; the cedars of Lebanon date their birth from the time of the flood and the Baobab of Senegal claim to be over 5000 years old, yet the leaves they have scattered are but as a drop to the ocean compared to the number that have fallen to the earth.

"God hath made of one blood all nations of men," and though there are so many different races of mankind it is doubtful if there could be found two men of any race exactly alike. They differ as do the leaves. Especially is this true from a religious standpoint, for all men do not hold the same religious belief. The main thing, however, is for all to belong to Christ. Let the fig leaf utter its voice of warning, the maple suggest its sweetness and the olive bring its message of peace; yet there are time in every life when naught can be found but the weeping willow.

Perishing, perishing! Hark, how they call us,
Bring us [your Saviour, oh, tell us of?
We are so weary, so heavily laden,
And with long weeping our eyes have grown dim.

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

II. Some Leaves Are Higher Up in This World Than Others, But All Must Stand the Storms of Life Alike and Come to the Same End.

Some people are determined to go up in this world, even if they go down in the next. Men lose their health trying to get wealth, and then lose their wealth trying to get health. God has a place for every man in this world, whether it be in the ministry, at the work bench, or following the plow. Let each man find his right place and there be at his best for God. It is useless for a leaf at the lower part of the tree to be trying to get to the top, but in each leaf in its proper place goes to make a perfect tree. For as we have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office; so we, being many, are one body in Christ." Let us learn, therefore, in "whatsoever state we are therewith to be content," "running with patience the race set before us," and we shall as surely hear the "well done" as the man with the greatest number of talents.

The millionaire can wear but one suit of clothes, sleep in one bed and eat but one meal at a time. In many respects his riches only increase his troubles, and it is a mistake to suppose that he is not subject to many of the disappointments common to men. On the other hand, let us not try to throw a romance about the poor man's lot. Poverty is hard, cruel, unrelenting. But as surely as the different kinds of weather are a necessity to the leaves, so surely are the storms of life necessary to our highest good; for

"If all were easy, if all were bright,
Where would the cross be?
Where would the night?
But in the hardness, God gives to you,
Chances of proving that you are true."

Death places the leaves all on the same level. Said a widowed lady, whose husband fills a drunkard's grave, as she stood by the grave of the wealthy saloon keeper who had taken his money: "Ah! you are on a level with my husband now." Yes, death places us all on a level. Where are now the vast armies of the Assyrians, Grecians, Persians, Romans? As with the warrior so with the peaceful, as with the rich so with the poor. Millions have gone, millions more are on their journey.

"The boast of heraldry, the pomp of power,
And all that beauty, all that wealth ere gave,
Await alike the inevitable hour.
The paths of glory lead but to the grave."

III. The Decay of the Leaf is Sometimes Hastened by External Circumstances.

It may be affected by insects, excessive moisture, excessive cold, etc., etc. Then often the leaf is plucked from the tree while in full bloom.

"The wicked shall not live out half their days." God gives every man so long to live, if he takes care of his body (which is the temple of the Holy Ghost) he will probably live out his appointed days. Yet how often we see people called from time into eternity just at the moment when their brightest hopes are about to be realized. Moses has led Israel through the wilderness. He has borne up under their murmurings and backslidings, and at times he has had to stand alone when it seemed as though his shoulders could not carry the care and responsibility placed upon them. Yet he has looked forward to this glad moment as the time when his character shall be vindicated and he shall lead the people, triumphantly lead the people into the Promised Land. But now the command comes from heaven, "Moses, ascend Nebo to die!" Ah! this is tragedy surpassing anything Shakespearean, yet it occurs almost every day. A vessel is wrecked at sea, a train has jumped the track, a hotel has taken fire and men and women just on the eve of realizing their highest ambitions are snatched from this into another world.

IV. The Leaves Fade in Concert Though They Fall One by One.

"One cannot count the number of pinnes which those frosts are planking from the hills." The aisles of the woods will be covered with a beautiful carpet of many colors. The imagination can scarcely comprehend the number of leaves that are falling. The grave is the great city. It has the largest population, the longest streets, the greatest number of hands, billions of eyes, though they see not. Kings and queens are there, orators, statesmen, yea, men of every rank and condition, yet it is the great city of silence. Neither work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom are there. The multitude of the dying and the dead are as the autumnal leaves drifting under our feet to-day.

"One by one, one by ——, we shall soon, yes soon be there."

V. Let Us Proceed to Inquire, How Do the Leaves Fade?

1. They fade naturally. It is what constantly occurs. After the summer is gone and the fruits are fully ripe, they change their color, lose their interesting hue and drop in rapid succession to the ground. "Man that is born of a woman hath but a short time to live, and is full of misery. He cometh up, and is cut down like a flower; he fleeth as it were a shadow, and never continueth in one stay. In the midst of life we are in death," and science teaches that we are more apt to die than to live, all our tendencies are toward death, and it is one continual struggle to keep soul and body together. Where are now the builders of Babel? Abraham and his seed? David and Solomon? Daniel, the prophets, the apostles and the great men of the past? Only remembered by what they have done. They being dead are still speaking. The serpent comes to the sinner, coils about his body, presses his heart tightly, and then comes the awful sting. The same serpent comes to the Christian. But oh, how changed! The Christian, as he looks him in the eyes, can cry out: "Oh, death, where is thy sting?" "I have been dying for many years, now I shall begin to live."

2. They Fade Gradually.

The different periods of life are compared to the revolving seasons of the year. Childhood and youth when life is all expectation and hope, are like a beautiful May morning when the sun shines brightly, and the dew is upon the flowers, and everything is beautiful and lovely. Nature is bursting her bars and is giving promise of the unfolded splendors of a summer's glory yet to come. But oh, how quickly time passes by! The boys and girls of yesterday are the men and women of to-day. Then, for none of us is there such a thing as an ever-enduring manhood. "We pursue our course, from childhood, with its vigor and beauty, to age with its feebleness and decay, with the unfailing continuance of the rounding seasons. Our march is an uninterrupted one from the cradle to the grave." But, oh, how we shrink at the thought of going down the western horizon of our physical strength! The leaves, which a few days ago felt the first touch of the frost have day by day been changing in tint. The work was not completed in a day. No, it has been going on gradually and after awhile, leaf after leaf, they will fall to the ground. So with you and me. From day to day we hardly notice the change, but the frosts have touched us.

VI. There is a Greater Beauty and Glory Attached to the Leaf in Its Fading and Dying Condition Than at Any Time in Its Life.

Along the lake shores and river banks, and up the slopes of the mountains, "there is an indescribable mingling of gold, and orange, and crimson, and saffron, now softening into drab and maroon, now flaming into solferino and scarlet." In the morning the forests look as if they were transfigured, "and in the evening hour . . . as the sunset had burst and dropped upon the leaves." Some of the mountains appear to be all on fire, as if they were submerged in the glory of the Lord. Said Rev. C. C. Townsend, as he stood by the parsonage gate and looked upon the scene: "Isn't that beautiful? I must bring my wife up here to see that foliage." How often while driving along the road we notice a tree where the leaves have faded at the first touch of the frost, all turning a russet brown. "No one stops to study them. They are gathered in no vase. They are hung on no wall." No one cares anything at all about them. Such is the death of the wicked. They do not live out half their days, but pass away into blackness and darkness, and despair without a ray of light to cheer the gloom. But, thank God, such is not the death of the Christian, for, "the path of the just is as the shining light, which shineth more and more unto the perfect day." What a beautiful sight it is behold a father and mother in Israel who have spent their lives in the service of Christ come down to cross the river. Oh, what halo of glory there is about them! What words of peace and joy and comfort proceed from their lips, and how strangely near the Holy Spirit is as the Angels gently loose the silver cord.

"Fade, fade, each earthly joy,
Jesus is Mine."

And the fading body flutters and falls downward as the leaf, while "the spirit returns to God who gave it." Oh, that in this sense, too, we may all fade with the beauty and glory of the leaf.

VII. The Leaves Fall Only to Rise Again.

It is one of the laws of nature that nothing is really lost. Things change their condition, but exist in another form. In the juice and sap and life of the tree the leaves will come up again. Next May the South wind will blow the resurrection "trumpet and they will rise." So with our loved ones who sleep in Jesus. They shall not all sleep, but they shall be changed. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Him. For the Lord Himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord." Hallelujah! Hallelujah!

VIII. In the Heavenly Jerusalem the Leaves Shall Never Fade.

"Soon will the shadows of earth's life be past,
Sorrow and partings be over at last;
Soon shall we meet in the 'Mansions of Day,'
Meet where our loved ones can ne'er fade away."

When Ezekiel foretold the blessings of the Messiah's kingdom he spoke of them under the figure of trees growing on a bank whose leaves should not wither, but be for medicine. When John saw in apocalyptic vision the heavens opened, and the new Jerusalem descending down from God out of heaven. He saw in the midst of the street and on either side of the river, the tree of life, and the leaves of the tree were for the healing of the nations.

"There the sun never sets and the leaves never fade,
There the righteous forever shall shine like the stars,
In that beautiful city of gold."

Alcoholism is extremely rare in the Italian army. In 1901, the latest for which figures are available, only twenty-five cases were admitted to the hospitals.

Fib-b-b-but my teeth make a lot o' noise!
We wen-wen-went to th' edge o' town
Where th' will-willows grows up so thick;
I sh-sh-shed to th' very skin,
Then gr-r-r-r! I was in th' crick.
Out again—but th' first one in!

Bub-bill ast me if it fel-felt cold.
"No," I sa-said, "it's warm an' nice."
Big a li-lie as I ever told—
Hon-hon-honest, it's worse 'n ice,
All th' others, they di-dived quick;
I got out on th' bank to grin.
Gee! They sputtered there in th' crick!
Just th' same, I's th' first in.

Ma called to me when I started out—
Said to sta-stay on our own street.
She'll want to know what I been about—
I'm going home to ge-get some heat.
Tee-teeth chatter, my hair is slick,
Trem-trem-tremble-in' in my chin—
Say! It's dandy dow-down th' crick!
Honest, I was th' first one in.

"Great guns!" exclaimed the absent-minded man. "I have stuck the lighted end of this cigar in my mouth." "How fortunate you were in discovering it at once, dear," rejoined his good wife.—Chicago Daily News.

"Young man," said Rev. Goodman, "some day you'll bring your father's gray hairs in sorrow to the grave." "No danger," replied young Rakely, "he hasn't any; worrying about me has made him bald."—Philadelphia Ledger.

"Wealth," said the putative young plutocrat, "is not worth striving for." "How do you know?" fiercely demanded the proletariat. "You don't have to strive for yours!" "That only shows, gentlemen," he rejoiced, sadly, "that you don't know how reluctantly the governor loosens up."—Chicago Tribune.

The conversation turned upon the alderman from the 'Steenth ward. "What do you suppose he's worth?" asked the man with the patch over his eye. "Nobody knows," said the man with the cinnamon beard. "Sometimes you can buy him for $50, and at other times it takes $500."—Chicago Tribune.

Multiplication of Bacilli.

In our laboratories, under suitable conditions of food and warmth, a bacillus splits in half an hour into two parts, each of which splits again in half an hour, and so on, and it has been estimated that a single bacillus, if given similar conditions in nature, would, within a week, give rise to progeny numerous enough to fill the Atlantic ocean. Such overbalancing is largely prevented by the protozoa, which feed upon the bacteria, increasing as they increase, and decreasing as this food supply gives out. The protozoa, in turn, are eaten by animals like the worms and shellfish, these by others, and so on, the balance of nature being so delicate that no form increases disproportionately for any length of time, although, like the locust plague, or the California fruit-tree scale, or the gypsy moth, some forms may occasionally predominate.—Gary N. Calkins, in Century.

A well known French actor has just finished his memoirs with the following startling statistics: "I played in 98 towns 3,866 evenings in 371 pieces, and in 455 different roles. I was married 1,721 times on the stage. I died 1,120 times, and in many styles. For example, I was stabbed 61 times; I was shot 51 times; I was drowned 22 times; I was poisoned 166 times; I had my skull smashed 86 times; I ruptured blood vessels 192 times; I was decapitated 31 times; I was assassinated 109 times; I was executed 20 times; I committed suicide 214 times; and I died a natural death 55 times."

The first session of the fifty-eighth congress lasted 139 days; the shortest first session for many years. It talked 3155 pages of the Congressional record. Its word output stands third. The fifty-seventh congress was proudly first, with 8414 pages; the fifty-sixth congress second, with 7765. At the first session of the fifty-eighth 294 public bills and 1896 private ones were passed. In this number of bills introduced it "beats" all other "records." More than 16,000 bills were brought in. Nearly 3,000 reports were made.

Charlie Henry, a young man who lived with John McKee at North, shot himself in the left side with a parlor rifle Friday, dying the same night from the wound. It is not known whether he committed suicide or whether the shooting was an accident.

OPIUM AND WHISKY ANTIDOTE

Mr. T. M. Brown, of DeQueen, Ark., says: "Over seven years ago I was cured of the opium habit by your medicine and have continued in the very best of health since."
Mr. W. M. Tunstall, of Lovingston, Va., says: "I am glad to say that I firmly believe that I am entirely and permanently cured of the Drink Habit, as I have never even so much as wanted a drink in any form since I took your eradicator, now is months ago. It was the best money I ever invested."
Mrs. Virginia Townsend, of Shreveport, La., writes: "No more opium. I have taken no other remedy than yours, and I make no mistake when I say that my health is better now than it ever was in my life, and I owe it to you and your remedy. It has been twelve years since I was cured by your treatment."
Dr. Woolley has thousands of such testimonials, with permission to use them. A treatment with so many recommendations from Physicians and cured patients must be good.

FARM AND GARDEN

SILAGE AND SHOCK CORN.

Relative Merits in Beefmaking. Pork as a Side Issue.

The Illinois agricultural experiment station has been investigating the relative merits of silage and shock corn as factors in beef production. An experiment was conducted on the extensive farm of a McLean county cattle feeder. In the feeding of 5.33 acres of silage to calves 8.63 acres of crops other than corn were used. In the feeding of 5.33 acres of shock corn to calves 5.68 acres of crops other than corn were used. This difference may or may not be found unavoidable. Among conclusions arrived at were the following:

It requires a third longer time to feed an acre of corn silage than an acre of shock corn.

The average number of pounds of gain made per acre from a system of silage feeding where oats and hay were used as supplementary feeds was 385.35, where shock corn with oats and hay were fed 337.91 pounds, a difference of 47.45 pounds per acre in favor of a system of silage feeding.

So far as the cost of harvesting and feeding crops for the production of beef is concerned in the net profits of the enterprise, it should be borne in mind that it will probably require nearly twice as great an expenditure of labor and capital in a system of silage feeding as in a system of shock corn feeding.

The silage fed steers were in much better thrift and flesh at the end of the experiment than were the shock corn fed steers.

In case of the silage fed steers 97.69 per cent of the meat produced was beef and 2.31 per cent pork. In case of the shock corn fed steers 84.22 per cent of the meat produced was beef and 15.78 per cent was pork. This clearly shows that pork production is an important factor in a system of feeding shock corn for beef production, while it may be entirely eliminated from a system of silage feeding for beef production practically without loss.

It should be noted that the silage fed lot consumed less feed than the shock corn lot and less feed per pound of gain whether beef alone is considered or beef and pork combined. The amount of dry matter required to produce a pound of gain of meat where the corn was fed in the form of silage was 6.52 pounds; where fed in the form of shock corn it was 8.57 pounds.

With an average daily ration to each steer fed silage of 26 pounds silage, 2 pounds oats and 4.75 pounds of mixed hay an average daily gain of 1.68 pounds was secured for a period of eighty-eight days. With an average daily ration to each steer fed shock corn of 13.22 pounds shock corn, 2 pounds oats and 4 pounds mixed hay an average daily gain of 1.42 pounds was secured for a period of eighty-eight days.

Under conditions comparable with those prevailing in this experiment one steer would be able to make an average daily gain of 1.68 pounds for a period of six months on .82 of an acre of silage, oats and hay, of which .31 of an acre would be devoted to corn for silage, .23 of an acre to oats and .28 of an acre to hay. One steer receiving shock corn, oats and hay [illegible] able to make an average [illegible] of 1.42 pounds for a period of [illegible] months on .92 of an acre, of which .35 of an acre would be devoted to growing the corn, .23 of an acre to oats and .34 of an acre to hay, making a difference of .26 of a pound of meat per day per steer and one-tenth of an acre of land for the season, both being in favor of the steers receiving their corn in the form of silage for the period designed.

The cuts show typical representations of two lots of animals, one fed on silage, the other on shock corn.

Fall Blooming Shrubs.

Of fall blooming sorts of shrubs the Althens, or Rose of Sharon, continues to hold a prominent place. Perhaps the best of all are the Totus albus, single and pure white; Jeanne d'Arc, double, pure white; celestis, single, delicate blue; leopoldi, double, pink, and ranunculiflora, double, red.

The so called blue Spiraea carryopteris mastacanthus holds a unique place, being of heliotrope blue, blooming profusely from Sept. 15 to Oct. 25.

Among foliage plants I give first place to Cornus mas variegata and Cornus sanguinea elegantissima, the former bearing cherry colored fruits, the latter handsome in winter with its bright red branches, both being variegated with white and green. Of the two the elegantissima withstands the burning heat of our August suns the better.—H. T. Jones, New Jersey.

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

CLEAN TOWNS.

They Attract Homeseekers and Grow Very Rapidly.

It doesn't cost much and is very little trouble to keep a town clean if the citizens will co-operate and do their share in the matter. And there is no better advertisement for a town. Homeseekers will go to a clean town just as one will go to a clean store to buy his goods.

Of course the schools should be kept clean as an example to the young, and to prevent the lodgment and propagation of disease of any kind the streets and alleys ought to receive more careful attention. The latter especially are too often made the receptacles of all kinds of filth that in summer spreads infection broadcast. In cold weather the nuisance is almost as dangerous.

There must of necessity be a deal of mud and slush this winter on all our sidewalks, but if each householder will exercise a little care in keeping the walk in front of his house properly cleaned the exceedingly unpleasant effects of it may be to a large extent overcome. If attention is given this matter, a necessary walk about town would be a pleasure instead of a regret, and sociability would be promoted. Nothing gives more agreeable first impressions of a city or town than the cleanliness of its streets, stores and public places, and it may draw to us many inhabitants and large investments.

Protection of Street Trees.

If a tree has been well scraped of the cocoons that contain the eggs, it may be protected from the caterpillars that are allowed to develop on neighboring trees by a band of tar or other viscid substance painted around the trunk and renewed from time to time so that it will not get dry. There is no perfect protection, however, since caterpillars suspend themselves by silk fibers of their own spinning and are wafted when thus suspended from an infected to a noninfected tree. An occasional spraying of the tree's leaves with a solution of paris green or london purple will poison the caterpillars without hurting the trees. All these precautions, if persevered in, would soon end the caterpillar pest.

BLACK-DRAUGHT STOCK and POULTRY MEDICINE

Stock and poultry have few troubles which are not bowel and liver irregularities. Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is a bowel and liver remedy for stock. It puts the organs of digestion in a perfect condition. Prominent American breeders and farmers keep their herds and flocks healthy by giving them an occasional dose of Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine in their food. Any stock raiser may buy a 25-cent half-pound air-tight can of this medicine from his dealer and keep his stock in vigorous health for weeks. Dealers generally keep Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine. If yours does not, send 25 cents for a sample can to the manufacturers, The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

ROCKMILLS, Ga., Jan. 26, 1903.
Black-Draught Stock and Poultry Medicine is the best I ever tried. Our stock was looking bad when you sent me the medicine and now they are getting so fine. They are looking 20 per cent. better.

Low Truck For Hauling Fodder.

A low truck for drawing fodder corn from the field is made from the front part of an ordinary farm wagon. A strong oak reach about a foot long replaces the longer one. To the rear end of this is bolted an iron clevis that holds a crosspiece, as shown in the cut from the Farm Journal. For the platform two poles fifteen feet long are used. At two feet from the upper end holes are bored and they are pinned to the crosspiece mentioned above, the ends resting on the bolster about two inches from the standards. The rear wheels are fifteen inches in diameter, put on an iron axle, the whole taken from old farm machinery. Being so near the ground, it is best to board up the lower end of the poles for fifteen or six feet.

A Card of Thanks

I wish to thank the people of Clanton for their kindness in the sickness and death of my daughter, Leala Hester, and I also thank The Banner for the notice of her death. She is gone to join the friends that have gone before, and to be associated with her twin sister. I am not in a state of mind to write, but I feel like saying that never did a father and mother bury two children that were more kind, loving and obedient to parents. They never knew anything but to be sweet and loving, and so far as I know they loved everybody. I do thank God that my dear children that He has called home never cultivated the spirit of malice, and knew but little about, and oh, how sweet it is to live after the spirit of Christ, and in the by and by "See Him as He is and be like Him." And with a sad heart, yet full of gratitude to the people, I am

Sincerely,
S. M. ADAMS.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me space for a few words about Mr. Deason for Probate Judge.

Frst, I want to congratulate him on his nomination. I think it is a compliment to Mr. Deason, standing as he is at the head of the ticket, the youngest man on the ticket, and living right in the county in which he was reared, and I am sure a better man for the place could not be found anywhere. I am personally acquainted with him and know whereof I speak. He is fully qualified for the office and the people of Chilton owe it to him. They owe it to him because he is one of their own self- [illegible] young men. A man of rare opportunities, but, with his ambition and high aspirations, has made himself the very kind of a man we need in our public offices. And now gentlemen, he presents himself to the people of his home county and asks for the honor of Probate Judgeship.

I don't belive that boys who make themselves men in the broadest sense, in other words that goes down and gets it, receives the encouragement from their fellow citizens that is due them.

The man that makes himself is the man for me, and though I am not directly concerned about Chilton, I am indirectly, and shall do all in my power by writing letters to my friends, or any way, to cause the election of Mr. Deason in November.

But I am already confident of his success, because he is on the winning side, the right side, the side which is not connected with any dead issues, and the side upon which every Southern white man should be.

I close with these words, let every Democrat in old Chilton rally to the front in November and carry her for white supremacy.

Thorsby, July 4, 1904

Editor Banner—It is reported by some that Prof. R. A. Rasco had something to do with my letter written to the Banner last week. I want it distinctly understood by all that Prof. Rasco had nothing to do with my letter whatever, and knew nothing of it until he read it in the Banner. Therefore X Ray and Uncle Moses 2d, you missed the man when you said it was Rasco. To my own personal knowledge Prof. Rasco has done all he could to keep down these differences between the people. Prof. Rasco is a high toned gentleman, a man of deep convictions, a man who has his country at heart, a man who is always ready to assist in the uplifting of his fellowman, and if elected for county Supt. will make the best the county ever had or ever will have.

Now, X Ray and Moses the wise, if it suits you to stop at this and stop referring to Collins Chapel neighborhood, alright, but if not come again, you will find me always loaded for bear.

Clanton, Ala., July 11, 1904

Editor Banner:—Please say to the people of this county that the statement now being made by the Reynolds' gang that I am employed by the Democrats, is a positive and point-blank lie. There has been no trade or caucus, or hint of a trade, or any effort made by any Democrat to hire me to run for Probate Judge. Neither have I been influenced by any Democrat to fight the caucus or trade ticket. I am fighting the caucus and trade ticket for the good of my own constituents in the Populist and Republican parties.

I am only telling what I know myself and what I have gotten through others, and I feel sure the trade ticket is on or I would not speak of it. I am appealing to the people to vote free from any and all caucus schemes, and from any and all influences that may be brought to bear by any and all caucuses or any trade ticket, and I know my course is right.

The statement made by the Chairman of the Populist Executive Committee that he has reason to believe I am paid by the Democrats, is a lie, as he knows, having talked with me, that I am not running at the instigation of any Democrat. My object is not to raise trouble or create discord, but to save ourselves of all trouble and avoid the discord which trades and caucuses are liable to bring about.

Yours for the people's good,
S. J. JENNINGS.

Clanton, July 12, 1904

Editor Banner—I wish to make a statement in your paper, that people may know who they are voting for.

Some time ago I bought a tract of land from Mr. L. H. Reynolds, paying him $160 for it. He assured me that the title to the said land was alright. I had not dealt in land or real estate, therefore had no experience in same and he thus took advantage of my lack of knowledge, for after improving said land to a considerable extent I was surprised to find that it was public land and had been entered by a third party. I also found that he had given me a quit claim deed to the land. I have repeatedly asked Mr. Reynolds to make this matter good, but he has never satisfied me to the amount of one cent.

If you want to know anything more about this matter you can find the deed on record, or come to see me at my home 3½ miles northeast of Clanton. T. J. MIMS.

BASE BALL.

In one of the closest and most exciting ball games witnessed on the local diamond this season, the Clanton boys defeated the Rough Heads by a score of 11 to 9. Batteries—Simpson and Johnson; Headley, Burkhalter and Headley. The Clanton team plays Jemison here Friday.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. There is not probably one case of bowel complaint in a hundred, however, that could not be cured by the timely use of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. TO THE PUBLIC.

Rumors are prevalent in some portions of the county, that persons have been placed on the Confederate pension list, who are not justly entitled to participate in this benefaction of the State, to the old soldiers, for whose benefit it was appropriated.

Several anonymous communications have also been received by members of the Pension Board, containing allegations of a like character.

This is to give notice that if any responsible parties will come before the Board with proper proof, they will take cognizance of the matter, and if the evidence warrants such action, will eliminate all unworthy applicants from the pension list of this county, and for this purpose a meeting of the Pension Board will be held in Clanton on Thursday, July 20, 1904.

Minerals in Chilton.

Mountain Creek, July 12, 1904

Editor Banner—As the Banner has a large circulation I would like it to publish about the mineral resources of Chilton county, there is a great deal said about minerals of other counties in the State. I have been in the mineral business for sixty years and Chilton county is the richest mineral county in the Southern States. If anyone will go to Judge Honeycutt's, in the centre of the mineral section, they can see the veins of gold, graphite, black lead, fire clay and other minerals. A mile from Cooper station is glass sand; to the right of Jemison is kaolin. Miss Corine Reid has four hundred acres of land in one body that has two gold veins running through. Right above Dr. McNeill has a gold vein. They cross Mulberry creek and then cross the other fork at Honeycutt's. Mr. Oden has the Reid veins running through his land. There is fine iron ore in Chilton and some coal. Judge Honeycutt can show the minerals to anyone that will go to his house. I am now at the Soldiers' Home and will go with any company wanting mineral lands. I have every kind of minerals located. There is gold veins in Chilton county that will run two hundred dollars to the ton.

Cedar Springs.

Crops are fine in this section. I think we shall have corn tassels and cotton blooms by the 20th, if it rains again.

Our school which has been small the past month, is some better now. I think we are ahead of any community in the county. We have kept our school going all through the crop season.

Preaching at the school house every second Sunday.

Prof. Williams visited parents and friends on Mulberry, and at Clanton the Fourth.

Mr. Jerome Williams, who has been in school here for some time, has returned home.

In the Birmingham Union of June 30th, we had what I call a wise case of economy. One of our Republican candidates proposes to bet "a chaw of terbacker" against a hundred dollars. Doubtless he fears to wager more than one chew and risk making it out of the office which he seeks. DANTES.

10 per cent Dividend Declared by Strock's Store on Shoes.

But who gets the dividend, or profits, that have been declared? It is not often that anyone shares in the profits of a business except those who own shares, or the owner. But in this case we have thrown wide open the door, and propose to give 10 per cent of the profits on our shoes to outsides. Yes, 10 per cent of the profits on our shoe trade are going to outsiders and you may share in this if you wish. And this is no fictitious matter or scheme. It is just a plain simple fact—we are doing just what we say we are doing.

How is this being done? Well, we have 300 pair of shoes which we will sell at a reduction of 10 per cent.

10 per cent in your pocket, 10 per cent out of our pocket—that is just what it is.

Would you like to share in these profits? Come right on and let us show you.

SKETCH OF HENRY G. DAVIS.

Democracy's Candidate for the Vice Presidency.

Henry G Davis the democratic nominee for vice president is a resident of Piedmont W Va Mr Davis is more than 80 years of age He was reared on a farm and when 20 years of age went into the service of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company for which institution he worked fourteen years.

In 1858 he began mining coal in the neighborhood of Piedmont W Va and about the same time started a banking institution which soon became the Piedmont National bank.

He was elected to the West Virginia legislature in 1865 and to the state senate in 1868 and 1870.

He was a member of the democratic national convention which nominated Horatio Seymour in 1868, and in 1872 which nominated Horace Greely Mr Davis was elected to the United States senate in 1870 and served two full terms.

Mr Davis at this time is the unanimous choice of West Virginia democrats as their candidate for governor His nomination to make his party's race with Judge Parker will of course eliminate him from this contest.

A strange coincidence in connection with Mr Davis' nomination is the fact that he is the father in law of Stephen B Elkins, republican United States senator from West Virginia, and one of the foremost men of his party.

Most of the Fall River Mass., cotton mills resumed operation Monday after a ten days' shut down Many of the manufacturers are tiring of the curtail policy which has been in force nearly four months, and as soon as a new agreement being worked out by many members of the Fall River Manufacturers' Association, is formally assented to, it is expected the mills will be more active The operatives, of whom there are more than 25,000 in the cloth mills, are restless over the situation. They have sustained a loss in wages during the spring and summer amounting to a reduction of 40 per cent.

Fatal Assault.

At Greensboro, Ind., Mrs. William Starbuck died Monday from the effects of injuries received at the hands of unknown persons who are being trailed by bloodhounds. She and her child were found at the bottom of an abandoned well, one-eighth of a mile from home. Mrs. Starbuck was delirous and at no time did she recover conciousness sufficiently to give any information as to the identity of her assailants. During her delirium she was continually crying out, "What are you doing here?" and "What are you going to do?"

HON. CHAMP CLARK

Named Permanent Chairman of Democratic Convention. Second Day's Doings.

AN OVATION GIVEN TO BRYAN.

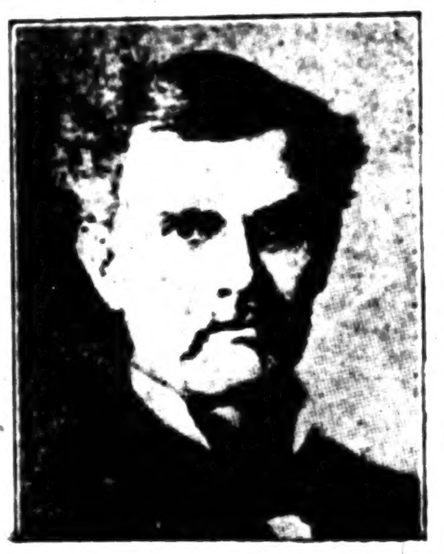
Parker Banners Unfurled in Several States—Some of the Committee Work—For Second Place.

The democratic national convention entered upon the second day's session, the scenes of the day before having the effect of heightening interest in the proceedings.

The day opened fair, the haze which hung over the city during the earlier hours being dissipated as the morning wore on.

The developments of the night aroused still greater interest in the convention, leaving much to be anticipated. Many of the delegates worked late into the night on committees.

The credentials committee did not adjourn until after 4 o'clock this morning, while a subcommittee of the committee on resolutions labored until after the midnight hour.



JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS.

An interesting feature of the proceedings before the committee on credentials was the appearance at 3 a. m. of William J. Bryan, after the Illinois contest had been disposed of. He asked for a reconsideration of these cases that he might make a minority report. The committee ruled that no reconsideration was necessary, and Mr. Bryan was told to make his minority report.

He asked those members who would sign it to stand up, and the delegates from Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Minnesota and Rhode Island arose. This action foreshadowed that Mr. Bryan would make a fight on the floor of the convention. The committee sustained the action of the national committee in all of the contested cases save that from the twenty-first Illinois.

Another development of the night was the declination of Senator Bailey to accept the permanent chairmanship. He stated that he desired to be on the floor when the platform was under discussion. The place was tendered to Champ Clark, of Missouri, whose address was awaited with keen interest, as he is known to be a good speaker.

The situation surrounding the platform likewise engrossed attention on account of the protracted sessions of the committee on resolutions, and the sub-committee.

Two new delegation emblems were on the floor—those of Porto Rico and the Philippines. They were less ornate and showy than those of the other delegations, being merely large squares of white pasteboard.

Five members of the committee on permanent organization who were in the hall at 10 o'clock stated they had not been informed of a second meeting to elect a permanent chairman. It was argued that no authority exists for holding a session today unless all members of the committee are notified. It was agreed that if Representative Champ Clark's name is presented, however informally, no objection would be raised.

The second session of the democratic national convention was called to order at 10:13. Temporary Chairman John Sharp Williams was given a round of applause when he appeared on the platform. As soon as he had produced quiet he introduced Archbishop John Glennon, of St. Louis, who delivered the invocation.

Immediately after the invocation Chairman Williams called for the report of the committee on rules and order of busiess. "The gentleman from New York is recognized," announced the chairman. Delegate Thomas Grady reported for the committee. The report was adopted without opposition or discussion.

Mr. Grady next read the report concerning Porto Rico and the Philippines according the delegates from Porto Rico seats and votes in the convention. Demands to have the report read were shouted from the Minnesota and Wisconsin delegates.

Chairman Williams sharply reprimanded the persistence of the demand, saying the report would be read if the delegates would allow it by keeping quiet.

Arguing for the adoption of the report, Mr Grady said the national committee had decided to include Porto Rico in the call of the convention.

The committee had to consider the question he said, as to whether these delegates had the right to vote. The supreme court of the United States had decided that Porto Rico was a part of the territory of the United States. The same court had decided that the Philippines was not a part of the United States. The committee had followed the court and given Porto Rico votes and withheld votes from the Philippines.

The report was adopted.

The secretary announced that the permanent organization committee was not ready to make a report and desired a conference of the committee at once.

"The next thing in the order of business," said the chairman, "is the report of the committee on credentials."

The clerk made a second announcement on the call for the credentials committee's report. That committee had just announced that it would not be prepared to report till 2 o'clock.

The chair then recognized W. G. Sheedy of New York, who moved that a recess be taken till 2 o'clock. The convention was instantly in an uproar of confusion as the delegates and visitors arose to leave.

The motion to take a recess was agreed to by a viva voca vote and the morning session came to a close at 11:04.

The sub-committee of the committee on resolutions continued its work on the platform. Mr. Bryan and two other members were absent but the committee decided to proceed in their absence with the consideration of questions in which they were not especially concerned.

Accordingly the irrigation plank presented by Mr. Newlands was taken up and tentatively accepted.

Consideration of the proposed statehood declarations was then entered upon. A plank for separate statehood for each of the territories was inserted.

During the forenoon Ex-Senator Towne was admitted to the committee room to present a petition signed by 10,000 persons requesting the insertion of a plank calling for the independence of the Philippines when prepared for self government.

The committee agreed upon a plank declaring for the election of senators by direct vote of the people.

Telegrams have been sent by democratic officials of Utah to D. B. Hill, W. J. Bryan and other prominent democratic leaders, and to members of the delegates from other states strongly opposing the insertion of an anti-polygamy plank on the democratic national convention, and urging them to vote down the plank on this subject, which, it is understood, is being urged by Senator Dubois, of Idaho. The telegrams to former Senator Hill were especially emphatic. A telegram was received from National Committeeman Perry today stating that compromise plan had been agreed upon which will not be offensive to Utah Mormons.

The committee on permanent organization of the national democratic convention accepted the formal declination of Senator Bailey as permanent chairman. Champ Clark, of Missouri, was elected and has accepted.

The demonstration made by the national democratic convention at the mention of the name of Grover Cleveland by John Sharp Williams was the absorbing topic of conversation in the hotel corridors last night and this morning, and while the boom for Mr. Cleveland was not revived by the outburst of enthusiasm it was conclusive of the high regard in which he is held by a goodly portion of the convention.

It is agreed generally that there will be two reports submitted by the subcommittee appointed to draft a platform and that two reports likewise will be submitted by the full committee to the convention. The fight on the floor of the convention, it is expected, will be led by the old time rivals David B. Hill and William Jennings Bryan, recalling the celebrated contest in the 1896 convention.

Victory, however, will not come shift standards and Hill will have the satisfaction of redeeming the defeat of eight years ago. Even the conservatives are divided over some planks of the platform, so that the committee on platform may not be able to report before Friday.

It is the consensus of opinion that Temporary Chairman Williams' speech was a masterly effort.

With one exception—the contest in the twenty-first Illinois district—the credentials committee of the national democratic convention followed the lead of the national committee and seated the delegates recommended as the temporary roll of the convention.

The feature of the session was the declaration of W. J. Bryan who paid the committee a call at 3 a. m. that he should make the Illinois contest an issue on the floor of the convention.

With the promise of a contest of giant orators over the adoption of the report of the committee on credentials the hall filled early for the afternoon session of the convention.

As he was going into the hall Champ Clark said: "I have received a cordial telegram from Senator Cockrell saying he would be glad for me to act as permanent chairman. If we don't get blocked, I see no reason why we should not dispose of the nomination for a president some time tonight. I shall call the vice chairman to the chair when Missouri's name is called and will nominate Cockrell. I was determined no one should say I had done anything to endanger his chances."

At 2:13 Mr. Bryan entered the hall and was cheered heartily. The movement began in the galleries in the center of the hall and spread to the platform. Some of the delegates also joined in the cheering. A majority of the delegates remained seated during the demonstration, which continued for many minutes.

The raising of the banner of Nebraska provoked a continuation of the cheering. The standards of Missouri, Iowa, North Dakota and Kentucky were carried to Nebraska with a tremendous din. All this was done while delegates were almost wholly in their seats.

A Parker banner was next unfurled, causing the wildest possible scene, the entire convention apparently joining in the uproar. It was lifted by Georgia. South Carolina and Arkansas went up, too.

At 2:30 Alabama's banner had joined the others. Pennsylvania's standard also moved. New Jersey's standard was carried up. Indiana joined the others and Connecticut followed. West Virginia's was also put forward.

The Bryanites hissed the name of Parker as the Georgians shouted it.

At 2:34 the convention was quieting down after eighteen minutes of tumult.

Temporary Chairman Williams announced the order of business through a megaphone. He called for the report of the committee on credentials. At 2:40 Mr. Bryan proceeded to the platform. He carried with him to the platform a document which was evidently the minority report of the committee on credentials, whose report had been called for.

When the convention adjourns today it will be until 10 o'clock tomorrow morning when the committee on platform will report.

The committee gave hearing to every contest presented except that of Dr. Mary Walker, asking a seat in the convention as the woman representative of the democrats of New York. Dr. Walker waited patiently the indulgence of the committee until a late hour and then gave up in despair.

The Maine contest involving three seats, was decided against the Hearst delegates and in favor of those on the temporary roll. The New Jersey contests were decided in the same way.

It was said that Mr. Bryan would make his greatest effort before the convention in speaking to a minority report from the committee on credentials. He has secured the proxy of Mr. Casper, the Nebraska member of the committee and will himself present the minority report. At the same time it is understood he will not attempt to fight the report of the committee on resolutions.

S. H. Cowan, of Fort Worth, Tex., was admitted to present the following proposed plank in the interest of cattle shippers: "We favor such amendments to the act to regulate commerce as will afford to the public and to shippers a speedy, adequate and effectual remedy against unreasonable or otherwise unlawful transportation charges."

Mr. Bryan went direct from the convention after adjournment to the committee on platform and immediately entered upon the work in hand there.

W. J. Shultheis called out some of the members of the committee to urge upon them the importance of a vigorous protest against the non-enforcement of the eight-hour law.

Dr. Mary Walker, attired in her usual garb of Prince Albert coat and trousers, was the first person to enter the committee room, and she remained throughout the proceedings. She claims a seat in the convention. She says she was regularly elected a woman delegate by the democrats of Oswego, N. Y., and will make a contest to be seated.

The committee took a short recess in order to secure from the national committee the record of the contests heard by that body.

By a unanimous vote the committee decided to award six seats and six votes each to the delegation from the Philippines and the Porto Rican delegation.

The Hearst delegates declare that they will carry the Illinois contest to the floor of the convention and fight to the last.

For second place on the ticket it can hardly be said that speculation centers on any one man. A half dozen names are on the tongues of the crowds.

Among those mentioned for second place were George Turner, of [illegible]ington, Judge Judson Harmon, of Ohio, J. R. Williams [illegible] E. Stevenson, of Illinois [illegible] Folk, of Missouri [illegible] Wisconsin. Sam[illegible] mer Illinois [illegible] James R. K[illegible] [illegible]

Discreet inquiries of the state department into the object of the British Thibetan expedition appear to have developed a rather curious fact—namely, that the British home government was lukewarm if not absolutely indifferent in the matter of sending Younghusband's expedition toward L'Hassa. THE DEMOCRATIC PLATFORM

The full platform as unanimously adopted by the committee on platform and resolutions and immediately reported to the national democratic convention is as follows:

The Democratic party of the United States in national convention assembled, declares its devotion to the political principles of democracy which bring its members together in party communion.

Under them local self-government and national unity of prosperity were established.

They uphold our independence, the structure of our free republic and every democratic extension from Louisiana to California and Texas to Oregon, which is reserved faithfully to all the states the ties between taxation and representation. They yet intrust the masses of our people, guarding jealously their rights and liberties and cherishing their fraternity, peace and orderly development. They recognize as of our duties and responsibilities as citizens and impress upon us, particularly at this time, the necessity of reform and the rescue of the administration of government from the blighting arbitrary and spasmodic methods which distract business by uncertainties and pervade the public mind with dread, distrust and perplexities.

1. The application of these fundamental principles to the living issues of the day is the first step toward assured peace, safety and progress in our nation. Freedom of the press, of conscience and of speech—equality before the law of all citizens, right of trial by jury, freedom of the person secured by the merit of habeas corpus, liberty of personal contract, unrestricted by sumptuary laws, supremacy of the civil over military authority, a well-defined militia, the separation of church and state, economy in expenditures, low taxes that labor may be lightly burdened, prompt and sacred fulfillment of public and private obligations, fidelity to treaties, peace and friendship with all nations, entangling alliances with none, abolescence in the will of the majority, the vital principle of republics—these six doctrines which democracy has established, approved by the world and they should be constantly applied and enforced.

We favor the enactment and administration of laws giving labor and capital impartially their just rights. Capital and labor ought not to be enemies. Each is necessary to the other. Each has its rights, but the rights of labor are certainly no less "vested," no less "sacred" and no less "inalienable" than the rights of capital.

[illegible] antees are violated whenever any citizen is denied the right to labor, acquire and enjoy property or reside where interest or inclination may determine. Any denial thereof, by individuals, organizations or governments should be summarily resisted or punished.

We deny the right of any executive to discard or suspend any constitutional privilege or limitation. Obedience to the laws and respect for their requirements are alike the supreme duty of the citizen and the official.

The military should be used only to support and maintain the law. We unqualifiedly condemn its employment for the summary banishment of citizens without trial or for the control of elections.

We approve the measure which passed the United States senate in 1900, but which a republican congress has ever since refused to enact, relating to contempts in federal courts and providing for trial by jury in cases of indirect contempt.

We favor liberal appropriations for the care and improvement of the waterways of the country. When any river like the Mississippi river is of sufficient size to demand special aid from the government, such aid should be extended with a definite plan of completing work until permanent improvement is secured. We oppose the republican policy of starving home development in order to feed the greed of congress and the appetite for national "prestige" and display of strength.

Large reductions can easily be made in the annual expenditures of the government without impairing the efficiency of any branch of the public service, and we shall insist upon the strictest economy and frugality combined with vigorous and efficient army, military and naval administration, for a right of the people, too clear to be denied or withheld.

2. We favor the enforcement of honesty in the public service and to that end a thorough legislative investigation of the executive departments of the government already known to be rife with corruption, and the punishment of ascertained corruptionists without fear or favor, or regard to persons. The persistent and deliberate refusal of both the senate and the house of representatives to permit such investigation to be made, demonstrates that only by a change in the executive and in the legislative departments can complete exposure, punishment and correction be obtained.

Federal Government Contract With

We condemn the action of the republican party in congress in refusing to prohibit an executive department from entering into contracts with convicted trusts or unlawful combinations in restraint of interstate trade. We believe that one of the best methods of procuring honesty in the public service is to have public officials from the white house down to the lowest of them returned as nearly as may be to Jeffersonian simplicity of living.

We favor the nomination and election of a president imbued with the principles of the constitution who will set his face sternly against executive usurpation if the usurpation be veiled under the guise of executive construction of existing laws or whether it take refuge in the tyrant's plea of necessity of superior wisdom.

We favor the preservation in so far as we can of an open door of the world's commerce in the Orient without unnecessary entanglement in Oriental and European affairs, and without arbitrary, unlimited, irresponsible government anywhere in our jurisdiction. We oppose as fervently as did George Washington himself indefinite, irresponsible, discretionary and vague absolutism, and a policy of colonial exploitation, no matter where or by whom invoked or exercised. We believe with Thomas Jefferson and John Adams that no government has a right to make one set of laws for those "at home" and another and a different set of laws, absolute in their character, for those "in the colonies." All men under the American flag are entitled to the protection of the institutions whose emblem the flag is; if they are inherently unfit for those institutions, then they are inherently unfit to be members of the American body politic. Wherever there may exist a people incapable of being governed under American laws in consonance with the American constitution, the territory of that people ought not to be a part of the American domain.

We insist that we ought to do for the Filipinos what we have done already for the Cubans. And it is our duty to make that promise now and upon suitable guarantees of protection to citizens of our own and other countries resident there at the time of our withdraw, set the Filipino people upon their feet, free and independent to work out [illegible]

The endeavor of the [illegible] of war by pledging the government's indorsement for "promoters" in the Philippine Islands to make the United States a partner in speculative exploitation of the archipelago, which was only temporarily held up by the opposition of democratic senators in the last session, will, if successful, lead to embarrassments from which it will be difficult to escape.

The democratic party has been and will continue to be the consistent opponent of that class of tariff legislation by which certain interests have been permitted through congressional favor to draw a heavy tribute from the American people. This monstrous perversion of those equal opportunities which our political institutions were established to secure has caused what may once have been infant industries to become the greatest combinations of capital that the world has ever known. These especial favorites of the government have, through trust methods, been converted into monopolies, thus bringing to an end domestic competition which was the only alleged check upon the extravagant system. These industrial combinations, by the financial assistance they can give, now control the policy of the republican party.

We denounce protection as a robbery of the many and enrichment of the few and we favor a tariff limited to the needs of the government economically administered and so levied as not to discriminate against any industry, class or section to the end that the burdens of taxation shall be distributed as equally as possible.

We favor a revision and gradual reduction of the tariff by the friends of the masses, and for the common weal and not by the friends of its abuses, its extortions and its discriminations, keeping in view the ultimate ends of "equality of burdens and equality of opportunities, and the constitutional purpose of raising a revenue by taxation, to-wit: the support of the federal government in all its integrity and virility; but in simplicity."

We recognize that the gigantic trusts and combinations designed to enable capital to secure more than its just share of the joint products of capital and labor, and which have been fostered and promoted under republican rule are a menace to the beneficial competition, and an obstacle to permanent business prosperity.

A private monopoly is indefensible and intolerable.

Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity and any trust, combination or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition or fixing prices should be prohibited and punished by law.

We especially denounce rebates and discrimination by transportation companies as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracies against trade.

We demand an enlargement of the powers of the interstate commerce commission to the end that the traveling men and shippers of this country may have prompt and adequate relief for the abuses to which they are subjected in the matter of transportation. We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations and monopolies, and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary to effectually suppress them.

Any trust or unlawful combination engaged in interstate commerce which is monopolizing any branch of business or reduction should not be permitted to transact business outside of the state of its origin. Whenever it shall be established in any court of competent jurisdiction that such monopolization exists, such prohibition should be enforced through comprehensive laws to be enacted on the subject.

We congratulate our western citizens upon the passage of the law known as the Newlands irrigation act for the irrigation and reclamation of the arid lands of the west—a measure framed by a democrat, passed in the senate by a non-partisan vote and passed in the house against the opposition of almost all the republican leaders by a vote the majority of which was democratic. We call attention to this great democratic measure, broad and comprehensive as it is, working automatically throughout all time without further action of congress until the reclamation of all the lands in the arid west capable of reclamation is accomplished, reserving the lands reclaimed for home seekers in small tracts, and rigidly guarding against land monopoly as an evidence of the policy of domestic developments contemplated by the democratic party should it be placed in power.

The democracy when entrusted with power will construct the Panama canal speedily, honestly and economically, thereby giving to our people what democrats have always contended for—a great oceanic canal furnishing shorter and cheaper lines of transportation and less trammeled trade relations with the other peoples of the world.

We pledge ourselves to insist upon the just and lawful protection of our citizens at home and abroad, and to use all proper measures to secure for them, whether native-born or naturalized, and without distinction of race or creed, the equal protection of laws and the enjoyment of all rights and privileges open to them under the covenants of our treaties of friendship and commerce; and if under existing treaties the right to travel and sojourn is denied to American citizens or recognition is withheld from American passports by any countries on the ground of race or creed, we favor the beginning of negotiations with the governments of such countries to secure by new treaties the removal of these unjust discriminations.

We demand that all over the world a duly authenticated passport issued by the government of the United States to an American citizen shall be proof of the fact that he is an American citizen and shall entitle him to the treatment due him as such.

We favor the election of United States senators by the direct vote of the people.

We favor the admission of the territories of Oklahoma and the Indian Territory. We also favor the immediate admission of Arizona and New Mexico as separate states and a territorial government for Alaska and Porto Rico.

We hold that the officials appointed to administer the government of any territory as well as with the district of Alaska should be bona fide residents at the time of their appointment of the territory or district in which their duties are to be performed.

We demand the extermination of polygamy within the jurisdiction of the United States, and the complete separation of church and state in political affairs.

We denounce the ship subsidy bill recently passed by the United States senate as an iniquitous appropriation of public money for private purposes and a wasteful, illogical and useless attempt to overcome by subsidy the obstructions raised by republican legislation to the growth and development of American commerce on the sea.

We favor the upbuilding of American merchant marine without new or additional burdens upon the people and without bounties from the public treasury.

We favor liberal trade arrangements with Canada and with people of other countries where they can be entered into with benefit to American agriculture, manufactures, mining and commerce.

We favor the maintenance of the Monroe doctrine in its full integrity.

We favor the reduction of the army and army expenditures to the point historically demonstrated to be safe and sufficient.

The democracy would secure to the surviving soldiers and sailors and their dependents generous pensions, not by an arbitrary executive order, but by legislation which a grateful people stand ready to enact.

Our soldiers and sailors who defend with their lives the constitution and the laws have a sacred interest in their just administration. They must therefore, share with us the humiliation with which we have witnessed the exaltation of court favorites without distinguished service over the scarred heroes of many battles, or aggrandized by executive appropriations out of the treasuries of a prostrate people in violation of the act of congress which fixes the compensation and allowances of the military officers.

The democratic party stands committed to the principles of civil service reform and we demand their honest, just and impartial enforcement.

We denounce the republican party for its continuous and sinister encroachment upon the spirit and operation of civil service rules whereby it has arbitrarily dispensed with examinations for office in the interests of favorites and employed all manner of devices to overreach and set aside the principles upon which the civil service was established.

The race question has brought countless woes to this country. The calm wisdom of the American people should see to it that it brings no more.

To revive the dead and hateful race and sectional animosities in our common country means confusion, distraction of business and the reopening of wounds now happily healed. North, south, east and west have but recently stood together in line of battle from the walls of Pekin and the hills of Santiago as sharers of a common glory and a common destiny; we share fraternally the common burdens. We, therefore, deprecate and condemn the Bourbon-like selfish and narrow spirit of the recent republican convention at Chicago which sought to kindle anew the embers of racial and sectional strife and we appeal from it to the sober common sense and patriotic spirit of the American people.

The existing republican administration has been spasmodic, erratic, sensational, spectacular and arbitrary. It has made itself a satire upon the congress, the courts and upon the settled practices and usages of national and international law.

It summoned the congress into hasty and futile extra session and virtually adjourned it, leaving behind in its flight from Washington full calendars an unaccomplished tasks.

It made war which is the sole power of congress without its authority thereby usurping one of its fundamental prerogatives. It violated a plain statute of the United States as well as plain treaty obligations, international usages and constitutional laws; and has done so under pretense of executing a great public policy which could have been more easily affected lawfully, constitutionally and with honor. It forced strained and unnatural constructions upon statutes, usurping judicial interpretation and substituting congressional enactment decree.

It withdrew from congress their customary duties of investigation which have heretofore made the representatives of the people of the states the terror of evil doers.

It conducted a secretive investigation of its own and boasted of a few sample convicts while it threw a broad coverlet over the burdens which had been their chosen field of operative abuses, and kept in power the superior officers under whose administration the crimes had been committed.

It ordered assault upon some monopolies, but paralyzed by its first victory, it flung out the flag of truce and cried out that it would not "run amuck"—leaving its future purposes beclouded by its vacciliations.

Conducting the campaign upon this declaration of our principles and purposes, we invoke for our candidates the support not only of our great and time-honored organization, but also the active assistance of all our fellow citizens who disregarding past differences upon questions, no longer in issue, desire the perpetuation of our constitutional government as framed and established by the fathers of the republic.

Aberdeen, Miss., is preparing to erect new waterworks, bonds having recently been issued for that purpose.

PARKER AND DAVIS

Is the Ticket Nominated by the Democratic Party. Convention Adjourned.

A TELEGRAM FROM PARKER

Concerning His Position on the Money Question Caused Lengthy Discussion.

Saturday, when the convention reassembled, the startling announcement was whispered around that a sensation was to be sprung upon the convention at the eleventh hour.

It developed that Judge Parker had telegraphed his views on finance in which he declared for the gold standard and suggested that the convention should know this fact that it might be given an opportunity to select some one else for the party nominee, should his view not be in accordance with those of the delegates.

There was a rumor that Bryan would come to the convention, although ill, and make a fight against a gold standard plank.

Finally, shortly after 7 o'clock, when the convention had ordered a ballot for the nominee for vice president, and it was proceeding, Senator Culberson of Texas said that before a vice president was nominated "we had better find out who is to be the candidate for president first." Carried.

A little later the convention was called to order.

Alabama was called several times with no response, but finally Mr. Russell, of that state announced that Alabama would give way to Illinois, and Freeman B. Morris, named James R. Williams of Illinois.

Colorado yielded to Washington, and Fredrick C. Robertson spoke for former Senator George Turner.

Deleware gave her place in the call to West Virginia, and John D. Alderson placed in nomination Henry G. Davis, of West Virginia.

David Overmeyer of Kansas placed former Senator William A. Harris of that state in nomination.

At 9:10 o'clock Chairman Clark pounded vigorously with his gavel. He did not formally call the convention to order, but as soon as some degree of quiet had been restored, Governor Vardaman of Mississippi proceeded to address the convention on the subject of the mysterious telegram.

"We are here for the purpose of acting for the democratic party of this nation," said Governor Vardman, "and I want to say to you, and I believe that I voice the sentiment of every member of this convention, when I say that we have not deliberated at all since we have been here." (Applause.) He called for the message.

Delegate Raines of New York asked that the motion be deferred until the chairman of his delegation could be heard from.

John S. Williams, Governor Vardman, Senator Tillman and Senator Carmack made their way to the platform with the mysterious message in their possession.

Chairman Clark pounded for order with John S. Williams standing by his side.

"I wish to announce in advance," said the chairman, "that on this important matter, every man shall have a fair and full hearing. I now introduce John Sharpe Williams of Mississippi."

Mr. Williams said:

A telegram has come from Mr. Parker to Mr. Sheehan, and it is so important that we should know what it is. When you shall have heard it, you will note that there is not one word about requiring or demanding or asking, or requesting that anything should be placed in the democratic platform. You will also note that if there is any error in it at all, it is an error of judgment proceeding from too sensitive spirit of honor. He then handed the message to Governor Vardman who after requesting absolute quiet, read the telegram as follows:

"Hon W. F. Sheehan, Hotel Jefferson, St. Louis, Mo.:

"I regard the gold standard as firmly and irrevocably established and shall act accordingly if the action of the convention today shall be ratified by the people. As the platform is silent upon the subject my views should be made known to the convention, and if it is proved to be unsatisfactory to the majority I request you to decline the nomination for me at once, so that another may be nominated before adjournment.

"ALTON B. PARKER."

The following reply was read:

"The platform adopted by this convention is silent on the question of money standard, because it is not regarded by us as a possible issue in the campaign, and only campaign issues were mentioned in the platform. Therefore there is nothing in the views expressed by you in the telegram just received which would preclude a man entertaining them from accepting a nomination on said platform."

During the reading Mr. Bryan came into the hall. Instantly there was an uproar. Calls of "Bryan, Bryan!" went up and the galleries cheered. Mr. Bryan made his way to the stage.

His face was white. His voice was weak and hoarse. He spoke with great effort but quietly and with self control.

His declaration that the sending of the telegram to Judge Parker was a declaration of the gold standard side, and his statement that if the democracy was to adopt such a view, it should be honest and say it frankly, was greeted with a shriek of applause from the galleries. Loud applause greeted Mr. Bryan's remark that it was a manly thing in Judge Parker to express his opinions before the convention adjourned, but would have been a manlier thing had he spoken before the convention met, was again cheered. He announced that he would propose an amendment to this message.

J. B. Weaver of Iowa who twelve years ago was the presidential nominee of the populist party spoke. To send the telegram was equivalent to saying "All right judge, anything you want we will accede." Both applause and groans met this statement.

The chairman recognized Mr. Bryan who presented an amendment to the reply to Judge Parker as follows:

"But as you will, of elected, be called upon to act upon certain phases of the money question, we would like to know whether you favor reducing the volume of silver dollars or whether you favor an asset currency and branch national banks, whether you prefer national bank currency to United States notes."

Representative John Sharpe Williams was recognized. He plunged without preface into a scathing arraignment of Mr. Bryan. Turning from time to time he faced Mr. Bryan who sat with immobile countenance and fanned himself. His voice trembling Mr. Williams declared that Mr. Bryan had presented the spectacle of a man pleading harmony when in all this great convention his had been the only voice of discord. The amendments to the Parker telegram he characterized as a "lot of foolish questions." Mr. Williams suddenly wheeled and facing those on the platform asked:

"Suppose we had nominated Mr. Bryan on that platform."

"God forbid," ejaculated Richmond Pearson Hobson. Mr. Bryan sprang to his feet.

"I am going to withdraw this amendment," said Mr. Bryan. Our delegation will vote for the candidate for vice president that New York wants. We are not going to do one thing to mar the harmony of the convention.

After some debate a roll call was ordered on the question of the adoption of the Williams reply to Judge Parker's message to Mr. Sheehan.

It resulted: ayes 774 noes 191, and was ordered sent.

The order of business now went back to the point where Governor Vardaman sprung the Parker telegram rumor and asked for a recess just as the roll of states was about to be called for the vote for a candidate for vice president, and the chair directed the roll should be called.

Alabama, Arkansas and California went solidly for Davis, Turner scored seven on the Colorado vote and Williams received three at the same time. The final result of the first ballot was unofficially: Williams, 165; Turner, 100; Davis, 654; Harris, 58.

Iowa did not vote. The nomination of Davis was made unanimous. It was resolved that a full report of the proceedings of the convention should be printed.

Delegate John Lamb, of Indiana moved that the democratic national committee be authorized to fill any vacancy that might occur on the national ticket.

Chairman Champ Clark and Temporary Chairman John Sharpe Williams were made respectively chairmen of the committees to notify Judge Parker and ex-Senator Davis of their nomination. It was also announced that the new national committee would meet in New York on a date to be fixed by the chairman.

At 1:31 o'clock Senator McCreary adjourned the convention sine die, the band playing "Auld Lang Syne."

Fire Friday morning destroyed the store of Holmes Brothers, Jackson, Miss. The loss will be about $20,000. The origin of the fire is thought to have been incendiary.

When asked tonight after the debate on the reply to Judge Parker whether it is his intention to support the ticket, Mr. Bryan said:

"I have not yet considered that question sufficiently to reply, but I will make my position known in due time." I have nothing to say except that I expect to cast my vote for the ticket."

During the week of July 4, 592,302 persons visited the world's fair.

The following telegram was sent by William R. Hearst to A. B. Parker:

"I congratulate you upon your nomination and upon the expression of democratic principles in the platform on which you stand. I hope and believe that battling for the people and for such principles you will lead the democracy to victory."

ACCORDING to a St. Petersburg dispatch the Japanese lost 30,000 men in an assault on Post Arthur, but it may be well to await confirmatory evidence before believing the report.

THE nomination of Alton B. Parker for President, and Henry G. Davis for Vice-President appears to meet with unanimous approval by Democrats throughout the country, which augurs a triumphant victory in November. All differences of opinion on minor matters have for the nonce been buried, and the Democratic party is solidly united in support of the platform and of the nominees.

Hope and Harmony.

The action of the St. Louis convention has made certain one thing beyond preadventure—the Democratic party is united for the first time in a decade and has on its fighting clothes.

There is the strongest kind of a reason to hope for victory next November. The action of the convention both as to issues and ticket, which sufficed to harmonize all factions within the party, will insure an aggressive and exceedingly popular campaign by the democracy—a campaign certain to make many Republican proselytes and to draw to the ticket the support of a large independent vote. The situation already makes States normally Republican doubtful, and some States classed as doubtful almost certainly Democratic. There will be a revolutionary realignment in the electoral college this year.

Today as never before in long years the Democrats have a magnificent esprint de corps—a morale that will restore them to a long and splendid tenure of power in national administration. This spirit of aggressive unity, born in an hour at St. Louis, is destined to gather strength with every day of the campaign so happily inaugurated.

It is the duty of all Democrats, no matter what their convictions on concrete phases or isms, to cultivate this new spirit of harmony. It means not only a reunited party, but as certain as there is a sun in heaven, a victorious party and a long restoration to power.—Atlanta Constitution.

BIG BARBECUE OF BEAT 3

The citizens of Beat 3 will give a free-for-all barbecue and basket dinner on Friday, July 22, on the Fonnie Williams place between Mulberry church and Nix's gin.

The citizens of Beat 3, are determined to eclipse the celebrated Clanton barbecue and that at Klinners last Saturday, and are making preparations for the grandest turnout ever known in this part of the county. A brass band will furnish music throughout the day.

Hon. S. J. Bowie, Governor Cunningham and other speakers will address the people on the Political issues of the day.

Everybody invited to come out and have a real good time.

THEY WON'T FORGET IT.

In putting a little white girl and a little negro boy on the platform side by side at the Roosevelt convention in Chicago, the Republican party did just exactly what was expected of it. Fathers of little white girls throughout the country will remember this tableau in November.—Houston. (Tex.) Post.

It was not only an outrage upon the innocent little girl, but it was an insult to American womanhood. It was something that the American will not forget whether they reside in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas, or in Illinois, Indiana and Ohio. The white people of America are opposed to thus placing the negro upon an equality with the whites, and they will resent it in no uncertain tones when the November election is held.

There was no occasion for such an exhibition, and none but a convention of men dominated by Theodore Roosevelt would have permitted such a thing to occur. This, together with the negro plank of the platform, if there were nothing else, should be enough to cause every self respecting white man in the United States to turn from the Republican party and Roosevelt in loathing and disgust. It is enough to sicken the stoutest of hearts.

The Post truly says, "Fathers of little white girls throughout the country will remember this tableau in November."—Columbus, (Ga.) Enquirer Sun.

Weekly Crop Bulletin.

For week ending Monday July 11, 1904.

The week, as a whole, was favorable for crop growth; temperatures averaged very nearly normal, with very general and beneficial rains; in some places too much rain was received, but in few scattered localities more is needed; high winds were slightly damaging in a few localities. Cotton is making generally good growth and continues to fruit well; there are a few reports of lice, rust, and blight, and some fields are getting grassy, though the crop, as a whole, is now promising, with much of it laid by. Corn, both early and late, is generally promising, though in some places early corn is a failure, from effect of previous drought. Gardens and all minor crops are doing well, except where rain is needed; melons are being marketed in good condition; field peas, sorghum, and cane are generally quite promising; pastures have improved, and the second cutting of hay promises a good yield; wheat is being thrashed slowly, with a good yield; a large peach crop is being marketed, though wet weather has caused peaches and grapes to rot in some sections. A period of dry weather would now be beneficial in nearly all districts.

Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

This Remedy is certain to be needed in almost every home before the summer is over. It can always be depended upon even in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is especially valuable for summer disorders in children. It is pleasant to take and never fails to give prompt relief. Why not buy it now? It may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Fall Planting of Sugar Cane.

I advocate fall planting of sugar cane as much as possible. In this section the possibility of so doing is very much a question of securing the necessary labor, for the necessary operation must, if at all, be carried on while cutting cane for the mill. Cutting cane for planting too early in the season and while it is immature is injurious, I think, both to the seed and the stubble left. Fall planting is desirable because it saves one handling, during which cane is always more or less injured, no matter how carefully done; because cane properly planted and covered on well drained lands becomes assimilated to the soil, germinates early in the spring, giving an earlier plant.—G. A. Breaux, Louisiana.

THE KLINNER BARBECUE.

Editor Banner: I attended the speaking and barbecue at Tom Klinners' on last Saturday and, all in all, had a fine time. As far as I was able to learn, the dinner was bountifully and the meat as well prepared as I ever saw. There were six or seven hundred people in attendance, and most all seemed delighted when, at about 11 o'clock, it was learned that Judge Terry Richardson of Montgomery was on the ground and would address them upon the political issues of the day.

Mr. Reynolds, Populi-Republico candidate for Probate Judge was on hand. He addressed the people first, and made one of his characteristic speeches of hot air, bombast and general tyrade of abuse of the Democratic party for what it used to do.

Judge Richardson was then introduced and spoke for 35 or 40 minutes. The Judge said that he was not there in the the interest of any man or set of men, but was there in the interest of the Democratic party and white supremacy, and that he is ready to do all in his power to defeat the party that sent negroes to a national convention not long since to nominate a man for President, (Roosevelt) and some of them were placed on the committee on platform.

The people were very attentive to the judge's speech and applauded him enthusiastically, and I feel sure his speech did much good, and that we should have some more such speeches. Come again Judge.

Yours for Democracy,
BEAT 3 VOTER.

Fairview.

Editor Banner:—Please allow me a short space in your most valuable paper.

First, I want to congratulate the Sunday School Boy at Collins Chapel. I would not write this, but I have heard so much talk about the Sunday School Boy's piece. The truth you told about the Republicans and the Republican rally, peals the skin from some, but let it come.

Now a word to the man who wrote a piece from Kincheon last week. Let me ask you to accept my heartfelt thanks for writing that piece. Moses needed some one to slam him. Don't you suppose, if the people would act so foolish as to elect him as Tax Collector, that he would have to get some one to attend to the office for him? If our county cannot furnish a man that is more competent than Moses we had better send some one to school and qualify him for the business. Say, Moses, do you remember that nice piece of poetry? Moses, would you like to know how you stand in our community? I think probably you will get four votes, minus five.

Now, Mr. Editor is this worse on Moses than his piece was on the Sunday School Boy?

I don't believe there has been anything said about our speaking the fourth Saturday night.

Yes, Mr. Reynolds made his same old talk, no improvements, and Mr. Pounds made a very good postoffice talk.

Well, the Cooper man is having a nice time to air this week.

Hoping to hear from the Chapel boy again soon, and asking the Editor to not get worried in printing politics, I will quit. J. Z.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, July 11, 1904

I met one of the officers of the World's Fair the other day and asked him about hotel accommodations and prevailing prices and he said to me:

World's Fair visitors naturally wish to ascertain, before starting for St. Louis, whether they will have difficulty in securing lodging and whether the cost of living has been increased to exorbitant figures. The assertion may cause surprise, but it is not less true, that the cost of food and lodging is scarcely any greater than under normal conditions. The visitor who exercises ordinary prudence will manage to get good quarters at low moderate rates. The hotels and rooming houses can accomodate 200,000 guests, without crowding, and they offer good accomodations. The prices for rooms are from 50 cents a day up. Excellent lodging may be secured at $1 a day. Meals cost from 25 cents up. The average price of a meal—single order—in the better hotels is 50 cents, and in some of the better restaurants a good meal can be obtained for 35 cents. Meals cost whatever the guest desires to pay for them. The cost necessarily depends on the purse and the fancy. The World's Fair Bureau has directed the accommodations problem systematically, and has thereby succeeded in regulating the capacity to the demand and the prices to the advantage of all concerned. Bureaus of Information, where reliable information is offered to those who apply, has been installed in Union Station and in the Administration Building in the World's Fair grounds, as well as in various parts of the city. Preparations are such that visitors may be assured in advance, that they will have no trouble in getting good lodging and at reasonable cost. With regular hotel accommodations for 200,000 persons St. Louis is convinced that it can show its guests the hospitality which they have a right to expect. Every precaution is taken to keep prices down to a fair level. The service feature is well organized. It is appreciated that the city would be injured if guests were mistreated, and the object is, therefore, to see that there is no extortion or overcrowding."

As to the Republican platform made at the "canned convention" in Chicago, it can be no better characterized than in the language of the Hon. William S. Cowherd, Chairman of the Democratic congressional committee, who said of it:

"The negro plank is the only honest plank in the platform, and it is infamous. McKinley's noble utterances above Southern graves, his openly recognized policy of a white rule for Southern states was thought by patriotic men to signal the death of sectionalism. Roosevelt's negro policy joined to Lodge's force bill will revive it. The Crumpacker resolution, discarded by Republicans of House and Senate alike, has been forced by the President upon his party. It will prove the worst mistake among many. Every patriotic citizen, anxious for his country's future, wishing to see preserved the purity of the Anglo Saxon race and American institutions, is willing that the Southern States shall adopt any legal expedient that will save that fair land from the control of an ignorant and debased suffrage."

CHARLES A. EDWARDS.

One Lady's Recommendation Sold Fifty Boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets.

I have, I belive, sold fifty boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets on the recommendation of one lady here, who first bought a box of them about a year ago. She never tires of telling her neighbors and friends about the good qualities of these Tablets.—P. M. Shore, Druggist, Rochester, Ind. The pleasant purgative effect of these Tablets makes them a favorite with ladies everywhere. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

Long Branch.

Sunday, July 10th, will be long remembered by many who attended the Children's Day at Pleasant Grove Baptist church. The children did exceedingly well in reciting their pieces, especially Mr. Eddie Ellis and Mr. Glover Merchant. It was a day enjoyed by many and we must speak in favor of the ladies for such a nice table and it well filled. After dinner we returned to the church where we had a good singing conducted by our highly praised singer, Mr. Jim McGee.

Miss Lena Walker is going to school here.

Miss Annie L. Jones has returned from Munford, where she went to spend the Fourth and reports a nice time. Success to the Banner and its readers. RED BIRD.

DIED.

On Saturday afternoon last at his home at Lily Mr. Foster White passed to the great beyond, after an illness of about two years. He was a fine young man, only 18 years of age, and until he was stricken down and rendered helpless, gave promise of becoming a worthy citizen. The funeral took place Sunday evening at Mulberry church, Rev. I. Windsor conducting the services. He rests in peace.

We regret to learn of the death of the infant child of Prof. J. M. and Mrs. Collier. The little angel, which was born at Clanton only a year or so ago, died at Livingston July 1, and was interred at Walnut Grove, the next day. Our sympathies are with the bereaved parents.

The Board of Pension Examiners concluded their work last week and some 25 new men applicants for pensions were passed upon and added to the list.

Mr. Claud B. White came up from Montgomery Tuesday evening.

The Court of County Commissioners sitting as a court of errors, was in session on Monday and adjourned Tuesday. Some general business was attended to and a few accounts passed.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

PARKER NOMINATED

Polls 658 on the First Ballot. Platform Adopted. Makes no Mention of Money

WAS IN SESSION ALL NIGHT.

Eight Names Were Presented to the Convention and Thirteen Received Votes in the Balloting.

When the national democratic convention reassembled, it was hoped by the leaders that the work might be concluded today and a sine die adjournment taken. When the delegates came together at the beginning of this, the third day, there yet remained to be accomplished the adoption of the platform and the nomination of candidates for president and vice president. It was appreciated that this might require three sessions, the last running into the night.

Chairman Clark arrived at 10 minutes after 10 o'clock and was received with a few handclaps. Twenty minutes later the delegates were in their seats. No word had been received from the resolutions committee and Chairman Clark dispatched a messenger to learn when it would be ready to report.

Private advices were to the effect that it would be several hours before the report would be prepared and the prospects for a short session grew stronger. One of the secretaries called through a megaphone: "The band will please play 'Home, Sweet Home.'"

There was a wild cheer from the weary perspiring delegates as the familiar strain floated out on the air. Anything with the word "home" seemed to please greatly, for the cheers were repeated a few minutes later when "My Old Kntucky Home" was rendered. "Dixie" called forth the inevitable yells.

The messenger Chairman Clark had sent to the committee on resolutions returned with a gloomy report of the unreadiness of that committee to appear with its important document and the waiting continued.

At 10:40 Chairman Clark arose and let fall his huge gavel. "The convention will be in order," he demanded. The clerk then announced the session would commence with prayer by Rabbi Sale, of St. Louis. The delegates and spectators at once arose to their feet and stood during the invocation.

At the conclusion of the prayer an announcement was made at the order of Chairman Clark that he was "determined to have order, and that any person raising a row will be taken out by the police."

A demand was made for the report of the resolutions committee. When no response was forthcoming it was determined to call the roll of states for the purpose of having the names of the next national committee announced. There were cheers at the announcement of several of the names.

Another call was made for the report of the committee on resolutions. As the call did not bring any result, the secretaries of the convention commenced to work the telephone vigorously in an effort to put the chairman of the convention in touch with the chairman of the committee in order to find out when he would be ready with his report.

Representative James, of Kentucky, moved that a committee of three be appointed to wait on the committee and ascertain when it would be ready to report. Carried.

Chairman Clark named Mr. James, H. D. Clayton, of Alabama, and T. N. Ball, of Texas, as the committee.

A motion was made and carried that Richmond Pearson Hobson, of Alabama, be invited to address the convention. Captain Hobson accepted the invitation and revealed the best and strongest voice thus far heard in the convention.

In speaking on the color question he declared that Booker T. Washington would soon outlive his undoubted usefulness if he did not cease to yield to the teachings and influence of the republican party and its chieftain. He urged the men of the west and north to refrain from oppressing the south by advocating anything that tended to obliterate the racial lines. He deprecated the fact that in the republican convention not one man had risen to speak against the plank in that party's platform which urged a reduction of southern representation in congress because of alleged disfranchisement of voters in the south. The speaker worked himself into a high pitch of excitement as with white face and ringing voice he drew a picture of the approaching battle between the parties and concluded with the words:

"Let us make the republicans name the battlefield and let us make them call it Waterloo."

In his efforts to secure order at the conclusion of Captain Hobson's speech Chairman Clark broke his gavel handle.

The committee, headed by Representative James, presented itself and Mr. James was introduced. His announcement was:

"Your committee to wait on the committee on resolutions report that they have discharged that duty. The committee informs us that they will be unable to report to this convention until 8 o'clock tonight, at which time they will bring to you a unanimous report, signed by every member of the committee."

Great applause and cheers greeted this last statement and as soon as Mr. James could be heard again he continued:

"New York, Nebraska, Virginia and Wisconsin have all joined hands and will bring in a platform that will carry us to a glorious victory in November."

Mr. James followed his last announcement at once with a motion to adjourn until 8 o'clock tonight. A second was at once heard, and the motion carried, the session closing at 11:58.

At the night session the convention adopted a platform by a viva voce vote and listened to nominating speeches for president. Judge Alton B. Parker was nominated by Martin W. Littleton and William Randolph Hearst by D. M. Delmas. Both orators were applauded at length.

Nominating speeches for favorite sons, candidates and seconding speeches for both Parker and Hearst occupied the convention for several hours.

Senator Daniel concluded reading the platform at 8:55 o'clock.

When it was observed that he had ceased reading the convention broke into cheers.

Senator Daniel said:

"I am unanimously instructed by your committee on platform to move the previous question of its adoption, and I now make that motion."

It was adopted by a viva voce vote, two or three delegates voting in the negative, and they apparently in a spirit of fun. Chairman Clark then put the motion to adopt and another viva voce carried it.

Temporary Chairman Williams then mounted the steps leading up to the platform, swung his hat around his head and the delegates following his lead roared their applause again and again, while the band played "Hail Columbia."

The great climax of the convention, the nomination of a candidate for president, followed immediately upon the adoption of the platform.

"The clerk will now call the roll of states for the nomination of a candidate for president," shouted the chairman.

"Alabama!" shrieked the clerk.

"Alabama yields to the Empire state New York," called Delegate Russell, of Alabama, standing in his chair, one arm grasping the standard of his state marker.

Martin W. Littleton took the stand amid ringing applause to place Judge Parker, of New York, in nomination.

Mr. Littleton was given close attention. For the first time during the session there was silence in the hall.

A terrific outburst of cheering followed Mr. Littleton's remark about Parker, "If you ask me why he has been silent, I answer because he has not attempted to be the master of his party, but is content to be its servant."

The greatest demonstration at the close of Mr. Littleton's speech was on the floor of the convention and confined largely to the delegates.

New York began waving a great mass of flags, and the state standards began to be moved up alongside that of the empire state.

Then was enacted a scene that recalled an incident of the democratic convention in Chicago which nominated William J. Bryan eight years ago.

Two girls in white sprang to the front of the platform and waved flowers and flags. With renewed outbursts the immense throng cheered them until a picture of Judge Parker attracted thunderous cheering. The cheering continued 25 minutes. Arkansas yielded to Tennessee and Senator Carmack took the platform and seconded the nomination of Judge Parker.

California, a Hearst state, was next in order. D. M. Delmas, of that state, was recognized and there was cheering as he made his way to the platform, but it was not prolonged. The hall was a bedlam when Mr. Delmas concluded.

The band played: "We Won't Go Home Till Morning."

L. Irving Handy, of Delaware, nominated Judge George M. Gray.

David Overmeyer, of Kansas, placed General Nelson A. Miles in nomination.

Delegate Roesing, from Minnesota, interposed a motion that all seconding speeches be limited to one minute. Governor Dockery moved to amend by making the time five minutes. The amendment was lost on a viva voce vote. After a parliamentary squabble, the time was fixed at four minutes.

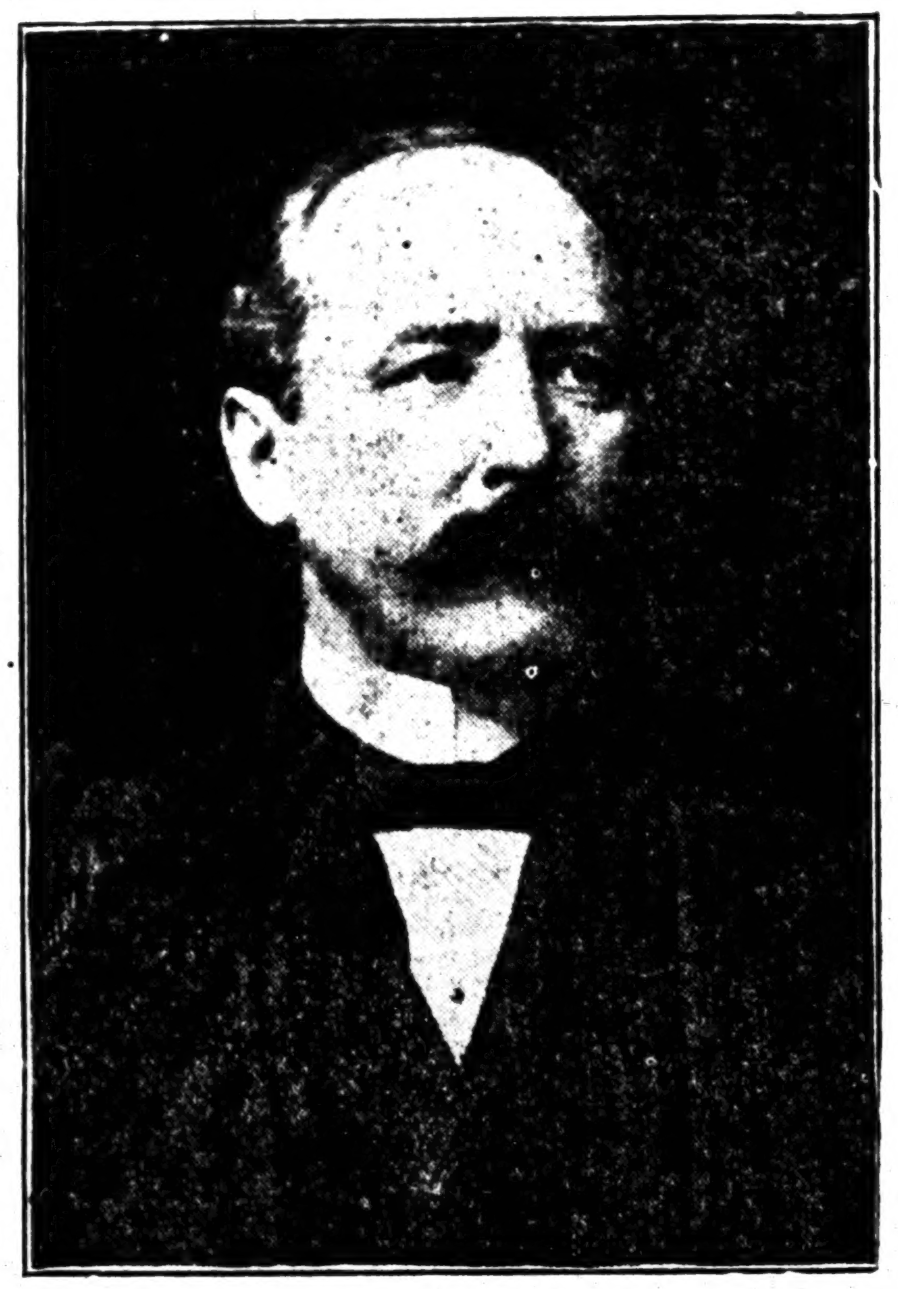
Maine gave way to Missouri, and Champ Clark, of that state, nominated Senator Francis M. Cockrell, of Missouri, for the presidency.

"Massachusetts," called the clerk, and Patrick A. Collins, of Boston, nominated Richard Olney, of the Old Bay state.

When Nebraska was called the noise of the convention was hushed as the name fell from the clerk's lips. C. J. Smythe responded, but before he could speak the name of "Bryan," was heard above the uproar. "Bryan, Bryan, Bryan," yelled the crowd. Mr. Bryan finally arose and standing in his chair endeavored to quiet the demonstration, but he was only an incentive for fresh outbursts.

When he could make himself heard, he simply announced that Wisconsin had a candidate present and Nebraska yielded her place on the roll call to that state. David S. Rose, mayor of Milwaukee, placed Edward C. Wall in nomination.

Chairman Cole, of the North Dakota delegation, nominated John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi.



ALTON B. PARKER.

On the first ballot, at 5:29 a. m. of Saturday, Judge Alton Brooks Parker, of New York, was nominated, having a total of 658 votes.

The first and only ballot resulted:

Parker	658
Hearst	200
Cockrell	42
Olney	38
Wall	27
Gray	12
Williams	8
Pattison	4
McClellan	3
Miles	3
Coler	2
Gorman	2
Towne	2

The convention adjourned until 3 o'clock.

The news of Judge Parker's nomination was given to him as he was coming out of the water after a morning swim. "Well, Judge, you've got it," cried the reporter as the judge appeared over the bow of the barge from which he had been diving. "Is that so?" replied the judge, his ruddy face breaking into a cherry smile in which satisfaction was undisguised.

The debate on the money plank of the platform in the committee on platform of the national democratic convention was opened by Rufus N. Rhodes, of Alabama, who declared that he would not vote for reaffirmation of the Chicago or Kansas City platform nor for the gold plank proposed by David B. Hill.

Members of the committee declare Mr. Rhodes made a distinct impression, and it also fell to the lot of Mr. Rhodes at the close of the fifteen hours' continuous deliberation of the committee to enjoy the honor of making the motion to adopt the platform as a whole, which unanimously prevailed, Hill and Bryan both voting in the affirmative.

A correspondent says: David B. Hill has received no ovation at the convention nor has he taken part in the deliberations other than the action on the committee platform. He has studiously avoided publicity, yet it is the hand of Hill that is guiding the convention upon its course.

MEMORIAL PRESENTED

To Spanish Admiral By American Citizens.

As a demonstration of gratitude regarding his conduct at Santiago and his care of American sailors, Admiral Cervera was presented with an engrossed message bearing the signatures of a number of well known Americans, besides letters from the subscribers bound in a volume.

The admiral, in returning thanks for this manifestation of American good will, said his conduct toward Lieutenant Hobson and the Ame[illegible] after the sinking of the Merrimac had been inspired by superior orders.

Admiral Cervera had repeatedly refused to permit his American admirers to honor him, but notwithstanding these refusals the plan to make the presentation was carried out.

ANTS WILL COME.

Texas Injunction Dissolved—Insects Harmless to Man.

The injunction proceedings instituted in Texas to prosecute the government experiments with the Guatemala boll weevil-eating ants have been dissolved, and O. F. Cook, the expert who discovered the ants, will go to Victoria, Tex., to install the colonies of ants in such a way they can be carefully studied. The ants which are now in New Orleans are in good condition and more numerous than when they started from Guatemala.

Mr. Cook says that it is highly important to learn the adaptability of the ants to different climates and soils as found in Texas, so that in case of necessity they may be exterminated absolutely and easily if undesireable traits appear. He says the ants are thoroughly predatory in their habits; that their movements are slow; that they may be handled with impunity, and that they are as harmless as toads.

SULTAN AGREES

To Demands Made by the American Minister.

A dispatch from Constantinople says that American Minister Leishmann handed a note to the porte declaring that unless a prompt settlement of the school question was arranged, a United States fleet would appear in Turkish waters. The Sultan ordered the grand vizer to comply with the American minister's demand.

The demands on the sultan by Minister Leishmann are for private grounds to schools and colleges conducted by American teachers equal to those given foreign teachers; for permission by American professional men to practice on even terms with foreigners, and for the direct access of the American minister to the sultan in the transaction of business.

DEMOCRATIC TENETS

As Set Forth by Permanent Chairman Champ Clark in His Address.

ON THE REPUBLICAN PLATFORM

He Makes Remarks Answering Its Arguments—Tariff and Trusts Considered.

In his speech, Permanent Chairman Champ Clark, of Missouri, said: "In the impending conflict our quarrel is just and we are in the right beyond a cavil. To state it in a general way our contention is that the government shall be restored to the democratic republican basis on which the fathers of the republic intended it to rest, and shall be made once more a government of the people, by the people and for the people, instead of a government of classes, by the classes and for the classes.

To state it with more particularity we insist that exorbitant taxation shall be reduced to just and reasonable rates, that extravagance in appropriations shall cease, that all departments shall be thoroughly investigated from top to bottom by congressional committees, that all evildoers of whatever degree shall be driven from the public service and properly punished, that the trusts shall be proceeded against by indictment as are common and smaller criminals, that the constitution accompanies the American flag in our new possessions.

In every state in the union it is a felony to get property of any sort—or to attempt to get it by false pretenses. If the same rule applied to the getting of office or to attempts to get them the whole republican party could be sent to the penitentiary. One of their false pretenses—the one on which they harp the most this year, is that the democratic party is in favor of free trade. The charge is false—a lie made out of whole cloth. It never was a free trade party and is not now.

Democrats favor the cutting down of exorbitant tariff rates to a reasonable basis. They believe that in many schedules of the present law the rates are too high; those that are too high we are in favor of cutting down.

"We favor any modification of the tariff schedules that may be required to prevent them becoming a shelter for monopoly." I wonder if Mr. Secretary Shaw ever heard those words before? [illegible] It is now [illegible] the Iowa republican platform of 1901. The secretary whooped it up a great rate for Governor A. B. Cummins and others nominated on that platform. He scornfully denounces it now as the "dead Iowa idea," but it was a righteous declaration borrowed from democrats and is not dead—not even dying.

Where tariff rates are so high that they enable American manufacturers to sell their wares abroad cheaper than they do to Americans here at home, we say they ought to be reduced. Recognizing that a large portion of our revenue has always been raised from customs duties or taxes demands divide all imports into three classes—necessaries, comforts and luxuries, lower on comforts and lowest or none at all on the necessaries. They furthermore say that taxes shall be uniform on all articles belonging to one class. That is the democratic party's position, from which it will not be driven or coaxed or bullied. No amount of misrepresentation will cause them to budge from that position. We say furthermore that not a dollar more in the shape of tariff taxes or any other sort of taxes should be taken from the people than is necessary to pay the expenses of a government economically administered. On these propositions we believe we are right, and on them we confidently rely in our appeal to the American people in November.

Republicans claim in public to be the great and only trust busters, notwithstanding the fact that under republican misrule trusts have sprung up like mushrooms in a damp cellar and have become plentiful as berries in June.

George Cantwell, a half-witted white man recently released from county jail, claimed to be a snake charmer. At Anderson, Tenn., he was bitten by a rattler and has died.

Jefferson county clergy, almost without exception, took lawlessness as their text last Sunday. Murder and concealed weapons were the principal features discussed.

The Lookout Mountain Iron company has completed the new furnace at Battelle, and information as to the plant being started up is being looked for every day.

INSURANCE BUSINESS

In Alabama Shows a Steady Increase. The Annual Report Issued.

NET EARNINGS FOR 1903, $71,030.83

Doing Business in the State are 128 Companies—Average Rates of Loss and Premium Lower.

Commissioner E. P. McDavid, of the state department of insurance, has issued a report. It covers the year 1903, with financial tables brought up to April 30, of this year. Since the removal of the office in 1897, from the auditor's office to that of the secretary of state, that official being made the commissioner, the receipts have doubled, while the expenses are actually less than they were the first year the records were kept under the new arrangements, 1898.

Commissioner McDavid reports receipts for the year 1903 as follows: State taxes on premiums, $50,941.95; company licenses, $11,674; licenses of 3209 agents at $3.50 each, $11,231.50, total, $73,487.45. The disbursements were $2,816.62, leaving net earnings to the state of $71,030.83.

The receipts up to April 30, of this year have been $83,196.19, indicating that they will go during the current twelve months to over $85,000, or double what they were in 1898, the first year after the new law was passed.

The expense account of the department in 1898 was $2,444.36, as against $2,186.62 this year, an increase of $372.26 in expense, while the receipts are nearly double.

There are this year 128 insurance companies doing business in the state—65 fire, 35 life, 29 miscellaneous and 8 mutual aid. Three fire companies and one casualty company retired during 1903, while four fire and five life companies entered.

The fire companies doing business in the state increased their reciepts over 1902 by $150,000, and reduced their ratio of losses to premiums collected from 63.08 to 48.04. The average loss ratio for seven years has been 55 per cent. The average rate is reduced from 1.78 in 1902 to 1.67 in 1903. The average rate for seven years, however, 1.62.

CATTLE THIEVES BARRICADED

Besieged by a Mob—One Officer Already Killed.

A posse has gone to Las Padillas, N. M., where a mob has three alleged bent on lynching them.

One of the alleged bandits was wounded and Padilla was shot several times and almost instantly killed. The pursued men then entered a house, ran the owners out and barred the doors.

A mob of several hundred people surrounded the house and when the messengers who came to Albuquerque to notify the officers left the place, shots were being exchanged between the mob and the prisoners.

New Mississippi Railroad

The promoters of the new Memphis, Indianola and Gulf railroad have acquired every foot of the right of way from Indianola to Jackson. The surveying party is now at Sartartia, in Yazoo county, having already made the final survey from Indianola to that place. It is said that the Frisco people are behind the new road, that it will connect at Jackson with the Gulf and Ship Island, thus giving the Frisco a direct line to the gulf.

Safe-Blowers Frightened Away.

Burglars entered the postoffice at Maryville, Tenn., Monday night. Two holes were drilled in the safe and both were loaded with nitro-glycerine, fused and capped. The explosives were, however, not discharged. It is believed the burglars were frightened away, as only $2 in cash was taken from a cash drawer.

Killed by the Cars.

The body of an unknown white man was found badly mangled at Leighton, Saturday, near the track of the Southern railroad. One of the Southern's night trains had run over him, cutting his body in two, and so badly mutilating it that it could not be identified. It is thought that he Decatur, which left Tuscumbia Friday night. There were no letters of any nature found on his person, the only thing which could possibly throw any light on the matter being a hat which he wore, on the inside of which was a mark denoting that it had come from Russellville.

Orphanage Burned.

The Methodist orpanage at Water Valley, Miss., was destroyed by fire Monday morning with a loss amounting to $20,000. One hundred and twenty-five homeless children are being cared for in neighboring houses.

It has been discovered that good paper can be made from the refuse hops which have hitherto been thrown away by the breweries.

HER REASON DETHRONED

And Her Life Given Up By Her Terrible Experiences.

News comes of a tragedy at Cat Island lighthouse in the Mississippi Sound. The wife of the late Captain Daniel McCall, veteran keeper of the lighthouse, nearly lost her reason. Her condition has been brought on by several causes—alone on a desert island for three days with the dead body of her husband, which by reason of sixty years she was unable to bury; unable by reason of weakness to drag him to shelter from the place where he had dropped, suddenly stricken; unable to summon help from passing yachts, and for three days almost without sleep or food. Crazed with grief and terror, she tried to signal passing yachts. But the Cat Island light is not in the usual track of yachts, and for two days her signals were unanswered. So, on the third day, the poor woman waded out shoulder deep into the sound, carrying a long pole with a white flag upon it, which she held upright above the wave. Her signal was finally seen and understood by a Pass Christian yacht, which sailed in to pick her up. The woman was found half dead with fatigue and cold, having been hours in the water.

The boat that found Mrs. McCall sailed to the island and buried the captain upon it. Having buried her husband and finding her unable to be moved, the boat hastened to Pass Christian, where she has friends, and brought them to her. She was taken to Pass Christian, where she is now surrounded by relatives and friends. Her reason is almost gone, and her life is despaired of.

ABBOT MENGES DEAD.

Was President of St. Bernard College, Near Cullman.

Rt. Rev. Benedict Menges, O. S. B., abbot of St. Bernard Monastery and president of St. Bernard college, died Monday morning. He had been in ill health for many years, and death was due to a complication of diseases.

News of the death will carry sorrow wherever the deceased was known and throughout Alabama his acquaintanceship was very wide. He was ordained to the priesthood in 1872, and was a missionary in Alabama for a number of years. He labored as a missionary in the Birmingham district before Birmingham was a town, doing much toward establishing the Catholic faith in that vicinity. He was stationed at Huntsville later, and was there during the terrible yellow fever epidemic.

New Cotton Pest.

Although the Mexican boll weevil has not yet appeared in Mississippi, some new and hitherto unknown species of the beetle is playing havoc with the cotton crop in several sec... the state, and the farmers are as much worried over the destruction wrought as though the genuine Mexican species had made its appearance.

The beetle has been sent to the state entomologist, and he is now endeavoring to give it a classification and devise remedies for its suspension. The ravages of the beetle have been manifested especially in Holmes and Tate counties, and have appeared in several counties in the northeastern part of the state. After the insect has bored through the cotton stalk the plant quickly dies.

One thing that has delayed the establishment of the beer sugar industry in the United States is the evident indisposition of the beet sugar refineries to play fair with the farmers. After they have persuaded the farmers to try raising beets with the promise of allowing them remunerative prices for their crop, to be determined by the percentage of sugar obtained therefrom they have failed to make satisfying returns.—Philadelphia Record.

Reparation Made.

The Chinese government has settled the claims growing out of the killing of Louis Etzel, the newspaper correspondent in a manner regarded by the state department as highly honorable and satisfactory. It has ordered the punishment of officers and soldiers composing the detachment that killed Etzel. In addition it has undertaken to pay an indemnity of $25,000, Mexican money, which sum will be turned over by the state department to the widowed mother of Etzel in Denver.

TRAINS IN COLLISION

Seventeen Persons Killed and One Hundred Injured in New Jersey.

WATCHMAN OVERLOOKED ORDER

Seventeen persons were killed and about one hundred injured in a collision which occurred at Midvale, N. J., when a regular passenger train on the Greenwood Lake branch of the Erie railroad ran into an excursion train that had stopped to take water. All the dead and injured lived in Hoboken, Jersey City and New York.

The accident is believed to have resulted from a tower operator having lowered his signal too soon, and this was admitted by D. W. Cooke, general passenger agent of the Erie railroad, who gave a statement, in which he said:

"The operator in the tower failed to set the block signal against the train following."

The train which was run into was a special carrying members of the First Platt Deutscher Association of Hoboken on their annual outing, and had eight hundred passengers. It consisted of twelve cars and two engines. The first engine had taken water and the train had moved up and stopped with the second engine beside the tank when the regular train drew near. The flagman of the special signaled the engineer of the incoming train, but owing to a curve in the road his flag was not seen until it was too late. It is claimed that the engineer of the regular train had slowed down to about ten miles an hour before he crashed into the special, but his engine tore through the rear car the greater part of its length and drove the forward end of that car into the car ahead. The killed and injured were in these two cars.

The wreckage did not catch fire and the work of taking out the dead and maimed was accomplished quickly.

The engineer and fireman of the regular train disappeared from the scene just after the accident. They both escaped injury by jumping just before the crash.

SOUTHERN CAR CO. PLANT

At Memphis Bought by the United States Car Company.

The large plant of the Southern Car and Foundry company at Memphis has been sold to the United States Car company of Chicago. The deal was made by the receivers and the purchase price paid them is quite a large sum. This is one of the steps the receivers are taking toward winding up the affairs of the defunct company. Already the plant at Lenoir City has been sold and the plant at Anniston returned to the owners, so that the selling of the Memphis plant leaves only the Gadsden plant on their hands along with a large amount of material.

The United States company is one of the largest manufacturers in the country and they will probably begin work with the Memphis plant in a short time.

New Quarries to Open.

The Merriwether tract of land near Boyles, consisting of over 600 acres was sold to the Sorrand Land company. The consideration was $60,000.

The land is rich in lime stone. It is understood that about 200 acres will be developed into rock quarries, while most of the remainder will be divided into building lots.

The new military company proposed for Birmingham was accepted by Governor Cunningham in an order issued from the office of the adjutant-general. The order assigns the new company to the Second regiment and Colonel E. H. Graves, commanding that regiment, is directed to muster the men comprising the company into service.

$30,000 Robbery.

A money changer's establishment in the city of Mexico and under part of the Maizon D'Or hotel was robbed of $30,000 in gold, bank notes and securities, by a man who had taken a room in the hotel, and who came down through a hole in the floor by means of a rope ladder.

The robbery was one of the boldest and most ingeniously planned in the criminal annals of the city. Among the plunder was $5,000 in American treasury and national bank notes. The police expect to catch the robber, and it is believed he is hiding in the city and has a confederate.

Second Lieutenant W. W. Brame has been elected first lieutenant of the Montgomery Greys and Sergeant Tillman Taylor, second lieutenant. The vacancy on the roster was caused by the appointment of Lieutenant J. Hurt Taylor to the staff of Colonel E. H. Graves, commanding the second regiment.

FARM AND GARDEN

STEAM SILOS.

The Latest Endeavor to Secure a Silage Free From Acid.

The latest development of the silage idea is the use of steam to prevent fermentation as far as possible and secure an approximately acid free silage. The Oregon station began experimenting on this line last year and the cut shows the construction of one or two small silos used for the purpose. These were built of well seasoned yellow fir, dressed, tongue and groove lumber, one and five-eighths inches thick, three and one-half inches wide and twelve feet long. When completed the silos measured approximately five feet in diameter and twelve feet deep. They were constructed plain, having no doors, so that the only way of filling and emptying was by way of the top of the silo. They were fitted with one and one-quarter inch piping so that they could be steamed after being filled.

The silo of [illegible] the lower portion is here shown was fitted with pipes so that steam could be liberated in the silo within two inches of the bottom at G, and also midway between the bottom and top at F. The upright pipe E F in the silo was covered with a cap at F so as to prevent fodder from falling into the pipe. Ten to fifteen holes three-eighths of an inch in diameter were drilled in the pipe near the cap at F as outlets for the steam. The elbow at G turns directly down and comes to within about two inches of the bottom of the silo. This elbow G prevents material from getting into the pipe G H and serves as an easy outlet for the steam when forcing it into the silo near the bottom.

The silo was filled with very green, immature corn, cut three-quarters of an inch long and packed as tight as possible. The contents were then steamed, first by making connection through D, then disconnecting at D and connecting at I. Pressure was part of the time at twenty pounds, and, for the latter part, forty pounds. The steaming process lasted from about 7 o'clock one evening till 9:30 the next morning.

A sterilized cotton plug was tied over the end of the pipe at I, projecting from the silo. The second pipe projecting from the silo was stopped with an iron plug screwed in at D. Just at the end of the steaming process, and while the corn fodder was still very hot, both silos were covered with layers of heavy building paper and then with several inches of sterilized cotton.

When the silos were opened in December, the steamed silage was sweet and bright, and had undergone very little change since the green fodder was put in.

Beardless Brome Grass.

The northwest is rapidly becoming a source of supply for the seed of beardless brome grass (Bromus inermis), although much is still imported. The seed is ha[illegible]en fully ripe, although care[illegible] to cut before the seed begins to shatter. Harvesting is done with a [illegible] binder, set to cut high, and thus [illegible] in as little of the leaves as possible. When well dried, the seed is thrashed [illegible] separator, using an [illegible] cutting off most of the wind.

The amount of seed [illegible] an acre varies much, some growers reporting 150 to 600 pounds, while others give 10 to 300 pounds as the [illegible]. According to tests at the Minn[illegible] experiment station it costs about 10 to 12 cents a bushel to thrash the seed.

Good Winter Celery.

Giant Solid is a large growing variety of winter celery with broad, solid stems. It is called one of the best for keeping purposes, has a good flavor, blanches clean and white, and is a desirable variety for winter use.

Evans' Triumph grows to a medium height; the stems are broad at the base and it blanches well. It has a splendid flavor, is a good keeper, and is suitable for late winter use.

Profit in a Southern Seed Industry.

No enterprise, in the opinion of Dr. Stuffs, of Louisiana, offer a larger profit upon investment than a well conducted seed farm in the south. Already growers of okra, watermelons, cantaloupes, onions, etc., are found, because it has been demonstrated that southern grown seed of these things do best in the south.

Snowball, Erfurt and Early Paris are early and desirable varieties of cauliflower. A succession of mustard for "greens" may be had from early fall into late spring.

The Lord has greatly blessed this part of the country with rain for which we bless His holy name. It was very dry through May and June; gardens and watermelons are almost a failure, but at this time there is the best prospect for corn and cotton I ever saw in this settlement.

Sunday was one of the greatest days in the history of Shiloh church. The people began to gather early in the morning and by 11 o'clock there was five or six hundred people on the ground, and I don t think I ever saw a more harmonious crowd in my life, everybody you met seemed to have had a smile on his face. The singing was a grand success; we did not have the model church building, but the music had the old time ring which thrilled our souls with joy. The order was almost perfect, for which we are very glad.

Democratic ruling and old time music has been laid in the shade in this county for some time, but it seems that they are beginning to revive again and I believe the time will come when they will carry the day as they once did. Success to the Banner and all of its readers.

OIL FOR STREET SURFACES.

It Lays the Dust and Is a Powerful Disinfectant.

A correspondent contributes the following to the Bakersfield Californian: Among the many advantages arising from the use of oil in the manifold ways in which it is being made to contribute to the welfare of the people of the state I have never yet seen included what, from one standpoint, may be considered the most important of all. I refer to the increased healthfulness that is certain to be observed in those communities where oil is used as a dressing for street surfaces.

The street has always been and, but for crude petroleum, would always remain a thickly settled place which collects the dirt, the filth and the disease germ, only to turn them back into the atmosphere bearing more of poison and danger than when first deposited, with the result that humanity, cooped up in towns and cities, has had to struggle for life, inhaling air which is charged every breath of it with illness and death.

An important change is about to be brought about in this regard unwittingly and entirely without design by the discovery that crude oil will lay the dust more cheaply and more effectively than any other means. The method is being adopted merely because of these two reasons, but the fact that the oil is one of the best disinfectants known to science accompanies it and will finally bring to the fortunate people who live in localities where the modern dust killing method is practiced a greater measure of health than has ever been their store before.

PROTECTS THE HIGHWAYS.

Law Regulating the Width of Tires in Massachusetts.

In 1900 the legislature of the state of Massachusetts passed an act to regulate the width of tire on draft wagons, which was to take effect on Jan. 1, 1902. This law is one which should be widely copied by other states. It provides that:

"On and after Jan. 1, in the year 1902, it shall be unlawful, except as provided in section 4 of this act, to use upon any road, street or way in this commonwealth a draft wagon or cart having tires of iron or steel or of any substance equally hard which are less in width than one and one-half times the diameter of the axle measured at the shoulder thereof, but in no case shall a tire more than four inches in width be required, and wagons or carts built with wooden or hollow axles shall have tires not less in width than the diameter of the axle measured at the shoulder thereof.

"This act shall apply to all wagons and carts, the axles of which are two inches or more in diameter, measured as aforesaid, and to all stagecoaches, tallyho coaches, barges and other passenger vehicles not built to run on iron or steel rails and constructed to carry eight or more persons.

"Whoever violates any provision of this act shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $100."

CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Burwell, Ala., July 12, 1904

Editor Banner:—Please allow space for a few words from Burwell. We are needing rain very bad; we have not had a season since the thirteenth of May; have had a few light showers, and our crops are still growing some; health is generally good.

I have had the sore eyes since I read about the white girl being put on the same platform with a negro boy to carry the flag at the Republican National Convention. And still these little wormy Republicans claim they don't favor negro equality; they are hard up for votes: I would not be surprised at anything they do. Now I reckon the little bell weather from Coopers will air his pop-rep-rang o'tang self again. Well, isms candidates has been visiting Burwell and Rushton the last few days. At Burwell thirteen candidate speakers, and three voters—two of these voters Democrats, and so it will be in the November election. Don't you see how it figures boys? Of course, it is well enough to have a few Republicans to handle the mails, helps a fellow out when the cow goes dry, but these little toad frog fellows to be Republicans, for what? Why, you vote for the Pops and the Reps, and so you are Pop-Rep or Rep-Pop or anything the bosses name you. Thank the good Lord, the Democrats would buy negro votes before they would let their daughters promenade on a platform with a negro boy. Yours for white supremacy,

A. J. PENTON.

Jemison, Ala. July 16, 1904

Editor Banner, Clanton, Ala.

Dear ... been called to an article in your paper last week signed T. J. Mims, purporting to explain a land transaction between him and myself. He says I made him think I was giving him a good title, but after it was too late he found out it was a quit claim deed, and that he lost $160.00. Now, the whole statement is false. In the first place I sold this land to his father, and he fully understood the whole transaction. By referring to the record in the Probate office, vol., 48, page 26, you will see the deed only shows $40.00 and I gave him four years to pay it in, and you will see further that it was acknowledged before Mr. Sam Arledge, J. P. Now, him and his father would not trust a Justice out here, but sent Mr. Arledge. Did anybody ever hear of Mr. Arledge being fooled in a deed? Now, he says he has repeatedly asked me to pay him his money back. This is false, he did come to me about two years ago and said Mr. A. C. Smith told him I could get the original money I had paid for this back as it was not subject to taxes, so I met him in Mr. Smith's office, but after investigation Mr. Smith said he had waited too long, but he never said one word about being fooled, nor did he ask me to pay him any money back. Anyone interested can ask Mr. Smith about the transaction in his office.

But on July the 7th, I got the following letter from Mr. T. J. Mims, which explains the whole matter, read it for yourself:

An exact copy of a letter received July 7th, 1904.

Clanton, Ala., July 7th, 1904

Hon. L. H. Reynolds, Jemison, Ala.

Dear Sir—I have in the past always supported you both in the primary and general elections, but under present conditions, and on account of past business transactions, I cannot do so this time, unless you make satisfaction with me in regard to that public land which you sold me. If you do not make satisfaction by return mail I shall expose you to the people of Chilton county and shall use my influence against you in every instance which I can.

Yours, etc.,

T. J. MIMS.

The above is an exact copy of his letter and everybody knows it is against the law to use the mails to try to scare money out of anyone, and more than that, he indirectly tries to impress me if I will pay him ome money he will vote for me, if not he will vote against me. I do not endorse such methods as these in politics, neither do I believe the honest Democrats endorse them. I am sure if I have got to do such as this to get an office I will never get one. I defy anybody to show where any of my friends ever started any such a report on my opponents. I think when people try to drag ones business into politics, they have about exhausted everything else, but if that is the issue this campaign is to be fought on, I am willing to meet my opponents on it. In conclusion I will say if I get as good a vote in other parts of the county as I will among my customers, and those I have sold goods too for the last eleven years, I will have no trouble in being elected. I did hope this election would be fought out on high grounds, and there would be no mud slinging, and I cannot see what business a Democrat paper has in meddling in a Populist primary. I hope you will publish this Mr Crichton as it refers to my business, send me the bill and I will send you check for the same.

Respectfully,

L. H. REYNOLDS.

JUDGE OF THE FIFTEENTH JUDICIAL CIRCUIT

Waddy.

Crops are good in this section; we had a nice rain yesterday.

Mr. Robert Maddox and Miss Nora Marcus were married yesterday. We wish the young couple much happiness.

Four of Clanton's ball team visited Waddy on last Saturday and what "Dusty" did for the Jumbo nine was enough.

The Populi Republico campaign spoke at Mineral Springs on the night of the 13th. There were 16 candidates present, they rode all all over Stumps Hill to get voters to come out and they succeeded in getting out 20 men and 10 of them were Democrats. They opened up the meeting by appointing Moses Robinson, chairman. Then they called out the candidates as their names came except Lewis, X Ray and Thomas, they were reserved for the last. Well, Thomas was the first of the reserve (what the others said is not worth mentioning). Thomas got up and said he was going to explain the issue, and also the difference between a Republican and a Democratic administration. Well, he started to explain the political situation and got in a tangle and quit. Next comes X Ray; well, if he made a point I did not hear it. He give the trade ticket the lie and said he wanted the office, which no doubt he does, he needs it, I am sure.

Well, last but not least, comes Lewis. He says that the Republican party is the only honest party; he also said that the Democrats in the black belt stole the public funds from this county and give it to the white children in the black belt. He also said in the windup that Lige Deason got the nomination in the Democratic party because no one else would have it. Well, Lewis, the Democrats did not have to go outside of their party to get a man to fill the Probate Judge's office. But the Populists did and then did not get anybody. Success to the Banner.

10 per cent Dividend Declared by Strock's Store on Shoes.

But who gets the dividend, or profits, that have been declared? It is not often that anyone shares in the profits of a business except those who own shares, or the owner. But in this case we have thrown wide open the door, and propose to give 10 per cent of the profits on our shoes to outsides. Yes, 10 per cent of the profits on our shoe trade are going to outsiders and you may share in this if you wish. And this is no fictitious matter or scheme. It is just a plain simple fact—we are doing just what we say we are doing.

How is this being done? Well, we have 300 pair of shoes which we will sell at a reduction of 10 per cent.

10 per cent in your pocket, 10 per cent out of our pocket—that is just what it is.

Would you like to share in these profits? Come right on and let us show you.

Prof. W. Le Conte Stevens, acting on the theory that the metric system can only be made popular in this country by adopting its decimal plan while changing the present names of familiar weights and measures as little as possible, suggests the following changes, says the Youth's Companion. Let the yard be made equal to the meter; let the foot be made the fourth instead of the third part of a yard, and let it have ten instead of twelve inches; let the pound be made equal to half a kilogram; let the quart equal the liter; let the ton be 1000 kilograms; let the pint, gallon, peck and bushel be defined in terms of the quart. Professor Stevens points out that in this way the inch would be shortened less than two per cent, but he admits that even this slight change would inconvenience mechanical engineers and machine manufacturers.

Porfirio Diaz will have been President of Mexico twenty-eight years on November 30. And everybody expects him to be elected for another term. During all his long period of public service he has been working to establish a stable government, and to train his countrymen in the arts of self-rule. The task has been difficult, for in his youth revolutions were as common in Mexico as they now are in the petty republics farther south. Whenever he has spoken of retiring there has arisen such a bitter dispute among the aspirants for his place that he has each time concluded his work was not yet done. It is evident that he still thinks it would not take much to stir up trouble, for at his suggestion the constitution has recently been amended, extending the president's term to six years, and providing for a vice-president. Now he can select a candidate for the second place, a man after his own heart, and train him to the duties of the presidency, so that whatever may happen to him—he is nearly seventy-four years old and in feeble health—a peaceable future for his country will be assured for six years more.

Down in New Jersey, where everybody is an expert from lifelong experience, they have adopted a method of annihilating the mosquito which seems beautifully simple and effective, says the Boston Transcript. Land in which the insect is known to breed is gone over with a ditching machine and cut in furrows six inches wide and two feet deep. The result has been that the pools which swarmed with "wrigglers" have all disappeared wherever this was done. The town of Shrewsbury, which prosecuted the ditching experiment vigorously last year, is reported entirely free of mosquitoes this season; in the Hackensack and Passaic meadows those portions that have been ditched show no signs of "wrigglers," while the rest is full of them; and altogether the State entomologist has found such satisfactory results from this simple method that the State is expected to make liberal appropriations for its wider application. Nearly every town has a ditching machine for its road work, and New Jersey's experience suggests that it may be profitably tried as a mosquito-killer when it isn't doing anything better.

In the course of a recent lecture at the Royal Institution on "Sound Shadows," Lord Rayleigh referred to Marconi's feat of signalling across the Atlantic, and said that the explanation of it was obscure, because from what is known of these sound shadows the ethereal waves could only pass with great difficulty around such an object as was constituted by the intervening sea, which rose something like 100 miles above a straight line between the two wireless stations. Although it is difficult for a sound wave to pass around a convex surface, in the case of a concave surface the effect is reversed. The familiar whispering galleries are illustrations of this. The sound seems to cling to the sides, as it may be completely blocked by holding a comparatively narrow strip of wood vertically against the walls at any point between the noise and the listener.

Increased His Affability.

"Are you going to re-elect that man to Congress in spite of the insinuations against him?"

"Sure," said Farmer Corntossel. "Those insinuations have done him good. He hasn't been so sociable and entertaining in years."—Washington Star.

WAITING FOR ORDERS

Battle Expected in the Far East at Any Time. Leisurely Movements.

JAPANESE FLEET IN BATTLE LINE

Items from All Over the Theater of War—Russian Movements. Manchuria.

The steamer Manchuria, which is on a tour of inspection of the theater of war, with members of the Japanese diet, foreign attaches and press correspondents on board, reached the Japanese naval base July 14th. At the time of the Manchuria's arrival, a huge cloud of smoke hung over the land. Rounding the headland, the panorama of Admiral Togo's fleet was presented at broad anchorage in the channel with torpedo scouts outside. The torpedo gunboat Chihaya and the coast defense vessel Heiyen acted as sentries over the roadstead. Under the north end of the island were five cruisers. In the center were all five battleships.

Under date of July 16th Lieutenant General Sakharoff reports that the chasseurs are driving back the Japanese advance posts southwest of Siakhotan and east of Kan Chi. The Japanese, the general says, have reoccupied Kochinha. They are still fortifying the passes between Fonshui and Motien. The Japanese near Liao Yang have evacuated Sekevan and Yanlikan. The country from Siaossyrs up to Sihu pass is free from Japanese, but the pass itself is occupied.

The Chinese minister at Tokio has telegraphed the Wai Wou Pou (the Chinese minister of foreign affairs) that the Japanese government has presented a scheme for the administration of Manchuria, the principal clause of which is that the Japanese will govern the provinces with the number of Chinese troops now in the country.

The imperial Japanese headquarters officially denies the reports that the Japanese lost 30,000 men in a battle near Port Arthur on July 10th or 11th. Not a shot was fired on either date.

Experts who were inclined to criticise General Kuropatkin's management of affairs in the far east declare as the situation develops that his strategy has proved so far to be beyond reproach. He has successfully tided over a pressing danger. His apparent mistakes, like the prolonged resistance offered by Lieutenant General Zassalitch on the Yalu, turn out to be acts of the highest military judgment.

Since July 11 the Japanese have landed about 30,000 men near Pigeon Bay, under the protection of the entire fleet. The Russians, the dispatch says, offered little resistance, only a few shots being fired by the shore batteries. A general assault is expected soon.

The news that the Russian volunteer steamships Smolensk and St. Petersburg, now cruising in the Red sea, are stopping ships of neutral nations and searching them for contraband of war, is causing interest.

The Russian gaurdship Chernomorotz passed through the Bosphorous from the sea.

Russia has declared coal contraband of war.

The latest reports from representative cotton regions in central Mississippi show that the damage from the violent rain storm Monday was greater than at first believed. Many acres of cotton on the hillsides were washed so badly that the crop prospects were utterly destroyed, and it is now too late for replanting.

President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville and Nashville, has appointed J. L. Mapother, his chief clerk, to the position of assistant to the president. This eliminates the necessity for the immediate selection of a successor to Walker D. Hines, who resigned recently the position of first vice president.

Fell Over a Cliff.

While strolling about the top of the leaning tower, one of the views about Montaegle, Tenn., with R. E. Ford, of Cleveland, Ohio, a student at the University of the South, Miss Mary Walker, of Columbus, Miss., lost her footing and pitched down the side of the cliff, lodging in a rocky gorge sixty feet below. Her skull was fractured and it is believed internal injuries were sustained. Little hope of her recovery is entertained, as she has never regained consciousness.

Montana has some 58,000,000 acres of public land, of which 17,000,000 acres are reserved.

Plant Enlarged.

In anticipation of a larger business than ever before, the Empire Plow company of Ensley is making a large addition to the woodworking department of their plant. The addition covers a space about 40 by 60 feet and practically doubles the capacity of that department. This concern spent over $20,000 last summer in new buildings and new machinery preparing for the trade last fall.

FORMER SHERIFF

Convicted of Burglary by Chain of Circumstances.

Green Etheredge, for four years the republican sheriff of Lawrence county, was convicted of burglary and now occupies a cell in the county jail at Moulton. The crime for which Etheridge was convicted was the burglary of the courthouse. In 1896 the term of office of Etheridge expired and since that time he has led a varied existence.

In January, 1900, the office of the circuit clerk of the county was entered and about eighty affidavits and indictments charging various offenses were taken. Prior to this time the clerk had been informed that Etheredge had said that he intended to break into the office and get the indictments against him. A long chain of circumstantial evidence fastened the crime upon him. An appeal will be taken and sentence has not yet been passed.

POSTOFFICE ROBBED.

Safe Blown and $800 in Money and Stamps Taken.

A special from Calhoun, Ga., says: The postoffice here was blown open by unknown parties early Sunday morning and about $800 in money and stamps taken. The loss comprises one package of stamps amounting to $500 which had been received by Postmaster Davis the day before, and had not been opened; about $100 in other stamps, and between $175 and $200 in cash.

The safe crackers, who were evidently experts, carried off the books, so the exact amount of the loss is not known. Postoffice inspectors are on the scene, but there is no clue to the robbers.

Mobile's New Station.

The sum of $250,000 is to be expended on the site and the new union passenger station at Mobile. The state railroad commission has approved of the plans for the new station, and work will begin shortly. The station will be amply large to accommodate all of the railroads entering Mobile. It will be situated at the corner of Beauregard and St. Joseph streets, and its construction is undertaken by the Southern railway.

About six months ago lawyers and members of congress were surprised to learn that Librarian Putnam had relieved from duty the librarian of the supreme court, Thomas H. Clark, of Montgomery, Ala., and had filled his place by the appointment of Charles Scott. Since Mr. Clark's departure the affairs of the law library have been in chaos, the law library of 100,000 volumes has been scattered and the public is generally informed that the law library is being "reclassified and recatalogued," and that Mr. Scott, law librarian, is "in Europe on official business."

Santos Dumont, the aeronaut, has definitely decided not to return to America for the St. Louis airship competition. There is only one firm, he says, which can repair the damage done to the envelope of his balloon. After an interview with the head of this firm, Santos Dumont announced that the repairs could not be made within six weeks or two months, leaving insuficient time to ship the balloon to St. Louis for a trial before the close of the fair. Hereafter, he declares, he will limit his experiments to Paris.

The Rosebud reservation, South Dakota, including about 416,000 acres of the richest land in the northwest, is to be given away by Uncle Sam in homesteads of 160 acres during this month. This means that 2,400 splendid farms are to be had practically free.

A RUSSIAN DEFEAT

1000 of the Czar's Soldiers Killed in a Battle with the Japanese.

COUNT KELLER DEFEATED.

Kuroki Repulses Him and Pursues Him—Seizure of Mails.

General Kuroki reports that two divisions of the Russian army made a desperate assault on Maotien pass at dawn July 17th, but were repulsed. Casualties not stated.

At 3 o'clock Sunday morning a heavy fog veiling their movements, two divisions of Russians commanded by Lieutenant General Keller, made an assault on the Japanese positions at Moatien pass. The Japanese resisted, repulsed the Russians and pursued them for a considerable distance westward.

The Japanese torpedo destroyer Hayatori has captured a junk conveying mail from Port Arthur to Che Foo. Letters dealing with military and naval conditions at Port Arthur have been seized. Much valuable information was contained in the letters. Those which did not deal with military topics have been forwarded to St. Petersburg with the request that they be delivered to those to whom they were addressed.

On July 17th, in order to determine the strength of the enemy, it was decided to advance in the direction of Lianshankwan. Lieutenant General Count Keller had been instructed not to start with the object of capturing the pass, but to act according to the strength of the force that he would find opposed to him.

General Keller found the strength of the enemy so great that he decided not to continue the fight, and not to bring up either the special or the general reserves because it would be necessary to attack without the support of the field artillery.

A Russian force, apparently about 20,000 strong, attacked the front, left and right of Japanese positions at Moatien pass Monday under cover of a dense fog. The sudden onslaught drove in the Japanese posts, but as soon as reinforcements arrived the Japanese gallantly advanced to the attack, and after severe fighting drove off the Russians and reoccupied the position.

Safe Robbed.

George Findley's store at Greensboro was entered Sunday night by an unknown thief and one hundred dollars stolen from his safe. The thief gained an entrance by smashing a hole in the glass front large enough for his hand, thereby enabling him to undo the fastenings of the door. Only the day combination was on Mr. Findley's safe and the burglar was evidently some one well acquainted with the premises. He easily opened the safe, from which he took one hundred dollars belonging to Mr. Findley, but left untouched twenty dollars in the safe that belonged to the Masonic lodge.

JURY SAYS LOOMIS' BODY

Doctors Assert Wound Back of Ear Was Caused Before Death.

The coroner's jury, which viewed the body of the man washed ashore Saturday, found that the deceased was Frederick Kent Loomis, and that he was found dead in Bigbury Bay, there being no evidence to show how he met his death.

The jury was somewhat late in assembling in consequence of the delay in carrying out the medical examination by two local doctors, whose testimony was to the effect that there was a contused wound below and behind the right ear, indicated by the blood in the scalp and a rupture of the covering of the brain. There was also a general bruise involving the scalp and integument of the brain on the left side above the ear. The above injuries, in the doctors' opinion, were caused before death.

The American consul at Plymouth Joseph G. Stephens, attended the proceedings.

BIG ORDER FOR MOSQUITO NETTING.

General Davis Wants 100,000 Yards for Use in Panama.

General Davis, governor general of the Panama canal strip, has advised the Panama canal commission that he wants 100,000 yards of wire gauze to prevent mosquito invasion of the zone. General Davis says that this will be perhaps the largest order for mosquito netting ever given. He recommends the use of steel wire screens not coarser than seventeen meshes to the square inch, galvanized.

Admiral Walker suggests that copper and brass wire also may be utilized. For the hospitals 20,000 yards will be needed, while for screening the houses along the canal zone 75,000 yards will be required.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL

Robert Knighton, Cullman Prisoner, Gets Away by Trick.

He was the only prisoner in jail, and knowing that the jailer, Deputy Sheriff J. H. Dunlap, was out of town for several days, resorted to a ruse to effect escape. He cut the bars in his cell. Reaching the corridor, he rapped on the bars, which is the customary call for the jailer when anything is wanted by the prisoners. Mrs. Dunlap answered the call and as she opened the door, thinking that Knighton was secure in his cell, he rushed out by her and made an easy escape.

While at a picnic near Ashford, Will Jenkins and a son of Tom Dias got into a quarrel.

ENGINE LEFT THE TRACK,

Taking Two Cars With It—Three Seriously Hurt.

A passenger train on the Southern railway was wrecked between Covin and Kennedy Thursday afternoon.

No cause has been assigned for the accident other than that the engine and cars jumped the track, carrying a trestle down. The trestle is 400 feet long and eight feet high. The fact that heavy rains have predominated in that territory, causing all trains to be operated under caution at a lower rate of speed than ordinarily, prevented more serious results from the accident.

Horace O. Lindsay, engineer, of Columbus, jumped from his engine and was caught in the machine, sustaining severe bruises all over the body, having his nose broken and suffered internal injuries, serious.

Wylie Jones, negro fireman, was also caught in an endeavor to jump and is the most seriously injured of all. Besides being badly bruised he is otherwise injured, the full extent not yet being known.

R. R. Brooks, mail clerk, of Birmingham, was caught in the overturning combination car and both legs and hips badly bruised and fractured; serious.

Ten passengers were hurt, but not seriously.

The locomotive made a complete turn. The second-class coach left the rails, but did not turn completely to its side. About 100 feet of the trestle was torn up.

KIDNAPED.

But as He Was the Wrong Boy, He Was Released.

Sam Neilly, nineteen years old, who claims to have been kidnaped and held captive for three days, has returned to his home, Minter City, Miss. His clothing was found on the banks of the Tallahatchie river and divers searched the stream for his remains. Dynamite had been secured and the bed of the river was being blasted when Neilly arrived on the scene dressed in old clothes, which he says were given him by the kidnapers.

Neilly claims that he was mistaken for the son of Jimmy Townes, a wealthy citizen, and that he was released as soon as the bandits discovered their mistake.

The father of young Neilly is chancery clerk of Tallahatchie county and court had been adjourned to search for the body of the missing man.

Neilly says there were two of the kidnapers and that they made him undress and change clothes at the point of a revolver. He says that he would recognize either of them, though he was for the most time un... ...clue has as yet been secured that may lead to the capture of the men.

Former President Transvaal Republic, Died Thursday.

Paul Kruger, former president of the Transvaal republic, died at Clarens, Switzerland, from pneumonia and supervning heart weakness. Mr. Kruger lost consciousness Monday. His daughter and son-in-law were with him at the time of his death.

The ex-president's body was embalmed and the remains will be placed in a vault pending funeral arrangements. Application will be made to the British government for authority to transport the remains to the Transvaal.

LOOMIS' BODY FOUND

Floats to the English Coast Not Far from Plymouth. Wound in Head.

FOUL PLAY GIVEN CREDENCE.

Examination of the Body Adds to Suspicions—That Wound Behind the Ear.

The body of F. Kent Loomis, who disappeared from the North German Lloyd steamer, Kaiser Wilhelm II, on June 20th last, as that vessel was nearing Plymouth, was found at Warrens Point, adjacent to Thurlestone Sands, some fifteen miles from Plymouth. The body was bruised by contact with rocks.

It was dressed in a gray overcoat, dark blue suit and white shirt. When the body was searched a gold watch, a quantity of American and English money in notes and coin were found in the pockets, and a card with the name, F. Kent Loomis. The pockets also contained a number of private papers. The American consul at Plymouth proceeded to Thurlestone and after viewing the body identified it as that of F. Kent Loomis.

The consul said there was an abrasion under the right ear. Deceased's watch had stopped at 6 o'clock. The steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, from which Mr. Loomis disappeared, arrived at Plymouth at 2 o'clock in the morning.

The wound behind the right ear is described as being circular, large and clean, and it is thought that it was inflicted before death. It is surmised that Mr. Loomis' body fell into the water near Eddystone light house.

Joseph G. Stephens, American consul at Plymouth, in response to a telegram sent by the Associated Press tonight asking him if the local reports of foul play had any basis, or if he had any ground for suspicion regarding the death of Mr. Loomis, replied:

"I regret I can not make any statements prior to the inquest which will be held tomorrow. The wound on the back of the right ear is the size of a half dollar. The body is fairly well preserved, and especially about the top of the head, considering the time it has been in the water."

Mr. Fields was on his way from Mississippi in company with his brother, who was also injured in the wreck. He was suffering with consumption in the last stages, and while his injuries were not sufficient to cause death, it is thought that the shock and fright of the wreck hastened his death.

A large number of witnesses were examined, but no evidence was adduced to show that there was criminal action on the part of any one.

ALABAMA BABTISTS

Meet in Anniston in Annual Convention.

The Alabama Baptist state convention will convene in its 83d annual session in the Parker Memorial Baptist church at Anniston July 20 to 22, inclusive. Among the questions that will require the attention of the body will be the raising of a $500,000 endowment fund for Howard college, the general discussion of missions and the affairs of the educational institutions of the convention. The convention controls Howard college at East Lake, the Judson female institute at Marion, the Alabama Baptist orphanage at Evergreen and several other smaller educational institutions.

The paramount question before the convention will be missions. The reports of the home and foreign missionary secretaries are looked forward to with considerable interest.

The Baptist State convention has no executive powers. Its delegates can pass resolutions and make suggestions but each church is a government unto itself. The convention has no authority to change any of the creeds or laws. The churches in the various districts are divided into associations. The Baptists of Alabama number 150,000. There are 855 churches and 80 associations in the state. The value of church property is $1,379,592.

The officers of the convention are: H. S. D. Mallory, of Selma, president; C. L. Comer, of Eufaula, first vice president; R. H. Pettus, of Huntsville, second vice president; R. F. Manly, of Birmingham, treasurer; W. B. Compton, of Montgomery, corresponding secretary; S. P. Fowlke, of Birmingham auditor.

Another important matter that will come before the convention will be the question of placing evangelists in the field.

HUNT SUES FOR DAMGES.

Alleges False Imprisonment and Criminal Libel.

William A. Hunt has filed suit against R. C. Milliken, Sheriff Burgin, Judge Benners, of the inferior court of Birmingham, and the Fidelity Mutual Life Insurance company, asking for damages to the amount of $50,000 for an alleged false and malicious arrest and imprisonment.

The plaintiff also claims damages to the amount of $199,999 against the Fidelity Mutual Insurance company in a second suit, alleging libel.

Hunt was indicted on two charges in Texas. He was tried on the first indictment and acquitted, and was on the second bill found guilty and given a sentence of five years in the penitentiary. An appeal to the supreme court was taken and a decision was handed down reversing the decision of the lower court and ordering the defendant discharged.

RESERVOIR BREAKS,

Flooding Valley of Scottdale, Pa., Ruining Property and Crops.

With the roar of a Niagara the new reservoir of the Citizens' Water company at Scottdale, Pa., burst Sunday night, and more than 300,000,000 gallons of water rushed down the valley, sweeping all before it, and inundating crops and wrecking buildings in its path. It was discovered that the dam was in danger of breaking, and messengers were hastily sent through the valley to warn the people.

Hundreds of lives were thus saved, for an hour later the whole valley was under water.

The damage to the machinery and the reservoir alone will amount to $50,000. When the torrent swept down upon the valley buildings were torn from their foundations and carried on the crest of a great wave. Crops valued at thousands of dollars were completely wiped out. Bridges were carried away.

How to Listen to Music

By ARLIE BRADLEY

There are many subjects under music which we all are to a certain extent familiar with, as the "biographers of its masters," "the development," or "mediaeval music," but not many give the subject of "how to listen to music" much thought. Maybe because it does not seem as though this is one of any great importance, taking it for granted that "to listen, is to hear." However, the proper capacity to listen to music is better proof of musical talent than skill to play upon any instrument or to sing acceptably. It does more for that gentleness and refinement of thought and action which it is the province of music to promote. Of all the arts, music is practiced most and thought about least. One reason is, that a sweet mystery enshrouds the nature of music, and that to master it technically alone costs a vast amount of time, patience and industry.

Music is dual in its nature, it is material as well as spiritual. The material side we apprehend through hearing, comprehend through intelligence; but the spiritual side we reach by fancy and imagination. A true musician will recognize in every selection the three decisive elements of music—harmony, melody and rhythm. Simply explained, harmony is a well ordered series of tones, melody, the ordered tone of series, and rhythm, the symmetrical grouping of the series. Beyond doubt, melody is the most important of the three. The master is the one who has the genius to put fire, passion, poetry and expression into his compositions—to make them seem living things. Of all those who have been able to do this, Beethoven has led. Like Goethe, this genius has secreted many a mystery in his masterpieces, but divine talent shows itself in every tone, and the secret only charms.

To listen to music, to appreciate it, we must first know something of its divisions. Of these, there may be said to be four; chamber, programme, classic and romantic. The first section represents pure thought, lofty imagination and deep learning. Composers find it the finest field for the display of their talents, because their own skill in creating is to be paired with the trained skill in hearing. Properly speaking, the programme music is applied to descriptions, emotions and poetic inspirations; and in a high sense this class is the purest music in the world. Schumann, Beethoven, Mendelssohn and Liszt were lovers of the programme. But, among all terms in music, are words of no vaguer meaning than classic and romantic, although all have a general idea of each. Summed up very briefly, we may say that the classic is that style of music strictly adhering to all the established rules of harmony and counterpoint, regardless of poetry or expression of tone, and that the romantic is merely the progressive and creative principle of the classic style.

As the highest type of instrumental music, we have the symphony, a term taken from the Greek (symphonia). This, if it be written for a solo instrument, becomes a sonata, or if written for an orchestra, a concerto. The symphony is made up of four parts: (1) the allegro, a quick movement, which may be preceded by an introduction or prelude, (2) the adagio, a slow movement, (3) the scherzo, a playful, jocose movement, (4) the finale, usually called the rondo, which repeats the chosen theme several times, and which may be introduced by a trio. Another interesting form of older instrumental music is the serenade, which is simply a group of short pieces, arranged agreeably. This style belongs to the "days of chivalry," when gallant knights serenaded their fair ladies. This form of composition was followed by the Gigue, the Minuet and the Gavotte. With the old masters, as Bach, Beethoven and Chopin, came into existence the prelude, etude, nocturne and the symphony. Later, another style of composition became famous, known as Liszt's Hungarian Rhapsodies. These works will always live, on account of their weird, dreamy and romantic construction, as well as the technic and skill required in their execution.

A few short years and grand opera reached a state of perfection, through the wonderful genius of Gounod, Mozart, Verdi and Meyerbeer. Who has not heard of Gounod's "Faust," Mozart's "Marriage of Figaro" and "Don Giovanni," Verdi's "Il Trovatore" and Meyerbeer's "Huguenots" and "The Prophet?" These grand works will never perish; they are too great. In choral music, the names Bach, Handel and Haydn stand first. What could be more beautiful than "The Messiah," "The Creation" and "The Passion-Music?"

Surely the poet who said "music is the gift of heaven" was correct, for what art is so pure, so true, or so magnificent and sublime as music? What can be as beautiful as its masterpieces when performed perfectly? Yes, surely music is divine, for it is the highest of all things.

Great Turtle.

When Mauritius was ceded to Great Britain in 1810 there was a gigantic turtle in the court at the artillery barracks at Port Louis which is still there although almost blind. IF one political party is to be allowed to conduct and manage a primary for another political party, it opens the way for fraud and corruption to a fearful extent.

WHAT would be said if the Democrats of Chilton county should undertake to call and manage a primary for the Republicans?

THE primary election law provides for each political party to manage its own primaries, but does not authorize one party to carry out an election for another party.

THE Board of Registrars registered 9 voters at Flint Hill, Beat 11, 23 at Mineral Springs, Beat 1, and 31 at Thorsby, Beat 9.

A RUMOR has been in circulation the last week that L. H. Reynolds had withdrawn from the race for Judge of Probate, as his announcement had been taken out from the Birmingham paper. Whether there is any truth in it, or whether it is merely one of those vagaries of the Birmingham paper which sane people can't account for, it is impossible to say. A. C. Mims seems determined to come in somewhere, as he is announced in one place for Judge of Probate, and in another for Tax Assessor.

PUBLIC SPEAKING.

At the Big Barbecue of Beat 3 to be held at the Fonnie Williams place, on the road between Mulberry church and Nix's gin tomorrow (Friday) the finest preparations are being made to entertain the biggest crowd ever seen in that part of the county. The barbecue is to be of the best, and music will be furnished by a brass band.

Congressman Bowie and Gov. Cunningham are booked to speak, and their speeches are always worth listening to. Everybody is invited to come to this feast of reason and flow of soul.

On Saturday there will be a basket dinner and great time generally at Mineral Springs, Beat 1, being determined to be in the Democratic band wagon. Hon. S. J. Bowie will be there and expound Democratic doctrine to your hearts content. Everybody is cordially invited to go out and have a good time.

THE COMING WHAT IS IT?

A peculiar condition of affairs in Chilton county reaches a crisis next Tuesday, when some sort of an election is to be held, although no one is able to find a name for it or to say what it represents.

The Populist Executive Committee has called a primary for that day, appointed managers, and in fact made all necessary preparations. But not one solitary individual has announced himself for office subject to the action of the Populist party, so that it appears the labor of the Populist Executive Committee is thrown away and they will hold no primary.

On the same day a number of gentlemen have announced themselves as candidates for the several county offices, "subject to the action of the Peoples' primary." What that means no one appears to know. There is no such party in the County or in the State; no managers have been applied for or appointed, so how the candidates are to decide which wins rests with themselves.

Prominent Republicans disclaim all knowledge of any primary for next Tuesday, and say no true Republican can take part in this anomalous proceeding.

Then, again, another damper on this "primary" is the belief that a slate has been fixed up, and all candidates not upon the slate have the poor consolation of knowing they have submitted their claims to a primary in which they have never been allowed to stand the remotest chance of success.

From the best information we can obtain only a comparatively small vote is expected at this "primary."

The Dem. Exec. Com. met at Clanton, Tuesday, and appointed the following Central Campaign Committee: Tipton Mullins, T. E. Tyus, J. C. Dennis, R. H. Martin, E. F. Mead.

ALL WHITE MEN READ THIS.

"Editor Post: As a colored man I wish to call attention to the difference between the Republican and Democratic national conventions. At the Republican convention the colored man was treated as a champion, friend and brother. There he was made to feel as if he was not only a political, but social equal. The delegates followed the advice and example of our beloved President, Theodore Roosevelt, who teaches that the colored man deserves to be treated as a social equal. To empathize this fact, he had the courage to have at his table Prof. Booker T. Washington. If Roosevelt is elected it will so encourage the colored men that we will demand that Prof. Booker Washington shall be the Republican candidate for Vice President in 1908.

"Let not our colored brethren forget that scene in the Republican convention when a beautiful white girl was placed upon the stand and by her side a negro boy. They then placed flags in their hands and allowed them to lead the cheering, thus making the first and grandest example of the equality of the races that history has ever recorded.

"In the Democratic convention there was not a single colored man. It was in word and deed a white man's convention of a whites man's party. All hail to Roosevelt, who has given the poor negro so much to encourage him to persist in his political and social rights."

DIED.

Mr. Hugh Williams, one of the oldest and most respected citizens of Jumbo, died suddenly at his home last Saturday morning. He had not been in good health for some time, but was well enough to be in Clanton two days before his death. He was about 67 years of age. The funeral took place at the Goodgame graveyard on Sunday. Our sympathies are with the bereaved widow and family.

Now a word to the man who wrote a piece from Fairview last week. Let me ask you to accept my heartfelt thanks for writing that piece. Now I will say a few words to Moses. Moses now while the sun is shinning you are having a good time to air off some of the negro, and to pop off some of your gass. SUNSHINE.

Maplesville.

Our good old colored weather prophets have placed the moon on the right side, so has most generously poured out delightful showers that have greatly encouraged our farmers that are ever on the rung of our prosperity. Our blackberry crop is on the wane, but so much good garden sass has run the "red wolf" off awhile.

Mrs. Hanlon has returned from St. Louis wonderfully impressed with our exhibit, particularly minerals and metals. She was pleased with the personality of Mr. Vulcan, though he answered her not a word addressed. The appointment of the Methodist conference was held here with Presiding Elder Abernathy and Rev. Nelson, attended by Lester and George Reed. The members of the Methodist church thank Mrs. R. D. Martin for the beautiful pulpit flowers.

Miss Gayaline Ricketts and Master Glen Evans, attended by their good colored nurse, Sarah, had a most delightful day with friends; the chicken pie and other good eatables would have excited the envy of good Queen Alexandra. This reminds the writer of childhood days spent with good colored friends.

Many of our town people enjoyed the treat of beer and ice so generously given by Messrs. Ensign to the barbecue at Pleasant Grove.

Mr. Moore and family have visited their kinsman here, Mr. Gore.

We are pleased to state that Fines Walker has recovered under the skillful treatment of Dr. Parnell from a serious attack of bilous fever.

We regret (and one particular young man more than anyone else) that the beautiful and charming Miss Charles has gone into business in Montgomery.

Mrs. Plant has been seriously ill, but is convalescing.

Mrs. Gore, Miss Lillian and Master Albert Gore have visited Mrs. Myrk Smitherman.

All who cross the Byrd's creek bridge built by Perry Graham feel under lasting obligations to him and sincerely hope that none will have trouble about said bridge since he taken out a patent-right.

Mr. E. Ensign is off on a business trip.

Miss Cora Martin, W. C. T. U lecturer, gave a most entertainin lecture in the Methodist church.

OUR WASHINGTON LETTER.

Special Correspondence to The Banner.

Washington, July 11, 1904

The Democrats of this country may as well give up trying to stop the Republican lie that the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill of 1894 was responsible for the panic of 1893. We may deny and vociferate our denial until we are black in the face, that a tariff bill can be retroactive and can not go back one year and bring on a panic that started a year before it was in existence, because every time we do, the Republicans will add a few more billion dollars loss which occurred in that panic. There never was anything so idiotically silly as the statement made by the Republicans that every tariff bill passed by them brought prosperity and that every tariff bill passed by Democrats brought commercial disaster. The Republicans were responsible for the tariff bill—if a tariff bill can produce anything in the way of commercial depression—which occasioned the dread depression in the panic of 1873, and for the panic of 1893, because the McKinley Bill was then in active operation and had absolutely gutted the Treasury. The tariff wall had been placed so high that it absolutely paralyzed barter and exchange and trade and commerce. Nothing could come in and therefore very little went out, for where people can not sell, they will not buy. Any man who says that the Democratic party was responsible through the Wilson-Gorman tariff bill for the hard times in this country that began in 1893 is an idiotic ass and writes himself down one in the estimation of every sensible man in this nation. Nevertheless Republicans go on making the assertion stronger and broader each day. When you hear a Republican say it, call him a liar and prove it.

I had a talk with an official in the Department of Agriculture a few days ago and he gave me some facts concerning the Government exhibit of fostery at the St. Louis Fair, which will be interesting to the farmers of this country. He said:

"The Bureau of Forestry of the U. S. Department of Agriculture has prepared for the Louisiana Purchase Exposition the most extensive display it has ever made. The purpose is both to illustrate the work which the Bureau is doing and to show actual forest conditions in all parts of the country. The visitor will see there the most impressive evidence of what practical forestry is, and also its great present and future importance as a means of promoting the national welfare. Lumbering ranks fourth among the industries of the country, and it is a matter of hopeful promise for the permanence of the industry and for the cause of forestry that lumbermen are adopting conservative forest management in their lumber operations. That agriculture, incomparably the most important of our national sources of wealth, also depends, in no small degree on forestry, is not, however, so well understood. Under intensive methods of farming and with the enlargement of the cultivable area made possible by irrigation, this dependence will become increasingly close. Mining and grazing, too, materially depend on timber, and the forage which feeds most of the western stock is one of the important indirect products which under proper restrictions, the forest may be made to yield. All of these relationships are strikingly displayed in the forestry exhibit at St. Louis.

IN MEMORIAM.

It is sad indeed to state that the death angel visited my home the 7th of July 1904 and taken my precious mother, Mrs. Annie R. Jones, the loving wife of Mr. J. H. Jones, the son of the late Rev. Hardy Jones.

The subject of this sketch was born in west Coosa county Oct. 31, 1857, where her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Barrett now live. Her and father were united together Dec. 26, 1878. They lived a happy life until her death. They were blessed with seven children of which all are living but one.

She lived a member of the missionary Baptist church for twenty nine years.

While our hearts are sad, we thank God for a Christian mother that taught us that we had a soul to be saved or one to be lost.

All of her children that have reached the year of maturity have professed Christianity at an early age.

She was carried on the 8th to Titus, Elmore county, where the funeral service was held by Rev. J. C Thomas, her pastor. There was present many friends and relatives to weep over her. But touched friends and relatives let us look to Jesus and press forward to meet her. Her son,

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

I have, I belive, sold fifty boxes of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets on the recommendation of one lady here, who first bought a box of them about a year ago. She never tires of telling her neighbors and friends about the good qualities of these Tablets.—P. M. Shore, Druggist, Rochester, Ind. The pleasant purgative effect of these Tablets makes them a favorite with ladies everywhere. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.

FAVOR OILED ROADS.

The Use of Petroleum on Highways to Lay the Dust.

The use of oil on highways is steadily increasing in favor. In Moline, Ill., oil has been tried in place of water as a remedy for dust, and the results have been satisfactory. Bourbon, Ind., is considering the idea of sprinkling the streets with oil. The dust problem there is a very serious one during the summer months, for there are no gravel beds from which to construct roads.

The towns of California, which have been doing more in this line than those of any other state, are testifying to the great benefits derived from oil on the highways, by the continued use they are making of this means of laying the dust, says the New York Tribune. The board of supervisors of Sacramento are greatly in favor of oiled roads. Three hundred or 350 barrels of oil a mile are at times necessary for the permanent packing of a sand road, but in many cases only 180 barrels need be used.

The roads of California are in most cases of sand, and the great benefits derived from the consolidating of this sand with the oil is continually testified to by those in charge of the highways. Not only is the oil a better dust layer and a more permanent one, but it is also more economical than water, inasmuch as the roads need to be oiled but once or twice a year, while sprinkling with water must be done every little while.

RUSSIANS GUESSING

As to Just What the Plans of the Japanese Are. England is Incensed.

MARSHAL OYAMA ON GROUND.

High Vegetation and Much Rain Now an Element in the Hostilities. Mail Seizure.

As an outcome of Lieutenant General Count Keller's engagement at Moatien pass, military experts are convinced that there has been a rearrangement of the Japanese force and a change in the Japanese plans in favor of a flanking movement on Liao Yang, rather than a direct movement on Ta Tche Kiao. This change, coinciding with the arrival of Field Marshal Oyama, leads the experts to attribute the responsibility to the commander in chief.

Hitherto General Kuropatkin has been able to mislead Generals Kuroki, Noduz and Oku, and to induce them to expend their greatest energy where it would do the least harm.

It is probable that Kuropatkin ordered General Keller to attack with the view of drawing on the Japanese just as he sent General Stakelberg to draw them up from the south.

The developments of the campaign in the near future are bound to be greatly influenced by a new factor, the luxuriance of the vegetations following the few days' rain. The tall grass effectually concealing an enemy renders the prospect of an advance to the valley of the Liao river too hazardous and it has probably been abandoned by the Japanese, thus explaining the delay in the occupation of Yin Kow.

Another submarine boat from America arrived at Cronstadt Monday night. The first American submarine which arrived at Cronstadt about a fortnight ago was allowed to drop in landing from the vessel and was seriously damaged.

In British official circles the recent seizures and overhauling of British ships in the Red Sea by the Russian volunteer fleet steamers Smolensk and St. Petersburg are regarded as grave international incidents. The seizure of the Peninsula and Orient steamer Malacca by the St. Petersburg and her arrival in the Suez canal as a prize of war on her way to Libau, on the Baltic, has come as a climax. The cabinet is considering the course to pursue. The British law officers acknowledge the right of the Russians to seize and detain mails, provided that only official communications are taken, but they take the most serious view of the status of the two Russian ships patrolling the Red sea.

Another element which adds to the danger of the situation is the attitude Japan may assume. The Pall Mall Gazette points out that if it is insisted in dispatches from Constantinople the Russian guardship Chernomoretz traversed the straits fully armed, "it would seem to justify Japan in regarding Turkey as an ally of Russia and invoking the terms of the Anglo-Japanese treaty."

IRON AT SYCAMORE.

A discovery of iron ore made at Sycamore three years ago has been developed by the Shelby Iron company and found to run nearly 50 per cent metalic iron.

The indications go to show that there is probably 10,000,000 tons in a six-foot seam. Underlying this seam, at a distance of only four feet is another seam containing nine feet of ore. It is leaner than the upper seam and may not be as profitable to work, but it is the same kind of ore as the upper seam and will be used some time in the future.

The Talledega Electric company has purchased the holdings of the Talladega company and is continuing the work of harnessing the water power on Jackson shoals begun by the latter company. The capital stock of the Talladega company is $50,000, and it now has a dam in course of construction across Choccolocco creek and proposes to furnish light and power in Talladega and vicinity by November first.

A RAILROAD RUMOR.

Tells of Change in the L. & N. and Southern Roads.

A corps of surveyors at work on the Birmingham, Selma & New Orleans division of the Louisville and Nashville railroad between Myrtlewood and the Tombigbee river is the cause of a railroad rumor to the effect that the Louisville & Nashville has leased the track that the Louisville & Nashville is now using between Mobile and New Orleans and that it will be turned over to the Southern on the first of October. It is stated that the Louisville & Nashville will complete the Birmingham, Selma & New Orleans division to Hattiesburg by the first of October so that it will still have an outlet at New Orleans. By the completion of this gap fifty or sixty miles to Hattiesburg it will still give the L. & N. an outlet at New Orleans and would also enable that road to hold its contract with the government for the fast mail service from the east to the Pacific coast.

It is said that beginning October 1 the Southern railway would put on a fast mail and vestibule train from the north via Birmingham, Selma, Mobile and New Orleans to the Pacific coast.

MORGAN OWNS CATHOLIC RELIC

And the Pope Will Try to Obtain It for the Church.

It is stated in a special dispatch from Rome that the pope has commissioned Cardinal Vannutelli, who is about to visit Ireland, to try to obtain from J. P. Morgan the priceless ancient cope which was stolen in 1502 from the Cathedral of Ascoli. The cope mysteriously disappeared while repairs were being made in the cathedral, and though the government took measures for its recovery, they were unsuccessful. It now transpires that the cope was sold to Mr. Morgan, who has loaned it to the South Kensington museum, where it is at present on view. The cope is a beautifully embroidered piece of work, done in France in the thirteenth century. It was presented to the Ascoli cathedral by Nicholas IV. The entire ground is of gold thread, on which are worked fifteen exquisite panels of religious subjects.

PLENTY OF MONEY

Is Reported from the Philippine Islands.

A cablegram received by the bureau of insular affairs announces that the Philippine government has no occasion to purchase more silver. The silver purchased last year produced substantially two millions more pesos than all the Mexicans imported since January 1st, 1902. The recoinage of Spanish Filipino coins, which is being prosecuted in the San Francisco mint, fully supplies the vacuum by their withdrawal from circulation.

The Philippine government has in circulation in the islands, in transit and in process of recoinage sixteen million more silver coins than were in the island January 1st, 1904, and two million more than were in the islands January 1, 1903, when there was a great surplus of currency.

He managed during his course to stand second on the class roll, and was graduated with high honors. Mr. Saylor is twenty-six years old.

CROP PROGRESS.

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE.

Climate and Crop Bulletin of the Weather Bureau—Alabama Section—For Week Ending July 18th, 1904.

General Conditions.

Beneficial and fairly well distributed rains, with ample sunshine, and nearly normal temperature, made the week very favorable for crop growth, in a few scattered localities, excessive rains and high winds were slightly damaging, and in a few other widely scattered districts more rains is needed. Cotton continues to make vigorous growth and to fruit well; in some fields there are many half grown bolls; some fields are foul and need cultivation, there are some reports of too rapid growth, with occasional mention of lice, rust, blight and boll worms; however the crop, as a whole, is very promising, many correspondents reporting it better than for several years. Corn continues to ear well, with the outlook favorable for a good yield, except in a few localities, where early corn was damaged by previous drought, or where excessive rains have damaged the late planted on lowlands; some early corn is maturing in southern counties. Gardens are yielding fairly well, minor crops are generally promising, and hay prospects are now fairly good. Shipments of peaches are becoming heavy, with this fruit in generally good condition; pears continue promising; grapes are ripening and promise a good yield. Wheat thrashing is progressing slowly, and the yield continues good. Taken as a whole, the crops in this state are now in generally promising condition.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Georgia Farmer Kills His Wife and Then Himself to Avoid Mob.

A posse pursuing him found and surrounded him near Roopville, Ga. Rather than surrender Teal shot himself and his dead body was secured by his pursuers.

A TRAGEDY OF THE SLUMS.

REMARKABLE STORY ABOUT A GANG OF LONDON THIEVES.

Hero Born in a Workhouse Is Finally Adopted by a Benefactor—Made Sole Heir to Fortune—Full Confession of a Plotter Ends Mystery.

Through a sensational slum murder and the revelation by it of a gang of thieves and cut-throats, Scotland Yard has unearthed a most interesting romance and incidently restored to his fortune a young boy, who, despite his few years, has gone through more than ordinarily comes to men in the full course of their lives. A quarter of a century ago society was greatly interested in the marriage of the late Edwin Leeford, then a young man in his teens, with a lady of high position several years his senior. The marriage, which had as its issue one son, did not turn out happily, and in a few years Mrs. Leeford, taking her son, went to the continent to live.

Some time later intimate friends of the family were greatly troubled over reports of a liason between Mr. Leeford and an estimable young woman, the daughter of a retired officer. Then a relative died, leaving Mr. Leeford his fortune. Mr. Leeford went to Rome to settle the estate and died while there, without leaving, so far as then known, a will. The whereabouts of the unfortunate young woman became a mystery, for she left her father's roof and was supposed to have made away with herself. Now, however, it is known that she died in a county workhouse after having given birth to a son, who has come to be the hero of this latest causes celebre, and is to enjoy what is left of his half of the estate left by his unfortunate father. Those will, it turns out, was destroyed shortly after his death by his wife.

Last week it will be remembered, Spitalfields was greatly excited by the murder of a notorious woman named Sikes. The murderer was her lover, known as "Bill," who a few days later, was killed while attempting to elude pursuit. The crime was a direct outcome of the romance to which reference has been made.

According to the police, the boy when he left the workhouse fell into the hands of a gang of thieves which has existed for several years in the east end, under the leadership of one Fagin. Their efforts to make a thief out of him failed, but it ultimately put him in the way of coming into his own. He was arrested on a charge of pocket picking preferred by Mr. Brownlow, a gentleman of means, and discharged for lack of sufficient evidence. Mr. Brownlow became interested in the boy and took him home, but a few days later members of the gang, the murdered woman and her brother kidnapped him for fear that he would tell what he knew to the police. Later he was taken by the murderer and another thief to help them in robbing the house of Mrs. Maylie and in the melee that followed the boy was badly hurt. Again he fell into the hands of the police, but this time Mrs. Maylie came to his rescue and provided him with a home.

In the meantime, it seems, his half brother, Edward Leeford, had become cognizant of his existence, and conscious of the fact that the boy was heir to half his father's property, undertook to destroy all proof of his identity. Leeford is a bad character, and, under the name of "Monks," has consorted with thieves more or less, including Fagin. He decided, therefore, to have Fagin get hold of the boy and keep him, for he himself had secured and destroyed some little mementoes that had been taken from the boy's unfortunate mother by her nurse.

In the gang of disreputable characters into which the boy had fallen he had found one friend, the Sikes woman. She undertook to warn Miss Rose Maylie, Mrs. Maylie's niece, of the conspiracy against the boy, and succeeded in her effort, but Fagin, suspecting her, had her shadowed, and then told her brother that she had betrayed him to the police. This was the cause of the murder.

The developments from then on were very rapid. Mr. Brownlow, the first protector of the boy, turned out to be the closest friend of his father and one who for years had been trying to find traces of him. When he first had the boy he suspected that he was Edward Leeford's son, because of his striking resemblance to a portrait of his mother. Mr. Brownlow succeeded after much difficulty in getting hold of Edward Leeford, alias Monks, and secured a full confession from him, how his mother had destroyed the will, how he himself had followed the boy up and sought to get rid of him without resorting to murder, and how he had plotted to have Fagin kidnap him again. Moreover, he gave the interesting news that Miss Rose Maylie is the boy's aunt. It seems that his father, overwhelmed with sorrow and shame at the fate of his elder daughter, retired to the country and changed his name. At his death his daughter, Rose was adopted by Mrs. Maylie, whom she has always regarded as her aunt.

With the death of Sikes and his sister, the arrest and certain conviction of Fagin, the gang of pickpockets and thieves has been fairly well broken up. John Dawkins, alias the "Artful Dodger;" Charles Bates, and Toby Crackit, other members of the gang are also in custody. The hero of the romance will henceforth be known as Oliver Brownlow, having been adopted by his benefactor, and he will soon forget his workhouse name of Oliver Twist. It is learned from the solicitors of the family that little is left of his father's fortune, a matter of £6,000, but Mr. Brownlow is wealthy and has made his his sole heir.

THE GREAT WALL OF CHINA.

Its Important Influence in Compelling Neutrality of the Empire.

Secretary of State Hay's proposal to the powers to limit the war area in the Far East within a region considerably northward of the Great Wall of China harmonizes with a policy outlined some weeks ago by the Standard (London) and the Vossische Zeitung (Berlin). The United States, however, was not credited with the design of initiating the idea which, according to the English paper, aims at preventing a dismemberment of the Chinese dynasty from Pekin. Such might might not only pay into the hands of Russia, by enabling her to gain a new hold over the court, but might rouse the masses of the Chinese to find again some of the fanatic courage which animated the so-called Boxers."

According to the Japan Daily Mail (Yokohama), there is reason to suspect that Russia may have a sort of agreement with the empress dowager relinquishing to the former, in certain contingencies, all of China outside of the Great Wall. The alleged agreement has some importance at present, according to the Independance Belge (Brussels), for the reason that China does not regard her territory north of the Great Wall as constituting an integral portion of her empire. The Chinese point of view regarding this matter is set forth more fully in the Empire du Milieu (Paris) by M. Albert de Pouvourville.

The frontiers of China proper, which are defenseless in spite of the childish but gigantic work known as the Great Wall, as composed of feudatory states, singular political contrivances of which a word could be said. These states, which enjoy autonomy and absolute sovereignty, are "assigned" to the Chinese empire by a kind of moral feudalism. The son of heaven, claiming to be the father of the whole yellow race, was nominal sovereign and received the verbal homage of the kingdoms thus constituted. In return he promised his aid in their disputes and difficulties. On the other hand, the latter, through their geographical situation, as well as through their fealty, were to halt, impede and prevent invasion by enemies of the Chinese empire. They were given the official name of "Fan" (barriers), and they were to use up the energies of the enemy before [illegible] It is now [illegible] shocks, fields of war to which the Chinese were to come to avoid the dangers and the expense of military occupation at home. This capable conception saved China for centuries.

The point of view from which the Chinese regard Manchuria, Corea and other outlying regions of their empire explains their comparative indifference to the progress of the Russo-Japanese crisis, thinks the Neue Freie Presse (Vienna), which has the benefit of the views of a former German minister to China. But the strategic value of the Great Wall, we are further reminded, is Chinese rather than military in the western sense. "The materials of this immense fortification would suffice for a wall six feet high and two feet wide long enough to encircle the globe twice at the equator." It will be the aim of powers friendly to Japan, surmises the European press, to keep Russians in mind of the territorial integrity symbolized by the Great Wall. But the London Times expects that the grand aim of the Russians will be "on to Pekin."

Mere Coincidence.

"Henry," asked Mrs. Penhecker, "how many cigars do you smoke a day?"

"Only one, my love," answered Henry.

"And what does it cost you?"

"Ten cents."

"Hum! Do you know that ten cents a day amounts to thirty-six dollars and fifteen cents in a year?"

"I must confess I never had figured it out."

"Well, it seems to me it would be better if you gave some thought to your reckless extravagance."

Later in the evening Henry happened to pick up the paper his wife had been looking over when she brought up the cigar question. A huge display advertisement on the page she had been reading announced that Linnen & Co. were offering choice of their best tailored suits for thirty-six dollars and fifty cents.—Life.

The Mother Doubts.

Miss Georgia Buist of Lincoln, Kan., said her mother was too slow in the chicken business, and that she would show the old fogies how to do it. So Georgia bought a nice new incubator and set it up in the barn. The first night the incubator caught fire, burned up the most of the barn, a lot of furniture stored in it, a couple of buggies, a six-week-old calf, and all of mother's setting hens. And mother says the young things of these days are not half so smart as they think they are.—Kansas City (Mo.) Journal.

An Eccentric Bishop.

Bishop Wilson of Calcutta had a housekeeper a venerable lady who remembered the duel between Sir Philip Francis and Warren Hastings on June 17, 1780. On entering the cathedral a Sunday morning, fully robed, in sleeves and all, and passing to where the old lady sat he would bend and give her the "kiss of peace" before all the congregation, and this after he had met her at breakfast.

His sermons, too, were racy. Preaching against dishonesty, especially in horseflesh, as one of the great failings in India, he went on, "We, we, servants of the altar, [illegible] yielding to this temptation." Grim Humors of the Scaffold.

In walking to the scaffold in a procession a criminal once asked the governor of the prison to oblige me, guv'nor, by telling me the day o' the week." "Monday," answered the surprised governor. "Monday day!" exclaimed the prisoner in disgusted tones; "well, this 'ere is a way of beginning a week, it is!" And he marched on with the expression imprinted on every line of his face.

On another occasion as the hangman whispered as he pulled the white cap on his victim's head, "If there's anything you'd like to have, I'll be pleased to answer." A SERMON FOR SUNDAY

A STRONG DISCOURSE ENTITLED, "GOD'S LOVE FOR MAN."

The Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers Delivers a Thoughtful and Convincing Address Urging Us to Abjure Selfishness and Animalism—Christ the Ideal.

BROOKLYN, N. Y.—Sunday morning the Rev. Dr. Robert Rogers, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd, preached a thoughtful and convincing sermon on "God's Love For Man." The texts were from John iii:16: "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoso believeth on Him, might not perish, but have everlasting life," and Mark ix:24: "Lord, I believe, help Thou mine unbelief." Dr. Rogers said among other things:

I begin our thought this morning with the great declaration of the beloved Apostle John who, better than any other of Christ's disciples, understood the vital meaning underlying the Master's life. Jesus was to John a distinct personality with whom he was acquainted, a man among men, but He was more than this. He was also at the same time the love of God incarnate in this Man's nature, so that He represented the nature of God, and His feeling and desires and purposes toward mankind. God loved the world. Now, after beginning with this thought, I have taken another verse from Scripture, to indicate man's attitude of mind toward John's declaration, "Lord, I believe, help Thou mine unbelief."

John's statement is a condensed but very complete outline of what the Christian religion aims to teach men. It is the message of the Christian Church that Jesus Christ is the personal demonstration of God's love for man. The life and words of Jesus are the illustrations of how God loves and how He acts toward man, and also what God desires that man shall think and do toward God and toward his fellow man.

Now this kind of thinking leads us into the acknowledgment of the supernatural. It brings us to the admission that our Divine Father loves man, and teaches him, and guides him by laws and standards which He reveals to man according to his needs. In other words, the Christian religion stands for the presence of God in this life we are now living, and that He has help to give to man, and demands to make of man.

There are countless men and women who believe implicitly in this statement of God's presence ruling over life, and who live in their belief, offering up themselves to divine guidance, regretting their sins and imploring pardon in perfect faith that it will be granted. There are, on the other hand, some perhaps, who say they have no belief in the divine and spiritual, and who would place themselves outside of the declarations of the Christian religion, but I believe this number to be few and growing smaller every day, as the fuller vision of the world and its rich spiritual meaning dawns upon their intelligence. But there is another large class with whom I am specially concerned, who believe and yet do not believe. They would not deny the Christian faith, neither are they ready to give their full allegiance to it. There is a multitude of such people among our men and women, and may we not ask seriously why is this the case? Is it because Christ's teaching and His life are so hard to be understood that spiritual things can make no derstood. Are some kinds so constituted naturally that spiritual things can make no effective appeal to them?

If we were for a moment to admit this it would destroy the greatest power which we believe inherent in Christ's religion, namely, that to every man, bond or free, black or yellow, barbarian or Scythian, Jew or Gentile, learned or unlearned, rich or poor, it has the power of entering into his heart and transforming his life. There is not a single instance recorded in the gospels that Christ found that there were certain places where even He could not present His message with conviction, but the cause of His failure was the hardness of men's hearts and not the difficulty of comprehending His gospel, and this same reason will be found to hold good in these days.

Atheism is no longer supposed to be a necessary adjunct of the scientist; but on the contrary, the men who are opening the widest visions of new truth to the world in these days and teaching the profoundest lessons to mankind are men who are sincere believers in the message of God's presence as revealed by Jesus Christ, or at least are able to say with earnestness, "Lord, I believe, help Thou mine unbelief." When we come to consider our own lives and those of the ordinary men and women around about whom we can understand, what is it that prevents the message of Jesus Christ from having the effect upon us all that it ought to have?

There has been for the past few years a warning sounded that men are not attending our Christian churches, and the reasons are being given in various ways. Clergymen are uninteresting; churches are cold, uninspiring places; doctrines are antiquated and illiberal and meaningless to man in the struggle for life. Perhaps there is a truth in all these statements; it is not difficult for even a stupid man to find a plausible excuse for anything he cares to do, or to leave undone. Parents who are bringing up children, teachers who are educating them, understand the readiness of plausible excuses.

But these excuses, whenever given, are not the real reasons why some men do not attend church. Let me say, first, that I believe it is open to demonstration that a larger number of men are interested in the work of the church and attending its services and obeying its inspirations than at any other time in history. And what is more important, they are attending churches willingly without the compulsion of ancient times when heaven and hell were regarded as in the sole power of the church, and men were afraid to absent themselves. Our Y. M. C. A.'s were never so prosperous. The religious nature of our college students was never more genuine than in our own days.

But to speak of those who are not attending our churches, is it not because they have never had a true vision of the vital reality and practicability of Christ's messages? The great majority of men in this country, at least, are nominal Christians. They send their children to Sunday school, they like to have their wives and sisters in union with the church, and if asked whether they themselves believe in the teachings of Christ and His Church, would either evade the question or else say they could follow Christian precepts without attending church. Is not the fault of lack of attendance on Christian worship due rather to the manner of life we are living than to a definite unbelief in the virtue of the Christian religion? They are so much absorbed in the struggle for money that they have neither time nor desire to see anything else. Every one is hunting for it; the business man, the politician, the professional man, the laborer, the coachman, the waiter, the conductor, the porter, the barber, the messenger, the clergyman who is paid for burials and baptisms, the corporation. This one crave seems to leave no part of American society intact, rich and poor, high and low, alike, are infected with this disease, which is sapping all the spiritual and moral energy of the generation.

The church is not the only place from which such men and women absent themselves. Our lectures on history and travel, and science and art are giving up their business because the cry has gone forth that men will not attend lectures. The literature that appeals to people is not that which lifts the mind and heart to higher thoughts, but the type or flimsy novel that ...

...The Church of Christ is no longer a ... ...fashionable place in which the ... ...are to be seen. Rather has it become ... ...more of a reality to many men. It is a ... ...more sacred place. It is not regarded as ... ...those days as simply a continuation of ... ...and ceremonies performed in a sacred ... ...building, but religion is known by all men ... ...to be co-ordinate and co-extensive with life ... ...and the man who willingly lives sinfully ... ...and in disregard of Christ's standard will ... ...not add to his degradation by playing the ... ...hypocrite and impostor. This means that ... ...in the minds of irreligious men there is a ... ...growing respect for religion and a sound ... ...regard for the church even among those ... ...who do not attend. I say that it is the life ... ...which the age is calling on men to live ... ...that is weakening the religious life and ... ...faith of men. Men cannot serve God and ... ...mammon is true forever. Can this evil be ... ...overcome, and how? I believe that it can, ...and the way to overcome it is to satisfy ... ...men that we are living in a moral and spiritual world in which God is present and ... ...in which He makes His demands. Professor James, of Harvard, speaks of the ... ...versality of religious experience opening ... ...up a new world which science has hitherto ... ...scoffed at, but which must be recognized ... ...if we know by our own experience that ... ...there is a realm of thought, of love, of ... ...conscience, of righteousness, toward which ... ...things our hearts yearn. We know more ... ...than ever the laws of this department of ... ...life, how, under God, beneficence and ... ...growth and power are added to life by ... ...their obedience, and how injury and weakness and suffering are the resultants of ... ...disobedience to the individual and to the ... ...nation and the race. Men believe in these ... ...things, because they see them. If they do ... ...not believe in their power as you and I, ...dear Christian friends do, it is because ... ...they have been hindered by other things ... ...from looking at them seriously enough. If ... ...they can be turned from the craze of the ... ...age, which is selfishness, they will be able ... ...to see and appreciate the workings of this ... ...real kingdom of love and Christ in our ... ...midst. If the church is to help men it ... ...must open its doors and heart to such men. ... ...It must not refuse their admission or retard them by insulting them when they ... ...come. If a man is looking for righteousness and anxious to govern his life according to that inspiration, the church ought to be ready to give to such an honest man all he is ready and willing to receive. Let us not be afraid of our sacraments being desecrated. Men will not come to them unless they really want them and believe in them. We ask too much of men about what they believe or do not believe. The working and living Church of Christ is not that which shall only have a place and a welcome for those who are fully equipped with faith in all its sacred doctrines, but a church which, like Christ, shall draw all men unto it and gradually, by its spiritual love and care, nourish men into its highest privileges and possessions.

If men can believe something of Christ's revelation of God, if they can say, "Lord, I believe," it becomes then the part of every Christian as an individual and of all Christians as an organization to help their unbelief until men can enter into the fulness of His message and take for their inspiration in life, "God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whoso believeth on Him might not perish, but have everlasting life." This is the Christian's message of God's presence among us, God loving men, inspiring and guiding them toward His own ideal of perfectness. This is the opening of the gates of salvation to men, from selfishness and animalism, into the happiness and encouragement of knowing that we are the sons of God, for God hath not called us to uncleanness, but to holiness. When the churches of Christ take this attitude toward men and men shall learn that the ministration of the church is toward helping them out of their sins and mistakes rather than in a constant condemnation of their faults, I believe they will be found within its walls, ready to be helped and led toward a larger knowledge of God and His love.

Doing One's Best.

We should not only seek to do our best, but also to do the best that can be done. No man can tell when he has done his best. The best should always be the highest reach possible. The striving for excellence is not alone for the sake of the life it makes possible. No work should ever be regarded as "good enough" if it could be made better. It was said of Lord Brougham that such was his love of excellence that, "if his station in life had been only that of a bootblack, he would never have rested satisfied until he had become the best bootblack in England." It is no wonder, remarks the Baptist Union, that he was one of the best men in the empire. In seeking to do his best, ever aiming at excellence, he was gradually making himself one of the best men. And after all, the great purpose of life is only achieved when one not only does his best, but is his best.

Religious Thought.

You cannot begin anything you never did. Organization, genesis, is God.—Campbell Morgan.

When a man thinks he is the whole church he is apt to ignore the Head of the Church.—Ram's Horn.

Contentment is sunlight, discontentment is starlight, malcontentment is night.—United Presbyterian.

A man does not have to go to heaven by freight simply because he cannot express himself in meeting.—Ram's Horn.

When the Christian rises above such small details as telling the truth and dealing honestly God is going to let him drop hard.—Ram's Horn.

No one need go down to eternal death who is able to turn around and go the other way, for the other way leads to eternal life.—United Presbyterian.

Christian Submission.

A missionary in India, Rev. W. P. Byers, tells this story, which illustrates that the gospel carries its comfort in distress to the convert in India as it does in this country:

"One of our older Bengali boys, whom we were counting on to help us in the future, was carried off in a few hours by a violent fever. His poor father had struggled to give his boy every chance to learn, hoping he would become a Christian worker. But the Master saw fit to take him for higher service in the kingdom above. When this father was told that his son had passed away he bowed his head in submission worthy of any Christian in any country, as he said: 'The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord.'"—Ram's Horn.

Manhood.

Manhood has two or three qualities. First, self-assertion, and a good many men never get beyond that—they become bullies or egotists. They always get their way, ride rough shod over every man. I do not say self-assertion is to be destroyed, it is to be directed, and that is the second quality, self-direction. That power belongs to every man. God Himself does not invade or destroy it. The powers of self-assertion and self-direction reach their climax in self-surrender to the highest.—Rev. W. T. McDowell, New York City.

A Wish.

To be free from narrowness;
To respond to the nearest need,
To help all;
To magnify the good in the meanest,
To minimize with love apparent faults in others;
To give God His opportunity in me;
To further His plan for the world He loves;
Let this be my wish.
—W. P. Landon.

THE SUNDAY SCHOOL

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JULY 24.

Subject: Jehoshaphat's Reform. II Chron., xix., 1-11—Golden Text, II Chron., xix., 11—Memory Verses, 4-6—Commentary on the Day's Lesson.

1. A severe reproof (vs. 1-3). This chapter is entirely additional to Kings, and is of great interest. It deals with three matters only: The rebuke addressed to Jehoshaphat by the prophet Jehu (vs. 1-3); the personal efforts of Jehoshaphat to effect a religious reformation (v. 4); and his reform of the judicial system (vs. 5-11). 1. "Returned." From the battle against Benhadad in which Ahab was slain. "In peace." Without capture or pursuit, being miraculously delivered from imminent danger.

2. "Jehu," etc. The Hanani who is here mentioned was probably the seer who reproved Asa for seeking help from the King of Syria (chap. 16:7). His son Jehu was early called to the same divine work which distinguished his father. More than thirty years before this Jehu had foretold the doom of Baasha, King of Israel (1 Kings 16:1). "To meet him." He went at the earliest possible moment. God had sent him for this purpose and the old prophet did not hesitate. But Jehu received better treatment from Jehoshaphat than his father Hanani had received from Asa (chap. 16:7-10). "Shouldest thou." What a forcible, piercing question; Jehoshaphat's conscience would cause him to quickly answer it negatively. "Help the ungodly." "Such was the idolatrous Ahab, whose kingdom was so largely given over to the worship of Baal and Ashtoreth." A great principle is here laid down. God's people should not give the hand of fellowship to the wicked or associate them in any of their ungodly doings. The words of the apostle are to the point: Be ye not unequally yoked together with unbelievers. . . . And what agreement hath the temple of God with idols?" (2 Cor. 6:14-18). "And love them," etc. James says, "Whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God" (chap. 4:4). What would we conclude if those whom we supposed to be our friends should join themselves to our enemies and show a fondness for those who were bent on our downfall? John says, "Love all the world," etc. (1 John 2:15, 16). The friendship of wicked men is one of the most dangerous temptations to which Christians are subjected. The wealth of the world and business interests are largely in the hands of men who are not friends of Christ. While the Christian religion requires no narrow or ascetic seclusion from the world, it does forbid the seeking worldly friendships and alliances for selfish ends and to the peril of religious usefulness and religious character. Christian alliances with the wicked do not command the respect of the very men for whose favor they are formed. To love those who hate God is a personal thrust at Jesus Christ. "Therefore is wrath." The prophet does not tone down or mince matters. Faithful are the wounds of a friend, but the kisses of an enemy are deceitful. "Upon thee." He was plainly told that the consequences of his sin would fall upon him and his people with crushing force. And is not the wrath of God upon all those alliances which His people form with the ungodly, whether they be social, matrimonial, commercial or political?

3. "Nevertheless." The seer has for Jehoshaphat words of encouragement as well as words of blame, and reminds the King that in taking away the groves he had shown the true theocratic spirit, which would not fail to be recognized and blessed of God. And this oracle of blame and praise inspired the King to attempt further reforms. "Groves." The Asherah images. II. Judges appointed (vs. 4-7). 4. "Again." This refers to his previous reforms described in chapter 17. "Beersheba." This was at the southern extremity of Judah. "Mount Ephriam." The kingdom of Judah was bounded on the north by the mountains of Ephraim. Jehoshaphat traveled the whole length of his kingdom and examined everything himself "to see that judgment and justice were properly administered among the people." "Brought them back." Many probably had gone into idolatry when they saw their King so intimate with idolaters, therefore he put forth every effort possible to rescue them and bring them back to the true religion. Those who truly repent of sin do all in their power to repair the damage they may have done to others. 5. "Set judges." The King appointed local magistrates in all the principal cities, according to the directions of the law (Deut. 16:18-20), so that justice might be administered with ease and convenience. 6. "Take heed." A very solemn and necessary caution. The case seems hopeless when the judge is corrupt. "Is with you." See R. V. "The judges in deciding cases against the rich and powerful were to strengthen themselves with the thought 'God is with us.'" 7. "Wherefore now." Probably Jehoshaphat discovered irregularities and wrongs in the administration of justice such as showing respect of persons and the taking of bribes, and he accordingly undertook an extensive reform in the matter. His work no doubt consisted largely in removing evil judges and confirming the good in their office.

III. A supreme court established (vs. 8-11).

8. "In Jerusalem." Jehoshaphat's second reform measure was to establish a court of appeal in Jerusalem in accordance with Deut. 17:8-12. "This measure was probably altogether new. David and Solomon had kept judgment in their own hands. The prominent position assigned to the priests as judges was in accordance with Deut. 17:9; 19:17. "Of the Levites," etc. A certain number of each of these three classes constituted a supreme court. "Judgment of the Lord." All matters pertaining to religion about which some decision could be found in the Mosaic law. "Controversies." Civil disputes, called in verse 11 "all the King's matters." "They returned." Read this, "And they dwelt in Jerusalem;" that is, the judges appointed by Jehoshaphat. The most difficult cases could always be decided in Jerusalem, because the judges were always there. 9. "A perfect heart." That is, a heart undivided in its allegiance. The judges could not serve God and take bribes at the same time. 10. "Blood and blood." Between manslaughter and murder, or "the settlement of inheritance and family claims, etc." "Law and commandment." To decide what particular ordinance applies to a particular case. This refers to "cases where the matter concerns the interpretation and application of the law and its individual commands, statutes and judgments to particular crimes." 11. The King appointed Amariah supreme judge in the ecclesiastical court and Zebadiah in the civil court. The Levites were to be counselors and officers to assist.

Among the handsome window displays competing for first honors at the recent Confederate Re-Union at Nashville, Tenn., was that of the National Casket Co., in way of a handsome Confederate Grey Casket, draped with Silk Confederate Battle Flag with the figure of a Young Soldier, "A Son of the Old Veteran" standing guard, typefying the idea that the "Sons of Confederate Veterans" would faithfully guard his memory. The many visitors were very much impressed with the sentiment of the display made by the National Casket Co.

FARM & GARDEN

A DRYHOUSE FOR FRUIT.

One That Was Built at Small Cost and Worked Well.

Fruit drying being the order of the season, a Home and Farm writer describes a satisfactory dryhouse built by himself at small cost:

The chimney can be built of sticks and clay. If lime and sand are convenient and care is taken to cut all the sticks the same length and plaster it well inside and out, over the ends of the sticks as well as elsewhere, and then a thin coat of cement put on the outside, it will last many years, with a cover on when not in use. It should be two feet square at least, and, as to height, the higher the better; but ten feet give a good draft, if the chimney is smooth on the inside.

The dimensions of the house can be arranged to suit the amount of work to be done. This cut shows only three trays (marked A), but there can be any odd number—odd, so the current of hot air will pass all right. The direction of the current is shown by the arrows. The large dots under the fire box show the ends of the grate bars, made of any old scrap iron that will reach across into the earth on each side. They are not absolutely essential. A single one just below and inside of the fire door will do, or even a stick of green wood, renewed occasionally, will answer to hold up the ends of the wood.

The fire door may be a large sheet of tin or slab of an old stove, which may be lifted away to put in fuel. The fire box is made by digging a trench into the earth eighteen or twenty inches wide, about the same in depth, and in length proportionate to the length of the building, say half way; then it is made shallower, but broader, back to the stovepipe, which should be at least four feet long—six would be better. Over this trench are placed thin, flat stones, old stove slabs, boiler plate or anything of the kind, all cracks being well luted with clay.

This is represented in the cut by the line under the words "air inlet," just over which is another line representing the top of a flue made of sheets of tin, old stove slabs or thin, broad stones, held up on each side by bricks set edgewise or stones, all well luted with clay. This flue should be about four inches deep and no wider than the fire box, widening with the flue leading to the stovepipe.

If I ever build another, I shall make the whole front end a door. The trays can then be put in and taken out more easily and readily. No door is shown in this cut. It is over the fire door. The flue between the house and chimney should be at least three times as roomy as the inlet flue.

The top tray or set of trays is pushed against the back wall, the next against the front wall, so alternating till all are in, the bottom one back, and all trays reaching from one side to the other to completely fill the space.

Around the ends and between are spaces of eight inches. The stovepipe, heating the air around it and also acting something like a jet pump, causes a strong draft, drawing the air in over the fire, where it is heated and passes rapidly back and forth over the trays, where it quickly carries off the water that the heat brings out of the fruit. It will dry it out in a few hours easily.

Okra, or Gumbo.

Okra or gumbo is universally grown in the southern states and until very recently was generally propagated from home raised seed. Being emphatically a southern plant, of course the home grown seed are the best. However, new varieties are occasionally introduced, and these must be purchased of our seedsmen. The Tall Growing variety is the old standby, but the newer varieties, Density, Dwarf Green, Dwarf White, French Market, Perkins' Mammoth Pod and White Velvet, have been introduced and thoroughly tested. While in yield none is equal to the Tall Growing, yet the Velvet Dwarf White and Density are earlier and perhaps more delicate in quality. A succession would include some of the earlier varieties with the Tall Growing, planted later, to furnish a full supply throughout the summer and up to frost.

The Sugar Beet Season.

The season for sugar beets has been rather too wet for best results in the middle states, but prospects are fine in the central west, while in the mountain and coast states the harvesting of a superb crop is now under way and Pacific coast factories are running full blast. Several new factories will be completed in time to work up the 1902 crop of beets in the United States, while in Ontario four sugar mills will be in operation.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Mr. John Post, of the Atlanta Fire Dept., writes:

"For months I suffered with my kidneys. I made every effort to get relief, but failed until I accidentally came in possession of a bottle of Black Weed. The relief obtained from its use was so great before half the first bottle had been used, that I put aside all other medicines and am now sound and well, having been cured completely by Black Weed. At the same time I had an aggravated case of Catarrh of the head and throat. Black Weed has completely cured this, and my head is now as clear as a bell."

Fair Japan.

No one making a trip down the Pike at the World's Fair in St. Louis this summer should fail to pay a brief visit to "Fair Japan," the model village which these energetic Orientals have erected for the edification of the Western World. Just at present the world at large is interested in Japan, and in all portions of the World's Fair Grounds the exhibits of the Japanese have attracted wide attention and have compelled the admiration of the assembled nations. As the exhibits of the various buildings compare with those of the other nations, so does the Japanese Village upon the Pike compare with the other attractions. It is beyond a doubt the daintiest and most artistic amusement spot in the great ten million dollar midway. There one may see a typical street in Tokio, a Japanese theater with Geisha girls and the entire scenic investure imported specially from Japan, tea gardens, tea houses, ancient temples and a hundred and one interesting things.

The entrance to "Fair Japan" probably is the most imposing and picturesque building in the entire World's Fair Grounds. It is a replica, complete in every detail, of the famous entrance to the temple of Nikko, probably one of the most reverened places of worship in all Japan. Just beyond the Nikko Gate is the typical street in Tokio, with booths, bazaars and Japanese forms of amusement such as would be found in any typical Japanese city of the better class. Crossing a gently sloped bridge of Japanese design one enters the theater where Geisha, the Japanese Fencers and other entertainers hold forth.

To the left of the theater is the tea garden, a replica in miniature of the Imperial Gardens in Tokio, with cascades, lagoons, dwarf shrubbery and other artistic features. Located in the garden is a modern tea house in which fifteen of the beauties of the most fashionable tea houses in Tokio, Yokahama and other well known Japanese cities serve the public with light refreshments of all kinds.

Taking all in all, and in view of the fact that just at present everything of a Japanese nature is more or less in the public eye, "Fair Japan" is all that its name implies, and is one of those places along the Pike well worthy of a visit from the pleasure seekers who will flock to St. Louis this summer.

Using Straw to Improve Roads.

The farmers of Walla Walla county, Wash., are trying the experiment of laying their roads with straw to improve them, says the New York Tribune. Every fall the highways become deep with dust, making traveling hard on man and beast. Heavy rains meant mud, and the dust could not be removed without destroying the roadway. It then occurred to an enterprising individual that if all of the farmers would contribute straw and all hands assist in laying it on the roads most traveled there would be a great change for the better. The experiment was a decided success. The farmers turned out in force, plenty of straw was offered, ready hands laid it to the depth of a foot or more on the main thoroughfares of the county, and traveling became easy. Three hundred miles of roads will be covered with straw this fall.

Good Roads In Michigan.

Last year several counties in the state of Michigan expended over $200,000 on road improvements, and this year more than that amount will be expended.

Well, politics is quite down here, one of the Populist Republican candidates passes through once in awhile but they don't create much excitement, as this beat will go Democratic in November.

I was sure glad to see Jennings' piece in last week's Banner, for there was some few down here that tried to make the people believe that the Democrats had hired him to work for them.

Pounds said a few more speeches like Judge Richardson made at the Klinner Barbecue and him and his crowd would have nothing more to do but stay at home. Now I think that Mr. Pounds uttered more sense in those few words than all he had said before. Just a few more such speeches like that and him and his crowd will be knocked higher than a kite, and will be glad to stay at home, sweet home, and all the victory will be ours. Come again Judge. Well, it is always the case the hit dog will holler, and he sure yelled in last week's Union. He said I was all mouth and no brains. I had brains enough not to vote for a man that was not competent to fill the office.

THE MAN ON THE CORNER

Some of the Sights He Saw, and Some He Saw Not.

Sorry to say I am still on the sick list and unable to get out on the corner to see what is going on, so there is a tale from the World's Fair.

World's Fair Tourists Have Thrilling Experience.

The spectacle of half a thousand men, women and children voluntarily boarding a boat they know is going to sink strikes us as sufficient material to chronicle in these columns. It happened on the Pike in front of one of the mammoth buildings on that highway. In the "Under and Over the Sea" Concession, is a miniature harbor of real water. The exact depth of the little ocean we cannot say positively, but we can testify to what we saw with our own eyes on a recent visit to the World's Fair. A plain view of strollers on the Pike may be seen in this miniature harbor a submarine boat moored to the dock with its hatchway open and passengers going aboard. The writer counted no less than 500 of these human beings seeking the accommodations to be found in submarine navigation. When they were all aboard, the captain commanded the men on the dock to unfasten the ropes that held the vessel, and himself going below, the hatchway was closed and sealed hermetically, absolutely water tight. The boat began to sink from sight in the great body of water and a submarine journey to Paris has commenced. After reaching a certain great depth in the waters, indicated by one of the ship's instruments of measurement, the propellers were set in motion by a slight pressure of the electric button (the entire motive power employed in the queer craft that is the journey "Under and Over the Sea" is electrical). The great steel hull trembled, the great engine [illegible] churned the waters into a foaming fury and the boat moved forward through the transparent watery mass. Enormous electric lights illuminated the ship's course several hundred yards, and a sight indeed was the spectacle through the plate glass windows. Sea life of all descriptions, of every size, form and shape was visible, scurrying, darting and frightened into unusual activity at the sudden advent of this strange monster in their midst. And we rush, the ever changing panorama of our course revealing to us the quaint characters of sea life. Sea moss, plants, trees, fugi, shells and rock caverns, all bearing some form of sea life. Fishes of a thousand colors, coral reefs, etc., here and there the remains of an unfortunate wrecked vessel, the silent tombs of the unfortunate lost. At a greater depth we see ocean sea monsters, unicorns of the deep and narwhales are encountered. Even a shoal of graceful mermaids are seen at play, and then after a short journey up the River Seine we ascend to the surface of the river and disembark at the Paris landing dock.

Editor [illegible] through several Parisian streets to the base of the Eiffel Tower, ascending to its summit in the elevator, we board the great Air craft restlessly tugging at its moorings, anxious for the flight through the milky way, and all aboard the craft cast adrift, and our aerial journey has commenced. Speeding over the Mississippi river appears in the distance and far below. Leaving this stream over the city of St. Louis, hovering above the Exposition, the movement of the machine decreasing, the ship gently settles down on top of the Ferris and Over the Sea" Building landing dock of the Air Ship Pike.

Dysentery, Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy.

Chamberlain's Remedy is certain to be called for in almost every home before the summer is over. It can always be depended upon even in the most severe and dangerous cases. It is especially valuable for summer diarrhoea in children. It is pleasant to take, never fails to give prompt relief. Why not buy it now? It may save life. For sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. CORRESPONDENCE.

[We are willing to publish our subscribers views at any time, but it must be distinctly understood we do not hold ourselves responsible for these opinions.—EDITOR.]

Mulberry, July 18, 1904

Editor Banner: As politics is all the gow now, it is strange to hear of so much meanness our candidates have done. It reminds me of the yarn about the old slave who told his old missus about his old master's meauness. His old missus would give him ginger cake and he would tell something else, and he eat and told, eat and told, until he told things old master dope way befo de war. Now, boys, quit telling so much, for it does no good, and quit selling a man land unless you are genteel enough to give him a good title, or give him his money back.

We will elect Deason for Judge, and Foshee for Clerk, Garner for Assessor, Veazey for Collector, Callen for Treasurer, and in fact a full Democratic ticket. We havn't had a Republican set of officers in this, our white man's county, in many years, and we won't have for many more.

You boys, who claim to be Pops, can't fool us; we are like the Irishman said, we know you by your tune. How can a man with a mouses ear full of brains, and with a heart as big as the white of a negroe's eye, look a white man in the face and own to be a Republican, when your representatives in your National Convention were six black flat nose, kinky head, thick lipped fool negroes. And, more, think of how that sweet little white Anglo Saxon girl looked standing up beside a negro boy at Roosevelt's convention. Think of these things now, and again when you go to vote, then after these calm thoughts if you can vote anything but a straight Democratic ticket you will fool me bad, so much so that I shall [illegible] a law to colonize the republican party entirely. Better be careful how you vote, but as I said, it don't matter with us how you vote, we will elect our ticket and not stuff the boxes either. Come to our barbecue in Beat 3 and we will feed you on Democratic grub, and if that won't civilize you we will let you go. Say, boys, I voted with the People's party for a long time, feeling and believing I was a true Democrat, which I was, but if they had called me a Republican I would have quit there and then. I have done some mean things, but never voted a Republican ticket, and you won't if you can see yourself as you are. God bless our Editor and dear old Banner, and you Reps too.

We, the pupils of Collins Chapel music school, now at a close, conducted by our esteemed friends and teachers, Prof. J. Second, realizing the benefits derived from their services, we, the pupils of said school, sincerely hope to have the aid of their valuable services with us again in near future. Third, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to the Banner for publication.

Verbena.

Editor Banner—Would beg space in your paper to tell the people of Chilton that Verbena is still in the same place. We have perhaps more people than we've had in several years. An addition of a hotel in the old Clifton house is something new and nice.

The Ladies Aid Society of this place gave quite a nice little play last Thursday night—"The Snow Cap Sisters," by eleven of Verbena's most beautiful and talented young ladies. We are really proud of them, for it would be hard indeed to entertain an audience more cleverly.

I might fill up your paper with the chaff and nonsense of the place, might tell who comes and who goes, who is sick and who is better, but I may come again if not objectionable, and don't care to tire you the first time. Will say, however, that in Verbena there's something doing.

Safeguard the Children.

Notwithstanding all that is done by boards of health and charitably inclined persons, the death rate among small children is very high during the hot weather of the summer months in the large cities. 10 per cent Dividend Declared by Strock's Store on Shoes.

But who gets the dividend, or profits, that have been declared? It is not often that anyone shares in the profits of a business except those who own shares, or the owner. But in this case we have thrown wide open the door, and propose to give 10 per cent of the profits on our shoes to outsides. Yes, 10 per cent of the profits on our shoe trade are going to outsiders and you may share in this if you wish. And this is no fictitious matter or scheme. It is just a plain simple fact—we are doing just what we say we are doing.

How is this being done? Well, we have 300 pair of shoes which we will sell at a reduction of 10 per cent.

10 per cent in your pocket, 10 per cent out of our pocket—that is just what it is.

Would you like to share in these profits? Come right on and let us show you.

EXPLOSION ON YACHT

Imperils 150 Lives, but All Excursionists Are Saved.

The steam yacht Castanet returning to Clayton, N. Y., from Kingston, Ontario, with 150 excursionists, caught fire in mid stream, and only by the most fortunate circumstances was an awful accident averted.

The yacht was four miles from Kingston, and half a mile from shore, a stiff breeze blowing, and the passengers were enjoying the ride, when suddenly a sheet of flame shot up through the hatchways. The passengers at once ran to the ends of the boat. The flames swept up to the canvass awnings, and in a moment these were ablaze. While the passengers were huddled forward and aft, the engineer and fireman made their way through the flames from the engine room. The crew, after distributing life preservers to the passengers, began to fight the blaze.

Captain Barney Nunn headed the Castanet toward shore, and was followed by the steamer yacht Nokomis, which was a mile away when the flames broke out. The burning boat was beached on Cedar island. The passengers were transferred without the loss of a life, and the fire was extinguished by the united efforts of both crews. Engineer Charles Wood and his son, the fireman, were both badly burned, but will recover.

The cause of the accident was an explosion of gas in the fire box, which threw the hot coals into the engine room and down the galleys.

MAY NOT ENCAMP.

Mississippi National Guard Not Yet Accorded Rates.

Unless the railroads grant a reduced rate of one cent per mile for troops it is probable that the annual encampment of the Mississippi national guard at Biloxi commencing on the 15th of August will be called off.

Heretofore the railroads have always granted reduced rates for state troops, but since the militia has been accepted under the new Dick bill the government will pay the expenses of annual encampments. With the exception of two or three lines under obligations to the government, all the railroads in the country charge full fare for the transportation of regular troops of the United States army, and the fear is being entertained that if state troops are hereafter carried at reduced rates the government will adopt it as a precedent and refuse to pay regular rates in the future.

MISSISSIPPI SCHOOLS

Get Over Three-quarters of the State's Revenues.

In making out his report for the last year State Treasurer Miller, of Mississippi, has found that the state has been spending more money per capita for the cause of education than any other state in the union save Massachusetts, and the figures will show that this same educational cause is a burdensome one. The total receipts at the state treasury last year amounted to $2,263,671.28, of which just $1,727,784.28 was paid out on account of the schools of the state. That means that Mississippi pays 77.2 per cent of all her collections for the cause of education.

The grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen will assemble in Meridian, Miss., August 10th. A circular letter is being sent out to all grand lodge representatives of the order in Georgia, Alabama, North and South Carolina, Florida and Mississippi announcing the date of meeting and matters pertaining to the session.

Attorney-General Williams, of Mississippi, under the authority of the Railroad commission, will ask for an injunction restraining the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City road from using the new depot at Pontotoc until the suit now pending in the federal court regarding the old depot site is settled.

There is considerable talk of a probability of legal proceedings being instituted by the Cumberland Telephone company to prevent the Mississippi railroad commission from enforcing its assessment of the company's property. The assessment is an increase of 66 2-3 per cent.

Estimates of the damages that have been wrought to cotton crop prospects in Mississippi on account of excessive rainfalls vary from ten to twenty per cent, according to locality.

Evidence has been furnished Insurance Commissioner Cole that two wildcat insurance companies are now operating in Mississippi.

ASKS LAST PAYMENT

State Auditor Writes for Small Balance Due on Railroad Securities.

LAST OF AN OLD RAILROAD CASE.

Randolph, the Last of "the Strangulated Counties," Owes $226.15. Fifteen Years' Time Expired.

Auditor Sowell has written for the last payment of amounts due the state on account of old railroad securities for which the counties of Chambers, Lee, Randolph and Tallapoosa became responsible way back in the days of reconstruction. This amount is $226.15, due by Randolph, the final obligation of the five counties in a controversy that involved the state and caused several special acts of the legislature to be passed.

These obligations were incurred in the building or promotion of what is now the Central of Georgia from Opelika to Roanoke, and from Columbus, Ga., to Birmingham. So hot did the fight become once that the counties refused to pay the interest. County officers were abolished and the taxes collected by the state, apportioning back the amounts due the counties. The matter was then taken to the United States court.

Finally, in the session of the legislature of 1883, the state took the matter in hand and appointed a way for settlement of all the claims. A commissioner was provided for to look into the obligation and find what would have to be paid to settle all controversy. It was ascertained that the following amounts were due, or should be paid to get the difficulty cleared up: Chambers, $17,588.61; Lee, $41,955.66; Randolph, $36,296.01; Tallapoosa, $33,600.26.

The state then provided for the payment of these amounts and allowed the counties to pay it back in ten years, excepting Randolph county, which was allowed fifteen years. This $226.15, written for by Chief Clerk Cook in the auditor's office, will be the end, it having been fifteen years since the trade with the counties was consummated. Because of this trouble these counties were known for some time as "the strangulated counties."

Girls' School.

The past scholastic year was the most successful in the history of the Alabama Girls' Industrial school at Montevallo, and was the first year since its foundation that the school has been out of debt.

It is shown that $42,335.08 was received for the students' fund, and $42,295.48 was expended, leaving a balance of $39.60. For the building fund $50,000 was received and $49,386.60 was disbursed, leaving a balance of $613.40. For the general fund $28,595.77 was received and $26,364.46 was disbursed, leaving a balance of $2,231.31.

There are 100 more applications for girls to enter than there were at this time last year. The question now is how to accommodate the girls who desire to attend.

A Little Hero.

James Cogburn, the 8-year-old son of the section foreman of the Western of Alabama at Notasulga, is a hero. He flagged a train and saved it from a bad wreck. A heavy storm had blown down three large telegraph poles across the track and they were matted and tied with the cozens of wires on them that a train would certainly have been wrecked if it had run into them.

Murdered by a Negro.

W. E. Reliford, a white man whose home is in Birmingham, was shot by a negro, Eugene Lee, at Keystone, near Siluria Thursday evening and died immediately afterwards. The nature of the difficulty is not definitely known, except that the white man called the negro a liar, and the negro shot him.

TO SUCCEED WOOD.

Governor Cunningham Appoints Archie Douglass.

The governor settled the Lowndes county probate judgeship by naming Archie Douglass for the position. He will take charge at once and serve until the elections in November say who is to be his successor, the gentleman then chosen to serve six years.

The vacancy in Lowndes was caused by the resignation of J. Colvin Wood, who had been called to face charges of attempting to secure votes in the April primary in an illegal way and not taking proper care of his duties.

Forty years after the burial of John Wickliffe, first English translator of the Bible and known as "The morning star of the reformation," the council of Constance ordered his bones raised from the grave, burned to ashes and thrown into a neighboring brook.

The Austrian army has two Jewish generals.

SUPREME COURT.

Old Court Ended; New Court Begins This Fall.

The present supreme court sittings have ended and the court adjourned till fall, when the new court enters upon its duties. The session just ended was a special session.

From a chief justice and four associates the court now becomes, after next November, a chief justice and six associates. All the present members have been renominated save Judge H. A. Sharpe, who did not ask it.

The winter term is set to begin November 14th. The law says the new judges are to qualify on the 10th of November of the year of their election. This makes the new court available for the next session.

The new court will be made up as follows: Chief justice, T. N. McClellen, Limestone; associates, Jonathan Haralson, Dallas; John R. Tyson, Montgomery; James R. Dowdell and N. D. Denson, Chambers; R. T. Simpson, Lauderdale, and John C. Anderson, Marengo.

The officers of the court now are: R. F. Ligon, clerk, Montgomery; Charles Coleman, reporter, Montgomery; Junius M. Riggs, marshal and librarian, Montgomery; Leon C. McCord, secretary, Marshall.

ALL THREE PRIZES

For Marksmanship Won by the First Regiment.

The First regiment, A. N. G., won the silver loving-cup offered by Brigadier General Clark for the best score in the rifle contest, and two members of its team carried off the medals offered for the first and second highest individual scores.

Privates O. L. Bothwell, of company D, First regiment, won the gold medal offered by Colonel H. B. Gray, of the governor's staff, by making a score of 76 out of a possible 100 points. Captain N. H. Coleman, of company D, won the medal offered by the Age-Herald for the second best individual score by making 72 points out of a possible 100. Lieutenant Hugh Miller, of the Jefferson Volunteers, Third regiment, made the third best score, 69 out of a possible 100 points.

The scores are remarkable considering that this is the first time many of the contestants ever shot on a rifle range.

CONSOLIDATED COURTS.

Act Declared Unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

The Consolidated courts law of Jefferson county has been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court and the courts of Jefferson county will go back to the old form as they existed prior to the adoption of the consolidated bill by the last general assembly.

The supreme court has decided that insufficient notice was given to the bill and that the notices published did not fully state the purpose and intent of the bill so that the people could understand it before it went before the general assembly.

Back to Daphne.

The supreme court has decided that the removal of the court house of Baldwin county from Daphne to Bay Minette was in violation of the law, the effect of which is to order it back to Daphne.

Farm Donated to the North Alabama Conference.

The Rev. J. W. Norton, agent for the North Alabbama conference of the Methodist church, secured while attending the Guntersville district conference a valuable farm for the superannuate home cause. The farm contains about one hundred and twenty-five acres, and is situated near Guntersville.

It was the gift of O. D. Street, and Sam Henry, of Guntersville.

NEARING NEW CHWANG

Japanese Advance is Watched from the Housetops. The Russians Leaving.

RUSSIANS TAKE MERCHANTMEN

American and German Vessels Captured—Japanese Police Seoul—Russians Destroying Property.

A battle was fought Saturday near Ta Tche Kiao attended, it is believed, with heavy losses. The progress of the battle was watched by many people in New Chwang from the roofs of the houses. The day was clear and the smoke of the guns could be plainly seen.

In the engagement the Russian losses are reported to have been 700. The Japanese are slowly nearing New Chwang.

In accordance with orders issued by General Kuropatkin, the Russians commenced to evacuate New Chwang Sunday. The Russian railway station is in flames. The Russians are evidently destroying their property previous to evacuation.

The Vladivostok squadron yesterday sunk the American steamer Knight Commander from New York off the province of Issu, after transferring the crew of the Knight Commander to the steamer Tsinan.

The Vladivostok squadron also captured a German vessel with thirty thousand tons of flour, and an unknown British steamer. The two vessels were sent to Vladivostok in charge of prize crews.

The Japanese have posted in Seoul an announcement that they will exercise police power in all matters affecting Japanese interests. No anti-Japanese meetings will be allowed. This action is the result of the rapid growth of an anti-Japanese propaganda. Foreigners are not affected by the new order.

Advices say the Russian volunteer fleet steamer Smolensk fired three blank shots across the bows of the British steamer Ardova, the cargo of which consists of coal and explosives, and the vessel not stopping, the Smolensk sent two loaded shots at her, one of them passing over her amidships and the other two over her stern. The Ardova was then seized and her crew transferred to the Smolensk. The vessel will be brought to Suez.

Captain Gloloff, commander of a torpedo boat destroyer, jumped overboard during a storm to save a man whose boat had been swamped. Gloloff succeeded in bringing the man to the side of the destroyer and he was taken aboard, but the captain himself sank exhausted and was drowned.

MAIL SEIZURE.

Controversy Settled Between England and Russia.

It is stated that the complications arising from the seizure of the P. and O. steamer Malacca by the Russian cruiser St. Petersburg have been settled on the following terms:

England acknowledged Russia's right to search the vessel and further gave Russia formal assurance that the steamer's cargo consisted of English government property. Russia admits the seizure was an error of judgment. She will pay the P. and O. company indemnity for the loss of time etc. Russia informs England that more circumspection will be displayed in the future. The status of the volunteer fleet remains undefined.

The passage of vessels through the Dardanelles did not figure in England's protest. Before the settlement was obtained it is stated that Russia sought European support and again failed. England, on the other hand, informed the powers that she would recapture the Malacca forcibly unless Russia liberated her. The expectation now is that England will immediately raise the question of passage of the Dardanelles by volunteer steamers.

MINERS CALL STRIKE

Reject Offer of Operators and Demand Old Scale. The Action Unanimous.

SESSION LASTED TWO HOURS.

Operators Ask Reduction to 40c Per Ton as Minimum and Monthly Pay Day.

At 1:20 Monday afternoon the special convention of Alabama district No. 20, United Mine Workers of America, adjourned sine die and it was announced that a strike had been declared. In the official call for a strike the following paragraph appears:

"The operators' proposition of [illegible] a reduction of ten cents per ton on the minimum and semi-monthly pay [illegible] cents per ton on the maximum with a return to the monthly pay [illegible] an increase of hours of one hour per day; that day men shall be paid by the hour instead of by the day according to past custom a large increase in the differential between pick and machine mining and several other changes."

This call applies to all the miners and mine laborers in the employ of the Pratt Coal Company, except mines known as number "sixteen," located near Pinckney City, where temporary contract has been entered into between said company and the United Mine Workers of America.

The strike order effects 3000 men, most of whom have been out since July 1.

The miners are insisting on the scale of last year. This scale calls for a minimum of 47 1-2 cents a ton when iron is selling at $8 a ton.

The operators submitted a proposition reducing the price to 40 cents a ton minimum when iron is selling at $10 a ton. This, the miners say means a reduction of 10 cents a ton on the minimum.

About 45,000 men will continue at work under temporary contracts signed by several companies. The men affected have done no work since the 4th of July, awaiting an adjustment of the wage scale.

All miners working where temporary contracts exist will continue at work pending a final adjustment of the wage scale.

The national organization will be immediately informed of the strike and will be expected to give assistance to the district organization.

The Morrison [illegible] has been incorporated in Walker county. The company owns about 1,000 acres of coal lands in Walker county on the Corona road and this will be developed. An air compressor plant will be put in and a tipple built. The branch railroad will be constructed to the property at once. The company expects to put coal on the market by December 1st.

Lieutenant Colonel F. P. McConnell and Captain Campbell, quartermaster of the Third regiment Alabama national guard, have been sued by Gray & Dudley, merchants of Birmingham, for $20. Two years ago horse blankets were purchased from the company for the use of the members of the governor's staff of the Third regiment. Such account, it is claimed, remains unpaid.

Samuel E. Fleming, who lived six or seven miles northeast of Brundidge, was killed by lightning Sunday. A heavy cloud was coming up and as he stepped into the yard the lightning struck a tree and glanced to him, killing him instantly. A widow and [illegible] survive him.

Never Had a Trial.

The act creating the city court of Gadsden says that the fall terms shall commence on the third Monday in September and continue until the third Saturday in December. It seems that the Johnson trial commenced on Friday, the 18th of December, and completed on Saturday, the 19th. His attorneys contended that the term of court expired on the night of the 18th at 12 o'clock.

ENGINEER COMMITS SUICIDE.

Leaves Letter, but Assigns No Cause for the Act.

The dead body of Walter B. Wallace, a Southern railway engineer, was found Monday morning. Wallace was well known. He was a married man and the father of several children.

A letter was found in the room where the suicide occurred addressed to Mrs. Wallace. In it the deceased tells his wife to blame no one for his death. The cause of the act is not given.

Sunday morning Wallace went to the Waddell house and asked for a room in which to take a nap. When he had retired he called Dave Waddell, the son of the proprietor, and stated that he had an in-growing toe nail that was troubling him, and asked that the boy go to the drug store and get some medicine for him. He sent for ten cents' worth of carbolic acid and ten cents worth of laudanum. He then asked not to be disturbed. He did not lock his door.

"LOST HIS HEAD"

And Was the Prime Cause of the Slocum Disaster.

The disaster to the excursion steamer General Slocum, in which nearly a thousand lives were lost, never would have occurred if one of the deck hands had retained his presence of mind, according to the opinion of former Fire Marshal Thomas F. Freel, who testified before the federal commission which is making an inquiry into the disaster. Mr. Freel said that a member of the steamer's crew named Coakley testified before the coroner that he saw the fire and tried to find something to smother it with. He picked up a bag of charcoal and threw it at the barrel, knocking it over and spreading the fire. He then ran to get the fire hose, leaving the door to the stairway open.

"That was all that the fire wanted—a little aid—and it spread," said Mr. Freel.

"If the man had not lost his head, he could have picked up the barrel and thrown it overboard and the disaster would not have happened."

Davis, the democratic vice presidential candidate, will in the fall marry Mrs. Catherine Reynolds, widow of Dr. John Reynolds, of Shepherdstown. When Mr. Davis was a railroad brakeman he became a suitor for her hand. He proposed to the young lady, whose maiden name was Catherine Cushwa. She was willing, but the family which was one of the most prominent ... of Maryland, objected because he was only a poor railroad man. Davis disappeared and she later married Dr. Reynolds. Mrs. Reynolds has two grown children and half a dozen grandchildren.

The appeal of Dr. A. J. Dickinson in the noted text-book case was turned down by the supreme court affirming the validity of the state text-book law. SPRING MATTRESS TO FALL ON.

Device Which Will Prevent Many Elevator Accidents.

A new life-saving device, designed to prevent serious injury to one unfortunate enough to fall down an elevator shaft, has been made by Joseph G. Branch, Inspector of Boilers and Elevators, and is shown herewith. It consists of a woven wire net covering the full opening of the well and supported just above the bottom by stout arms. The whole is supported in an outstretched position under normal circumstances by a pair of springs.

When the falling body strikes the net the fall is broken by the combined action of it and the springs. It will give and sag to a position indicated, the arms themselves closing up scissors-like, as is shown, and being resisted in this movement by the compression of springs. The pipes are free to move endwise through proper openings made in the upper ends of the strut arms, permitting them to close in and break the force of the fall.

Making French Knots.

"I did not see your daughter in the coaching parade, Mr. Gates."

"No. She has been captured by the latest fad—making French knots. You know, she was a pupil of Madame Buchanan, of the Champs Elysees, and is quite proud of her needlework. Every young woman these days must have at least one hand-made dress, that is, a dress made by her own hand. Eloise spends four hours a day ornamenting her latest creation with French knots. Last night she informed me that she had made already over 1200, and expects to make 800 more. The knots look like little hummocks of thread, and are built right in the cloth."

TARGET SHOOTING ON THE DINING ROOM TABLE.

Figure 1 shows the target cut out of cigar box wood. A circular piece is first cut, about one inch in diameter, and eight small round pieces of cardboard with the numbers 1 to 8 on them are mounted on toothpicks and grouped around it at even distances; the other ends of the toothpicks are then inserted in the sides of the circular piece of wood. The target itself is fastened to a stick of wood about eight inches long, fastened to a stand, as shown in the picture. The gun consists of a paper tube, which is made by winding cardboard well covered with glue around the stem of a leadpencil. When it is dry, a piece about five inches long is cut off. One and three-quarter inches from one end, we make an incision about two inches long, cutting down to about one-half of the thickness of the tube (see Figure 2).

Figure 2 shows how a piece of whalebone about six inches long is inserted, acting as the propelling power of the gun. You shoot with a wooden peg about one and a half inches long, fitting loosely into the barrel of the gun; to give it more weight and strength, we insert a carpet tack.

To shoot, hold the gun with the right hand, pulling the whalebone back with the index finger, and inserting the peg; as soon as the index finger releases the whalebone, it springs forward and forces the peg out. To aim well, hold the tube in such a way that the whalebone spring points downward.

CUTS OUT THE PINEAPPLE EYE.

The preparation of a pineapple is a long and tedious operation because of the size and shape of the fruit, and for the reason that the fruit is rather hard to cut. After it has been pared it must be carefully gone over and the eyes cut out. These tough portions being allowed to remain, interfere largely with the enjoyment of eating the fruit, whether it be in its natural condition or cooked, and the economical and quick removal of the eyes with the ordinary means is impossible.

A pistol-like device with which this is accomplished with celerity and dispatch is shown in the accompanying cut. In use the pineapple is pared and the band of the clip is placed under the eye about one-half inch and then the trigger is pulled, and in its descent it completely cuts out the eye. The trigger, being released, throws out the bite. In this manner the eye is cut out with great economy of the fruit as compared with the usual method of procedure.

Weekly Crop Report.

The weather and crop bulletin of the Alabame section of the weather service, for the week ending July 25, is as follows:

"The weather was generally favorable for growing and maturing crops, though too much rain was received in some southwestern, middlewestern and northern counties and more is needed in a few southern and central counties. A hailstormi which passed over the middle portion of Coffee county on the evening of the 18th instant completely destroyed crops over an area of about four miles wide and fourteen miles long; hailstorms were also slightly damaging in Autauga, Marshal and DeKalb counties. A week of dry, moderately warm weather would be beneficial to field crops, nearly all of which has been laid by. Cotton continues to fruit well, though there are some complaints of too rapid growth and grassy fields; the crop, as a whole, however, is generally promising, with but comparatively few reports of damaging conditions of any kind. Corn is generally promising, with the early planted maturing over the southern half of the State, where some early fodder is being pulled; late corn continues very promising in nearly all districts. Gardens and minor crops are making satisfactory progress, except sweet potatoes are blighting in some fields. Melons and peaches are plentiful; grapes and pears are rotting in some places, but continue generally promising; hay prospects are now generally good, and turnips have been sown in some localities."

THE BEAT 3 BARBECUE.

A more enthusiastic, agreeable and joyous crowd never was gathered together than that which met last Friday at the Fonnie Williams place in Beat 3. The day was perfect, the speakers were entertaining, the barbecue was fine, the music was sweet, and everyone thoroughly enjoyed themselves.

J. Osmond Middleton made the opening speech in a very happy vein, addressing his remarks mainly to young men who were now at the age when they would cast their first vote, and appealing to them in their own behalf and for the welfare of their country that their votes should be cast with the Democratic party.

Congressman Sydney J. Bowie made an excellent speech which was well received and frequently applauded. He explained the workings of the new constitution, told how it was that fraudulent practices had been forced upon the people of Alabama by the vicious legislation of the carpetbag period; exposed the false reasonings and charges made against the Democratic party, and contrasted the attitude of the Democrats with the Republicans in regard to the race question, urging all white men to vote the Democratic ticket. He was frequently interrupted by the prolonged applause.

An interesting incident was Mr. Bowie's reply to a question asked by George Edwards, who wanted to know about the "100,000 white men who were disfranchised for not paying poll tax." The reply was simple and convincing. "In the first place" said Mr. Bowie, "there is not that number of white men of poll tax age in the State. All able bodied men between the ages of 21 and 45 are liable for poll tax. If they are deformed or disabled they are exempt. Like most of the charges made against the Democratic party, this is twisted and contorted, and exaggerated 500 per cent. If an able bodied white man is not willing to pay $1.50 per year, every cent of which goes to the education of the white children in the community in which he lives, then such a man disfranchises himself and is not worthy to vote." The audience, who were intelligent white men, applauded the answer enthusiastically.

E. B. Deason, Democratic nominee for Judge of Probate, who was infected with the prevailing enthusiasm, made an interesting short speech, reminding his hearers he was a Chilton boy, born and raised among them, and they knew him and the life he had led. He had espoused the Democratic cause, not for the sake of office, but for principle, and his utmost efforts were for the advancement of the Democratic party.

John Nix, who was master of ceremonies, requested Tipton Mullins to announce the barbecue was ready and Mr. Mullins made a few pleasant remarks to the audience, who then adjourned to partake of the good things provided.

MINERAL SPRINGS.

A steady downpour of rain Saturday morning interfered somewhat with the arrangements for the basket dinner, but it takes more than a heavy rain to damp the ardor of the sturdy Democrats of Beat One, and it was a very fair crowd that gathered and listened to the speech of Congressman Bowie.

UNCLE SAM'S ROADS.

AMERICA BEHIND OTHER NATIONS IN HIGHWAY IMPROVEMENT.

Annual Expenditures Here and in European Countries For Good Roads—Cost of Building Highways in Some of Our States.

The United States does not begin to spend the amount of money upon its public highways that it costs to construct and maintain the public roads of England and European countries. While this country leads the world in its railroads and street railways, it is far behind most countries across the Atlantic in its system of public highways. England and Wales spend annually $20,000,000 on their roads, Ireland $3,000,000, France $37,500,000, while the United States, the pioneer of all nations in public improvements, the leader of the world in devising and perfecting plans to add to the comfort and welfare of mankind, lags in the race with the disgraceful record of spending $40,000 upon its federal plan of public road improvement.

This does not include, of course, the annual expenditures of the various states of the Union, says the Buffalo Express. If these sums were included, the comparison would not be so unfavorable, for there will be expended this year close on to $10,000,000 throughout the country for the betterment of public highways. Moreover, the outlook for the future is exceedingly bright. The possibilities are that by the end of another decade the combined expenditures of the federal government and the various states will equal $50,000,000 a year for the construction and maintenance of public highways.

There are fully 200 good roads organizations, national, state and county, in the United States. The association that is doing the most work for the betterment of highways throughout the country is that known as the American Roadmakers. The membership of this association is limited to ten influential men in each state, one of the provisions of its constitution being that there shall not be more than ten members from each state.

When New Jersey, which was the pioneer state in the good roads movement, first began to improve its roads, it cost $10,000 per mile. They are now being constructed for $2,000 to $5,000 per mile, most of them costing only $2,500. This is due to the greater knowledge and practical experience gained by the road builders as well as by the use of improved machinery and methods. In Michigan, Ohio and other western states roads are being constructed at a much less figure, some of them costing not more than $1,000. As might be expected, these roads are not as durable as those upon which a greater amount of money is expended.

New York pays about $5,000 to $7,000 a mile and builds a very thoroughly constructed road out of crushed stone under the direction of the state engineer and in accordance with the state aid plan, which provides that the state shall pay 50 per cent of the cost of construction of the roads, 35 per cent is paid by the county and 15 per cent by the town in which the road is improved. Connecticut and Massachusetts both have admirable methods for improving their highways and have long been recognized as among the most progressive states of the Union in this regard, each expending $500,000 a year on the improvement of its roads.

The state of Georgia is, perhaps, the most progressive among the southern states. For a number of years it has employed a large amount of prison labor in the construction of its roads, using prisoners, both black and white, in crushing stone and in constructing the roads. The system of employing prison labor has been so successfully carried out that it has been adopted in other states.

A most interesting good roads campaign is being conducted in the state of Michigan by Senator Earle. The senator has equipped a good roads train, consisting of a traction engine, five small cars for carrying stone and a stone crushing plant, all of which is drawn by the traction engine, which is also converted into a road roller and is employed in finishing the road.

DEATH OF MRS. VIRGINIA TERRAN.

"I am He that liveth, and was dead; and behold I am alive forevermore. Amen."

On June 23, at 6 p.m. 1904, this lovely woman, endowed with so much beauty of person and character, was promoted to glory through the blood of the lamb and her testimony. We thought her too beautiful and charming for death. It seemed that death was so unbecoming to such esquisitely formed features, but God who made her to declare His glory and to show His handy work stamped a beautiful smile on her face even in death. I asked myself "Shall that smile consume away in the grave?" Then faith and hope answered: No, that is but the dawn of that brighter smile over which no shadow of frown shall pass. It is in return of the smile of the Lord, and this beautiful body shall be "raised in power and glory in a moment in the twinkling of an eye at the last trump, for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible, and we shall be chauged. Now, on this dismal day as I sit alone and think of her lofty character, her lovely virtues, her crushed and inconsolable family, the wide sad void left in our homes, hearts, church, and society, my recollection brings up my pleasant association with her. All the loveliness and all the endearing attractiveness of her superb womanhood, her fidelity to her convictions of duty, her firmness of purpose, her undaunted courage exhibited in life and illustrated in her death. I feel that such a character should be enshrined in grateful hearts and perpetuated in affection's everlasting memory. Her death came at first dazing, then left us in a mystic so dense that we have not sufficiently recovered to realize how great is our loss, and how sad is our bereavement. But in the returning twilight I feel constrained to lay this tribute on the grave of her who has been such a benediction to us all, and to bless the Lord for the day wherein she was born. Early in life before men and angels and God our loved one witnessed the good confession and became a deciple of Jesus. Her religion was of the quiet and modest type, abounding in lofty deeds rather than pretentious words. Naturally generous, broadminded, tolerant and unselfish, her religion was more practical than theoretical. Her disposition was so warm and genial, her conversation so intelligent and pleasing that she won friends as if by magic. One friend has said none knew her but to love her, none spoke of her, but to praise her.

At her Blue Creek home in this county, where she spent the greater part of her radiant life, can be seen her beautiful and valuable possessions her wide range of work wrought with such precision and skill. Neatness and good order was her infallible rule, and now while I consider this I can but exclaim "Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord, for they shall rest from their labors, and their works shall follow them. While earth was receding and heaving advancing absorbing her precious soul and filling her entire vision, she seemed to be called back for a short time by the presence of loved ones and friends who came to her bedside. On one dear friend she smiled sweet and heavenly smiles, demonstrating that she lived, knew and understood. In her few last precious words she said, "It seems so long doctor." In her Bible she left a beautiful written testimony declaring her love for Jesus, and her absolute trust in Him. In her family she was the anchor to every soul, a jewel to which no conception could set a value. May the God who has crushed bind up our broken hearts again. Now that our loved one is gone we all know how dear she was to us.

We have awakened to the full appreciation of her great worth, and of the sad calamity that has befallen us. We loved her, and could heartily wish her back did we not believe she has touched the pearl strewn shore of a better land.

Well done, good and faithful servant, the great and good that have passed from earth are thy companions, and thy ears have heard music sweeter than all earthly plaudits! Yes, we miss thee, we mourn thee; through the rifted heavens we greet thee with grateful tears and undying love.

ONE WHO LOVED HER.

Revival Meeting.

The saints will begin a series of meeting six miles north of Clanton, and two miles west of Lomax, at Bethany church, to continue as long as God leads. Bro. Otto Bobbs, of West Liberty, Ohio, will be present.

A cordial invitation is extended to all both far and near, especially let all the preachers come, and those seeking to know the Lord can be benefited by attending these meetings. To hear anything yourself is generally far better than taking the others man's word for it, so you come, bring your Bible and investigate for yourself. Do not let the devil get prejudice in your heart so you can't come. You can rest assured that you will not hear man's opinion but simply the word of God. The meeting will be free to all God's people to do their duty in testifying, praying or preaching.

Everybody come; day and night as long as God leads. All the Christians pray for the success of this meeting.

Yours for the truth,
J. L. MITCHELL.

Cured of Chronic Diarrhoea After Ten Years of Suffering

"I wish to say a few words in praise of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy," says Mrs. Mattie Burge, of Martinsville, Va. "I suffered from chronic diarrhoea for ten years and during that time tried various medicines without obtaining any permanent relief. Last summer one of my children was taken with cholera morbus, and I procured a bottle of this remedy. Only two doses were required to give her entire relief. I then decided to try the medicine myself, and did not use all of one bottle before I was well and have never since been troubled with that complaint. One cannot say too much in favor of that wonderful medicine." This remedy is for sale by Upchurch Drug co., Clanton, A. Horn, Thorsby.
